"I'm mighty obleeged to you', an' I better not guess who yo' are, but yore shore a mighty little feller. Now, yo' better run erlong befo' de guard comes back from he's supper. Nobuddy 'll know 'twas yo' dat helped me out erway, an' I shall git to Richmond as fas' as I kin till de smell ob chicken hes gone from de kunnel's nostrils—he, he!" he chuckled gleefully.

"Goodby," whispered Azariah Ichabod Peters. "I spect yore mighty happy to be free."

"Glory, chile, dat I am," said the grateful Mr. Woodson. "Now, yo' run erlong home, li'l' Azariah Ichabod Peters Abraham Lincoln! I'm gwine ter be free!"

Azariah scampered away and reclaimed his molasses jug, and as he trudged the weary lonely two miles homeward every step of his soft rubber boots seemed to emphasize Henry's words in his happy heart:

"Li'l' Azariah Ichabod Peters Abraham Lincoln."

AT WORK IN 3 WEEKS

$4 Worth of Father Morriscy's "No. 7" Cured Her of Inflammatory Rheumatism.

Mrs. Agnes Edgar, of Grand Falls, N.B., had a terrible time with Inflammatory Rheumatism. Anyone who has had this most painful disease will understand her suffering—and her joy when she found Father Morriscy's "No. 7" had cured her. She says:

"I took Father Morriscy's Prescription for Inflammatory Rheumatism. I had suffered everything with it, but in three weeks after starting Father Morriscy's Prescription I was able to do my work, and after taking four dollars worth of medicine I was well. I highly recommend it any sufferer with Rheumatism."

Rheumatism comes from bad kidneys. The poisonous Uric Acid which they should remove stays in the blood, accumulates in joints and muscles, and causes agony. Father Morriscy's "No. 7" puts the kidneys right, removes the Uric Acid from the blood and the whole system, and cures the Rheumatism. 50c. a box at your dealer's, or from Father Morriscy Medicine Co. RURAL TELEPHONES

Remarkable Success of the System Under a Government Commission

The Manitoba Government telephone commission have compiled, after considerable work, figures which have been gathered together which show that during the time the system has been under control of the commission throughout the province, in the districts served by some ten thousand telephones, representing an area of 7,925,760 acres, which is approximately 344 townships, every acre of this land has benefitted through the introduction of the rural telephone, so that the land to-day is worth just five dollars an acre more than before the Government took the system over and started in on the constitution and extension of the rural and long distance lines, which to-day cover nearly or at least the far greater portion of the province. The system is being added to and made to serve more districts, besides opening, as far as the telephone is concerned, new territory from day to day. While the increase in the value of the land throughout the province is not wholly due to the telephone, it is easily understood that it is to a great extent responsible, when it is known that where there is telephone connection and service the land is of greater value than where this utility is not in vogue. The increase in the value of land throughout the province, mainly through the introduction of a rural telephone service, by the telephone commission, on the taking over of the system from their predecessors, in dollars and cents amounts to $39,628,800.

A RABBIT FARM

Longhurst Expects to Do a Big Rabbit Trade

A man named Longhurst, who owns 10 acres of land in Simcoe County, Ontario, is starting a rabbit hatchery on the property. Mr. Longhurst shipped up several crates of rabbits from Toronto. They included cottontails, Belgians, white, black, brown, long-eared, short-eared, and pretty nearly everything that has ever been invented in the bunny line. In the matter of large families the rabbit takes off his hat to but one competitor—the guinea pig—and Mr. Longhurst expects that before fall he will be shipping rabbits to Toronto by the car load.

LANDMARK AT GUELPH

The Old C.P.R. Station May be Used As a Museum

With the opening of the new C.P.R. station at Guelph, the oldest building in that city ceased to be required for commercial purposes, and it is expected that the city, which is the owner, will restore the historic structure and reopen it as a museum. The building in question is a log cabin, called "The Priory," which was built early in the nineteenth century by the famous Galt family, founders of Guelph, and used for many years by them as a homestead. When the Guelph Junction Railway was opened, about half a century ago, the house was converted into a station, and when, at a later date, the C.P.R. took over the operation of this short line, leasing it from the city, "The Priory" went with the bargain, and has served the same purpose down to this day. It is considerably weather-worn, but nevertheless, in excellent condition, considering its great age, and with careful restoration can be made as good as the day it was built.

METHODS OF THE FARM

Ten Graduates of the Agricultural Colleges to Give Instruction

Ten graduates of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph have received appointments as district representatives of the Department of Agriculture, six of the appointments being permanent ones and the others for the summer months only. Fifteen counties are now equipped with men for teaching agriculture, and in addition five districts and counties are in charge of specialists conducting demonstrations in various lines of agriculture.

PLENTY OF LAND

The Three Prairie Provinces Have Millions Upon Millions of Acres Unpurchased

Lately some of the English papers have reflected a nervous feeling that soon there may not be much good land left in Canada. Let not their hearts be troubled. Of good land there is plenty left. In the three prairie provinces the C.P.R. has still about eleven million acres to sell; land companies and private owners have perhaps fifty million acres to dispose of for money; and the Dominion Government have almost forty-two million acres to give away for free homesteads. There are vast spaces of tillable land in the Peace River and other unorganized districts of Canada. British Columbia alone has room for a white horde of the sons of mortal men, upon whom she has gifts to bestow more generous than the largesse of story-book fairy princes—every good thing coveted by the human heart, including a clement climate and a chance to "expand with the good times." The Fraser, the Nechaco, the Bulkley and the Skeena rivers drain a greater area of good agricultural land. A great deal of it is slightly timbered and easily cleared. Much of it is not timbered at all. Long summers and short winters make it ideal for ranching, dairying, stock-raising and mixed farming. There is very little snow and zero weather is unknown. In other parts of British Columbia there is much excellent land available for farming and fruit-growing. Mineral resources claim attention, too. The half has not yet been bragged about the mineral resources of British Columbia. Wonderful is the opulence of the fisheries, and the unmeasured timber lands. Here, under the temperate western sun and the newly-tinted stars, the settler can find all that mortal man could wish for.—British Columbia Magazine.

For the Family

You work to provide for your wife and children. Your ambitions are for them. You intend to make up to your wife the self denials she has practised. You plan that the girls and the boys shall have their chance; you picture the future by your hope.

But have you had the forethought to realize that death does not halt for any man's hopes, or wait for any man's convenience? Have you made such provisions for the future that your family will receive an income adequate to their needs in case of your death?

By devoting a small part of your income to life insurance, your hopes will become realities to them.

A guaranteed income policy for $1,000 at age 35 costs less than 10c a day and will not lapse if you become unable to pay the premiums in consequence of total and permanent disability from accident or disease, and further if you wish it, the Company will begin immediately to pay the amount due under the policy, not necessarily waiting until it becomes a claim through death.

I. O. F. ATTEND ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Annual Sermon Preached by Rev. Canon Davidson

The members of Court Chemong, No. 530 I.O.F. assembled at the S.O.E. Hall, Simcoe Street, last night and marched to St. John's church for divine service. They occupied the central part of the church. The marshals Bros. J. R. Brownlee, George Spring and Ganby performed their duties well. Rev. Canon Davidson delivered a forceful address to the Order, on "Justice and Mercy" taking his text from Micah, 6th chapter, 8th verse—"And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

After welcoming the visiting brethren Rev. Canon Davidson told them the two reasons why they had turned out for divine worship, first to worship the almighty God, so that they would realize when they returned to their lodge that they had done something worth while; second, they also came to receive of Him.

If people did justice they would not have a guilty conscience. What a great thing it would be if everyone did justice. There would be much misery saved.

A man might do justly but not be right then. It was necessary also to love mercy. God not only looked down upon us with just eyes but also in mercy and kindness. He only asked us to be what He was—just and merciful. A man was not just, who did not provide for the maintenance of his family in the event of his death. We were not blind to the future. There were several fraternal societies in our country, which were just for this purpose.

We should also cultivate our hearts and use them to advantage.

When the Order returned to the hall a vote of thanks was tendered to Bro. Canon Davidson, the wardens of St. John's parish and St. John's choir, which gave music appropriate to the occasion. There was a general feeling of sympathy for Bro. Wm. Madill, who lost his brother in the wreck on Friday, and a letter of condolence will be tendered him.

GOLDEN WEDDING WAS CELEBRATED

Joyous Time at Geo. Pott's Residence in Meyerburgh

The quiet little hamlet of Meyersburgh, on the river Trent, about five miles from Campbellford, was enlivened by a very pleasant scene which occurred at the residence of Mr. Geo. Potts, Sr., when about 50 relatives and friends assembled to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their wedding. The arrangements being very quiet, the event was a complete surprise to them. At ten o'clock the party sat down to a sumptuous repast, and the wedding cake, very prettily decorated with the dates of the original wedding 1861, and of the golden wedding, 1911 and mounted with sprays of orange blossoms, was the prominent feature. The guests returned to the parlor about 12.30 when the following address was read by Mr. E. J. Waterman, of Peterboro, and the presentation given by Mrs. Geo. Bartlett, of Meyersburgh, and Miss Janet Wood, of Campbellford. Congratulations were also received from friends in Florida, Canton, Ill., New York city, and Bloomfield, U.S.A. and from Port Perry, Burlington, and Picton, Ont.

The address was as follows—

Meyersburgh, Ont.,
June 16, 1911.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Potts— We, a number of your friends cannot allow the fiftieth anniversary of your wedding to pass, without offering you our hearty congratulations. It is given to only a few to enjoy the honour of a celebration such as yours, and you have indeed been abundantly blessed. The highly responsible position which you hold, makes it exceedingly difficult to please all, but you have by your cheerfulness, unselfishness and sterling character, won all our hearts and reached a position to which we would like to attain. To the older ones of us, you have been a source of encouragement, and consolation in our trials, while the younger have benefited greatly by your kindly and paternal advice, and, in asking you to accept the accompanying presents, viz., a walking cane and reading glass, we do so in the hope that you will not consider their intrinsic value, as any criterion of your worth and character, but just as a remembrance.

Hoping that happiness and prosperity may be yours for many, many years to come.

We remain,
Yours,
MRS. GEO. BARTLETT,
MISS JANET WOOD,
On behalf of the subscribers.

The gifts to the bride, a gold watch and reading glass, gold mounted; and a beautiful hanging lamp. To the groom a gold headed cane, with dates from 1861 to 1911, engraved thereon. The groom replied in a very effective manner, after which games were entered into by old and young, the party breaking up at 2 o'clock a.m.

MR. BARTLETT TO DO OTHER WORK

Engineer Engaged by Mr. Chipman Will Install Machinery

A little friction has arisen between Mr. Chipman, who was engaged to superintendend the sewer construction work at the south end of the city and Mr. Bartlett, and to have the agreement ended a special meeting of the Board of Works was called on Saturday evening. Mr. Willis Chipman, of Toronto, was present, having came down purposely for the meeting. At a meeting some time ago it was understood that Mr. Bartlett was to be engaged at the work until the machinery was ready to be installed, when more expert help would be required, and Mr. Chipman was to send down an engineer to be in charge. Mr. Bartlett would be placed on some other work. The change was to take place on June 1st, but when fifteen days later the engineer came down, Mr. Bartlett refused to vacate his position, or hand over the papers, blue prints, etc., to the relieving engineer.

Ald. Metheral, after explaining to the board just what the trouble was, asked Mr. Chipman to tell what he knew of the matter. Mr. Chipman said that personally there had been no trouble between him and Mr. Bartlett. He had understood that the latter would vacate the position on the 1st of June. The machinery was here and everything ready to go ahead. The work had been going on very slowly, and it would have to be hurried to be finished this year. He intended Mr Bartlett to be placed on the construction of the overflow work while the machinery was being installed.

Finally on motion of Ald. Brown and Graham, it was recommended that the course followed by Mr. Chipman be approved by the board, and that he be authorized to employ Mr. Bartlett at a rate to be arranged by the chairman, and put Mr. Bartlett on the construction of the overflow, and that if the latter will not accept the work, the chairman and Mr. Chipman be authorized to employ some other person to take charge of the work. The motion carried.

There were present at the meeting Ald. Metheral, chairman; T. A. S. Hay, Mr. Chipman, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Graham, Ald. Anderson, Ald. Buller and Ald. Brown.

Some History About Typewriters Modern and Ancient

CHAPTER TWO (a)

GEORGE Carl Mares of London, England has just published an elaborate book "History of the typewriter." In the preface he says:

"THE greater portion of this volume was put into print in 1907, but the constant stream of new machines placed upon the market about that time made it necessary to defer publication.

SINCE this work was undertaken the structure of the typewriter has undergone a complete revolution. Probably nothing in any mechanical art has been more marked than the progress of the front-stroke visible writing machine.

IN this respect the Underwood Typewriter would seem to deserve all the honors which naturally fall to the successful leader of a revolution."

RETURNED FROM TRIP TO WINDSOR

Mr. Jos. Denno is Back From C. O. F. Convention

Mr. Joseph Denno, Parnell street, has returned from a trip to Windsor, and Hamilton. He was representing the local lodge at the Catholic Order of Foresters' convention at Windsor, and is very enthusiastic as to his entertainment there. He went to see Chief Murray, of the Fire Department of Windsor, an old friend and was driven around the city by that gentleman. While they were viewing the sights an alarm was sent in and Mr. Denno attended the fire with the chief. Mr. Denno, as he formerly belonged to the local fire brigade, was naturally much interested in the fire system. He stated that there were forty-three fire alarm boxes in Windsor and that there were four more being installed. Every factory had a box of its own.

In Hamilton Mr. Denno called on Fire Chief Ten Eyck, who has been quarantined with the scarlet fever, only being released last Saturday. On Monday last he resumed his duties at the fire department. Mr. Denno spent part of last Sunday as the chief's guest.

The convention was largely attended and a splendid success.

GEORGE WAGNER ELECTROCUTED THROUGH MISCALCULATION AT OTONABEE POWER HOUSE

Was Repairing the Line at Nassau and Met His Death —Inquest to be Held To-night.

George Wagner, while in the employ of the Otonabee Power Company at Nassau, yesterday afternoon, and engaged with Eddie White and Edward Barrette, in repairing the company's line, met his death in a terrible manner, power of sufficient voltage having come over the wires from the company's power house, at dam No .5, to electrocute him and disfigure the body almost beyond recognition.

The pole on which he was working is on the north side of the G.T.R. bridge over the canal at Nassau, and the accident happened about one o'clock. It was 1.15 when Adelard Guerin, the foreman reached the power house of the Canadian General Company, and asked J.A. Delisle, who was in charge to telephone to the power house to have the power shut off.

Wagner's body remained on the wires from the time of the shock, till about three o clock. Just how long the power remained on the wires is not definitely known, but it must have been on ten minutes. The body was taken down, after the arrival of the coroner, Dr .Greer and the Dan Spence ambulance.

HOW IT HAPPENED

The official statement from Mr. R. R. Hall, president of the company, is that Adelard Guerin, foreman of the pole line was along with Edward White, Ed. Barrette and George Wagner making repairs at Nassau. The men started work at 7 a.m. after making arrangements with Mr. George Newbury, who was in charge at the power house plant that the power would be shut off. The men worked up to the time of the accident, in making repairs and the power was completely turned off at the power house.

Mr. Peter Kerr, who is superintendent, was having new cogs put in one of the gears, and it became necessary to see if they meshed together with the other cogs, and to ascertain if they were even and level. To make this test, it was necessary to start up the generator. There was no danger to the men on the line, in starting the generator because its connection with the power line had been shut off, hence no electric current would be transmitted over the line. Mr. Kerr gave instructions to close the gates so as to shut off the power from the water wheels, and the water was practically all shut off from the water wheel, but it seems however that some bark and other refuse were caught in the gates of one wheel, and this allowed a slight amount of water to go through the gate. This casued a pressure on the wheels and kept the generator running very slowly. While Mr. Kerr was in the telephone booth, Mr. Newbury undertook to put in one of the switches, with a view of causing the generator to stop running. He thought that there was not enough power from the generator, to generate any current that would injure any person even on the line. He supposed Mr. Guerin and the men were at lunch at the time and that there would be no danger whatever. Mr. Newbury unfortunately miscalculated the volume of current that simply came from the generator running so slowly.

DIDN'T KNOW POWER WAS ON.

Mr. J.A. Delisle told a Review reporter yesterday afternoon that Mr. Guerin came running into the power station, and he was very much excited This was at 1.15 p.m., and he, at Mr. Guerin's request called up No. 5, and told the man who answered the phone, to shut off the power. Mr. Guerin then went to the telephone. The reply from the power house was that the power was not on. Delisle said that he next ran out of the station and from an elevation could see by means of a flashing that the power was still on.

As an explanation for the accident, Mr. Delisle thought thatprobably, the switch controlling the generator had not been pulled out when the power was turned off in the morning, and that when the water wheel started, it in turn operated the generator and the electricity was sent over the line.

ASKED FOR WORK

In conversation with Mr. Guerin, he stated that he and Wagner were warm friends and Wagner who was employed during the week with the F.R. G. Macpherson Co., had asked him for a job, when extra work had to be done. They met Saturday night, and Wagner was told to be on hand on Sunday morning. He reported, and at six, the gang left for Nassau.

Wagner had one of his legs across the wires, but did not make any outcry, when the electricity caught him. Wagner was tieing one of the wires to an insulator and he still clutched the small piece of wire, when the body was brought down.

CAME FROM GUELPH

His parents reside in Guelph, from where he came last March, and secured employment with the Macpherson Company. He was a Roman Catholic in religion, a member of the Knights of Columbus, and recently joined the 57th Regiment, being attached to No. 7 Company, under Captains Higgins. About thirty years of age, he was conspicuously tall, and well liked by all who knew him. There are two brothers and one sister, who is in a convent at Stratford. He boarded with J.W. Young, King St., west.

An inquest will be held to-night, at eight o'clock, at Comstocks. One brother of the deceased came to the city to-day.

The accident recalls the death of Isadore Vinette, which occurred on Saturday, July 9. of last year, at the corner of Perry and George streets.

PACKAGE DEPT. AT FULL CAPACITY

Installation of New Storage Plant is Responsible

The Quaker Oats Company's package department is to be started on a full run at once. In interviewing the superintendent the Review learned that formerly, owing to lack of storage, the Quaker Oats Company were compelled to run closer to their orders, which in the fall, owing to the demand, put them considerably behind their orders. The new storage plant will allow them to stock heavily, thus giving steady employment to the employees of the package department. The superintendent advises that it is their plan to so arrange matters as to keep the plant running as nearly as possible full time, giving steady employment. They are now beginning to fill up their package department, looking towards a big fall demand for Quaker Oats.

CRESSWELL SHUT OUT PORT HOPE WITH BUT ONE HIT

Petes Took Fifteen Runs and Fourteen Safe Wallops—Stellar Work by Visitors Left Fielder.

Blake Crawford's Midland Leaguers have come and gone, and Stan Cresswell has a 15—0 victory to his credit. He fanned seven of the visiting aggregation and allowed but one hit. That's a pretty fair showing for any cub twinler. He was never in trouble, and in only one innings did more than three batters face him, and on that occasion, Carmichael took the lonely safety.

Port Hope was a big disappointment. Pipher, their star heaver, did not show up. The visitors said he injured his fingers in the game against Bowmanville, and as a result could not come this way, but there were also two others of the regulars missing from the line-up. Two local players had to be borrowed, and Nagle Phelan, who took first base, in the second act, was as good as their best.

There were flashes of good baseball at intervals, and Hudson at left for Port Hope got the glad hand on several occasions when he brought down hard chances. His last of six outs, when after misjudging a fly, from M. O'Brien, he ran back and went after the ball, was a pretty play. He was the star performer for his team.

There was nothing out of the ordinary in the work of the locals. All played classy ball, and at the bat and in the field had the enemy smothered at every stage. Mike O'Brien was most prominent in the hitting, and with Murphy and Ahearne worked faultlessly on the cushions.

Sleman, who was the opposing twirler for six innings, didn't have anything, but he and Rowden, who did the backstopping, tried hard. Carmichael went in the box in the seventh, and the change was the only thing noticeable.

PLAY BY INNINGS.

FIRST INNINGS

Port Hope—Cresswell was wide of the plate on Rowden, the first man up, but after three balls had been called, he sent the next one over for a strike. Rowden clouted the next and was out Murphy to O'Brien. Hewson sent a fly to Shaw, and Craig downed a hard fly from Hudson.

Peterborough—Murphy's grounder was juggled at third. He stole second and was safe at third when Bradburn dropped the throw. A passed ball with Shaw batting gave him the plate. Shaw was safe when Hewson dropped the peg to first. He made second and Ahearne was walked. M. O'Brien hit to the pitcher and Shaw was nailed at third. Gonters' hit sent Ahearne to third, and he was out when on the play off McFadden's grounder to third. M. O'Brien took third, and scored on a passed ball. W. O'Brien died short at first.

SECOND INNINGS

Sleman sent a long fly to centre, Gonter booted Phelan's grounder, and by nice running he made his way round to third. McFadden missed the third strike on Sheehy, but got him at first and the return play copped Phelan.

Craig was an easy out at first. Cresswell captured the bag on Carmichael's error, went to second on a wild heave, and tallied on Murphy's double. On some more loose play Murphy made third and the plate, Phelan's error gave Ahearne first, and he stole second. M. O'Brien hit for the first corner, and Gonters' single sent both runners home. McFadden was out pitcher to first.

THIRD INNINGS

Bradburn out Ahearne to first, Woods walked and after being hit around to third by Carmichael, was out on a close decision. Carmichael made second and took third on McFadden's slip. Rowden walked and Hewson was out Ahearne to first.

W. O'Brien hit safely and stole second. He was safe at third when Bradburn dropped the throw from the catcher, and Craig hit him in. A steal and a passed ball gave Craig third, but he was out at the plate following Cresswell's contribution to third. Murphy walked, was sacrificed by Shaw. Ahearne ended, second to first.

FOURTH INNINGS

Cresswell, who was getting warmed up, struck out Hudson and Sleman, and all Phelan could do was to pop a fly to the catcher.

M. O'Brien singled, stole second, went to third when Carmichael let Gonters' grounder get away. O'Brien was caught on the way to the plate, Rowden, Bradburn and Woods working in the play. McFadden sacrificed Gonter and W. O'Brien's triple sent him home. Craig went out on a fly to Hudson in left.

FIFTH INNINGS

Sheehy, after striking out, was bagged at first by the catcher. Bradburn out Ahearne to O'Brien; Woods flied to the pitcher.

Cresswell, after making first on Woods' slip, was forced at second by Murphy. He stole second, but was out getting to third. Ahearne grounded out short to first.

SIXTH INNINGS

Carmichael sent up a foul fly to Murphy, Rowden flied out in the same direction, and Hewson after striking out, fell by the way.

M. O'Brien hit to the fence for a homer; Gonters' line drive was pie for Hudson; McFadden fanned and Hudson took care of W. O'Brien's fly.

SEVENTH INNINGS

Hudson, Sleman and Phelan were retired at first; Sleman while at bat sent a foul into the grand stand, which Fred McGrath copped.

Carmichael now pitching.

Craig's grounder was too hot for Sleman, who was now playing short, and he was safe at second when Woods dropped a nice throw. Cresswell was hit and made second on a passed ball Craig taking third. Murphy's sacrifice fly to Hudson scored Craig and a similar stunt by Shaw gave Cresswell the plate. Ahearne out third to first.

EIGHTH INNINGS

Sheehy fanned, Bradburn out at first and Woods couldn't see them. Hudson made the catch of the day when he went into the air after M. O'Brien's fly. Gonter was walked and stole second and went to third on McFadden's single. Both runners scored on Quinlan's biff to left, Hudson letting the ball let away. Quinlan too ksecond and was hit to third by Craig, who found the route to second easy. Cresswell sent up a foul to the catcher, Quinlan and Craig scored on Murphy's hit, but the latter was out leaving off the bag.

NINTH INNINGS

Carmichael sent a liner to M. O'Brien, Rowden flied to Murphy and Hewson to Quinlan.

SACRED HEART CHURCH NINE WON

Defeated Central T. A. S. for the Second Time

For the second time this season, the Sacred Heart team defeated the Central T.A.S. team in an Inter-Catholic League game at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, following the the Midland League fixture. The score was 11 to 7 in favor of the Southerners, who played nice ball throughout and were always in the lead. [illegible] they were in front 9 to 1, but the Centrals had a [illegible] rally in the seventh, in which they sent six runs across the plate and closed the gap to 9-7. The Sacred Heart team however came back with two in their half and cinched the game as Centrals failed to score thereafter. Gus Rose pitched a nice game for the Southerners and Yebbie Flaherty, who made his first appearance of the season with the Central team, was also in good form but received erratic support. W. O'Brien was a satisfactory umpire. The teams were as follows—

COUNTING HEADS IN FAR NORTH

In One District Only 1,800 People for Every 100,000 Square Miles of Territory

According to the census returns from the Arctic regions there is a population of 1,800 for every 100,000 square miles of territory. The returns [illegible] four-hundred-mile stretch of territory along the west coast of Hudson Bay, north from Fort Churchill to Chesterfield Inlet, and inland as far as the trappers and Eskimos of that district penetrate. The figures were gathered during the winter by the North-West Mounted Police patrol of Churchill. Of the total population of this great area only about two hundred are whites, the others being Eskimos, with a few Indians. Ten years hence, with the advent of the Hudson Bay Railway, which will be under construction by the Government within a few months, and with the development of Hudson Bay as the new route for trade between Europe and Western Canada, the next census probably will show more thousands than there are now hundreds. But at present, with the exception of the Arctic and Antarctic regions, the district is one of the most sparsely populated in the world.

This is the first time an attempt has been made to obtain anything like an accurate estimate of the population, previous estimates being based merely on reports of missionaries, trappers and other explorers of the Northern wilds. In the present census of Canada an attempt is being made to cover accurately every bit of Canadian territory where human life is known to exist. The district of Ungava, stretching from the east coast of Hudson Bay to Labrador, and comprising an area of 354,000 square miles, was also counted by the Mounted Police last winter, but no report is yet in. One white man to a thousand square miles of territory there is a liberal estimate. In the far North Captain Bernier, on board the Government steamship Arctic, is counting the Eskimos, whalers and missionaries around the Arctic Circle. In the western Hinterland Mounted Police are making the enumeration.

AN ANCIENT PAINTING

A Remarkable Production Received in Toronto from Mexico

An interesting painting has been brought to Toronto from Mexico by Mr. A. A. Mackey. The exact history is not known, but an Anglican rector in Mexico City has gathered some facts about it. The painting was brought from Spain about A.D. 1525, and that date with the word "amos" can be plainly distinguished in the corner of it. It is supposed to be the work of the Spanish artist, Calvera. According to the men who have inquired concerning the canvas, it was placed over the altar of the Cathedral in the Mexican City and remained there for several centuries, until quite recently, when the modern priests, who knew nothing of the value of art, took down the valuable paintings of the old masters and replaced them with modern ones, which were infinitely inferior works. It was shortly after that time that the canvas came into the possession of a man interested in art, and he sent it to Canada.

The subject of the painting is the Last Supper. It has been cut down the centre, and half of the picture is gone. The remaining portion contains figures of Christ and six of the Apostles. In the background Judas is slinking out of the room, and holds back a crimson curtain, the beautiful coloring of which is still very striking. The picture has been fairly well preserved, and the figures are very fine. Several of the faces stand out with cameo-like clearness, and the coloring and finish of the work indicate that it is the work of a master. One's attention is attracted immediately by the beauty of the drawing of the hands, so characteristic of the work of the artists of the sixteenth century. A great many of the details of the still life are noticeable, such as the carving of the wood work, and the transparent bowl on the table.

ST. JOHN ELECTRIC POWER

St. John will soon have cheaper electric power. The New Brunswick Electric Company proposes to harness the Lepreaux River, 25 miles away, and bring power to St. John, and Mr. Hazen Drury, C.E., has been examining water powers at Musquash, which is nearer the city and declares them capable of developing more power than the Lepreaux.

The man who does not amount to much himself, always expects a great deal of others.

Word was received at Halifax that the British steamer Ben Earn is ashore on Half Moon Ledge, off Baccarro Point. The captain reports that the steamer will be a total loss.

While edging shingles in a mill at Lucknow, Norman Matheson, an aged employe, was struck in the face by a flying shingle. His cheek was pierced right through between the jaws into the mouth, leaving a terrible wound.

Halifax Has Fire.

Halifax, June 19—Spontaneous combustion in a junk warehouse started a blaze on the Halifax waterfront yesterday morning, which destroyed four wooden buildings and seriously threatened to do a great deal more damage. The fire broke out at eight o'clock, apparently in a mass of bags purchased from the Acadia Sugar Refineries by William McFatridge, the proprietor of the junk store, and a large dealer in that description of material. Three alarms were sent in and the whole fire department was brought to the scene. The proximity of the conflagration to the Ordinance Yard alarmed the military, and the soldiers assisted the city department.

Adjoining the junk warehouse was a two-storey building used by the M. E. Keefe Construction Co. The fire spread there and also to a pump and blockmaking establishment to the east. Two sharp explosions in the junk warehouse blew off portions of the roof, and sides of the building. This was probably old ammunition stored with other materials.

The Watchman Was In Bed.

Chatham, June 19.—A serious fire broke out in William Drader's saw mill on the bank of the river in North Chatham at half-past one o'clock yesterday morning. The fire started from a hot box in the centre of the building, and it quickly spread to both ends. The watchman, who was supposed to be on duty, was home in bed, and the factory was a mass of flames before it was noticed. Very little of the building was saved, and the loss will be about $3,000, with no insurance. Drader's box factory and the International Harvester Works were dangerously close to the fire, but they were both saved. This is the seventh serious fire that Mr. Drader has suffered since he started business in Chatham, and the fifth time that his factory has been completely burned out.

Acute Dyspepsia

Restoration of Stomach Power Comes Quickly With the Right Medicine.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep, and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills —they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

THE QUIVERING EARTH.

Our Globe Frequently Trembles Like a Mass of Jelly.

Among the astonishing discoveries that have recently been made by means of the delicate instruments contrived primarily for the investigation of earthquakes none is more surprising than that of the existence of vast quiverings of the earth's crust which affect tens of thousands of square miles of surface and sometimes continue for weeks on end. These strange pulsations, which are called "microseisms," are due, incredible though it may seem, to nothing else than the varying pressure of the air!

Who could have believed that the seemingly solid globe could be thus shaken by the soft tread of the invisible powers of the atmosphere?

But the mystery is deepened by the fact, which stands out clearly from the investigations of Dr. Otto Klotz, that the ocean plays a master part in the phenomenon. When an area of low barometric pressure passes across the United States no microseisms are produced as long as the cyclone remains distinctly over the continent, but when it rushes out upon the surface of the ocean the needles of the seismographs begin to tremble.

These strange movements affect blocks of the earth's crust so large that their surface, as already remarked, covers tens of thousands of square miles. Over these immense areas the solid earth trembles like a jelly, and the motion, instead of passing away rapidly, as in an earthquake, continues day after day and week after week. Microseisms are most common in winter. But whenever a well marked low pressure area—in other words, a storm center—sweeps up the Atlantic coast from Florida to the gulf of St. Lawrence the tremblings begin. Dr. Klotz has shown that it is not the surface wind that produces these disturbances, but the change of pressure. Yet the winds and the tides, too, have their effects, which can be clearly distinguished from the true microseisms.

This adds another to the many sources of disturbances which affect the stability of the earth. Every fresh investigation brings new proof that the earth is an astonishingly high strung organism, its ribs of rock, as rigid as steel in the interior, responding like the strings of a harp to the slightest touch. And we, microscopic creatures, dwell upon this globe of stretched and living strings.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York American.

Selling a Book.

At the last dinner of the American Booksellers' association one of the souvenirs was a paperweight which contained this rubricated text: "To write a book is an easy task; it requires only pen and ink and some patient paper. To print a book is slightly more difficult, because genius often expresses itself in illegible manuscript. To read a book is still more difficult, as one must struggle against sleep. But the most difficult task that any one may attempt is to sell a book." The Harpers presented the paperweights, but the sentiment belongs to one of the most prolific modern writers, Felix Dahn, a man who, moreover, never sold a book in his life. He is a German novelist, historian, jurist and playwright and has written half a hundred works of all sorts.—Argonaut.

A New Death Dealer.

The recently invented Benet-Mercier gun combines the rapidity of fire, range and effectiveness of a machine gun with the lightness and ease of action of a magazine rifle. The gun is fired from a rest and is held against the shoulder of its operator, who can either fire from a sitting position or lying prone. The regulation cartridge is used in clips that hold fifty. A good rifleman can discharge from 300 to 500 shots per minute if assisted in feeding by a man to fill the clips. The gun is at present undergoing a series of tests by army officers with a view to its adoption by the government.—Popular Mechanics.

Horses and the British Army.

The British army on mobilization will require 132,000 horses, and no one has the slightest idea where they can be found. Good authorities tell us that this number of animals of the military age does not exist in the country. With the growth of mechanical transport the necessity of taking steps to secure a supply of horses in war grows more and more urgent. We can not, unfortunately, mount our cavalry on taxicabs. We still breed the best horses in the world, but they are bought up for the use of foreign armies while the British war office is counting its pence.—London Mail.

A Rosebery Romance.

To those who love romance and the romantic, an unusual episode in the life of one of Lord Rosebery's ancestors will appeal. It occurred in the eighteenth century, when the then Lord Dalmeny was a young man. He fell in love with a very pretty girl, says "The Gentlewoman," and eventually a secret marriage was contracted. The pair spent their honeymoon on the continent, and the bride, becoming seriously ill, confessed that she was the wife of the rector of Thorpe, from whom she had ran away. Dying shortly afterwards, her husband had her body embalmed with a view to bringing it to England for burial. However, the Customs House officials opened the case in which the grim burden was packed, and it was only to avoid a far more serious tragedy that the truth was made known. The body was eventually buried at Thorpe in the presence of both "husbands."

An order of foreclosure has been issued against the Eastern Coal Co., Nova Scotia. Toronto men are interested in it.

SOME GOOD YARNS.

Reminiscences of Admiral Montagu Concerning Royalty.

Admiral the Hon. Victor Montagu C.B., tells, in his reminiscences just published, some good stories of sport at home and abroad. A sailor of the old school—he served in the Crimean War and helped to blockade Sebastopol—he has been famous in the social world as one of the most distinguished and enthusiastic members of the Royal Yacht Squadron. Admiral Montagu has had the friendship of several kings, and among the best of his friends was King Edward, the present King, and the German Emperor. His genial anecdotes about them have more than a literary interest. It was at Cowes that he was on closest terms of friendship with these monarchs, though King Edward had been friends with him since boyhood.

He tells an amusing story of how he was commanded to dine with Queen Victoria, at Osborne, one evening at 8.30, and immediately afterwards received a huge envelope with a massive seal from the Hohenzollern, commanding him to dine with the Kaiser at the same hour. He goes on:

Reader, put yourself into my flannels and jersey for a moment—tired, covered with salt water, a humble creature, a mere nobody, embarrassed with double honors and not having the slightest idea which command I was to obey on such a momentous occasion!

He signalled frantically to the royal yacht for the Prince of Wales' advice in this dilemma, but the Prince (afterwards King Edward) did not return to his yacht until 7.30. What made the dilemma worse was that one costume was needed for dinner with the German Emperor and another for the Queen. When the prince answered the signals his advice was to obey Queen Victoria first and proceed afterwards to the Kaiser. The Admiral rushed into tights and long stockings, and drove madly to Osborne.

After dinner the Queen excused him, and he resumed his journey in a fly.

My next difficulty was to find a place in which to change from tights into full naval uniform. I decided to do this in the cab, and implored the driver to go slowly downhill. As everybody knows there is little difficulty in pulling off one's clothes and putting others on in a cab, even in total darkness, but there comes a moment when one has to stand up to complete one's toilet, and to stand up in a low fly is no easy task. "Driver, just pull up a moment," I said, "and open the top of the cab." "It's pouring with rain, sir," was the answer. "Never mind that," I said. "You get on top, too, and hold your coat over me." This arrangement answered beautifully, and in due course I arrived at the landing, and went of in a steam launch to make my obeisance to his Imperial Majesty. The Emperor received me in his usual cordial manner, and after a good laugh at my description of all my adventures, "Well, anyhow," he said, "I have never been asked to dine with two Sovereigns the same day! Do you want another dinner?"

Admiral Montagu tells several stories of King Edward's delightful kindness of heart. The admiral suffers from deafness, and was troubled at the thought of this when the King invited him to dine with the Czar of Russia on the Victoria and Albert.

"After dinner on board, the King espied me, and beckoned me to approach, when he said: 'Victor, I am going to present you.' So I merely remarked: 'Oh, sir, this is a great honor, but I fail to see how I shall be able to hear what the Emperor says.' He smiled and said: 'You are not the first deaf individual the Emperor has addressed. I will tell him all about you. Do your best.' It so happened that I got on particularly well, though once or twice I was in difficulties. The King, however, who was close by, noticing this, in the kindest possible manner came to my rescue, repeated the subject to me, or answered the Emperor for me."

In Later Life.

"Well, I make up for it by being shocked at a good many things that I once did."—Pittsburg Post.

The Big Wind In Ireland.

The night of the big wind in Ireland was Jan. 6 and 7, 1839. It seems to have served for some seventy years as the era point of no little chronology. The gale was by no means confined to Ireland. A score of persons died in Liverpool in the crash of buildings, and the force of the wind was felt through Cheshire, Warwick and Stafford. In Limerick, Galway and Athlone more than 200 houses were blown down and as many more were burned. In 1898 Dublin was swept by a gale quite as great and half the trees in the Phoenix park were put down.—New York Sun.

Romance of a Shadow.

It is hard to believe that a shadow is probably the origin of all astronomical, geometrical and geographical science. The first man who fixed his staff perpendicularly in the ground and measured its shadow was the earliest computer of time, and the Arab of today who plants his spear in the sand and marks where the shadow falls is his direct descendant. It is from the shadow of a gnomon that the early Egyptians told the length of the year. It is from the shadow of a gnomon that the inhabitants of upper Egypt still measure the hours of work for a water wheel. In this case the gnomon is a lhurra stalk supported on forked uprights and points north and south. East and west are pegs in the ground evenly marking the space of earth between sunrise and sunset. In a land of constant sunshine a shadow was the primitive chronometer. It was also the primitive footrule.—London T. P.'s Weekly.

Men With Green Hair.

"Copper is scarce," said a broker, "but there is still enough of it left to turn the copper worker's hair green."

"His hair green?"

"Precisely. In those copper districts where the ore is of a low grade it is roasted in open furnaces to refine it and make it more marketable. A gas emanates from the furnaces that turns the firemen's hair a bright green, this arsenic green that the firemen's hair takes on.

"So if you ever see a man with green hair you can say, a la Sherlock Holmes:

"'There, my dear Watson, is a copper furnace tender.'"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

THE NE TEMERE.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Your article in Friday night's paper on the Ne Temere decree and the Mail and Empire's "belated editorial," as you call it, makes the mistake that most of your editorials make, namely, focus. If things are not put in true focus they look crooked, and your editorials are that way. The decree says, amongst other things, that Roman Catholics who have fallen away, that is, become Protestants, or infidels, are not married at all unless married according to the decree. The fault found with the decree is that the whole Roman Catholic body, church and people, will now say that the law of the land, which says that these people, if married by any minister, are really married, does not rule, and that it is not to be obeyed and that the children of the marriage will be illegitimate. Do you agree to this? The only other point of the decree besides such as these, is that law is law in spite of the church. Now, don't you see that the fight is to prevent the decree of the church from becoming law and from working a hardship and injustice on people who should be in a position to say, "I am protected by the law, and if you say I am not married and my children illegitimate, I will prosecute you?" No one is arguing the way you are, and it looks as if you intended to keep clear of the merits of the situation.

A. ROSEBERY.

THE CHIMES

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir—At this time, it would seem apportune to make certain announcements and explanations regarding the "People's Chimes" which are now installed, and will be publicly inaugurated on Thursday next, Coronation Day, and be dedicated at noon by His Lordship, the Bishop of Toronto, when citizens generally, are warmly invited to be present.

But before dealing with the future it may well to recall certain matters of past h—ry, with which some may not be familiar. The movement was started in April, 1910 with the definite object of marking the 75th anniversary of St. John's church. The scheme was tentatively presented to the public, and from the beginning most unexpectedly general and generous support was given. The heading of the subscriptions lists read—

"The subscriptions below are given towards a chime of tubular bells, which it is proposed to place in the tower of St. John's church, Peterborough, asking $1550.00 in commemoration of the 75th anniversary of its opening."

And many of the large gifts received, were accompanied by letters, expressing the writer's interest in St. John's church. Owing to the support given, the scheme was in July, extended so as to procure a set of heavy bells. As the work progressed the name "People's Chimes" was applied by one of our daily papers, in consequence of the wide support received from the people and the popular interest in the movement. At a Vestry meeting of St. Johns' in November, though no demands had been made by the public, and no promises given, it was, at my request, determined that the bells be voluntarily accepted by the church in trust for certain lines of public service specified in three resolutions.

In December, after three-quarters of the whole sum had been subscribed, the newspaper title "People's Chimes" was ordered to be engraved on the large bells. A documentary deed has been made out and engrossed for the Inauguration ceremony setting forth the resolutions of vestry, governing the public uses of the chimes, which will be published, and a copy handed to the Mayor for safe keeping.

But while St. John's will have the chimes together with the responsibilities and expense involved the officials of the church feel that this ownership is only valuable as giving them the privilege of serving as far as they are able the great body of the people. Indeed whatever the church holds, is not for selfish enjoyment, but for the good of all who are willing to be sharers. But the people having presented these bells will naturally feel a special part and interest, and pleasure in them, while being relieved of the expense of ordinary operation and up-keep. Should occasion arise in the future, appeal can be made to the deed of dedication or to the resolutions of vestry.

There is, however, small ground for fear. The more widely the chimes can be used, the better shall we be pleased and we feel sure that the actual working out of the enterprise will be satisfactory to all reasonable persons, at least this is our earnest decision.

Our hearts are filled with gratitude by the broad kindliness and splendid generosity which have enabled this scheme to be carried out in so worthy and pleasant a fashion, and we invite the suggestions and friendly co-operation of all to the end, that the very best may be made of this unique addition to the resources and attractions of Peterborough.

Yours, etc.,
J. C. DAVIDSON
Chairman Chimes Committee.

P.S. I may add that reliable experts have carefully examined our well built tower, and pronouce it absolutely safe, and entirely equal to the burden of the bells, only one of which is to be rung. There is evidently no ground for fear on this score.

ENDORSED THE SCOUTS

Earl Grey Believed It Would Foster Good Citizenship

Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, on his recent visit to Toronto spoke of the Boy Scout movement. He believed that the influence of this movement would help to keep before the people those ideals of responsibility, duty and self-sacrifice, which had been accepted throughout the empire as the three watchwords of Empire Day.

The struggle of last century had been for the possession of liberty. It was now becoming generally recognized that the possession of liberty would only bring strength and happiness to a country if it led to the sponetaneous fulfilment of duty. It was because the scout movement had recognized this that it had become so popular. "To honor God and the King and to help others," were the self-imposed duties of every scout.

His excellency then told the story of how the golf caddy on Toronto golf course had told him with pride that he was a scout, and that it was his business, as a scout, to help everybody all he could.

If the rising generation of Toronto shaped their lives after the fashion of the scout caddy of Toronto, each and all of them helping everybody all they could, they would give such an uplift to the life of their city as would make it the first city in the world. That should be their ambition.

BETTING IN ENGLAND

Organized Gambling is Said to be Making Big Strides

Gambling is on the increase in England. According to reports to the British Anti-Gambling League, organized gambling is making gigantic strides, and this despite the fact that the police have made it very difficult for one to place bets in London and the other big cities of the kingdom.

It is stated that whereas a century ago there were only twenty bookmakers in Great Britain and Ireland, there are now some 30,000 men getting their living wholly or partly in this way.

The turnover is estimated at about $400,000,000 on horse racing and $150,000,000 on football and other sports.

The gambling evil, too, is spreading alarmingly among women and children, and is restricted to no particular class of society.

There have been forty-six cases of women bookmakers before the courts in the last year.

The League has protested to the Government against the receipt of foreign lottery circulars and called the attention of the police to the existence of many girls' betting clubs.

To show how deeply the gambling passion has taken hold, the directors of the League declare there are many bookmakers who stoop so low as to take bets for ten cents or a quarter from girls or boys.

RURAL DELIVERY IN ENGLAND

The Postmaster-General of Great Britain has in his department 11,400 bicycles, about one-half of which are used by the rural delivery carriers. Each bicycle averages 10,000 miles of travel a year, making more than 110,000,000 miles in the aggregate, or 17,000,000 miles farther than the distance from the earth to the sun.

UNDER THE THUMB OF THE TRUSTS

Farms in the Eastern States Show Evidences of Undue Impoverishment

Writing on conditions east of the Mississippi, the results of a personal investigation in the Eastern States, C. L. Sibley, of Montreal, recently said:—

"Do the Canadian farmers imagine that they can invade the markets of the United States, and succeed where so many American farmers fail? If so, let them make a survey of farming conditions east of the Mississippi in the United States. If there were any virtue in this cry of free access to a market of ninety millions of people, or if the United States had even begun to have reached its limit of production, surely these farmers would begun to have reached its limit of production, surely these farmers would at least have begun to feel the benefit of it. Exactly the reverse is the case.

"The United States census reports of the 20-year period from 1880 to 1900 show that in that time no fewer than 15,344 farms in New England went out of existence; that there were 17,000 less farmers in these States at the end of the period than at the beginning, and that some 5,000,000 acres of land that were in cultivation in 1880 went out of tillage and cultivation.

"These abandoned farms are not newly-cleared land which experiment has shown to be unprofitable for agriculture, but farms that once were flourishing. They are in territory at least as favorably situated as Ontario or any of the Eastern Provinces, and yet the value of the produce marketed from them is so low that hundreds of farms throughout this great territory can be had for less than the worth of the buildings upon them. This is not a random statement, but a statement made by the Department of Agriculture at Washington in a pamphlet published only in May, 1910, on 'Agricultural Conditions in Southern New York.'

"The familiar argument is, of course, that the farming country east of the Mississippi is becoming worked out; that it is bad farming which has brought about the ruin of so many thousands of farmers, and the great decline in Eastern farm values generally. The pamphlet just referred to shows that the farmers have been putting up a heroic struggle only to find themselves beaten at every turn. They have failed successively in wheat growing, barley growing, sheep raising, dairy farming, cattle raising, fruit growing and even in horse raising.

"The vast areas of abandoned lands in New England and of farms upon which the farmers are struggling along in a poverty-stricken condition, are not farms that are worked out. The pamphlet referred to declares that on these lands 'a small amount of capital will go a long way. These lands are not infertile, and they respond very quickly to good management.'

"What, then, is the matter? The trouble is that this market into which the Canadian farmer is to be invited to try his luck, is in no need of Canadian produce. The trouble is that the United States, with its great range of territory and its climate, produces a vast surplus of all kinds of agricultural products, and these products are manipulated by the food-distributing trusts to the disadvantage of many of the producers. Go up and down this country in which the New England farmers ought to find a profitable market, and what do you find? You find the cold storage plants of the Chicago packing houses, and of the fruit and dairy trusts, taking the toll that the farmers ought to get from the breakfast and dinner tables of the great army of consumers.

"Here are some of the prices of farms actually on offer at this moment in the New England States: In the town (or, as we call it, the township) of Bethel, Windsor County, Vermont, a farm of 45 acres, $700; another of 90 acres, $1,300; another of 360 acres, $2,600. In the Township of Brattleboro, Vt., 190 acres, $1,000; 100 acres, $800; at Chester Depot, Rutland County, 195 acres, $2,000; another of 280 acres for $2,500; another of 250 acres for $1,600; another of 225 acres for $1,300; another of 130 acres for $2,000."

HIGHER WAGES HERE

Agricultural Labor is Not so Well Paid in the United States

Senator Stone of Missouri spoke at Washington the other day in favor of Reciprocity with Canada. Amongst other things which would be to the advantage of the States, according to Senator Stone, was the cost of farm labor. In this connection the Brooklyn Times had the following to say, showing that Canada pays higher wages on her farms than the United States:—

"It has been generally assumed that farm wages paid on the American side of the line were higher than those paid in Canada, and that therefore the advantages of free entry for Canadian farm products conceded by the proposed reciprocal agreement meant a decided advantage to the Canadian farmer at the expense of his American competitor. But, according to Senator Stone, of Missouri, who in his speech quoted liberally from American official figures, the boot is on the other leg. The Missouri Senator demonstrated that the Canadian farmers really pay more for their farm labor than we pay on the United States side of the line, and that if anybody has cause to fear disaster from reciprocity it is the Canadian and not the American. It is the Kanuck who has cause to dread the competition of cheap Yankee labor, and not the bloated plutocrat of the American farms."

There are only 2,000 men at the Barriefield militia camp.

LEADER BORDEN STIRS THE WEST WITH HIS NEW PLATFORM

Great Mass Meeting in Winnipeg a Huge Success—Imperial Note of Address Loudly Cheered.

Winnipeg, June 20.—The Walker Theatre was crowded to the doors last evening to hear the Conservative leader open his western tour. Every one of the nearly three thousand seats in Winnipeg's biggest auditorium was filled, and there were large numbers of people standing.

It was an enthusiastic audience, too. It seemed a little cold at first, but it soon woke up and there were plenty of cheers, especially when the speakers struck the imperial note.

It was evident that the audience was divided on reciprocity. The "anti's", however, seemed clearly in a majority.

Mr. Borden undoubtedly got a warm personal reception. His announcement of policy on western questions, apart from reciprocity, were greeted with rousing cheers. His utterances on reciprocity were all carefully listened to, and again and again he drew applause.

Mr. Borden was given a rousing greeting on rising. The audience rose to its feet, and the cheering lasted several minutes.

The cheers continued, too.

Mr. Borden began by announcing that he had received a cablegram from Premier Roblin in London. Premier Roblin wished "hearty success" to Mr. Borden in his campaign, and "confusion to those who seek to disintegration of the Dominion and the British Empire."

Mr. Borden then went on to announce his message to the west. He proposed, if returned to power, to carry out this policy:

1. To appoint a permanent tariff commission, which would form a tariff on the basis of the needs of the country and not on political exigencies.

2. To give the western provinces the control of their own lands.

3. To give the operation of the Hudson Bay Railway to an independent commission.

4. To place the terminal elevators under public ownership and Government operation.

5. To provide aid for the chilled meat trade which would put it on a stated basis.

Mr. Borden attacked the reciprocity pact on economic grounds, and met with some interruptions. But he found some supporters.

Then he passed on to deal with the question on national grounds. He declared that the pact meant "commercial union," and that commercial union would mean "political union."

This was greeted by loud cries of "No."

"Edward Blake does not agree with my young friends in the gallery," retorted Mr. Borden.

The crowd laughed. Somebody called out "Increase the British preference."

Mr. Borden did not hear it. Instead, he went on to comment on Sir Wilfrid's attitude in London.

The mentions of Sir Wilfrid's name drew loud cheers.

"We'll see whether you will cheer soon," answered Mr. Borden, and then went on to describe Sir Wilfrid's utterances as meaning that Canada would be loyal in time of peace, but "neutral" in war.

There was silence.

"I call that a dishonor to Canada," said Mr. Borden, in reference to Sir Wilfrid's utterances.

Then the cheers came.

Mr. Borden concluded by asking the people to "let Canada finish her work which she began in 1867."

Again he was greeted with cheers, which kept up some time after he had taken his seat.

POPE WILL LEAD THE NEW CRUSADE

Anti-Aviation Agitation Follows Accidents in France.

New York, June 20.—A cable from Rome says: The first broad movement aimed to curb aviation because of its frightful cost of human life, will be launched by Pope Pius.

Shocked and grieved at the killing of three aviators and the injuring of five others near Paris Sunday, the Pope made it known yesterday that he will soon launch an international crusade against aeroplane racing for money prizes. After mass yesterday morning Pope Pius prayed for the aviators who were killed on Sunday.

Discussed In France.

Paris, June 20.—The question was raised in the French Senate yesterday whether the Government should countenance aviation contests in view of the sad tragedies of Sunday; and especially whether the Minister of War should permit army officers to take the risks that they do while the art of aeroplaning is still far from being perfected.

Gen. Francis Gerran, the Minister of War, expressed his personal grief over the deaths of the brave aeroplanists. In principle, he said, the army took no part in the private aviation arrangements except, as at Vincennes on Sunday, to send troops to maintain order, and the utmost precaution had been taken to safeguard Capt. Princetau's machine from the curious spectators.

"Let us work together," said Dr. Strong, "but keep our fundamental principles separate."

Rev. S. J. Moore of Toronto spoke for Canadian Baptists.

INDIA CAUSE OF SOME DISCUSSION

Other Dominions Must Regard it With Friendliness.

Imperial Conference Deals With Asiatic Labor.

London, June 20.—At the meeting of the Imperial Conference, New Zealand proposed that the dominions be entrusted with wider legislative powers regarding British and foreign shipping.

Earl Crewe said that before the resolution was moved he desired to refer generally to Indian immigration. He had had the advantage or disadvantage of considering the question first as Colonial Secretary, and secondly as Secretary for India. In both offices he had come to the conclusion that no question to be discussed at the conference was more difficult in some of its aspects or more critical than that of Indian immigration—the treatment of members of the native races within the self-governing dominions.

He suggested that it was possible for the dominion Governments working within the limits which they laid down for the admissin of immigrants to make the entrance of Indians more easy and pleasant than in the past. If it became known that within those limits Indian subjects would receive a genuine welcome and would not be looked upon with suspicion, a great deal might be done to bring about better relations between India and the dominions. Until pleasant relations existed between the dominions and India we are far from being a united Empire.

Sir Joseph Ward, in moving the resolution, assured the conference that, so far as New Zealand was concerned, they had nothing but the most loyal and friendly feelings toward India. Nor was the motion intended in any way to deal with the point of view of the accession of people from India, a point to which the resolution was directed. It was simply that of colored, or indeed any race, Lascars included, who were put into competition at low rates of pay by British-owned ships manned by British officers and crews in New Zealand.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the Canadian Government was prepared to support the resolution although perhaps they would not have drafted it in the same terms.

Hon. E. Lee Batchelor said the Australian view was very similar to that of New Zealand. Much irritation had been caused in the past by misunderstanding the position of the self-governing dominions.

LONGSHOREMEN'S TROUBLES GONE

Montreal, June 20.—The trouble between the Longshoremen's Union and the shipping companies has been settled at a meeting of the board of conciliation.

On May 28 certain members of the Longshoremen's Union quit work on the Cunard steamer Ausonia because a non-union man was employed.

The Robert Reford Co. then submitted a complaint to the permanent board of conciliation. This board has sent a letter to the Syndicated Longshoremen of Montreal, stating that the decision has been reached that the men quit work without any legitimate grievance.

The board recommends that all longshoremen, whether members of the union or not, shall work in harmony, and that the shipping companies shall continue to employ their men without discrimination for or against any man on account of his deciding to be or not to be a member of any labor organization.

Foreign Envoys Received at Buckingham Palace.

Poor Besiege Lines of Soldiers Along Route.

Special to the Review.

London, June 20.—King George and Queen Mary this afternoon received all visiting foreign envoys at Buckingham Palace. The magnificent equipages drove up to the palace between two walls of soldiers behind whom pressed beggars and the poorer classes, in thousands. The police attempted in vain to stop the beggars from soliciting alms. Street traffic was badly congested all over the west end.

James Ross, of Montreal, just back from London, says Sir Daniel McMillan, Lieut. Gov. of Manitoba, will soon become Canadian High Comissioner.

LONDONERS LEAVE CITY TO ESCAPE MAD CORONATIONERS

Celebrations of the Crowds Are Beyond Endurance of the Regular Residents.

London, June 20.—Thousands of Londoners are fleeing the city to escape the hordes from the provinces and abroad whose capacity for "coronating" is so boundless that the night, so far as sleep is concerned, has become a decidedly curtailed period.

Fears of panic following an accident within the walls and barriers erected by the police have also influenced thousands of the more nervous to get away from the crush.

The railroads have been quick to take advantage of the situation, and are widely advertising excursions at attractive rates to seaside and country resorts of the days of the big events.

No less than $75,000 has been expended on the construction of gates shutting off the main approaches to the processional route. These barriers have been built so massively that they could withstand the onslaught of a regiment when once closed, and the crowds, however savage, will be unable to make the least impression upon them.

Three Brothers Drown.

Parry Sound, June 20.—Thomas Fawcett, residing about 17 miles north of here, at Shawanaga Station, on the line of the C.N.O.R., lost three sons, aged 16, 14 and 12 years, by drowning on Sunday.

The boys were bathing, and it is thought that in endeavoring to save their younger brother, the two others were also drowned. Pariculars, however, are wanting.

Andrew Fisher, Premier of Australia, and Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland, are made privy councillors.

The bestowal of a baronetcy upon Dr. William Osler, regius professor of medicine at Oxford, and formerly professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore, Md., and McGill University at Montreal, is the most interesting item in the honor list to Canadians. The Earl of Crewe, who was the Liberal leader in the House of Lords until his withdrawal recently on account of illness, is made a marquis. Lord Rosebery, Lord Curzon of Kedleston and Lord Brassey are made earls. Rosebery hereafter will be known as the Earl of Midlothian.

The Right Hon. Alexander W. Murray, Master of Elibank, the chief Liberal whip in the House of Commons; Baron Knollys, the King's secretary; Baron Allendale, and the Right Hon. Aretas Akers-Douglas, Unionist member of the House of Commons for Kent, are made viscounts.

Both of the King's secretaries are recognized, Lord Knollys and Lt.-Col. Sir Arthur J. Biggs, the latter being one of the nine new barons created. The others are: Lord Mountgarret, Sir Charles B. Corbett, member of Parliament for Glasgaw since 1885; Thomas Gair Ashton, M.P. for Bedfordshire, and Godfrey R. Benson.

Altogether twenty new baronets and forty knights are created. The stage has been recognized by the knighting of George Alexander, the actor-manager.

Sir Frederick Borden becomes honorary surgeon-general to the King; Sir R. Isaacs, the Attorney-General; T. McKinnon Wood, Parliamentary Secretary of the Foreign Office; Dr. T. J. MacNamara, Secretary of the Admiralty; Sir T. Vezey Strong, Lord Mayor of London, and Frederick Huth Jackson, a prominent banker, are among the new privy councillors. The baronets and knights include men conspicuous in commerce and science.

Several hundred decorations have been bestowed. The Grand Duke Adolph Frederick of Macklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke of Argyle and the Duke of Fife are given the Order of the Garter. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of Canada, had been created Knight Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George, while Dr. Robert Alexander Falconer, president of Toronto University, and Charles C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Toronto, are made Companions of St. Michael and St. George. Prof. Adam hSortt and Mr. A. F. Sladen, secretary to the Governor-General, are also on this list.

Gen. Sir Wm. G. Nicholson, chief of general staff, and Gen. Lord Paul Sanford Methuen, who commanded the first division of the first army corps in the South Africa war, were last night gazetted field marshals.

BURKE GETS OFF ON ARSON CHARGE

Colborne Printer Acquitted at the Assizes.

Cobourg, June 20.—Nine weeks ago Leslie Burke, a young printer, was arrested in Colborne, charged with arson in connection with a serious fire that originated in The Express printing office, where Burke had been for some weeks employed, and demolished an entire business block. Last night he left Cobourg for his home, accompanied by his father, a few hours after a jury had returned a verdict of not guilty.

In the June sessions here before Judge Benson, the case lasted four days, many witnesses being examined. After the week-end adjournment, court resumed at one o'clock yesterday, when Judge Benson delivered his charge to the jury. They were out an hour and a quarter, when they returned with a verdict of not guilty. The fire was thought at the time to have been incendiary, and the mystery of its origin is as deep as ever.

G.T.R. and the Suffragettes.

London, June 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—For the suffrage procession Saturday the G.T.R. building was appropriately decorated, and a huge sign read: "Equality and Justice."

This, combined with the presence of the Canadian and New Zealand troops as spectators aroused the heartiest cheers from the processionists.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

REPUBLICANS JUMP TRACES

Opposition to Reciprocity Becomes Stronger.

No Senator Comes Out in Defence of the Pact.

Washington, June 20.—Republican opposition to the Canadian reciprocity bill in the Senate reached the stage of open revolt yesterday. Led by Senator Dixon of Montana, who again failed in his demand for an explanation or a speech in favor of the bill from some of the Republican leaders who champion the measure, the Republican opponents declared that if the bill passed, many Republicans would join the Democrats in an attempt to lower the duties on all manufactured products.

"When the corner-stone is pulled out of the system of protective tariff," said Senator Dixon; "when the farmers' products are thrown into a free market while his purchases continue to be protected, there are many good protectionists in the Republican ranks here who will vote to have the duties pulled down on iron and steel, chemicals, cotton, and many other things."

Other northwestern Republicans signified by their approval of the Montana Senator's words that the passage of the reciprocity bill, which it is admitted will have a majority of the votes in the Senate, will be attended with a fight that threatens to throw open the whole tariff subject.

"We want to make one killing," declared Senator Crawford of South Dakota. "We find the Senators from Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maine States that have always repeatedly reaped the greatest harvest of protection, advocating this measure that proposes to put on the free list every single article raised by the northwest. I want to deal with this matter in its entirety. If Pennsylvania, Mississippi and Massachusetts have joined hands in a new political propaganda, it is time for the rest of the country to strike out on a new tack."

"If you can get enough Senators on that side with you," returned Senator Bailey of Texas, "we will take one of these bills now coming over from the House and make a whole new tariff law of it."

Senator Bailey declared there would be no adjournment until the Senate has acted upon the free list bill and the woollen bill.

Reciprocity came before the Senate yesterday, with the Root amendment, effecting the importation of pulp wood and paper from Canada, as the matter for immediate consideration. This amendment was again laid aside because of Senator Root's absence. Later he came into the chamber, but said he would not be ready to discuss the amendment until Wednesday.

Opponents of the bill then demanded an explanation or speech from some one in favor of the measure. Senator Cummings said he wanted to speak against the Root amendment, but would not do so when that amendment was not officially before the Senate, and had not been explained. Senator Dixon, Senator Bailey, Senator Smith of Michigan and others declared they would make no speeches against the bill until they had heard some word in its support.

In a direct attack upon the Root amendment, Senator Williams contended that if it were adopted, no Canadian paper or pulp would come into the United States free of duty until all Canadian provinces had removed their export restrictions, and that the influence of the paper trust would result in preventing its ever coming in free.

"You can take your choice," he said. "You can vote for the amendment and indefinitely postpone the removal of Canadian restrictions, or you can vote against it and insure certain advantages. Those who would continue the present grip of the International Paper Co. will vote for the amendment," he said with much intensity, "while those who wish to remove that strangling hold will vote against it."

Money is said to be trouble in disguise. How few of us have troubles in spite of all our worries.

The Cuban president gave King George, 10,000 cigars as a coronation present. That's better than letting Queen Mary buy 'em.

"Yes darling."

"No, my ownest own."
"Then change seats with me."

Catarrhozone

It Quickly Cures Whooping Cough, Grippe, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Hay-Fever, Asthma, and Colds.

Catarrhozone is not like other remedies, but is so healing and soothing that when it is breathed through the inhaler it kills the germs that cause diseases of the throat and lungs.

Catarrhozone quickly soothes and heals the mucous surfaces so that in a short time the whole mucous lining is healed.

If you are subject to throat irritation or have a tendency to consumption you should use the "Medicine that is breathed."

Thousands who have used it tell of its merit.

Air which you breathe through the Catarrhozone inhaler carries healing to the very spot affected, and there is no chance of failure by going to the wrong place. That is why it cures.

Catarrhozone

Approved by Doctors, Druggists, and thousands of Canadian people who have used it. Little drops of healing for weak places in the throat and nasal passages—that's Catarrhozone.

Three sizes, 25c., 50c., and $1.00, at druggists or by mail, postpaid, from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

PROMOTING UNION

The New York Journal addresses a memorandum in its columns to Senator LaFollette, who is said to be ready to oppose Taft for the 1912 Republican nomination and who is fighting reciprocity with all his might. Saying that it wants to ask him one or two questions, the Journal, which is a Hearst newspaper, and violently favorable to reciprocity, concludes in this wise:

The ideal condition, of course, would be a political as well as a business union of all this North American continent. A political union, however, cannot be brought about suddenly or by any act on our part. It must grow out of the good will and the friendship of the Canadians if it is to come at all.

Is it not a fact that reciprocity, bringing the people of Canada and the United States closer together every day, will do more than anything else to promote, eventually, the complete political and business union of the United States and all the great territory north of us?

You are a believer in peace, Senator La Follette. You know the great menace of this division of interests, of trade antagonism in the same district. Would not reciprocity with Canada be the greatest possible permanent peacemaker? Should we not with reciprocity be far more important in the eyes of Canadians than the imaginary "Empire of Great Britain" which they look to now?

MR. BORDEN'S WELCOME

Mr. Borden's magnificent reception at Winnipeg, where the people blocked all traffic on the streets for an hour, and where a procession a mile and a half long was formed to give him a welcome, does not look like the "warm" reception the Grit newspapers prophesied.

Mr. Borden got a welcome from Winnipeg such as Laurier never got, and the only consolation the government organs can get out of it is to say, "Wait until he gets farther west." What they will say when Mr. Borden gets a hearty welcome from Saskatchewan and Alberta won't be fit to print.

This western tour is significant of a great change in the spirit of the people. In his meeting in Winnipeg last night, Mr. Borden enunciated views and principles that should win the support of every thinking westerner, for while he is opposed to reciprocity as concluded in the Knox-Fielding agreement—and strongly opposed—he is ready to put into effect constructive legislation that will make of Canada a still greater and more prosperous nation, if elected to head a government. Mr. Borden stands for a purely Canadian and imperial policy, as opposed to a policy that will unnecessarily divert sentiment and trade into continental and foreign lines.

The opposition leader's tour opened most auspiciously. It is the most interesting political event of the season, and certainly the most strenuous three weeks ever planned by a Canadian public man. Mr. Borden promises to develop some Rooseveltian strenuosity, although his sane, judicial temperament will never lead him into the thorny paths travelled by the distinguished ex-president of the republic.

INCREASING THE PREFERENCE

The Ottawa Free Press says that it believes that the government made a big tactical mistake in not providing for an increase of the British preference from 33 to 40 or 50 per cent in the last parliament, to offset the impression gaining credence that the Laurier government is too friendly with the United States.

It says that "as it is, Sir Wilfrid's enemies in both Canada and the old country have made capital out of an easily created misunderstanding and a plausible doubt."

The Free Press may regard the increasing of the British preference to 50 per cent. as evidence that the Laurier government does not want to have relations with the United States, which President Taft declares will make impossible the program of an imperial trade preference band stretching around the world. But the Canadian public, and the English public won't. The British preference was instituted fourteen years ago, not as a demonstration of superior loyalty to the mother country, but in spite toward the United States for having refused overtures by the Laurier administration looking toward removal of tariff barriers. Having got in 1911 what he wanted in 1897, why should Laurier increase the preference, and thus deal his beloved project another blow? It is safe to say that if the preference had been increased at the last parliament, the United States would never have even considered reciprocity, tempting as it might be from the Yankee viewpoint.

Does Sir Wilfrid want an increase of the preference? Is he so anxious to minimise the benefits he so glowingly predicts, from reciprocity? Sir Wilfrid is no imperialist; he is a nationalist, and a continentalist. Those followers in the Liberal party who are thoroughly British would welcome an increase, but what about Quebec and the United States? If Sir Wilfrid had to adopt the policy of throwing cold water on imperial projects at the conference, in order to placate Quebec, would an increase in trade preference to 50 per cent. help him in that stronghold? Hardly.

Sir Wilfrid apparently prefers to run the gauntlet of sharp criticism, and easily created "misunderstandings" as to his anti-imperialistic policy, by the British portion of the community, trusting to his party slaves to pull him through, and play to the Quebec end of the game.

And he would most certainly not increase the British preference before the reciprocity pact was put through the United States houses. Under the most favorable auspices, it is having a stormy passage in the senate. Sir Wilfrid had too much respect for those senators to try any game of playing double with both reciprocity and an increased preference.

EDITORIAL NOTES

This is one sure thing. Lady tennis players never wear hobble skirts.

Hon. Rodolph Lemieux says that Bourassa's opposition to the government plans are the cries of a fool disappointed in his ambitions. Rodolphe certainly seemed to understand the cries, at any rate.

By the time the various parliaments and bodies of churchmen get through with their resolutions on the Ne Temere decree, there will certainly be nothing left unsaid, correct and incorrect, against the decree. But there is no mistaking the will of the people at large in this regard.

Of all the fathers of confederation who gathered forty-four years ago in London, and laid the basis of the country that is the keystone of the empire, only Sir Charles Tupper is alive, and he is over ninety years of age. The veteran statesman is still active, and it is sincerely to be hoped that his faculties will remain unimpaired to the end.

In Poughkeepsie, N.Y., a pastor preached to a crowd of enthusiasts for an hour, while they waited for the Sunday afternoon ball game to begin. He probably reached people there he could not reach from the pulpit, but how much effect would his words have on a crowd expectantly waiting for a ball game to bait the umpire?

A Toronto magistrate has held that ice cream cones cannot be sold in a restaurant on Sunday, because it is not possible for the restauranteur to hold the eaters down to make them consume the cone on the premises. If it is lawful to eat ice cream out of a dish, why not out of a cone. Ice cream won't last in a cone unless eaten immediately, any more than in a dish. This is reducing the science of how to adjust the Sunday sale of ice cream to an absurd nicety.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Wheat was excited to-day and an almost vertical rise of two cents was the result. Coarse grains, too, were on the jump. Corn finished 3-4 to 7-8 to 1 1-4 up, and oats 7-8 to 1 1-8 and 1-4 advance. The provision list was unaltered, or with gains not exceeding five cents. On the advance all the futures moved in unison and there was active business from the start up to the last tap of the gong. July ranged from 86 1-8 to 88 3-4, and closed 2 1-8 net higher at the best figure of the day.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ½d to ¾d lower than Saturday on wheat, and ⅛d to ¼d lower on corn. Berlin closed 1⅝c lower on wheat, Budapest 1⅝c lower, and Antwerp unchanged.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, June 19.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat and oats for export account was quiet. The local market for oats early in the day was weaker in sympathy with the decline in Winnipeg, and sales of car lots of No. 2 Canadian western were made at 41½c, ex-store, but at the close a firm feeling prevailed on account of the strong close in Winnipeg. The foreign demand for winter wheat flour was fair, and, as the prices bid were in line, sales of several cars were made. There was also a fair inquiry for spring wheat grades, but bids were too low. A fair local trade is passing at firm prices.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 41¾c to 42c, car lots, ex-store; extra No. 1 feed, 41c to 41¼c; No. 3 C.W., 40½c to 40¾c; No. 2 local white, 40c to 40¼c; No. 3 local white, 39½c to 39¾c; No. 4 local white, 38½c to 39c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.30; seconds, $4.80; winter wheat patents, $4.60 to $4.75; strong bakers', $4.60; straight rollers, $4.10 to $4.25; in bags, $1.85 to $2.

Feed barley—Car lots, ex-store, 51c to 52c.

Corn—American, No. 3 yellow, 61c to 61½c.

Millfeed—Bran, Ontario, $22; Manitoba, $21; middlings, Ontario, $22.50 to $23; shorts, Manitoba, $23; mouillie, $25 to $30.

Eggs—Fresh, 17½c to 18½c.

Cheese—Westerns, 11⅝c to 11½c; easterns, 11⅛c to 11¼c.

Butter—Choicest, 22c to 22½c; seconds, 19c to 19½c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, June 19.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 122 carloads, consisting of 2395 cattle, 16 hogs, 542 sheep and lambs, 78 calves and 2 horses.

Exporters.

E. L. Woodward bought 448 steers for Swift & Co., 232 for London, 1425 lbs. each, at $6.09 average price, or a range of $6 to $6.25; also 216 steers for Liverpool, 1250 lbs. each, of which 180 averaged $6, and 36 cost an average of $5.90, and a range of $5.90 to $6.15 for the Liverpool shipment.

Butchers.

The bulk of the butchers' steers and heifers sold at $6 and over, which is a great showing, considering the number of cattle on sale. The choice butchers sold at $5.90 to $6.15, good butchers at $5.70 to $5.90; medium, $5.60 to $5.75; common, of which there were only a few, at $5.25 to $5.50.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply sold at $40 to $70 each.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves was firm at $4 to $7.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Heavy ewes were slow sale at $3 to $3.75; light ewes, $4 to $5, and, rams, $3 to $3.50 per cwt.; yearlings, $5.50 to $6.50; spring lambs, $8.50 to $9, or 8 1-2c to 9c per lb.

Hogs.

Some dealers reported $7.45, fed and watered, and $7.15 f.o.b. cars at country points, while others reported $7.30, fed and watered, and $7 f.o.b. cars. There were many reports of drovers paying the farmer $7 straight.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 19.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending June 17 were 2170 cattle, 1260 sheep and lambs, 2690 hogs and 875 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning were 900 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs and 250 calves.

In sympathy with the weakness in the Toronto market at the latter end of last week, and the increased offerings here to-day, a weaker feeling developed in the market for cattle, and prices since last Wednesday show a decline of 15c to 25c per 100 pounds.

The demand was rather limited, and trade on the whole was slow. Choice steers sold at 6½c; good at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good at 5¾c to 5⅞c; fair at 5½c to 5⅝c, and lower grades at 4¾c to 5¼c per pound. Cows and bulls were very slow of sale, and prices were fully ¼c per pound lower, at 4½c to 5¾c for the former, and at 4¼c to 5½c for the latter, per pound.

At the latter end of last week the market for hogs was strong, and prices advanced, with sales of selected lots at $7.75 per 100 pounds, and in some instances sellers asked as high as $8, but this figure was not realized. The run to-day was much larger than expected, and a weaker feeling developed in the market, and prices scored a sharp decline. At the reduction the demand was good from packers, and an active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $7 to $7.50, and in a few instances as high as $7.75 was paid for lots which had an extra long run. The feeling is somewhat unsettled at present on account of the competition between some packers, both here and in the west.

A fair trade was done in small meats, and prices generally were steady, on account of the limited supplies offered. Old sheep sold at $4.50 to $6; spring lambs at from $3.50 to $6, and calves at from $2 to $8 each.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, June 19.—Cattle—Receipts, 4375; market fairly active and steady; prime steers, $6.50 to $6.65; butcher grades, $5.25 to $6.10; cows, $3.25 to $5.00.

Calves—Receipts, 2200; market fairly active and steady; cull to choice, $5.50 to $9.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7000; market fairly active; lambs 25c lower; sheep steady; choice lambs $7.50 to $7.75...

Woman Found Dead.

Chatham, June 20.—Mrs. E. Mellish, 79 Cross street, was found dead in bed at her home at noon yesterday. Those in the house had not seen her around yesterday morning as usual. When noon came, one of the roomers went upstairs and found her dead. It is thought by those in the house that death took her as she was dressing, as she had some of her wearing apparel on.

After conducting an enquiry, Dr. R. V. Bray decided that an inquest was not necessary. The late Mrs. Mellish, in conversation with a neighbor a few days ago, stated with considerable pride, that she had never been ill for a day in her life. Death was due to heart failure.

A Nasty Wound.

Chatham, June 20.—Frank Fullaway met with a serious accident yesterday morning while working at the excavation work being done on the International Harvester Co.'s plant. He began working for them only yesterday, coming from Walkerville on Sunday. A spirited team hitched to an excavating scraper was given to him to handle. When the scraper was unlocked and out of the ground, the horses started up suddenly, causing the lever of the scraper to fly up, striking Mr. Fullaway on the left breast. The lever struck with such force as to inflict a wound nearly an inch deep and three inches long, necessitating ten stitches.

Was Nearly Drowned.

London, June 19.—Norman Sayers, a tailor, was resuscitated Sunday afternoon, having been in the Thames for five minutes. When pulled out of the water, Sayers, who had been canoeing with a friend and had been tipped, was black in the face.

Great Britain Is Not Fond of Watching the Enemy.

Much twaddle is told concerning British spies. Britons dislike the word spy; it goes rather against the grain when they hear of Britishers, British officers, engaged in spying.

Yet spies are as necessary to an efficient modern navy or army as battleships, fighting men, or guns. The Russo-Japanese War was won by a network of spies covering Siberia and Manchuria. The Boer campaign would have finished in half the time if we had had a quarter the spies our now good friends had. France spends $750,000 a year on secret service; Russia a quarter of a million. Germany has 25,000 spies in France alone, and—well, thousands in England, all masking their official duties by otherwise earning their living.

England is worse off as regards secret service than any other European great power. Lord Charles Beresford is a typical Briton, if ever there was one, and to him we owe our Intelligence Department. We have to spy, if only in self-defence.

Look at the Borkum affair the other day. An object lesson in fine-art spying.

The Board of Admiralty had to have a plan in case Germany attacked us. They decided that Borkum Island, most westerly German territory, was the place we should have to take for a base.

By means of her spies Germany at once knew that. She started strengthening the forts. When British officers arrived to see what was going on, as we are aware, they were arrested. Everything was known; they had it all nicely wrapped up for us.

Instead of being indignant for our spying, how mildly we play the game amuses some of our neighbors. Pictorially, they pull our leg. A cartoon shows two somewhat "haw-haw" British officers as tourists, with enormous "War Office" notebooks. A foreign officer holds open the door of a fortress, inviting:

"Only having a little holiday look round! Well, won't you step inside—and stay?"

Some ask why naval and military officers are employed in spying, honorable and dangerous as it is. The reason is because civilian spies make a hash of military matters! Officers know what to look for, and where and what it is when they see it. A few years ago a civilian spy reported a huge bastion to protect a coming naval dockyard. An officer went over, and found the solid foundations of a large observatory.

Then officers always keep faith.

Professional spies sell to the highest bidder. If there are two bidders, they sell to one, and spoof the other. The Lords of the Admiralty were approached as to plans of Toulon, Best and Cherbourg. Carefully checked by officers, these proved to be only builders' plans, supplied to contractors for portions of the work.

Arguments against British officer spies are they look officers, and disfavor tricks.

Three years ago a stalwart cyclist, with camera, pottered about observing coast defences. "On your honor, are you a British officer?" he was asked. "I am," was the reply; and he was promptly escorted out of the country.

About the same time a well-dressed gentleman presented to the sentinel of Breakwater Fort, Portland, a card from the admiral then in command. Complying with the written request, the visitor was shown all over the fort. Returned to the admiral, the card was found a forgery.

Formerly all information obtained was submitted direct to Secret Intelligence Service headquarters in London. That was cumbrous; it gave facts away. Consequently, a British Government Intelligence Bureau was established in a northern capital, and there may be others. It is easier working in such than amidst hordes of foreign spies, cat-like, watching Spring Gardens and Pall Mall. There are overlooking houses in four great capitals, whence observation is kept on the British Embassies day and night.

NEW LISKEARD AND PROSPERITY

In Nineteen Surrounding Townships Farmers are, as a Rule, Making Fine Headway

In the nineteen townships which have their centre at New Liskeard machinery agents have been doubling their supplies for the last two or three years, and this year they have doubled their orders again. From being a section where hay was the main staple as the ground is gradually bettered under cultivation, mixed farming has come into vogue, and at least two market gardeners are building up small fortunes in catering to the wants of the mining section to the south of them and also exporting all over the north country.

While no fortunes have been made overnight, there are many instances where families arrived in the country not more than five or six years ago without a cent, and to-day have money in the bank, their own house and barn and a considerable amount of clearing accomplished. Such a family arrived in New Liskeard seven or eight years ago. The man worked on the railroad and the woman cooked in a lumber camp until they had paid off their $300 debts in old Ontario and had enough to make their first payment on a farm. Then they began to hew out a home at Charlton.

Now they have about forty acres cleared, a good barn and home, cattle and several teams.

There is some discrepancy of statement as to the best land to file on. If the homesteader has a small income, it is probably better for him to purchase for a small price (for all Crown lands have been taken up here), some land burnt over five or ten years ago. He can then clear it for $5 an acre, whereas if he took up a green bush location it would take him much longer to get it ready for seeding and entail a much larger expenditure. On the other hand, if the newcomer is "down and out," as so many of them used to be, the pulpwood and the cordwood would enable him to make slow headway without any capital at all.

A boy who had been sent to Canada from a Barnardo Home, arrived in New Liskeard some seven or eight years ago. His past history did not indicate any inclination to the strenuous life, but the atmosphere of northern Ontario appeared to brace him, and he bent his energies to earning a home for himself. He now has two fine farms of his own, he buys his machinery with cash, he is the clerk of the school division in which he lives, and has made very remarkable headway.

Till very recently it was only the people who had not enough to carry them out West who came to northern Ontario. All that is changing, and now the many settlers are bringing with them a little cash, their own implements, stock and teams, and consequently are making much more rapid advances. Two farmers' sons from Lambton cleared up $2,100 from their two farms by selling pulpwood and telephone posts, but they had a little capital and were exceptionally energetic. Still it proves that it can be done. They were able to hire men, but their total expenditure in cutting and marketing this natural product of their land was only $129.

Mr. Tom Magladery, who has an exceptional opportunity for judging, believes that in the nineteen townships around New Liskeard there are to-day about two thousand settlers. Many of the larger farms are connected by telephone, and some are even now installing electric plants to run their pumps and light their homesteads. The population in this section is almost exclusively English-speaking, many from old Ontario, and the remainder from the British Isles.

STOCK-RAISING IN THE WEST

Frank Murdock, of Greenway, Man., believes there are good chances for beginners in the stock business in the West. Conditions are improving all the time. In Mr. Murdock's opinion it would be a decided encouragement to Western livestock men were a chilled meat plant installed by the Government.

BIG CATCHES OF HERRING

Immense catches of herring are reported along the Gulf shore of New Brunswick. The freezers are kept extremely busy and the smoke houses are full. In the Bay of Fundy th catch of sardine herring is very much larger than that of last season and the canneries are very busy.

Canadian militia officers are invited to participate in the horse show at The Hague, July 2-9.

Must Pay Mechanic.

Toronto, June 20.—The Divisional Court has dismissed the appeal of R. Sylvester from the decision of Mr. Justice Clute awarding G. L. Sharpe of Lindsay $2,000 and costs damages for the loss of an arm. Sharpe is a mechanic and was employed by Sylvester to go up to the northwest with a patent auto thresher. The traction engine was started while Sharpe had his arm through the spokes of the wheel, and it was crushed to the shoulder. The accident took place seven miles from Regina.

Duke Inspected Contingent.

London, June 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Duke of Connaught inspected the coronation contingent at Chelsea yesterday. The Duke praised the Canadians highly to Col. McLean and said he was very much pleased with their appearance and the large number of the contingent. It also added to the pleasure it afforded him going to Canada, and that he hoped to meet the officers on his arrival. The duke shook hands with each officer and inspected the Winnipeg Rifles, of which he is honorary colonel.

Child Burned at Oakville.

Oakville, June 20.—On Saturday evening about 6.30, Isabel Worsley, aged 8, of the I.O.F. Orphanage here, was burned to death. Men were burning some brush when the child's clothes ignited and she died in a short time.

For the Family

You work to provide for your wife and children. Your ambitions are for them. You intend to make up to your wife the self denials she has practised. You plan that the girls and the boys shall have their chance; you picture the future by your hope.

But have you had the forethought to realize that death does not halt for any man's hopes, or wait for any man's convenience? Have you made such provisions for the future that your family will receive an income adequate to their needs in case of your death?

By devoting a small part of your income to life insurance, your hopes will become realities to them.

A guaranteed income policy for $1,000 at age 35 costs less than 10c a day and will not lapse if you become unable to pay the premiums in consequence of total and permanent disability from accident or disease, and further if you wish it, the Company will begin immediately to pay the amount due under the policy, not necessarily waiting until it becomes a claim through death.

MUSICAL PROGRAM FOR ST. JOHN'S

To be Given at Coronation Day Service

The following is the program of music to be given in St. Johns' Church on Thursday next, the day on which King George the fifth and Queen Mary will be crowned in the Abbey of Westminster. The service will commence promptly at 11 a.m. and will be conducted by the Lord Bishop of Toronto, before the dedication of the chimes at 12, noon.

Coronation March—"Le Prophete," Meyerbeer.

Processional—"All people that on earth."

Coronation Hymn—"King of Kings" Sullivan.

Te Deum, (Festal)—Woodward.

Coronation Anthem—"Zadock the Priest," by Handel.

"God Save the King"—John Bull.

Recessional—"Now thank we all our God,"

Organ Fantasia—"God Save the King," Mr. R. J. Devey.

Procession of His Lordship the Bishop, with clergy and choir, to the dedication of the chimes.

As far as the music itself is concern- the outstanding feature is undoubtedly the rendering of the classic anthem "Zadock the Priest," first used at the coronation of King George, the second, It is the regular official anthem of the coronation, and will be sung in Westminster Abbey next Thursday. Immediately after the actual crowning a string movement introduces the splendid vocal introduction "Zadock the Priest" and "Nathan the Prophet anointed Solomon, King.." Part two expresses the rejoicing of the people and all the people rejoiced and said, (Part three) "Long live the King," "God, save the King," "Long live the King." "May the King live for ever," Allelujah! Amen. At the conclusion of rehearsal last night, Mr. Devey, kindly thanked the choir for their faithful practice on a classical work at this time of the year, and assured the choristers that after Tuesday night next's rehearsal, a successful rendition would be doubly assured, as a reward for six weeks hard practice, as a purely voluntary choir. Adolphe Hene's famous varied fantasia, "God Save the King," will be given at the organ at the conclusion of the service

The choir are glad that Bishop Sweeney will be present, and at least, fifty voices will be in evidence, including Mr. Geo. Chandler and Mr. Langley of St. Luke's, a veteran chorister recently arrived in Peterborough.

OBITUARY

The Late Mrs. Johnston

The news of the passing last evening of Mrs. Mary Griffith, wife of James Johnston, 110 Dublin Street, and one of Peterborough's pioneer residents, has cast a gloom over the whole community.

The late Mrs. Johnston was born in Donegal, Ireland, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Griffith. When the late Mrs. Johnston was 21 years of age the family removed to Canada, settling in Seymour township, in May 1863. In November of the same year, she married Mr. James Johnston, and came to reside in Peterborough.

Deceased was brought up in Anglican faith from childhood, but in 1873 joined the George Street Methodist church, and has since been an ardent member and regular attendant up to the time of the beginning of her illness about two years ago. She was esteemed by all who knew her for her many estimable qualities, always being ready with sympathy for the bereaved and aid for the needy. Though not always confined to her bed, she had not been able to go about very much for the past two years, and had been rapidly sinking of late.

Those left to mourn her loss are her husband, James Johnston, four sons, William J. Joseph, Herbert and Ernest all of the city, also one sister, Mrs. F. O. Allison, city. One brother and two sisters also survive, namely James Griffith, Mrs. Mackay, and Miss Ena Griffith, all of Seymour township.

The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, 110 Dublin Street, to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Isaac Couch will officiate.

TURNBULL'S
THE HOUSE THAT VALUE BUILT

EDWARD BOWIE EXPIRED WHILE AT WORK ON ROOF

Which He Was Re-shingling for Michael Halpin—Had Been Subject to Weak Spells.

Edward Bowie, aged seventy-three years and a carpenter by occupation expired suddenly before the noon hour while at work reshingling a roof, for Michael H. Halpin, grocer at the corner of Perry and George streets.

He had been subject to weak spells and the cause of his death was heart trouble. He leaves one son, Roland, with whom he boarded at Heads Hotel, on Aylmer Street.

The body was removed by Belleghem's Ambulance to their undertaking rooms.

The late Mr. Bowie commenced work this morning for Mr. Halpin, on a small shed in the rear of the grocery store. About 11.15, Mrs. Halpin had occasion to go into the yard and she noticed that he was in a stooping position on the roof. Not thinking, however that anything was wrong, she returned to the house, and a few minutes again went into the yard and noticed the man in the same position. She then became alarmed and sent one of the children to P.C. Meaghers' home at the corner of Crescent and Lake streets. When he arrived, two other men were there and they found that Mr. Bowie was dead. The body was then taken down from the roof. This was about 11.45 o'clock.

It is thought that Mr. Bowie overexerted himself, in handling the heavy bundles of shingles. He was well known here. His son Roland, works at the Peterboro Lock Manufacturing Company.

It is only a stone's throw from the place where Mr. Bowie died, to the sport where John Butier dropped dead only recently, and on bothoccasions P.C. Meagher was summoned.

The late Mr. Bowie was born in Otonabee, 73 years ago, the son of the late Alexander Bowie. He remained on the homestead until he was 20 years of age. He was married to Miss Carrie Elizabeth Hodge in 1884 and she predeceased him seven year ago.

He had for a number of years kept an implement shop where the monument works on Hunter Street are now located. He was a member of George Street Methodist Church.

The funeral will take place at 2.30 p.m. o'clock, Thursday afternoon from Helleghem's undertaking establishment to Little Lake cemetery.

ONE ENGINE TO SIX MILES

During the past few years railway development in Canada has been little short of phenomenal. The mileage has rapidly increased and the equipment of the railroads required year by year has taxed the locomotive and car plants of the continent to the utmost. Recently the car manufacturing plants in Canada merged and expanded their business for the purpose of being better able to keep pace with the demands for their product. Now comes the announcement that the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston, Ont., have decided to double the capacity of their locomotive works. The company have been making 75 locomotives per year but have been forced each year to refuse many satisfactory orders owing to their very limited capacity.

There are to-day in Canada over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and over 6,000 miles being built. As one locomotive is required for every six miles of road, it will mean that 1000 new locomotives will be required within the next year or two in addition to the 400 annually required to replace the existing equipment. The Canadian Locomotive Co., have built up such an enviable reputation that their output is eagerly sought for and they do not anticipate the slightest difficulty in disposing of all their product when they double their present capacity. As a matter of fact it is generally believed that it will be necessary for them to still further enlarge their equipment as railroad development in Canada is practically speaking, only at its' commencement.

ADVENTURES OF TWO BOYS

Two runaway Seattle boys aged sixteen told an Orangeville magistrate of their adventures since they left home. At Smith's Falls a rainstorm came on, and as they were on top of the cars on which they were stealing a ride they sough shelter, crawling through the window of a through freight they found open from the roof. The open window was resealed at Toronto Junction, and it was not until 5 o'clock the following afternoon, when the train was on the siding at Weston, that their cries drew the attention of the train crew, when they were released and sent on to Orangeville, only to be arrested and lodged in jail, where they arrived completely famished, being without food or drink many hours. The boys were taken over by Mr. Peter Edwards, an extensive farmer and contractor, on their promise of good behavior, with the approval of the court. Mr. Edwards sees in the lads, who are bright and fairly well educated, the making of useful Canadian citizens.

When Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cured her Chronic Liver Complaint

Mrs. R. Smith, of Winnipeg, Man., tells an interesting story of relief from almost intolerable sufferings:

"I can hardly tell you how great my sufferings have been. Chronic liver complaint accompanied by biliousness were a daily source of trial to me. Every day I experienced the sickening effects of these ailments. I longed for some medicine that should permanently drive them away.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA

The Grand Trunk Railway system announce that on Tuesdays, June 13th and 27th, July 11th and 25th, August 8th and 22nd, September 5th and 19th, 1911, Homeseekers' Excursions will be run from all stations in Ontario and Quebec to Western Canada, via Chicago, and Duluth or via Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis, at reduced round trip fares.

The well-known double track line of the Grand Trunk from the East to Chicago appeals to the traveller, and with the superior train service that is offered by this line, including the famous "International Limited" from Montreal daily at 9 a.m., and which is the finest and fastest train in Canada, many passengers will be attracted this way. The route via Chicago is a most interesting one, taking passengers through the principal cities and towns in Canada and in the States of Michigan and Indiana. In addition to this a choice of seven lines between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis is offered.

Owing to the great number of Canadians who reside in Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and other cities en route, there is no doubt that the Grand Trunk will find many patrons who will take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded them for a brief visit at the stations with their friends.

Canadian citizens are exempt from so-called Immigration examination, and there is no detention at any point.

Baggage is carried through the United States in bond without requiring any special attention on the part of the passenger. Inspection is not necessary at any of the points at the Border.

Another feature that will appeal to the home-seeker is the comfortable transfer at points like Chicago, St. Paul and Duluth into freshly ventilated clean cars, avoiding the necessity of travelling a long distance in the same car.

In addition to the above routes, the sale of tickets is also authorized via Sarnia, and the Northern Navigation Company's magnificent steamers across Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

For further particulars apply to any agent of the Grand Trunk Railway System, or write to Mr. J. Quinlan, District Passenger Agent, Bonaventure Station, Montreal, or Mr. A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto.

CHILDREN OF UAP.

They Don't Have to Worry About Food, Clothes or Shelter.

In describing Uap, one of the Caroline Islands, Dr. W. H. Furness says that children become more or less public property on that island as soon as they are able to run about from house to house.

They cannot without extraordinary exertion fall off the island, and, like little guinea pigs, can find food anywhere. Their clothing grows by every roadside, and any shelter or no shelter is good enough for the night. They cannot starve. There are no wild beasts or snakes to harm them. What matters it if they sleep under the high, star powdered ceiling of their foster mother's nursery or curl up on mats beneath their father's thatch?

There is no implication here that parents are not fond of their children. On the contrary, they love them so much that they see their own children in all children. It is the ease of life and its surroundings which have atrophied the emotion of parental love.

When a father has merely to say to his wife and children, "Go out and shake your breakfast off the trees," or, "Go to the thicket and gather your clothes," to him the struggle for existence is meaningless, and without a struggle the prizes of life are held in light esteem.

Somebody's children are always about the houses and to the fore in all excitements, and never did I see them roughly handled or harshly treated.

MASTERING A TEMPER.

The Method by Which Marion Crawford Controlled His Anger.

Mrs. Hugh Fraser, sister of the late F. Marion Crawford, tells some interesting stories of him in her book, "A Diplomatist's Wife In Many Lands." It was at the Villa Negroni, Rome, that Crawford was born, an event which so delighted his father that, as Mrs. Fraser says, "my father was beside himself with joy and showered presents on all of us to make us understand and share it."

When young Francis was about ten years old it dawned upon him that he had a violent and uncontrollable temper, and with the simplicity which marked all his character he decided to get it in hand.

"One member of the family constantly irritated him to the verge of frenzy, and he invented a form of self discipline which very few children would have thought of imposing on themselves. My mother entered his room one day and found him walking round and round it, carrying on his back a heavy wooden shutter which he had lifted off its hinges at the window.

"'My dear child,' she exclaimed, 'what are you doing?'

"'Getting over a rage,' he replied doggedly, continuing the exercise. 'When I am so angry that I want to kill somebody I come in here and carry the shutter three times round the room before I answer them. It is the only way.'"

Women and Tea In Japan.

No Japanese society woman has completed her education unless she can tell just what grade of tea is being served to her—Uji, Mikado or a hundred others—and at least be able to distinguish by taste at least a dozen "blends" in a brand that has that many or more. Such accomplishments are partly a matter of inheritance and environment, for Japan is a country where tea has been raised and used for centuries. With tea plantations five centuries old and tea plants 200 years of age there is no need for tea commissions to fix customs standards. As for the household standards, the Japanese housewife decides them herself.

"MY BACK IS KILLING ME"

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" WILL CURE

Backache means Congestion of the Kidneys. Dull ache in the back, sharp, shooting pains, headache and nervousness—mean that the Kidneys are overworked. The Bowels are constipated and the skin is inactive, so that the Kidneys are compelled to do the work of both bowels and skin in throwing off the waste of the body. The Kidneys thus become irritated and inflamed and backache results. The only possible way to relieve the congestion and cure the pain is to force the bowels and skin to do their share of the work.

"Fruit-a-tives", the great fruit medicine, is the best and most scientific Kidney Remedy in the world.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Pain in the Back and Kidney Trouble. 50c. box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. Dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Cock Lane Ghost.

St. John's, Clerkenwell, is a mean structure architecturally, but possesses two interesting historical associations, one romantic and the other ludicrous. It is the headquarters of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, part of the choir of whose ancient priory can still be seen in the early English crypt. This crypt was the haunt of the "Cock lane ghost," which excited all London in February, 1762, and attracted Johnson, Goldsmith and Horace Walpole. The "ghost" proved, as Dr. Johnson surmised, to be the mischievous little daughter of a parish clerk.—Westminster Gazette.

A Regular Attendant.

As the new minister of the village was on his way to evening service he met a rising young man of the place whom he was anxious to have become a member of his church.

"Good evening, my young friend," he said solemnly. "Do you ever attend a place of worship?"

"Yes, indeed, sir, regularly every Sunday night," replied the young fellow with a smile. "I'm on my way to see her now."—Metropolitan Magazine.

His Complete Triumph.

"Uncle Rastus, I thought they had sent you to jail again on the usual charge."

"No, suh; I's vindicated dis time. De jedge couldn't quite make up his mind, an' he turned me loose an' said I mustn't do it again."—Chicago Tribune.

RECITAL BY MISS CHOATE'S PUPILS

Clever Work at the Conservatory of Music Hall

A fair sized audience assembled in the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening to hear the recital given by the pupils of Miss Julia Choate, the popular violinist of the Conservatory staff. Mr. Edward Hanrahan assisted, by giving, in splendid voice, a stirring selected solo that won generous applause. The work of Miss Choate's pupils, however, was certainly a revelation to many present, and reflected great credit on their talented instructress, who has evidently spared no trouble to bring the talents of her young pupils to the front. The children's orchestra was something new in the musical line and was composed entirely of juvenile musicians, who work well together, and give their numbers in an exceedingly praiseworthy style. They appeared on the program twice and were warmly greeted.

Miss Laura Logan, one of Miss Choate's star pupils, eclipsed previous performances by her splendid playing last evening of the selection, "Alegro Brilliante," by Tan Have, and judging from the applause, was a favorite performer. William Wilson, another of Miss Choate's more advanced pupils, and who brought credit on himself and his teacher by passing his examinations in Toronto last week, was at his best also, playing the intricate and difficult composition, "Scene de ballot," by De Beviot, in remarkably clever manner. Although heartily encored Mr. Wilson did not respond.

Little Prudence Long won the hearts of the audience by her clever playing on the mandolin. Miss Long is already an accomplished little musician and bids fair to be one of Peterborough's leading exponents of music before long.

The work of all the other pupils was good and won hearty applause.

The accompanists of the evening were Miss Choate, Miss Lulu McGill and Mrs. Gliddon.

The following was the program:

CHIEF THOMPSON TO TAKE TRIP

Will Attend Chief Constables Association at Ottawa

The police commissioners met yesterday afternoon, at which a letter was read from the city clerk endorsing a recommendation from the board of health, that scavengers be licensed and that the license fee be not more than fifty cents a year.

It was moved by Mayor Morrow, seconded by Magistrate Dumble, that the city solicitor be asked to prepare a by-law to carry out the recommendation of the board of health and to give an opinion as to whether such a by-law would conflict with the by-law to express wagons.

A letter was read from D. Thompson, chief constable, asking permission to attend the meeting of the Chief Constables' Association at Ottawa, and for an appropriation to pay his expenses.

It was moved by Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Morrow, that the chief constable be granted leave of absence to attend the annual meeting of the association at Ottawa, and that his expenses be paid on the certificate of the chairman of the board.

On motion the city treasurer was authorized to pay accounts of the telegraph and telephone companies on the certificate of the chairman of the board.

MEN SAY IT WAS A JOKE

But Charge Against River Drivers is Attempted Murder

An interesting case will be heard before Magistrate Edmison next Friday morning at 10 o'clock, when two young river-drivers named Osbourne Montgomery and Louis Thibadeau will be called upon to answer a charge of attempted murder.

The arrest of the two young men was affected by High Constable Cochrane on Saturday and the men appeared in court yesterday morning.

The two are charged with having thrown a young lad named Campbell into Negies Creek leaving him to sink or swim. It appears, however, that the boy had provoked the rivermen by nailing up the door of a little shed in which they were staying for a while.

G. N. Gordon is appearing for the two men, who did not elect or plead. The men are disposed to treat the affair as a joke.

Two residents of Harvey will also appear on Friday to answer a charge of destroying some fence property of Charles Bishop, lot 11, con. 7, Harvey. Witnesses are to be called in both cases.

REMAINS WERE SENT TO PORT HOPE

Representatives of S. O. E. at Funeral To-day

The inquest will be resumed to-morrow night.

BOARD OF TRADE HAVE ACCOUNTS

They Amount to $210—Cash on Hand is $50

This Has to do With Industria Commission

A committee from the Board of Trade composed of Messrs. D. O'Connell, W. H. Moore and W. H. Denham were present at a meeting of the manufacturers' committee Monday afternoon, when some business relative to late office of industrial commissioner was discussed.

It was explained that the Board of Trade had accounts to the extent of about $210. They had $50 on hand and $50 to $60 of subscriptions to be collected. The committee would apply the money on hand and subscriptions they might get in to paying the accounts, and would also, if the council consented, apply a balance of a special grant made some years ago to the board by the council for a special purpose, towards paying the accounts. The committee wished to know if the council would assume the balance if the committee handed over the furniture and equipment of the industrial commissioner's department to the council.

This was assented to by the committee.

A motion carried also recommending that for the purpose of considering any industrial matters referred to the manufacturers committee as brought before the committee, three members of the Board of Trade be added to the committee such members to be appointed by the Board.

APPEAL IS DISMISSED

G. W. Hatton Wins Against the City

Word was received this afternoon from Toronto that the divisional court had dismissed the city's appeal in the damage suit of G. W. Hatton against it, with costs.

In the non-jury spring sittings Judge Huycke gave judgment in the case for $485 and costs. Mr. Hatton's team of horses ran away as a result of being frightened by a cement mixer, and considerable damage was done to him and to the outfit. Geo. H. Watson, K.C., appeared for the city on the appeal, and D. O'Connell, of O'Connell and Gorden, for the plaintiff.

WHEN GEORGE V. IS CROWNED

The following coronation song, written by Roland C. Barreil, was set to music by Mrs. Charlotte Bonnycastle, of Campbellford, who is achieving fame as a composer. Mrs. Bonnycastle has set other songs to music; two of them being "First Love is Sweetest," and "Love Live Always." She is now at work on a composition to be called Greater Canada;

Come swell the vast assembly, come join the gladsome throng;
Make music with the cymbals with trumpet and with songs.
Let ev'ry loyal Briton a song of gladness sing
When nations all shall gather at the crowning of the king.
When nations all shall gather at the crowning of the king.

A great and glorious Empire, shall show the wond'ring world;
That Loyalty's the watchword, where e'er the flag's unfurled.
How liberty and justice which British rule will bring,
Has taught e'en savage chieftains to honor Britain's King.
Has taught e'en savage chieftains to honor Britain's King.

All Europe's many monarch's will lend their noble grace,
Our Royal George to honor who rules the Saxon race.
The great and prosp'rous nation that sprang from British loins,
Adds her congratulations and in our gladness joins.

And last tho' never least, the colonies will sail
From north to south, from west to east from ev'ry clime they hail
From prairie and from forest from Africa's desert sand
Australia's wond'rous pastures and India's coral strand.

Then joyfully together when George the fifth is crown'd
We'll meet in glorious union by loyal feelings bound.
God bless our noble sovereigns, God bless the Mother Queen,
God bless the greatest Empire the world has ever seen.

CONFERENCE FOR LONDON

Not Much Chance of Ottawa Getting It.

London, June 21.—Tuesday's sitting of the Imperial Conference approved the report of the committee on military defence, which had held two sittings.

Premier Fisher moved that the Ministers of the United Kingdom and the dominions, between conferences, exchange reciprocal visits, so as to make themselves personally acquainted with all the self-governing parts of the Empire.

He suggested that the Government of the United Kingdom consider the possibility of holding the next conference in one of the overseas dominions. He said the Ministers could have no conception of the warm, kindly welcome they would receive if they were able to visit the dominions. As to the conference's sitting outside of London, the Imperial Government did not hesitate to send to different parts of Europe sometimes Ministers of the highest standing to discuss special treaties. He submitted that the discussions of the conference had as good a bearing on the Government, safety and progress of the whole Empire as some of the most important treaties they had had.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he entirely approved the suggestion and earnestly commended it to the consideration of the Home Government.

Sir Joseph Ward heartily endorsed these sentiments, but as to the second part of the resolution, while he thoroughly agreed with the idea, he foresaw great difficulties in carrying it out. It was practically impossible to transfer to one of the oversea dominions all the machinery for an imperial conference.

General Botha doubted if it were practicable. In London all the Ministers were available and questions could be discussed with them personally.

Sir Edward Morris fully agreed with the desirability of British Ministers visiting the dominions, but thought it practically impossible for the Imperial conference to be held elsewhere than in London.

The second portion of the resolution was later amended to read: "That the United Kingdom take into consideration the possibility of holding a meeting of the conference or of a subsidiary conference in one of the overseas dominions.

TOO ANNUL 30 YEAR OLD UNION

Montreal Man Wants Help From Ne Temere Decree.

Montreal, June 21.—George Howden seeks the annullment of his marriage, solemnized thirty years ago, on the grounds that his marriage is not valid according to the Roman Catholic Church, to which his wife belongs.

While Mrs. Howden (nee Poitras) was born a Catholic, her husband was never baptized, and for that reason the marriage cannot, it is alleged, be recognized by the church. The second reason is that the two contracting parties were married by a Protestant minister, and a third allegation is that the woman, when she married, was under the age of 21, and that she had not the consent of her parents.

Mrs. Howden claims that they have been married 28 years, and that her two sons and daughter will fight for her honor. She claims that her husband has not been near her for sixteen years, and that she had to educate the family, and now has to keep boarders.

Herbert Day, aged 21 fell 70 feet in the shaft of the Kerr Lake Mine at Cobalt, when overcome by gas from a powder blast. He will recover.

MR. BORDEN REFUSES TO YIELD AN INCH IN HIS OPPOSITION TO RECIPROCITY

Tells the Grain-Growers at Brandon Just Where He Stands on the Question—Loudly Cheered on His Firm Stand—Western Section of Railway Commission.

Brandon, June 21.—At Brandon for the first time, Mr. Borden met the grain growers.

The demands of the association were first presented by J. W. Scollion. He renewed the demands for a reduction in the tariff and for an immediate increase in the British preference to fifty per cent., with free trade with Great Britain in ten years.

"We advocate," he went on amid applause from the delegates, "the widest possible measure of free trade with the United States, we record our entire disapproval of the tactics in Parliament which would force a dissolution on this issue before the west is given its fair representation by redistribution." (Applause.)

After an argument to show the value of the American market, he declared that "No nation ever refused such an offer under such conditions. We take no stock," he said, "in the arguments that reciprocity would lead to annexation and the disruption of the Empire."

J. S. Wood of Oakville dealt with the tariff. A repetition of the demand for "reciprocal free trade with the United States on all natural products and on manufactures not produced in Great Britain," again brought cheers, as did also the succeeding reference to the Canadian preference to Great Britain.

"We repudiate," he went on, "any fiscal system that would increase the price of foodstuffs in Great Britain. We repudiate also the idea that our loyalty needs any such stimulus." (Cheers.)

Peter Wright of Micitle dealt with terminal elevators and the standing demands of the grain growers in regard to Government operation of the Hudson Bay Railroad, and Government abattoirs for the meat trade were presented, but there was no reference to Mr. Borden's announcements. Apparently they had not been received before the representations were decided on. A special memorial was read asking that dissolution be not forced before redistribution.

Mr. Borden was warmly cheered on rising to reply. Chairman Henders expressed regret that Mr. Borden had announced his policy before hearing their representations.

Mr. Borden explained that the difficulty was that he had announced his views on these issues some months ago.

He did not hedge for a moment in regard to reciprocity and his statement met with considerable applause. "I am absolutely opposed to the agreement," he said. "If you gentlemen of the west are prepared to make me Prime Minister to-morrow if I would support it, I would not do so (cheers); and with the views I hold on this subject, I would not be fit to be Prime Minister if I said anything else to you."

"I deprecate," said Mr. Borden further, "the suggestion which was made by one man at least, that those who are opposing this agreement are not sincere. I respect your views and give you credit for sincerity. I am not in public life for the love of it and I think I claim at least that I have been sincere."

It was suggested that we could do without protection. Well, we cannot build Hudson Bay railways and Georgian canals without money. One Ontario farmer in Ottawa last winter said the farmers would be willing to bear direct taxation."

There were cries of "hear, hear," from a section of those present.

"Permit me to entertain some doubt," replies Mr. Borden, "that all farmers are ready for that."

He went on to point out that in some cases a reduction in duty had not brought more competition or lower prices. A voice—"Take all the duty off and try it."

Mr. Borden: "I think it did not on barbed wire or binder twine."

A farmer rose to say that he was paying about half what he used to pay.

Mr. Borden: "I have been informed otherwise."

The farmer: "They lied."

Mr. Borden: "I bow to your superior knowledge."

Mr. Borden concluded by denying that the Opposition had been guilty of obstruction and appealed to Hansard in evidence. This was his reply to the references to "Tactics at Ottawa."

Mr. Borden was again cheered on concluding.

After the conference with the grain growers, Mr. Borden spoke before a public meeting in the Princess Theatre, where he dealt with the reciprocity issue at length.

Conrad Sioquist, a Cobalt miner, was arrested after his fourth day's work, on a charge of attempting to steal ore.

Montreal Sued for $50,000.

Montreal, June 21.—A damage suit against the city for $50,000 is the sequel to the Chinese egg seizure case, in which judgment against the city was rendered.

The city seized $100,000 worth of canned Chinese eggs as unfit for human consumption, but, on the case going before the courts, judgment was rendered to the effect that the eggs were harmless.

Live Wire Kills Fire Chief.

Bakersfield, Cal., June 21.—Fred. Ball, chief of the Maricopa fire department, was killed by a live wire, and a number of firemen were injured by falling walls early yesterday, while fighting a fire which destroyed one-half the business section of Maricopa, Cal.

A Bargain In Coal.

Halifax, N.S., June 21.—The steamer ...n Earn, ashore near Barrington, has been abandoned. The 6,000 tons of coal comprising her cargo, is being sold at a dollar a ton.

MILITARY GUARD FOR CONNAUGHT

Ottawa, June 21—It is likely that a permanent military guard will be established at the Government House during the term of the Duke of Connaught. The military authorities are now considering the subject.

LAURIER WON'T COMMIT HIMSELF

On Reported Prorogation of Parliament on Return

Special to the Review.

London, June 21—Sir Wilfrid Laurier to-day declined to make any comment on the report that he would prorogue parliament on his return home and submit the reciprocity question to the people. His intimate friends say, however, that the Premier is determined to sink or swim with Reciprocity.

IT LEADS TO ANNEXATION

That Is U. S. Senator's Reason For Supporting Pact.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota Speaks Right Out and Says He Will Back Reciprocity Because It Promises Closer Union With Canada—Senator Heyborn Makes Trouble by Jibe at Britain.

Washington, June 21.—Statements in the Senate yesterday by Senator Heyborn of Idaho, that "whatever we have taken from England has been taken at the point of the bayonet," produced the only tense moment of yesterday's short debate on the Canadian reciprocity bill. Senator Heyborn's remark, which he later explained, extended only to governmental acquisitions, was challenged by Senator Bacon of Georgia as a "grave matter," in view of the pending arbitration negotiations with England.

"We have more to enjoy that we have received from England than from all the rest of the world put together," said Senator Bacon.

Senator Gallinger brought on the controversy by asking if this nation did not owe more to England in the way of reciprocity, than it did to Canada, because of the free made market that England had always given to this country and the rest of the world.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota declared that his only hope of benefit from the Canadian reciprocity agreement was that it might lead to annexation of Canada. He met Senator Gallinger's argument that reciprocity ought to be given to Mexico and all other nations, if given to Canada, by saying that this country could not hope to annex the rest of the world.

"But if we can accomplish the annexation of Canada we will have done a great deal," said Senator Nelson.

"Canadian annexation at this time is an irridescent dream," said Senator Gallinger, who is a Canadian by birth. "At one time it was seriously considered by the leading men of Canada; but now that country has grown to be a big, strong, self-asserting nation, and by this treaty we will further strengthen it.

"I am convinced," added Senator Gallinger, "that when this bill passes there are many Republicans on this side who will join the Democrats in kicking out the foundation stones of the protective tariff system. We will be fortunate if the whole structure of protection does not fall."

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts renewed his argument yesterday that the reciprocity agreement as it stands is not reciprocal on wood pulp and paper, and that the Root amendment is necessary to correct and make it conform with the original agreement between the two countries.

"This amendment had been offered in no spirit of hostility to the bill," said Senator Lodge, "and I am supporting it in no spirit of hostility. I think it will make the agreement better and stronger. I intend to vote for the reciprocity measure because I think in the long run it will draw the United States and Canada closer together."

Senator Cummins yesterday introduced a number of amendments to the bill which were calculated to enlarge the list of articles which will be admitted free from Canada.

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS

Cause, Rush of Blood, Fullness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys, which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it siezes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver, and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute.

UNION LABEL

GOD SAVE THE KING

To-morrow should be a day of rejoicing through the empire, and in Peterborough as in every other place where loyal subjects of their majesties are enjoying the benefits and the privileges of British constitutional rule. The coronation of a king and queen is the ceremony by which the representatives of the nation formally accept their temporal sovereigns, and agree to render allegiance to them as faithful subjects.

The coronation ceremony — the crowning of a king—is a most interesting event. The pageant is mediaeval in character; its carefully wrought ritual is the product of centuries of custom. Some of it dates back to the time of the Saxon thanes, who ruled the rude denizens of the forests of Britain. Later on, the ceremony was amplified. Changing conditions demanded changes in the responses, in the promises and requirements of the sovereign, in the pledges of the people. The period since the union of Scotland and England, under the Stuarts has been most formative in this symbolism of the faith of a mighty people, and to-morrow, living in the brightness of the twentieth century thought and habit, the people of the British empire will again formally anoint a prince of the royal house of Guelph as the visible head of the state.

May George V. live many years to grace the throne of the greatest empire the world has ever seen, or is likely to see. May he so feel the responsibilities of his high office that his every act will be bent towards the elevation of his people, towards the spread of the gospel of peace, towards the amelioration of such evils as he may find. May his life be one of beneficience, of kindliness and purpose; for he shall be judged, only as he performs his onerous duties. In the short year of his reign he has shown himself one of the wisest and most considerate of sovereigns, endeavoring to cement his scattered peoples under the broad aegis of the Union Jack, and has become beloved of his subjects.

God Save the King.

THE CONVENTION

The West-Peterborough Liberal-Conservative convention for the selection of candidates for both Dominion and Provincial Houses has been called for Tuesday, July 18th, in Peterborough. The calling of the convention is timely, as indications point to an election before the end of the year, and West Peterborough Conservatives should be prepared to make the fight of their lives to redeem the riding for Mr. Borden.

The coming campaign will probably be one of the hottest in a decade. The Conservatives have magnificent material for a campaign that should make the welkin ring. Reciprocity is so unpopular in Peterborough and county that a candidate supporting the pact will lose a great deal of sympathy and support from quarters usually friendly. There are other issues that will be considered, and last but not least, the question of continuing in office a premier who deliberately goes out of his way at an imperial conference to indicate that Canada will be only a fair-weather friend of the empire; to place Canadians in the unenviable position of receiving all the favors and protection of the empire, but rendering nothing in return in the time of the empire's need.

Peterborough is not composed of French voters. It is composed of British people, who are British in their ideas and sympathies, and loyal to the heart's core. That they should approve of a policy apparently designed to please the supporters of Bourassa and Monk—even to outdo the anti-imperial spirit of these men and their followers—is unthinkable. We do not believe that Peterborough people will sanction such actions by the premier, by casting their vote for his party nominee, no matter whom he may be.

It is to be hoped every Conservative of the riding will make it his business to attend the convention, and give the campaign in this riding a send-off that shall send it triumphant to a great finish, adding another member to Mr. Borden's strength in the house.

EDITORIAL NOTES

These reciprocity reports from the United States senate put one in mind of the explanations given in a crowd when a big accident has happened. Everyone has something different to tell.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier says that he has nailed the British preference to the mast-head. It won't accomplish much when the bark underneath is water-logged with graft and "where-did-it-come-from" bank accounts.

The western estimate of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat is said to be very conservative. Well, it's a good thing to know that even the Liberal newspapers will admit that there's something Conservative about the west.

Dr. William Osler, who becomes a baronet by the coronation honors, is the man who is supposed to have said a man should be chloroformed at sixty. But if a baronetcy is coming, any man might be excused for lingering a little over the sixty.

The Ontario law regulating the sale of fire-arms and providing for the deportation of foreigners found carrying concealed weapons will probably be copied in some of the states of the union. Even the staunchest Canadian would not object to reciprocity in good legislation.

Just what title young Max Aiken, the thirty year old, Canadian millionaire, has to a knighthood will not be clear to the ordinary man. He has had distinguished career, undoubtedly, but there are many men who have spent a life-time as producers who are more worthy of recognition. It may be that the knighthood is for the promotion of the famous cement merger, with its $15,000,000 of watered stock.

Condemn Declaration.

London, June 21.—A score of prominent British admirals met yesterday afternoon under the presidency of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, and unanimously condemned the Declaration of London, the international agreement governing prizes of naval warfare, adopted at a conference of the chief naval powers two years ago. One hundred and four admirals already have signed a petition to Premier Asquith, pleading with him not to ratify the declaration.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Possibly the wildest trading of the year turned the grain pits to-day into bedlam. Hot damage to crops put a nerve-wrecking strain on prices. Realizing of profits diminished the excitement in wheat near the close, lowering the market from extreme figures, but other cereals held tight. Wheat finished 1¼c to 1⅜c higher than last night; corn up 1¼c to ⅜c up, and oats at 1⅜c to ½c to 1⅞c to ⅞c advance. Hog products gained from a shade to 17½c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ⅜d to 1⅝d higher than yesterday, corn ½d to ⅝d higher. Berlin closed ½c lower on wheat, Budapest 1⅝c higher, Antwerp ⅝c higher.

MONTREAL, June 20.—The foreign demand for oats was good, and the prices bid showed an advance of 1½c per quarter. Owing to the further advance in prices at American and Canadian centres exporters were not disposed to accept all the bids, and sales of only a few loads were made.

The tone of the local market is very firm under an improved demand, and sales of some fair-sized lots were made, including one lot of 20,000 bushels No. 2 Canadian western at 40⅝c afloat. MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of the uterus, and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully until I began taking your medicine. It has also helped other women to whom I have recommended it."—Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ontario.

Another Cure

Harvey Bank, N. B.—I can highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any suffering woman. I have taken it for female weakness and painful menstruation and it cured me. — MRS. DEVERE BARBOUR.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

NOW OR NEVER WAS THEIR SLOGAN

President Taft Says Americans Must Take Reciprocity Now or Give It Up Forever

"Now or never" is the slogan of the Reciprocity protagonist in the United States. President Taft expressed this belief in his famous speech to the New York newspapermen when he said: "The forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States, and to make her part of an imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again by a system of preferential tariffs, will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it now, or give it up forever.'

Since President Taft has spoken many others have reiterated his words. The Boston Commercial Bulletin declares:—

"As Canada is undoubtedly destined to make as big industrial strides in the future as in the past decade, it is evident that with the lapse of time she will become less and less desirous of renewing negotiations with the United States. The time, therefore, has come for us to strike. Shall we let the opportunity pass?"

Commenting on this utterance The American Economist observes:—

"This is another way of saying that, if we are going to cheat Canada in a Free Trade reciprocity dicker we had best do it right now, because, if we wait too long, Canada will get her eyes open and refuse to be cheated. Is this fair or decent or is it merely a demonstration of Yankee smartness? The Canadians are not fools. They have developed their industries under a Protective tariff and now have an industrial future. The time for us to strike passed long ago."

Going further west we find The Minneapolis Journal echoing Mr. Taft's New York speech in this fashion:—

"The Taft policy spells not only North American commercial union, but also the doom of the British imperialistic unity. Too late, provided Congress acts, the British are awakening to the value of the prize they so fatuously rejected. Too late, if Congress rises to a level of this, perhaps the greatest piece of statesmanship effected by an American President since Thomas Jefferson annexed the West. To-day England is our best customer, and Canada our third best. But our foreign trade wanes, and that of Canada grows. If we push Canada into England's arms, the trade arrangements between the two will tend more and more to shut us out."

OUR CHEESE TRADE

Present Big Shipments to Great Britain Threatened by Reciprocity

Cheese is about the most important article in the Canadian export trade with Britain. Since reciprocity with the United States has been advanced as a fiscal policy for this country much fear has been expressed over the suggested imperilling of Canada's big export trade with the Mother Land.

Canada, in the year ending 1909, shipped 176,408,960 pounds of cheese, worth $22,106,108, to Great Britain. The average value per pound was 12 53-100 cents. But, had Canada received for her cheese an average price equal to that received by the cheesemakers of the United States for their exports to Great Britain, she would have realized a total return of only $21,753,118, or a loss of $352,990.

How, then, can Canada benefit in the matter of prices by adopting the reciprocity agreement with the United States?

The following statement of cheese imports into Great Britain in 1909, is sufficient to show Canada's excellent position in the Motherland:—

Belgium	$ 981,129
France	790,152
Netherlands	3,265,426
United States	636,443
Other foreign countries	30,504
New Zealand	5,420,075
Canada	22,106,108
Other British possessions	8,828
	$33,238,665

What is still more important than prices, is Canada's reputation for quality in the cheese markets of Britain. The above statement is conclusive evidence of the reputatable standing of Canadian cheese. Free trade with the United States in this article would undoubtedly tend to lower the standard of our cheese abroad. The retrogression would result in two ways:

First, cheese from the United States and also from France and New Zealand, would mingle freely with the home-made article on the Canadian market, and dealers would be only too liable to ship foreign cheese to Britain as Canadian cheese. Thus, Canada's reputation would be imperilled. Under the present protective tariff no such injury could be worked against the dairy industry.

Secondly, Canadian cheese would be imported largely by United States dealers, and exported by them to the Old Country as American cheese. Slowly but surely Canada's position would be stolen by her astute neighbor.

The French Treaty

Under the French Treaty, which came into force on February 1, 1910, any tariff advantages granted to the United States on the following articles must also be granted to France: Cheese; garden, field and other seeds, not herein otherwise provided for, when in packages weighing over one pound, not including flower seeds; grass seed, including timothy and clover seed; canned meats and canned poultry; extracts of meat, fluid or not; peanuts, shelled or unshelled.

Last year Canada imported from France $35,270 worth of cheese, seeds and animal food.

REFUSED TO OBEY.

Major Butler Carried His Obstinacy Right Into His Coffin.

Many amusing stories are told of the great formality blended with a humorous brusqueness and independence which characterized early Revolutionary days. An incident of camp life is related by the author of "Romance and Realism of the Southern Gulf Coast."

In 1798 the first United States troops that came down the Mississippi were quartered at Fort Adams. General Wilkinson, Colonel Hamtramck, Major Butler, Captain Green and other officers were merry over their punch one night, and the general by some accident got his cue burned off. Angry at the laugh which followed his mishap, he next day issued an order forbidding any officer to appear with a cue. Obedient to orders, all the officers but Major Butler cut off their cues.

"The vain old prig!" said the major. "I'll see him hanged before I cut off my cue to gratify him!" And he boldly appeared without changing the style of his hairdressing.

The major was put under arrest, but he declared obstinately that he would spend the rest of his life in prison before he would comply with such a silly command. Soon afterward he was taken very ill, and, realizing that he was at the point of death, he gave instructions for his burial, which he knew would be witnessed by the whole command.

"Bore a hole," said he, "through the bottom of my coffin, right under my head, and let my cue come through it, that the old general may see that even when dead I refuse to obey his order."

And these directions were literally carried out.

His Advice Not Wanted.

"My dear," says the doctor to his wife, who is cuddling their new boy, 'you should not feed the baby oftener than every three hours, you should not take it up every time it cries, it should sleep practically all the time, it should not be shown to every one who calls, your mother and father should not be permitted to dandle it, you should not chuck it under the chin that way, it should sleep in a room without heat and with the windows wide open, its clothing should be simple—none of those lacy, embroidered things—and—and"—

"Humph!" interrupts his wife. "You go and tell that stuff to people that pay you $5 a visit. I don't want any of your old advice about this baby."—

Railwayman Killed.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 20.—While coupling cars on the line of construction of the Algoma Central Railway, W. W. Bicca of Eastman, Que., aged 32, was instantly killed. His head was caught between the cars.

THE STRENGTH OF A CHAIN

Is that of its Weakest Link. Father Morriscy's No. 10 Forges it Anew.

The chain of the physical system is only as strong as its weakest link. When that link breaks, the chain breaks, and serious illness followed by death often results. The weak link with many people is the throat and lungs. In fact, statistics show that over twenty-five per cent of all deaths can be directly traced to diseases of these most important respiratory organs. Weakness here is very dangerous.

During his long and successful practice, Father Morriscy, the learned priest-physician, was often called upon to treat bronchial and pulmonary affections. He soon found that it was not enough to make temporary repairs on the "link," but that it had to be forged anew, in order permanently to strengthen the chain.

After much study, he succeeded in devising a prescription that would secure this result, by not only giving prompt relief but also by rebuilding and strengthening the delicate cells and membranes of the throat and lungs.

This prescription, Father Morriscy's Lung Tonic, or No. 10, has cured thousands. It is absolutely free from any dangerous drug, being compounded from Nature's own roots, herbs and balsams.

No. 10 stops the cough, relieves the soreness and strengthens and fortifies the system against future attacks. Even in the early stages of consumption it has proved helpful, but the wise plan is to take it in time, and avoid serious disease.

In our climate it is well to have a reliable and tested remedy like No. 10 always on hand. Take it at the first appearance of a cold, and keep the chain of life strong and capable of resistance.

Trial size 25c. per bottle. Regular size 50c. At your druggist's or from Father Morriscy Medicine Co. Ltd.

Cunard Company Gives In.

New York, June 21.—A cable yesterday afternoon from London says: Officers of the Cunard Company held a conference with a committee of strikers, and it was announced that a satisfactory agreement had been reached. So far as this company is concerned, the strike is over. An advance of wages was granted, but the amount is not known. Later the White Star, Allan and Leyland lines gave in to the strikers.

Beamsville Shaken.

Beamsville, Ont., June 21.—Residents in Beamsville and district early yesterday morning were alarmed by a trembling of the earth, which caused dishes to rattle off shelves and windows to come down with a bang.

Police Magistrate Wiggins, who was up at four o'clock, when the shock occurred, says a rumbling sound like the roar of thunder was plainly audible. The trembling lasted about six seconds.

Fell From Third Floor.

Montreal, June 21.—Marie Lusie Berthiaume, aged 3 1-2 years, climbed on the railing of the third floor balcony at the rear of her home, 341 Sherbrooke street east, and fell to the ground, receiving fatal injuries. She was the daughter of Arthur Berthiaume, general manager of La Presse.

Moist Heat is the Natural Heat

YOUR HOUSE WILL "FEEL" WARMER AT 65° WITH MOIST AIR THAN AT 70° WITH DRY

Door Open to fill pan.
Either door may be used.

Adding moisture to the air in your home will give you the same heat for less fuel.
A consideration, no doubt.
But that is not all.
Warm dry air, however pure, is not healthful. The human body demands more moisture than is carried in the winter air.
The "Hecla" supplies this moisture in plenty. A large circular pan of water is placed where it will be easy to fill and where it will not be overlooked.

Circular Water Pan

Has five times the evaporating surface of pans placed over furnace door. Runs clear around the back of the furnace. Will hold enough water to last 24 hours. May be filled at either door, as shown above.

"Hecla" Furnace

SAVES ONE TON OF COAL IN SEVEN.

By actual test the "Hecla" saves one ton of coal in seven. That is, it is so constructed as to give the same heat for six tons of coal as you ever got from seven.

Do you want to know more about this furnace?

No Gas or Dust.

And it is just as important to keep the air free from coal gas and dust.
In the "Hecla" every place where experience has shown that gas might otherwise find an outlet, has been fused absolutely tight by our patented process. The same fused joints keep out the dust and smoke.

OBITUARY

The Late W. J. Coleman

A promising young life was brought to a close yesterday, when Wm. John Coleman, aged 30 years passed away. Less than four weeks ago he was faithfully practising coronation music and when Rev. Canon Davidson entered the church last night and addressed the choir, which was assembled for the final coronation practice of "Zadock the Priest," and spoke a few words of earnest appreciation of the departed chorister, "Will" Coleman, there was a sorrowful silence, for he had been one of the most useful members of the choir. His death was due to blood poisoning.

The late Will Coleman was born in Melksham, Wiltshire, England, May 15, 1881, the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coleman.

He came to Canada seven years ago going first to British Columbia. Two years later he came to Peterboro with his brother Charles Ernest, and opened the confectionery store on George Street. A little over three weeks ago he contracted blood-poisoning in his foot and was removed to the Nichols Hospital for treatment. His condition became precarious, and at last no hope was held out for his recovery.

A sad incident in connection with his death is that his brother Edmund who is now in England for the coronation and who has been in South Africa nine years, is coming to visit in Canada before returning to South Africa.

The late Mr. Coleman was a real sportsman and played football, cricket and tennis. In tennis he showed exceptional ability, being expected to stand near the top in the city championships this season. He was a thorough temperance advocate and of strong religious convictions. A member of St John's church and choir, he was always interested in their welfare.

Those left to mourn his loss besides his parents who reside in England are five brothers, Charles Ernest, city; Edmund, now in England, George Robbin, Henry James, and Jesse, of this city, and two sisters, Miss Janet, England, Miss Annie, residing here.

The funeral will take place at 8.30 o'clock to-morrow morning, from the late residence, 545 Homewood Avenue, to St. John's church, where service will be conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson assisted by Rev. Charles Carpenter, after which interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

It has only been by hard exertion that the installation has been completed enough to allow inauguration to-morrow. The chiming will be under the direction of R. J. Devey assisted by Mr. John Butcher.

WEDDING BELLS

McDOUGALL—CLEMENTI.

Another pretty June wedding was solemnized this morning about 10.30 a.m. at St. John's church, when Miss Banks Clementi, daughter of Mr. O. H. Clementi, 451 Water street, was joined in holy matrimony to Mr. Guy McDougall, of Port Arthur, by Rev. Canon Allen, assisted by Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's.

The bride was attired in white serge and was assisted by Miss McNish, of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. Her going away suit was of navy blue with brown hat.

Mr. Charles Ackerman officiated at the organ, playing the wedding march.

Mr. and Mrs. McDougall left on the 11.45 G.T.R. on a wedding tour, after which they will reside in Port Arthur.

HALLIHAN—MURRAY.

The Sacred Heart church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 6 o'clock this morning when Rev. Father McCauley joined Miss Mary Winnifred Murray, daughter of John Murray, Parnell street, and Michael J. Hallihan in wedlock.

The bridesmaid was Miss Elizabeth Murray, sister of the bride, and the groomsman was Mr. Joseph Delaire.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the guests at the home of the bride's parents, Parnell street.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallihan left on the 7.42 C.P.R. train for Toronto and points west.

They will reside on Bolivar street on their return.

THE CHIMES

Among the visitors expected to-morrow from a distance besides the Bishop, are Mr. H. T. Beck, K.C., of Toronto, a son of the late rector of Peterborough, Mr. N. F. Davidson, K.C., of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Loosemore, manager of the Standard Bank, Toronto.

It is a matter of regret that Mr. Geo. A. Cox, who desired to be present will be unable to come. The church authorities have not yet formulated definite plans for public use of chimes which will be announced in good time and will be gradually worked out their experience and advice of all concerned. It is not expected to have best results from chimes until the chimers have had more opportunity of becoming familiar with their work and the chiming apparatus is in perfect order.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. (REV.) COON

W.M.S. of Mark St. Gave Life Member's Pin

An interesting feature in connection with the regular meeting of the Mission Band of the Mark Street Methodist church, was the presentation of an address and a life membership pin to Mrs. (Rev.) C.H. Coon by the members of the Women's Missionary Society. The presentation was made by Mrs. Payne and the following address was read by Mrs. J. Speer.

Peterboro, June 1911.

Dear Mrs. Coon—We the members of the Women's Missionary Society of Mark Street Methodist church, desire to express to you our sincere regret that you are to be so soon removed from our midst.

We have always found you an able and willing worker, cheerfully doing active work in the society, when with all your other church and home duties, you must have found it a strenuous task.

We thank you for the kind hospitality extended to us, not only as a society, but as individuals, and while we shall miss you as a friend and coworker, yet we know the loss to our society will be gain to the one in your new sphere of labour, and we know that your sympathy and prayers will be with us as ours will be with you.

As a slight token of our love and esteem we would ask you to accept this life member's pin, and we trust as you wear it that you will be able to look back with a certain amount of pleasure, at least to the years associated with us in Mark Street.

Signed on behalf of the Auxiliary.
President—Mrs. W.K. Payne.
Secretary—Mrs. T. Smiley.

During the meeting five were made life members of the Mission Band. Winnie Coon, Gladys Coon, Carrie Coon, Helen Record and little Helen Throop daughter of Mrs. A. Throop, for many years secretary.

JURY UNABLE TO FIND WHO TURNED ON THE SWITCH; POWER HOUSE MEN CENSURED

The Superintendent Says Switches Were Out—He Did Not Look to Make Certain Before Starting the Water Power, Which Caused Electricity to be Generated.

"We find that George Wagner while working on the line of the Otonabee Power company was killed by a shock of electricity, being fatally burned, and that while we are unable to find who turned on the switch, we find that there was laxity and carelessness on the part of the men at the power house. We are agreed that it was very unwise to turn on the power at all while the linemen were at work.

This verdict the coroner's jury returned, after an hour's deliberation, last night.

Eleven witnesses were called. The coroner, Dr. Greer, presided; Mr. R. E. Wood acted for the crown, Mr. C. M. Godfrey, of Toronto, for the Otonabee Power company, and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the deceased's family.

There will not be any criminal prosecution on the part of the crown, but a civil action against the company is probable.

The evidence last night did not answer the question of who put in the switch. Mr. Peter Kerr, superintendent at the power house, was sure that both switches were out, but at the same time he did not go to the switchboard and make certain before starting on the water power, which in turn caused the generator to start running, and generate electricity. He said that it was a mystery to him how the power was transmitted over the line, but gave as a theory that the "oil switch" was defective. Since the accident, however, this switch has been in continuous service.

FOREMAN'S EVIDENCE.

Adelard Guerin, the first witness called, said he was a lineman for the Otonabee Power company. On Sunday he was working at Nassau repairing the line leading from No. 5 dam to the substation at Simcoe street. Assisting him were George Wagner, Ed. Barrette, Eddie White and Fred Guerin. The start in the morning was made from Simcoe street and the arrangement about the power was made with Mr. Kerr that the power would be shut off at seven o'clock. After dinner the men started to work again about one o'clock. Wagner, Barrette and White were on the poles, Wagner being on one alone.

Witness said he had his back turned to Wagner and was about 50 feet distant. He heard a noise, and looking around saw a flame. He yelled to Wagner to throw himself down and told the other two men to come down. Wagner did not answer. Then he ran to the C.G.E. power house and telephoned to No. 5 to get the power shut off. After telephoning he returned to the pole, where Wagner still remained. Witness said he was the first to go up the pole. He noticed that Wagner's head and foot was burned.

To Dr. Greer witness said Barrette and White were on a pole to the north, but their work did not put them in contact with the wires.

To Mr. Wood, witness said he directed Wagner to go up the pole.

"Did you take any precaution to see if there was no power that morning?" asked Mr. Godfrey.

"Yes, I threw a wire across the transmission lines and the power was off, and should have remained so until I reported that night," replied witness.

Edward Barrette, Edward White and Fred Guerin corroborated statements made by the witness Guerin, and told of the body being brought to the ground.

George Lockington said his home was about 250 yards from the scene of the accident. He was attracted by the sight of smoke, but did not pay much attention until his brother came home and said a man was killed.

Wm. Johnston, residing at 799 Water street, didn't see the accident but saw the body after it had been taken down.

F. E. Delisle, of the Nassau power house, said about twenty or thirty minutes after one o'clock Guerin came to the power house and asked him to call the Otonabee power house and ask that the power be shut down. The telephone was not in good order. Mr. Guerin next went to the telephone.

Adelard Guerin, recalled, said that as near as he could tell Mr. Kerr answered the 'phone. "I said shut down, there's a man burning on the line," said witness.

"Do you remember Mr. Kerr's reply," asked Coroner Greer.

"He said, 'Why no, surely not. We are shut down,' or some such remark."

Witness said he ran as fast as he could to the power house after he noticed the flame.

MR. KERR'S EVIDENCE.

Peter Kerr, superintendent at the power house, said he was on duty till about three o'clock. It had been arranged that the power would be shut off.

"That was necessary for the safety of the men?"

"Yes."

"How did the power come to be turned on?"

"That's a mystery as far as I am concerned," replied witness. "We were repairing a crown wheel. Mr. Gladman, James and John Newbury and I were working. We got the wheel into position about twelve o'clock or a few minutes after, and then we had our dinner. On coming back I wanted to find if the crown wheel meshed, and turned the water on and the generator started. As near as I can recollect it was before one o'clock. The generator didn't run over five minutes. I got a message from the power house, and the water had been turned off a couple of minutes.

"Couldn't you try the wheel without starting the generator?"

"No."

"Were the switches of this main wire out?"

"Yes."

"The switches would have to be in to transmit the power," he said.

Witness explained that he had not had an opportunity to test the switches since the accident, as the power had been on continuously. His theory was that the fault was in the oil switch.

Mr. Newbury turned on the power at night. Witness said the wires could have been tested to see that no power was being transmitted, in the same manner as taken by Mr. Guerin in the morning.

Witness admitted he had not looked to see if the switches were out before starting the water power.

After coming out of the telephone, Newbury was at the switchboard. One switch was in.

"How long was it from the time you turned off the water to the time you got the message?"

"About four minutes."

To the coroner, witness said the switch was out when he entered the booth. He did not know why the switch should be put in.

Explaining the oil switch, witness said the switch was in a vessel containing several gallons of oil. He couldn't tell whether or not the vessel needed refilling. There was one switch for each set of wires. There was no voltage registered on the instrument. His theory was that the oil switch was defective.

"If the voltage had been higher some time ago, the register would not show?"

"No."

POSTMORTEM REPORT

Dr. Eastwood who with Dr. Mcpherson performed the postmortem, read the report which gave as the cause of death, shock accompanied with burns.

Neither Dr. Eastwood or Dr. McPherson, next called, could give any opinion as to the length of time acquired to burn the body as shown in the report.

HIS HAND ON SWITCH

George Newbury said he left his home, near the power house, after dinner about five minutes after one. The wheel was then slackening up. Mr. Gladman was standing at one side of the switchboard beside the register. Mr. Kerr was in the telephone box, but he didn't hear anything that was said. While in his house, he heard the water being shut off and thinking he might be needed went into the power house. He wouldn't be in half a minute before Kerr came out. "He walked over to me," said witness and said "you should not have put in that switch.". I replied, 'do you think I would be so foolish as to put in the switch if there was any voltage." I had my hand on the switch, but would not swear that I put it in.

"Was the switch in when you came from the house?"

"I couldn't say."

"You didn't deny not putting in the switch to Mr. Kerr?"

"No."

Witness said it was after Mr. Kerr spoke to him about the switch, that he (Kerr) went to the telephone. When he came out he said there had been a man killed at Nassau.

When he had been spoken to by Mr. Kerr, he noticed that the switch was in. His brother had turned the switches off in the morning.

"Did you say to anyone since the accident that the instrument registered fifty," asked the coroner.

"No," replied witness.

Witness said that had the switch been in when they were testing the generator, there would have been generated, power, of sufficient voltage to kill a man.

Chas. Gladman couldn't say if the wheel which was being tested was running fast enough to generate power. He was not experienced in electrical work. He judged that the water was on about five minutes. He wouldn't know by looking at a switch whether it was on or not.

He hear Kerr say, "you shoudn't have put it up,' and he heard Newbury say to Kerr, "there is no current on."

A GOOD SWITCH

Mr. Hazen Ritche said that he didn't think it would be possible for the current to pass a switch such as used at the power house, when turned out. It was a good safe switch, and he knew of no better type of switch.

George Newbury recalled, was asked in regard to a conversation with constable Moore. He said he talked with him about five o'clock Sunday evening.

"He says that you told him that when you looked at the instrument it registered 51," said Mr. Wood.

I did not tell him that," replied witness.

"He asked me if I put in the switch and I said, yes, because I thought it may be I did."

"Now you think it was in before you came back."

"Yes."

NORTHERN LIGHTS DEFEAT MIDGETS

In Juvenile League Game at the Oval—Score 13-6

The Northern Lights, who have just struck their gait, put a crimp in the bonnets of the Midgets, who, only a few days ago were making a strong bid for the league leadership, last night when they beat them 13 to 6. Parker, the once invincible twirler, was hit often, and his team mates found their jobs too hard. As a result several runs came in, while Swantson of the Lights tightened up at the right time, and was somewhat stingy with his hits.

Score—Lights, 13, Midgets 6. Batteries, Lights, Swantson, Taylor; Midgets, Parker, Barrie, Haskill. Umpire Geary.

The game scheduled for this week Lights vs. Thistles, was not correct it should have read Leafs vs. Thistles, The umpire for this game will be Mr Thompson.

LAST MINUTE NEWS FROM GAY OLD LONDON

Fine Weather Promised for To-morrow's Festivities

Preparing for Expected Accidents and Tragedies

Special to the Review.

London, June 21.—Although the sky is overcast to-day the forecasters promise fine weather [illegible]. While the populace are in festive mode the officials fear to-morrow's tremendous crowds will cause a tragedy of some sort. Two thousand ambulances, an army of doctors and scores of emergency hospitals have been prepared for the occasion. The congestion on the streets has already practically stopped business. The crowns and regalia which will be worn by the King and Queen were removed to-day from the Palace to Westminster Abbey under a strong guard.

GAVE HER A SWAT IN THE EAR

That's What Mrs. Schewerdt said of Robt. Tamblin

A Case Where Two Families Failed to Agree

A dispute over the dividing line of a fence between the land owned by Conrad Schewerdt and Robert Tamblin, both residing on Victoria avenue, was threshed out at police court this morning. An assault case in connection with the dispute was also heard when Robert Tamblin was charged with assaulting Margaret Schewerdt and her husband, Conrad, who both hail from Germany, and whose English is very imperfect.

After severely lecturing the two parties for being so quarrelsome, his Worship imposed a fine of $2 on Tamblin, considering him to have been in the wrong.

F. D. Kerr appeared for Tamblin, and G. N. Gordon upheld the interests of Mr. Schewerdt.

Gathering the facts from the conflicting evidence of a large number of witnesses the story of the misunderstanding is as follows;

The property of the two parties adjoins with a few fence posts situated on a line between the two lots. Mr. Cameron did the surveying of the land and staked out the dividing line for a fence to be built there by the two disputing parties. The location of the line, however, failed to satisfy either so it appeared, and Schewerdt dug up an iron stake that had been placed there. This happened on Sunday morning, June 18th, at 11 o'clock. Mr and Mrs. Schewerdt and Mr. and Mrs. Tamblin came together over the matter and after some unprintable language was tossed to and fro, Mrs. Schewerdt clinched the matter by thrusting her face close up to Mr. Tamblin, making a remark which overcame his peaceful temper and his hand shot out shoving Mrs. Schewerdt back a couple of times, or as she said, he "gave her a swat in the ear."

WOMEN INVENTORS

A Few Patents Which Have Brought Wealth to Some of Them

A few have done so. One woman patented a contrivance for trimming the bottom of dress-skirts so they would hang evenly—a great boon to the home dressmaker. Another suggested to her husband, who was mechanically inclined, that the thermometer on the outside of an oven really told nothing about the heat insied; what the oven needed was a heat valve—some arrangement whereby an [illegible] in the oven would automatically open when there was too much heat, thus maintaining the correct temperature for baking bread.

He perfected the idea, patented it, and has profited largely through its sale.

Another woman, after many unsuccessful efforts to find a corset that would adjust itself to her corpulent figure, discovered the lack that had not been provided for by corset-makers, and set about designing one to suit herself. She perfected her plan, found it a great comfort, patented the idea, and is to-day at the head of a large factory where these special corsets are made. An invalid husband had reduced her to sewing by the day for a living for both before she thought of her new corset.

Another woman discovered through experiment a food mixture that made her hens lay; she gave it a name, patented it, and put it on the market with the greatest success. Another compounded a disinfectant that killed insect life in her chicken-house, and that also proved efficacious for use in hospitals and homes following infectious illness. This was patented, and is now sold in large quantities.

ALL THE DIFFERENCE

How an Old Gentleman Got Even With a Spiritualist

An old gentleman, apparently from the country, one day entered the room of a medium and expressed a desire for a "sperit communication." He was told to take a seat at the table and to write the names of his deceased relatives. The medium, like many others, incorrectly pronounced the term "deceased" the same as "diseased," sounding the s like z. The old gentleman carefully adjusted his "specs" and did what was required of him. A name and relationship having been selected from those written, the investigator was desired to examine and state if they referred to one party.

"I declare they do!" said he. "But I say, mister, what has them papers to do with a sperit communication?"

"You will see directly," replied the medium. Whereupon the latter spasmodically wrote a "communication," which read somewhat as follows:—

"My Dear Husband,—I am very glad to be able to address you through this channel. Keep on investigating, and you will soon be convinced of the fact of spirit intercourse. I am happy in my spirit home, patiently awaiting the time when you will join me here, etc.—Your loving wife, Betsy."

"Good gracious! But my old woman can't be dead," said the investigator, "for I left her at home!"

"Not dead!" exclaimed the medimu. "Did I not tell you to write the names of 'deceased' relatives?"

"Diseased!" returned the old man; "she ain't anything else, for she's had the rumatiz orfully for six months!"

"WINNIE'S" PAPER TRIANGLES

Little Mannerisms of Winston Churchill While in the House

Great men, like humbler folk, have their little mannerisms, and Mr. Winston Churchill's, as one would expect, is distinctive and interesting. It is really a schoolboy trick. Mr. Churchill takes a single sheet of the House of Commons Order Paper, damps the thumb and forefinger with his lips, rolls the paper tightly, commencing at the corner, and then bends it first in the centre and next some few inches from the ends, which he intersects, and thus forms a perfect triangle. This he twirls on his finger, or sometimes on a pen or pencil, and then thrusts it beneath the Treasury Bench and commences the operation again. Sometimes he makes as many as a round half-dozen of these triangles at a time, with a rapidity of construction quite remarkable. A triangle is often made, twirled, and discarded in less than a minute.

SIR "SAM" EVANS

Sir Samuel Evans is a capital story-teller, and one of his most humorous yarns concerns a man accused of having stolen a pair of trousers. There were several witnesses, but the evidence was rather meagre, and so the accused was acquitted. He was told to go, but would remain. His lawyer, to whose successful defence he mainly owed his liberty, hinted to him again that he was free to depart, but still he stayed. There being no more cases to be heard, the court was getting empty, when the lawyer, growing impatient, asked, with some asperity, why he didn't go. The injured, innocent man whispered in his ear, "The fact is, sir, I did not like to move till the witnesses had left the court." "Why so?" "Because, sir, I have got on the trousers that I stole."

President and Mrs. Taft to-day, at Washington, celebrate their silver wedding.

BOYD HAD TO PAY UP

Man Arrested Here Convicted at Toronto

Toronto, June 21.—Thomas Boyd was convicted on the fraud charge of having caused Jos. McTamany and Co., a loss of $160 on a diamond ring which he had pawned. The complaint was that Boyd had disposed of the ticket and gone back and claimed the ring with the story of a loss of the ticket before the ticket purchaser got to the shop. A check was handed over to McTamany, so Boyd was remanded until called upon for sentence.

RODE ON THE WAGON TONGUE

London, Ont., June 21.—Mrs. Achenburger, a farmer's wife, had a remarkable experience here yesterday when marketing strawberries.

She was standing in her rig when the team bolted. When crossing the car tracks at King street, the jolt parted the wagon from the horses, and the woman was shot forward between the animals. She twisted her arms and legs around the wagon tongue, and in this position the horses carried her for several blocks. The tongue finally broke from the yoke, dropping her in the street, none the worse for her thrilling experience.

In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

Somebody Put Red Pepper in Rhubarb Pie

A joke that might have proved fatal on the evening of June 5th, a small party was invited into lunch to the home of Mr. Herbert Perrin's. The evening was spent very pleasantly in music and games until lunch time was reached. When the party sat down to a sumptuous spread, two young people had eaten too heartily before they realized that the rhubarb pie was too highly seasoned with red pepper. The two commenced choking until things became serious. Everything possible was done to bring them around again and much credit is given to Mr. M. C. Wood for the services he rendered. A joke is all right in its place, but this one might have proved costly. But we are glad to know that the young people have recovered nicely from eating too much rhubarb pie.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes, and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty; and the lashes are short and lifeless. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes, on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. CORONATION STATE DINNER; A GORGEOUS ASSEMBLY

Banquet and Ball in London Are Magnificent Affairs.

Their Majesties Entertain Visiting Royalty at a State Dinner In Buckingham Palace — All the Big Men and Women In England and Many Illustrious Foreigners Sit Down—Shakespeare Ball a Success.

London, June 21.—The most regal banquet palace of king or emperor ever witnessed and a gorgeous Shakespeare ball under the auspices of noted society leaders stand forth as shining features of the second day of coronation week. The banquet in Buckingham Palace last night was a scene of imperial grandeur, so far as the assembly of royal and eminent personages, the setting of costly magnificence and beautiful decorations would combine to make it.

The King and Queen entertained the visiting and English royalties, all the special foreign delegations, the foreign ambassadors and ministers, the officers of state and the household, the members of the Cabinet and former Cabinet members, the heads of the church and judiciary and of the army and navy.

The two largest apartments in the palace, the ball room and the picture gallery which adjoin, were utilized as a banquet hall. On the tables was displayed the royal gold plate, used only on historic occasions, the cost of which is estimated at $15,000,000 and its weight eight tons. This plate for the most part was collected in the reigns of the four Georges, and the principal piece is a massive peacock captured in one of the Indian wars, whose tail is studded with diamonds. Cut glass worth a fortune, ivory decanters, hundreds of years old, and old wines dating back more than a century were on the board.

The gallery holds more than 800 pictures. The decorations of both rooms are largely gilt, and this background was embellished with banks of palms and giant lilies, while orchids, roses and ferns were stacked on the tables. Yeomen of the guard ranged about the walls, and all diners wore their richest uniforms, decorations, gowns and jewels.

One of the most interesting features of the coronation is a compact by the Established and Free Churches for joint services in many cities. This is the first time that the two bodies have united on such a scale for any purpose.

Many of the most notable coronation guests have been in London for a week or more, but during the past two days special trains have brought scores of foreign representatives to the capital. These include Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany and the Crown Princess, Prince Henry of Prussia, the Archduke Karl Frank Josef of Austria-Hungary, the Prince and Princess Maximillan of Baden; Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria, Prince De Linge of Belgium, the Crown Prince of Bulgaria, Prince Tsai Chien of China, the Crown Prince of Denmark, Prince Mohamed Ali Pasha of Egypt, Dejazmatch Kassa of Ethiopia, the Grand Duke and Duchess of Hesse and the Prince and Princess Frederick Charles of Hesse, the Duke and Duchess of Aosta, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess and Prince George of Greece, Vice-Admiral Jonquieres and Gen. de Lasteurs of France, the hereditary Prince of Monaco, the hereditary Prince Danilo and Princess Militza of Montenegro, Prince Henry of the Netherlands, Sid Taib Mokri of Morocco, Johannes Irgens, the Norwegian foreign minister, Prince Ala-Es Saltaeh of Persia, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Roumania, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch of Russia, Prince Philip and Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg, the Prince and Princess Johann George of Saxony, Prince Alexander of Servia, the Infante Don Fernando of Spain, the hereditary Prince Youssuf Izzedin of Turkey, and the hereditary Princess of Saxe-Meiningen.

The Shakespearean ball was held in Albert Hall, which was elaborately decorated. The dancers numbered thousands, while 400 boxes were occupied by the representatives of foreign nations and the most prominent British officials. As many as 29 quadrilles were danced simultaneously, the participants representing groups of characters from Shakespeare's plays.

Other important events of the day included luncheons to the Dominion Premiers and mayors, a party by the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire and a review of the colonial troops by War Secretary Haldane.

As an outcome of an appeal by the Duke of Devonshire the "gentlemen of England" to realize at this time their responsibilties to the Empire, a meeting was held last night in Queen's Hall. Patriotic speeches were made and a message of loyalty was sent to the King. Lord Loreburn, Lord High Chancellor, presided.

KINDNESS OF MRS. FITZGERALD IS APPRECIATED

In Her Gift of Bell to All Saints' Church

The bell which Mrs. Fitzgerald purchased from St. John's Church and generously donated to All Saints was rung last Sunday in All Saints tower for the first time. It was heard clearly and distinctly in all parts of the city, but will be especially appreciated by those living in the vicinity of All Saints'. On Sundays the bell will be rung at the same hour as it was rung at St. John's, viz., 10 a.m., from 10.45 to 11; 6 p.m., and from 6.45 to 7 p.m.. At other services it will be rung just before the hour of service.

Mrs. Fitzgerald's gift is very greatly appreciated by the congregation of All Saints. It makes All Saints seem more truly Church of England than ever. The rector at both morning and evening services last Sunday expressed the thanks the congregation felt toward the generous donor. He said as often as the bell called people to worship, gave utterance to marriage joys or tolled sympathy for the mourner, the generosity of the gift would be called to mind.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

GOD SAVE THE KING.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—As a citizen and a subscriber to the "Citizens' Chimes," I would suggest that the opening selection to be played on the chimes on Coronation day be "God Save the King," seeing that the inauguration is fixed for that day in honor of King George. It would, as well, be an earnest expression of our loyalty and have the added claim of being the one selection to which we can all subscribe and join in the singing of—as far as the chimes can be heard.

Yours, etc.,
ANGLICAN.

UNWORTHY OF THE NAME.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—A Protestant (or infidel) with the high-sounding name of Charlemagne Rodier, has entered suit, the newspapers say, to obtain divorce from his wife on the ground that she is a Roman Catholic and that under Ne Temere their marriage solemnized 30 years ago, was no marriage at all. Such a man as that is unworthy of the name of man.

Yours,
PROTESTANT.

HOW WAS IT OMITTED?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In the list of coronation honors one would naturally expect Peterborough to receive her fair share. Our Board of Health ought to be given the order of N. G., out of recognition for the malodorous condition of our city.

Yours, etc.,
ANTI-SEPTIC.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE REJOICES IN THE CROWNING OF ITS SAILOR KING

CORONATION CEREMONY WAS THE MOST MAGNIFICENT IN HISTORY OF OLD ENGLAND

Tremendous Spectacle in London—Glitter and Pomp Surpassed Imagination—All Went Smoothly—Mediaeval Aspect of Ceremonies.

London, June 23.—King George V., eighth of the House of Hanover, was yesterday consecrated to the service of the British Empire, and in turn received the public homage of his world-wide subjects.

With his consort, Queen Mary, His Majesty was crowned in the Abbey of Westminster, with all the wealth of religious rites and royal ceremonial prescribed by historic custom.

The picture within the grey-walled fabric was one of mediaeval splendor. The coronation services, solemn and imposing, were those handed down from the earlier centuries, and the actors in the principal secondary roles of to-day's great function were garbed in reproductions of the multi-colored, gold-embroidered trappings worn by their ancestors in bygone generations. The latter made up a wonderfully effective setting around the central figures.

Outside, the usually dull streets had been transformed into a mass of color. The King and Queen's progress to the abbey and the return to Buckingham Palace was one unbroken ovation. The route was hedged with a vast polygot host, with a background of bravely decorated viewing stands and windows and roofs, all of which were crammed to their capacity.

Hundreds of thousands of spectators shouted themselves hoarse at central points, like the Mall, and the entrance to the admiralty archway, where the Government stands held a score of thousands. Trafalgar Square was so densely packed with humanity that it would not have been difficult to traverse the square walking on the heads of the people. Parliament Square, Club Land and Constitutional hill held their countless hordes.

A Splendid Cavalcade.

The tumult of thunderous welcome was almost deafening as the King and Queen passed on the outward and homeward journeys, proceeded in the first instance and followed on the return by a stately, superb cavalcade of eminent princes, many themselves heirs to thrones; statesmen, diplomats, courtiers, soldiers, sailors and men of all houses, races and countries from the four quarters of the globe.

The great ceremonial passed off unmarred by any untoward accident. When dawn broke the skies were heavy and showers fell during the progress of the processions of the royal guests, and the junior members of the royal family to the abbey, but as the King and Queen left Buckingham Palace to be crowned, the heavens smiled and a flood of sunshine brightened the splendid pageant.

It was a proud day for the British Empire, but of all its millions, the one who, perhaps, had the most reason to be proud, was denied by court etiquette the joy of witnessing the triumphal event. At Sandringham Palace, Queen Mother Alexandra, who 46 years ago this month, gave Britain a King, awaited the news that her son had taken his place in the long line of British monarchs.

Record For Magnificence.

Perhaps never in history, never in the experience of any person who witnessed it, anyway, has there been an historic scene so magnificent as the ancient Abbey of Westminster presented, when George V. and Queen Mary were seated in state upon their thrones.

All who attended the crowning of Edward VII. agreed that yesterday's ceremony surpassed that spectacle in every circumstance of stately stage setting, of solemn ritual, inspiring music, the host of royal and eminent personages, the wonderful display of rich uniforms, bright gowns, marvelous jewels, which combined to create an impression of awe and admiration. Their Majesties, with gleaming crowns on their heads and gorgeous robes outspread behind them, the great Cullinan diamond flashing from the imperial crown, all the nobles of the throne in quaint costumes of ancient offices, with a few modern uniforms, the four peeresses attending the Queen in shimmering gowns, pages in light blue and white grouped behind them, an array of church dignitaries robed in scarlet and gold formed the centre of the picture.

Principals In Drama.

Below the King and Queen were the young Prince of Wales, almost smothered in the dark blue robes of the Order of the Garter, with the peer's crimson mantle around his shoulders, and the Duke of Connaught in the uniform of a field marshal. Just above the altar, loaded with massive gold plate, to the right of the King, was the girlish Princess Mary, wearing the coronet of a peerees, with hair hanging down her shoulders, and the three younger princes in Scottish kilts. Near them were the other members of the royal family. Yeoman of the guard with halberds lined the aisles throughout the space of the abbey, and in the great boxes; rising high against the walls and filling the transepts and galleries, were 7,000 spectators, forming blocks of quivering, variegated color. In one group were the future rulers of most of the kingdoms of Europe with their aides. In another were the diplomatic corps, competing with the royalties in the splendor of their uniforms and decorations. Two blocks facing across the nave were composed of peers and peeresses wearing red robes and ermine capes, holding in their laps their coronets until the King was crowned.

Placed In Groups.

Another large section was occupied by members of the House of Commons, with their ladies. Some of them wore uniforms, but the majority were in black court dress. Indian potentates with gaudy turbans and marvelous jewels formed a striking group in still another section. A scarlet clock represented the army; a blue one the navy; a third, scarlet and white, indicated where the judges in robes and wigs sat, while the boys of Westminster School, who boast themselves of ancient privilege to acclaim the King, were high up in the triforium, and the barons of the Cinque Ports in a box close to the throne, made a little patch of dark blue and gold.

All the ladies, apart from the peeresses, were arrayed in court costumes, with white feathers in their hair. Many wore tiras. There was a treasure of precious stones never before collected in one place, and costly enough to buy the ships of the British navy. The ladies-in-waiting to the Queen in the abbey were four duchesses, each being attired to carry into effect a color scheme of shot gold. One wore gold, shot grey, with pearls; another gold, shot blue and topaz jewels; a third, gold shot cerise, with rubies; a fourth, gold, shot green, and emerald ornaments. Princess Mary wore a short white frock and a long royal violet train suspended from the shoulders with gold cord tassels bordered with ermine and gold braid.

Music Throughout.

The ceremony in the abbey consumed more than three hours. The stately ritual of the Established Church, combined with the coronation rites, surcharged with the traditions of faded centuries, and Sir Walter Parratt's impressive music, which continued throughout — now a soft accompaniment, then the choir intoning the service, then the majestic hymn, and, at the culminating points, the roll of drums and the blast of trumpets—to make every moment one of intense interest.

The Archbishop of York's sermon had as its text: "I among you as he that serveth." He said:

"Pray we for our King, that his strong trust in God may keep him faithful to God's trust in him—to be among the people in this homeland, among the multitudes of India, among the strong young nations over the seas, the one man raised above private and local interests to think of all, to care for all, to unite all in one fellowship of common memories, common ideals, common sacrifices. This is indeed a kingly life. Pray we that God may give the King His grace to live it."

Apart from the processions, the solemnity and the paraphernalia of state, there was an undercurrent of human interest most appealing Queen Mary, although she bore herself with regal stateliness during her crowning, was at first noticeably nervous. While the King was being anointed and crowned she had her handkerchief to her eyes frequenly. The King, when he received the homage of the heir, displayed a father's affection.

Peers Arrive.

Both routes of the procession were filled up long before the troops had found their places. The early arrival of cavalry in brilliant uniforms, accompanied by bands, afforded almost as interesting a show as the procession itself, and then came royal carriages and coaches taking robed and uniformed men and daintily dressed women to the abbey for the ceremony.

Soon after 7 o'clock carriages and motor cars began to crowd the entrance. Admiral Count Togo and General Count Nogi, the Japanese veterans, came in the first open carriage, a royal one, with scarlet liveried coachman and footman. They were accompanied by British attaches, and being recognized, were given a hearty welcome, to which they gravely bowed. Then came a stream of royal carriages, bringing the King's guests to see him crowned.

The ambassadors and the ministers came in their own carriages, and for two hours there was a continuous flow of vehicles of every color and design. The royal carriages and dress coaches were most gorgeous affairs. They were filled with peers in robes, some wearing their coronets as the easiest way, and others carrying them in their hands, and peeresses with magnificent robes over marvelous dresses.

Although hundreds of carriages dropped their guests at the Abbey entrance, by no means all came by the road. A large contingent of peers and peeresses came down the river by steamer. Even a larger number made their way on foot.

There was a short wait, and then the sound of music announced the approach of the first procession, which consisted of the royal and other representatives. In the last carriage were Crown Prince Frederick William and the Crown Princess of Germany and the Austrian and Turkish delegates.

The second procession, the members of the British royal family, came half an hour later. The Prince of Wales, in his garter robes, accompanied his sister and brothers in the last carriage. He received an enthusiastic greeting, which he seemed to enjoy greatly, smiling and bowing his acknowledgements.

At 11.30 o'clock a royal salute announced the departure of the King and Queen from the palace, and was the most gorgeous of the processions, the one in which naturally the greatest interest lay, made its way through the troop-lined streets, which were backed by great crowds in the stands and afoot, a wave of cheering spread from one end of the route to the other.

Immediately behind the royal coach Lord Kitchener, in a field marshal's uniform, rode beside the Standard, and then came the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Duke of Teck, Prince Louis of Battenberg, Prince Alexander of Teck, Prince Christian and Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, all on chargers.

The arrival of Their Majesties at the Abbey was the signal for a shout of greeting, which was continued until they were lost to view, and then repeated as Kitchener or some other hero was recognized.

Coronation Accidents.

London, June 22.—Two fatal coronation accidents has been reported. At Lyme-Regis a cannon with which a salute was being fired burst and a prominent citizen was blown to pieces.

At Barnstable an archway in the street collapsed. A woman was killed and a number of men and women were seriously injured.

During the progress of the royal procession an Indian officer was thrown from his horse in the Mall and trampled on, but not dangerously injured.

A cavalry horse, frightened by the drums, scattered a crowd, but was caught by a policeman before it had done any serious damage.

MR. BORDEN IS BUSY IN WEST

Doing Continuous Speaking to Prairie Farmers.

Has Begun to Economize on His Voice Already.

Regina, June 23.—The Conservative leader began Coronation Day by speaking at two coronation celebrations. The occasions were, of course, non-political and the speeches were devoted to the strengthening of the imperial ties. At both an active part was taken by school children and the boy scouts. The two celebrations were held at Qu'Appelle and Indian Head. The the former F. W. G. Haultain was a speaker with Mr. Borden. He did not, however, accompany the Conservative leader to Indian Head. At both celebrations and at the subsequent political meeting at Indian Head, Mr. Borden spoke very briefly. The strain of the long deliverances at Winnipeg and Brandon, and the nearly a dozen speeches made on Wednesday, has made it necessary that he should save his voice if he is to be able to meet the constantly increasing demands upon him. Requests are still coming in for further meetings.

R. S. Lake, who was expected to come out against reciprocity, was expected to be present at the Indian Head meeting, which took place in his constituency. The birth of a son, however, which occurred on the morning of Coronation Day, prevented him from coming. But, though the federal member was absent, the local member, A. B. Gillis, who voted for the joint reciprocity resolution in the Legislature, occupied a seat on the platform. Mayor Davidson of Indian Head presided, but expressed no opinions of politics.

Laurier and Botha Were in Big Procession

Special To The Review

London, June 23—To-day's procession through central and southern London, was a magnificent military display. The King and Queen appeared to be in gayer mood than yesterday. King George wore Field Marshals uniform, and the Queen was dressed in white and wore a blue hat. Of the colonial representatives, Laurier and Botha, came in for a lion's share of the cheering. The sky was overcast, but rain held off.

UNION LABEL

MR. BORDEN'S STAND

The strength and power of Mr. Borden's attitude on the question of reciprocity has startled the Grain-growers of the west. They had expected the Conservative leader to play for their support. But Mr. Borden knows better. He knows that the Grain-growers —the members of the association of that name —are Grits, practically every man of them, and that they have not and never had any intention of supporting the Conservative party. The Grain-growers association is a cloak for Grit political schemes, as any man familiar with the western conditions will acknowledge, and the Roblin government has met its severest opposition from this body.

The grain-growers do not represent the whole west. They represent a section of the farming population that is ready to array itself against all the industrial interests of Canada, against the workingman of eastern Canada. These grain-growers are Grits, but has anyone noticed them rising in loud-voiced protest against the Laurier Government's combination with the harvesting machinery combine? Has anyone noticed the grain-growers protesting against the refusal of the Laurier government to carry out its 1893 promises of free trade? Against the hundred and one evidences that Laurier was simply mocking at them when he said the tariff was a snare, a delusion and a robbery, and against his policy in office? Being party men first, and grain-growers after, these men shut their mouths, and under the guise of independence work in collusion with the machine at Ottawa to deliver the west into the hands of the Philistines.

Mr. Borden knows this; he knows the grain-growers. He refuses to budge from his uncompromising attitude toward reciprocity, for the whole west. We think the people of the west would like a man of rugged stamp like that for premier —another Whitney. They would not be disgusted by the evasions, the side-steppings, the half-truths, and petty politics of a Laurier. They would get, in straight English, and as frankly as anyone could state it, what Mr. Borden's policy was, and they could either support him or not as they pleased.

A man first, not a politician; a statesman, not a vote-catcher; a man of steadfast principle and largeness of character, Mr. Borden has gained in the esteem of all Canada by his downright attitude on the big political issue.

HAMILTON'S SUCCESS

Hamilton's publicity commissioner, William Muliiss, has landed four new big industries for Hamilton. One of these is the Standard Cable Co., of Pittsburg, a concern of $500,000 calibre, the Boston Insulated Wire and Cable Company; The Taylor Manufacturing Co, of Princeton, Indiana; and the Mayo Brown Co.

The Standard Cable company is a concern like the International Harvester, the Oliver, the Westinghouse concerns. Its products are very largely for electrical work, and of course Hamilton is an ideal location for it.

Against clever, consistent work like this, in getting industries, Peterboro doesn't seem to have the show that it ought to have. If Peterboro is to get industries, it can only be done properly by a man engaged specially for the purpose—not by loading extra labor on the shoulders of the city clerk, who already has as much as he can attend to—and cheap power is not always at the bottom of the industry getting business either. In a factory employing a large number of operatives, power is one of the lesser items of expense. Wages, heat, freight, material all are more important as items of cost. In the case of a manufacturer getting power at $18 a hp., and one getting it at $15, on, say, 300 hp. capacity, the total difference over the year would be only $900, whereas the saving in wages between Toronto or Hamilton and Peterboro might amount to $10,000 annually.

Low prices for power are not always the secret of factory locations. What is wanted apparently is someone who will be able to get in touch with the factories that may be moving or establishing branches—not merely writing thousands of letters after a circular fashion. The publicity commissioner of Hamilton is a newspaper man. Most of the successful publicity commissioners are newspaper men. It is dollars to doughnuts that a newspaper man of proper calibre, put into the industrial commissionership here, and giving full time to the job, would produce practical benefits that men with merely a mercantile training could not. There is nothing like a newspaper training to have cultivated in a man the habit of "getting there."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Gold dishes worth $15,000,000 were used at the state dinner to European royalty. Would pork and beans go any better in these dishes?

The London Morning Post suggests alliance of British and Canadian Conservatives. There is nothing for the Canadian Conservatives in this, for their policies cannot be those of the old country Unionists. No common basis of action could be found, for Canadian Conservatives certainly could not adopt the role of reactionary defenders of ancient privileges.

It is said that when the Duke of Connaught comes to Canada, he will bring many more honors for Canadians in the shape of knighthoods. It might be well for the Duke to bring an explanation as to which merger was responsible for Max Aitkin being made a Sir. We would like to know if one merger had any more merit than another.

Ellen Terry's Toe.

When Ellen Terry was a little girl about ten years old she played Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and had to make her appearance through the stage floor on a trapdoor. The trapdoor was shut too soon, and one of the child's feet was caught. She screamed with pain, and Mrs. Charles Keen whispered to her: "Be a brave girl, Nellie. Finish your part, and you shall play Arthur in 'King John.'" The trapdoor by this time was open, but the child's toe was broken. She, however, pluckily pulled herself together and finished her speech.

A Daring Feat.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 23.—At last night meeting of the International carnival committee, Lincoln Beachy signed a contract to fly over the falls and under the upper steel arch bridge during the carnival next Tuesday and Wednesday. The feat is the most sensational ever attempted in the history of aviation.

The bridge spans the river at an altitude of 168 feet, but it is an arched structure, and there is only a narrow space through which a machine may pass. There is a clear way of less than 100 feet between the span and the water.

The carnival committee has hung a purse of $1,000 on the under-the-bridge flight.

Bothersome air currents were the particular feature of the flight that caused McCurdy to decline to make the attempt. Johnson and Furnicci also refused to attempt the flight. Neyvatte, who operates a Bleriot monoplane, hesitated, but now says he is willing to race the daring American, but he is not so keen about the under-the-bridge flight as is Beachy.

THE REVIEW

PERSONNEL OF DIRECTORATE OF CANADIAN LOCOMOTIVE CO.

Many Well Known Names on Board—A Strong Canadian Company.

More definite information about the Canadian Locomotive Company flotation which is to be announced in the papers to-morrow has at last been received. Aemilius Jarvis & Company have announced that the directors of the new company are Hon. Wm. Harty, Kingston; James Redmond, Montreal; Robert Hobson, Hamilton; Frank G. Wallace, Pittsburg; Warren Y. Soper, Ottawa; John L. Whiting, K.C., Kingston, and Aemilius Jarvis, Toronto.

The appraisal of the company's property and plant and the report of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, chartered accountants, show that in addition to the real estate, buildings, plant, goodwill, etc., the old company will turn over to the new organization over three-quarters of a million dollars of liquid assets in the shape of municipal and other bonds. Further than that, an additional value of nearly $500,000 is turned over in the way of cash, inventories, work in hand and accounts receivable, which makes a total of assets equivalent to cash turned over to the new organization nearly one and one-quarter millions of dollars.

The average earnings for the last four years show, in addition to the sum required for bond interest and sinking fund, and amount equivalent to practically twice the dividend on the preferred stock issued.

The preferred stock which is to be offered to-morrow at par carries with it a bonus of 25 per cent. in common stock.

INDUCTION OF REV. F. J. SAWERS INTO ST. LUKE'S RECTORSHIP

Impressive Ceremony Conducted by Bishop Sweeny—The Work of the Ministry.

With the always impressive significance attendant upon such occasions, the induction of Rev. F. J. Sawers, M. A., as rector of the parish of St. Luke's, East City, was held Wednesday evening. Bishop Sweeny, of Toronto, being present to officiate at the ceremony.

Programs showing the order of service for the induction were distributed throughout the church, which was fairly well filled by parishioners and friends.

After observing the institution the Bishop performed the ritual formally installing the new rector in his office after which the keys of the churchh were placed in his hands by the church warden.

The pastor received the keps as pledges of his induction and of his reception as minister of the parish by repeating the words used for such occasions.

Special prayers were offered for the King and Queen, after which Bishop Sweeny preached a very brief, but inspiring sermon taking as his text the words, "The work of the ministry," found in Eph. 4 Chap. 12th verse.

"The word of God," said his Lordship, "might be compared to a beautiful garden of flowers, from which one may pick an excellent and luscious bouquet. We take the words of the text and consider them apart from their surroundings and think of what a high, exalting work the ministry is. No other work is comparable to it. The church magnifies the occupation of the ministry, and it holds a two-fold relationship, namely the relationship of priest to the people and of people to priest. A mutual understanding is involved, and one cannot be isolated from the other, and the responsibility of inter-relationship exists. Nothing outside of death or removal of the minister can relieve either of this obligation."

A man once told Dr. Johnson that he considered the ministry an easy calling and that a minister gained his stipend easily.

"Dr. Johnson's reply was characteristic of him when he said instantly, 'I consider the priest of God to be the spiritual father of a vast family often too large for him to care for.' Another outstanding layman has said that of all the solemn thoughts that flash in the chambers of any brain, none was greater than the sense of one's relationship to God.

"A congregation should first be true to the man who is placed in charge of them.

"Our faith nowadays is often questioned, sometimes in a flippant way, of which we can pay no heed to, but often it comes from a spirit of hostility, questions which are difficult to be answered sometimes."

His Lordship's sermon was distinctly elevating and was intently listened to.

The ceremony ended by the pronouncing of the benediction by the Bishop.

DANDURAND GRATEFUL

He Is Glad the U. S. Is Looking Towards Canada.

In Speech Before the Canadian Club of New York, He Expresses His Deep Appreciation of President Taft's Kindness In Opening Tariff Negotiations—Canada Is Now Smiling All Over, He Declares.

New York, June 23.—Senator Raoul Dandurand of Montreal, in an address at the banquet of the Canadian Club of New York last night declared that many well-informed people in the Dominion of Canada were of the opinion that the present reciprocity arrangement with the United States would be favored by 90 per cent. of the Canadian electorate if it were not made a party question. Senator Dandurand said, in addressing the club, which was entertaining President Taft as its principal guest:

"To Mr. President Taft I must express my deep appreciation of the high compliment he pays the Dominion of Canada by his visit this evening to the Canadian colony of New York.

"I would falsely represent the Canadian thought, if I conveyed the impression that a sentiment of resentment lingers in our breasts because of the high protectionist policy pursued on this side of the line. We are rather thankful for the experiment we were forced to go through. With this market being gradually closed against us we had to place our surplus product elsewhere and we did. The effort developed our energies and tempered our mettle. We may have had a grim look for a while, but we have successfully sailed the course and we are now smiling all over.

"This is why we gladly seize the hand, which your worthy President extends to us and we welcome the offer of a fair exchange of natural products on even terms.

"Among the very same people who seem convinced that this bargain will rather injure the Canadian producer, are to be found some who express the fear that an increased exchange of products may bring about a political reapproachment.

"The one objection negatives the other.

"Some opponents have shouted so loud their fear of annexation that it has been re-echoed on this side of the line by some public men. We, Canadians are not adverse to Americans expressing such a wish, for it only tends to increase our pride in our own country.

"Prior to the signing of this agreement no one in Canada ever saw any danger of the fact that our purchases from the United States increased yearly and if this free trade understanding were not on the tapis no one would object if our sales increased in the same ratio.

"The Canadian protectionist is supported in his opposition to the treaty by the budding British protectionist. This ally hopes to convert Great Britain to his views in the near future and to be then in a position to organize a Zollvrein within the Empire. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has just voiced the true sentiment of Canada on this question. The Dominion stands by its preferential policy to the Mother Country and is ready to go further in that direction, but Canada will always remain free to extend its trade upon what conditions it may choose, in whatever channels it deems best."

It was nearly 11.30 o'clock before President Taft reached the club banquet hall.

"People talk about annexing Canada to the United States, or the United States to Canada. It is entirely unnecessary; all that we ought to do is to cultivate as fully and completely as possible good neighborly relations. Te closer we come together, commercially and socially the better it is for both of us.

"I am an hour and a half behind my time," he said, "and I apologize to you for my very desultory remarks, but I hope I have made you feel and understand that I am very fond of Canada, that I am very fond of her people, and I believe in reciprocity."

WHY THE CENSUS MUST BE TAKEN

The Information is Necessary That the Government May Properly Adjust Details of Income

The census this year is the fifth general census of Canada. There was partial census taken in the three prairie provinces in 1906, but there has been no general census of Canada since 1901. At the first census taken in Canada in 1871, the population was only 3,689,257. In 1881 it had increased to 4,324,810, but in the next ten years under Sir John A. Macdonald, it only went up to 4,833,239. The greatest gain was shown last time, when it had risen to 5,371,315, and this record will be broken in 1911 it is believed, when a gain of possibly three millions is predicted.

The object of the census is not merely a numbering of the people for vainglorious purposes, nor yet, as some foreign-speaking peoples imagine, for military purposes. The information does not lead to an increase of taxation, but to a decrease of taxation, as it enables Government officials to more correctly estimate the exact amount of custom and other duties to be levied to raise a sufficient income for the country's needs, so that a more close approximation between estimates of national income and receipts may be made. Surpluses are not always the result of prosperity, but are due to bad figuring leading to unnecessarily high taxes. Then the census is necessary to give to each part of Canada proper parliamentary representation. Under our constitution Quebec always has 65 representatives. The Quebec population divided by 65 gives the unit of representation for the rest of Canada. With the progress of the West and the immense immigration there, it is nceessary to know exactly what the population is so that in the next Parliament the West will get its due proportion of members.

The figures as to earnings, production of manufactures, etc., are necessary and influence governments in making trade treaties, or in revising customs tarrifs. The new information this year sought as to disability and compensation paid to workers will influence legislation on this subject. Many of the other figures secured and tabulated influence the confidence of investors in this country and the flow of capital. There is a definite purpose behind each question asked, and the purpose is the good of the community as a whole and not the injury of the individual.

LESS DRESS GOODS

Manufacturers of Fabrics Say They Have Cause for Complaint

That the hand that shapes feminine fashions rules a large part of the industrial world and gives to women a mighty power even though she has not yet achieved the ballot, is the sorrowful complaint which is now being made by manufacturers of all sorts of dress fabrics, who assert that women do not wear enough clothes, to which fact they attribute the decrease of their business. The charge, however, is not against the number of dresses, since this is upndoubtedly greater than ever before, but rather against their size, and whatever the fashion makers of the feminine world in general may feel concerning the hobble skirt and the harem skirt, the dress-goods producers are bitter in their denunciation of these garments as the chief cause of their present situation. The denunciation is simply with the amount of goods necessary to make one of these garments, as compared to the amount needed for a gown of the style of a few years ago. This decrease amounts to about forty per cent., says the producers, resulting in a business shrinkage of about $20,000,000 a year.

LIQUOR LEGISLATION

Radical Changes Are Under Consideration in Montreal

More advanced and more drastic legislation than ever for the curtailment of the liquor traffic in Montreal is at present occupying the attention of the local authorities of the Dominion Alliance. The object of the proposed legislation is threefold. The first intention is the enacting of a law forbidding the opening or operation of a bar-room within 400 or 500 yards of any church, school house, factory or mill. This, Mr. Roberts said, would abolish bars in every hotel in the city with the possible exception of two or three.

The closing of all bars at one o'clock on Saturday is another aim which the Dominion Alliance has in view, while the absolute separation of the grocery and liquor businesses in grocery establishments is to be the third measure introduced.

SELLING A HUGE TERRITORY

Over 125.000 Acres In Alberta Which Indians Have Relinquished

The vast area of land in Alberta which the renowned Blackfoot Indians voted last year to relinquish, comprising 125,220 acres, or 782 quarter sections, is being sold. It may be interesting to state the reason of the sale of this valued land by the Indians. When the treaty was made in 1877 there were many thousand Indians on the Blackfoot reserve, which consisted of 300,000 acres. To be more explicit, it was 36 miles long and averaged 13 miles in width, the widest part being 20 miles and the narrowest 12 miles, the main line of the Canadian Pacific being the northern boundary. The Indians have been rapidly dying of late years, until now there are only about 700 on the reserve, and naturally they do not require so much land as formerly. Noting the increase in the value of their land in dollars they concluded to sell a portion of it.

LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average person who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the lenses themselves but much of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The LENSES are the important thing. You look through the LENSES from the time you start to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see.

TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years.

Shaped like the cornea of the eye, they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view without touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens.

We grind all our own TORIC lenses. They cost a little more than the ordinary flat lenses and are worth MUCH more.

OBITUARY

The Late Wm. Crough

William Crough, of Ennismore, aged 74 years, passed away in St. Joseph's hospital at an early hour yesterday morning, after one week's illness, due to pneumonia.

The late Mr. Crough was born in Hamilton and removed to Ennismore with his parents while an infant. In early life he followed farming and in 1858 he was married to Miss Helen Scully, of Emily, who predeceased him three years ago. He was thirty-five years a member of the county council and performed his duties faithfully during his term of office. When his wife passed away he retired from the farm.

Those left to mourn his loss are Michael, Daniel and William Henry, of Ennismore; four brothers, Michael and Patrick, of Ennismore; Phillip, of Smith, and John, of Alberta, also one sister, Mrs. R. Donoghue, of Ennismore.

The funeral will take place Saturday morning at 9.30 o'clock from lot 7, con. 6, Ennismore, to St. Martin's cemetery.

The Late Mrs. W. R. Corneil

The death occurred in the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, last night of Mrs. W. R. Corneil, a sister of Mrs. R. B. Pearson, 522 Charlotte street, of this city. The deceased lady was well known in Peterborough and a number of relatives also reside here. Death came after a lingering illness extending over a period of two years, an illness which baffled the skill of the most able physicians. There are left to mourn her death, her husband, and one daughter Norma, three years of age, also her mother Mrs. Susan Curtis, and two brothers and six sisters who are, Willard and Walter Curtis, Mrs. H. A. Middleton, Mrs. John Darke, and Mrs. J. Lynch, of Lindsay, Mrs. Wm Greenaway, Port Hope; Mrs. J. G. Penrose, Souris, Man., and Mrs. R. B. Pearson, 522 Charlotte street, Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2.30, from the Curtis homestead to the Riverside cemetery, at Lindsay.

Death of Home Girl

A bright young life was brought to a close at the Margaret Cox Home for girls, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Theresa Matilda Knott, aged 21 years, passed away after a lingering illness.

The funeral took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon, from the Home to Little Lake cemetery.

Dr. Andrew MacPhail of Montreal may lose the sight of one eye, the result of an explosion of a bottle of aerated water.

JURY SAYS HUGH DARKE MET HIS DEATH THROUGH THE CARELESSNESS OF THOMPSON

Man at Switch Thought Darke Went Away and He Thought He Got Affirmative Answer to His Signal ("Is Everything Alright?") From Cartner.

The verdict of the coroner's jury empanelled to inquire into the cause of the death of Hugh Darke on the night of Thursday, June 15th, was as follows;

We find that Hugh Darke met his death on the night of the 15th, through what we believe to be carelessness of G. H. Thompson, in starting the machinery without first being positive all was clear. Also that we believe the Canadian General Electric Company should establish a proper code of signals throughout the entire plant, the lack of which was contributory we believe to this accident.

W. A. HOWARD,
Foreman.

The verdict followed the evidence at the council chamber and a visit of the jury to the scene of the accident in the Canadian General Electric Co.

At the council chamber Coroner Greer presided. Mr. R. E. Wood acted for the Crown and Mr. Basil D. Hall for the Company. Mr. G. N. Gordon was present in the interests of the family of the late Mr. Darke.

THE EVIDENCE.

Wm. Cartner, who was with Mr. Darke, told of the incidents leading up to the accident and that when he returned with a wrench, Darke was kneeling on the lower lap of the belt. He took the wrench from witness to tighten a nut by which the motor would be clamped to the floor. He (witness) had stooped down, and then stood up again with his hands on his hip. Then he stooped down again and the belt started towards the pulley. Darke yelled "whoa" and then blood struck him (witness) in the face. Witness could not say that Darke's body went around the pulley. Witness yelled to stop the power. It was Mr. Thompson who was to test the motor. The size of the test was 5-8 in. by 24 inches and about 40 feet in length.

Dr. Boucher read the report of the autopsy. Death was due to shock from injuries received. Dr. Frederick who assisted Dr. Boucher, gave corroborative evidence.

THOMPSON GAVE SIGNAL.

A. F. Fielder said he noticed Cartner run out from behind the generator and ask who started the machine. Witness said he had seen Mr. Thompson start the machine. He gave a sign which meant if it were alright to start. Thompson stopped the machine immediately after Cartner shouted. Witness said Darke was lying on the belt. He was bleeding from a cut on the head. Witness assisted in getting the man from the belt to the surgery.

COULD NOT SEE DARKE.

Witness explained to Coroner Greer that he and Thompson were in such a position that they could not see Darke at work.

"Who was in command of the test?" asked Mr Wood.

"Mr. Thompson."

"Were you under him?"

"Yes."

"Were the other two men under Thompson?"

"They would likely do whatever he asked them, but were not compelled to."

After repeated questioning witness said that while machinists were in the test they would be subject to the order of the foreman in the test.

Wm. Cartner recalled said he had seen the test department sign used, but had not that night.

"Do you know the answer to that sign?"

"No, I do not."

Darke had seemed to be nervous that night and had asked witness if he was going to stay.

"Were you told to stay?"

"Yes, by the foreman."

"Whose directions were you under?"

"Our own," Darke, he said, was afraid of the pillar block slipping. Walter Jeffries the foreman of the fitters in the machine shop had told him to remain with Darke.

To a juror witness said the switch was ten or fifteen feet distant from the machine. He couldn't say if he had been at the switch he could see the place where the accident happened. Notices had been put up before the accident warning the employees not to go near the belt.

Wm. Walker told the previous happenings and said he was five or six yards away when the accident happened. He heard the shouts. He had left Darke kneeling on the lower lap of the belt. A wooden guard had been placed at the machine since the accident.

THE MAN IN CHARGE.

G. H. Thompson said he was in charge of testing the machine that night. Darke said he would tighten up the bolts and he did this. Witness examined them at Darke's request. Witness said, "we'll try it at that," meaning the machine.

THOUGHT DARKE WENT AWAY.

Then Darke went in a direction as if going up the shop. "I took a glance around the whole thing," said witness "and Cartner came and said don't start for a minute I want to tighten a bolt in the front. While waiting I did a little wiring on the table. Cartner went around to tighten the bolt. This took him out of my view. I thought then that Darke was away altogether.

CARTNER STOOD UP.

"Looking in the direction of the machine I saw Cartner stand up and I gave the sign, a wave of the hand, which means is everything alright. From Cartner I got what I took to be a nod of the head, then I opened the voltage on the generator and put on the switch. I heard somebody shout and I shut off the power.

Cartner was looking at him when he (witness) gave the signal.

L. W. Jeffries, foreman of the machine fitters, gave evidence as to the relationship between the men and the superintendent in the test, regarding the work to be done.

BOLT NOT NECESSARY.

To Mr. Hall witness said he did not think it was necessary for the men to put in the bolt.

G. B. Wilson, foreman of the test, said Thompson had no authority over the two men. They would likely take a suggestion from him. He had been informed when he left at six o'clock that the machine was O.K.

A. F. Hanley said he was near the machine at the time of the accident. He saw Darke's body coming over the top of the pulley. His head and shoulders were outside the belt. He saw Mr. Thompson at the switch, but noticed no signals.

J. Schweier was at his bench fifteen feet away. He saw Darke going under the pulley.

L. W. Mellis didn't have any material evidence.

Mr. Jeffries recalled "would it be necessary to get between the two layers of belting to tighten this belt. No, there was lots of room outside the belt to do the work. Witness held it was not more convenient to do the work as Darke had done.

FANS WERE TREATED TO FAST GAME IN WHICH LOCALS WON

Quinlan's Three Bagger in Eighth With None Out Beat Bowmanville—Plenty of Hitting and Snappy Fielding—Peterboro Counted Five in the Third—Final Score Was 6-5

The Petes had a bad scare yesterday afternoon in the Midland league game with Bowmanville, and had the visitors been livelier on the bags it would have brought them the big end of the score.

The count was 6—5 for the Petes, who took the winning tally in the eighth, Quinlan hitting for three bags and scoring on a long sacrifice by "Dutch" Gonter.

The article of ball served up by both teams was refreshing and the fans gave the visitors a great reception as they performed at the bat and on the field.

A clever catch by Tucker in left of Quinlan's drive to the fence was the feature. It stopped two runs.

Big Beith gave a neat program. He was touched up for three singles and a double in the fifth, but recovered and remained steady for the remainder of the game. He only passed one and struck out eight.

Quinlan was erratic. He hit three men and forced in two runs. He handed out six walks, but fanned fourteen.

His team mates hit and fielded well up to their usual standard, and with the visitors looking and playing like a real live ball team, the result was a grand exhibition of ball.

"Happy" Brydie's All Stars vs. Peterborough and an Inter-Catholic league game will make up the program for to-morrow afternoon.

CHAMPIONS HAD A HARD CONTEST

Church League All Stars Were Only One Short

The benefit game between the C.G.E. champions and all-star team from the Church League played on the Brinton meadows Wednesday evening, proved to be an interesting contest. The final score C.G.E. 2, All Stars 1, goes to show that the champions did not have very easy picking. There is some good material in the Church League and a good team could be picked which, if they practiced together, could beat several of the Midland Leaguers, but the good ones are scattered amongst the different clubs, hence an ordinary Church League team has very little chance with the fast company.

Callandine in goal for the "Stars" was a tower of strength. He got them from all angles and the ones which beat him were hard and from close in.

The others all played sterling ball, but the combination and individual stunts of the C.G.E. made them dangerous.

Everything considered, it was one of the best soccer games of the season. The attendance was about three hundred.

Lineups—

C.G.E.—Jones, Hull, Mason, Bridge, Padgett, Allen, Dawson, Miller, French, Corliss.

All Stars—Callandine, Robinson, Braun, Hooper, Simmonite, J. Smith, E. Smith, Turner, Gash, Pearson, Cook.

JOKE COST EACH MAN $5

Attempted Murder Charge Heard Before Magistrate Edmison

The two young drivers named Louis Thibadeau and Osbourne Montgomery were each fined $5 by County Magistrate Edmison this morning when they appeared to answer a charge of attempted murder, alleged to have been committed upon a young lad named Campbell at Nogie's Creek.

G. N. Gordon defended the two men and Crown Attorney Wood prosecuted. It was shown that the charge of attempted murder, which was laid by the boy's father, was altogether unfounded, and that the affair was more in the nature of a joke. The two river driver threw young Campbell into the creek not more than two feet deep, having been provoked by the lad, who in mischief locked the two men into a cabin on Nogie's creek on two successive occasions. The boy was none the worse for the ducking, but the action so angered the boy's father that he laid the information resulting in the charge of attempted murder being laid, and the subsequent arrest of the two rivermen.

CANADIAN LOCOMOTIVE COMPANY TO ENLARGE THEIR PLANT AND CAPACITY

It is Found Necessary to Increase Their Capacity Owing Large Number of Orders—Many Have Been Refused Because of Lack of Facilities—Some New Financing.

To keep pace with the unprecedented strides which are being made in Canada by our railroads, the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston, Ont., have decided to increase their capitalization and enlarge their plant. Their present capacity of seventy-five locomotives per year has been found to be entirely inadequate to supply the demand. Owing to their limited capacity the Company have had to refuse large numbers of orders every year. This company has been in operation for nearly three quarters of a century and have built up an enviable reputation as makers of high class locomotives. In expanding their business they are therefore not experimenting in a new and untried field, but on the contrary are developing an industry which they have brought to as near perfection as skilled workmanship can make it.

The Canadian Locomotive Company intend increasing their capital and issuing $1,500,000, 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $2,000,000 of common stock. There is also an authorized bond issue of $2,000,000 of which $500,000 will remain in the treasury to be used for future extensions and enlargements of the company's property.

An indication of the growth of the railway business in Canada, is shown by reference to the tables prepared by the Department of Railways and Canals, for the year ending, June 1910. At that time there were 224,761 miles of railway in operation, on which 2079 locomotives were in use. This is at the rate of one locomotive to every six miles of road. There are also at the present time under construction 4500 miles of railroad and an addition 1 1,500 miles prospected for early construction. This makes a total of 6,000 miles of new road, for which at least 1,000 additional locomotives will be required for equipment. In addition about 400 locomotives per year will be required for replacement of the existing equipment. As railway development in Canada is really only commencing it will be at once seen that there is an almost unlimited demand for locomotives. The "Made in Canada" slogan demands that as far as possible Canadian business concerns should use produts of Canadian manufacturers and there is every likelihood that the Canadian railroads in the years to come will avail themselves of the opportunity to use the engines made by the Canadian Locomotive Works at Kingston.

MAN WAS ASSAULTED

Row at Drummond's Station Over Some Horses

Victim Hit With Halter and is Unconscious

A serious case of assault is reported to have occurred at Drummonds station at nine o'clock last night and as a result a young man named Mart Manley sustained a severe blow given with such force as to render him in an unconscious condition, which he was still in at a late hour to day.

His assailant is said to be a neighbor named Alfred Cooney, and while full details of the affair could not be ascertained, it seems that the incidents resulting in the assault were as follows.

Cooney had pastured some of his horses in a field, apparently the property of Manley. The latter went out about nine o'clock in the evening to take out the horses, with the intention, it is said, of placing them in pound. Meeting Cooney, who was carrying a halter a row ensued and the latter is alleged to have struck Manley a heavy blow on the back of the head at the base of the brain, rendering him unconscious. Drs. Frederick of Peterboro, and Harrison, of Keene, were called, and made an examination of the injury. One of the doctors stated to the Review, that he did not consider the injury dangerous.

An information has been laid against Cooney and County Constable Cochrane left at noon to-day to effect his arrest.

CANADIANS CELEBRATE

Coronation Day ... by Widespread Jubilation.

Toronto Holds Special Services and Open-Air Meetings — Hamilton Is Scene of Sports ad Special Demonstration—Foreign Warships In the Harbor at Halifax Lend Color to the Occasion—Banquet at Ottawa.

Toronto, June 24.—Few of the great cities of the dominions overseas did such honor to Coronation Day as Toronto. Thousands of people charged with loyalty turned out to attend the celebrations with which the occasion of the crowning of King George was marked. Despite the great heat, there was a spirit of cheerful good humor abroad and a disposition to cheer rather than grumble. The whole day was a striking object lesson of the undying loyalty which actuates the citizens of Canada.

The celebration at Riverdale Park was an event possible only amongst enthusiastic loyalists. Close on 150,000 people massed themselves on the hillside and cheered whole-heartedly as the military bands played patriotic airs. Apart from the noise, the fireworks, or the throngs, the day, and especially the evening, was a pledge of renewed fealty to King George V. and his royal consort.

At the Capital.

Ottawa, June 23.—About 60 guests were present at the state dinner at Government House last night, in honor of the coronation. The invitation list included all the lieutenant-governors, supreme court judges, archbishops of Ottawa, the Cabinet Ministers and prominent officials, but many of them were unable to be present. Sir Adolphe Routhier, who has just been knighted, was among the guests. After dinner the toast of His Majesty was drunk, but there was no speech-making. His Excellency confirmed the announcement that each of the overseas dominions is to be presented with life-sized portraits of Their Majesties.

In Hamilton.

Hamilton, June 23.—Hamilton celebrated the crowning of King George V. and his Queen yesterday in a most enthusiastic manner. The civic celebration consisted in a military, school and society parade in which about 5,000 men and boys joined, and an imposing military spectacle with a feu de joi at Victoria Park and a good program of sports.

The day's ceremonies were concluded last night with a grand military tattoo and display of fireworks at the cricket grounds. Nine bands were massed to furnish music for the procession.

An International Celebration.

Halifax, June 23.—The coronation celebration of King George V. was observed in Halifax, became international in character because of the presence in the harbor of the German warship Bremen, the New York training ship Newport, and the British warship Cornwall. The people and the military and naval forces gave themselves up with a complete abandon to a celebration that fully equalled anything of the kind ever attempted in Halifax.

In the afternoon 600 Boy Scouts planted a tree in the public gardens in honor of Inspector Fitzgerald of the Northwest Mounted Police, who perished last winter in the performance of his duty in the Klondike trail. Fitzpatrick was a native of Halifax, where his mother and sisters still reside. Last night the British and German warships and the New York training ship were grandly illuminated, and a ball was given at Government House.

Quiet Day at Montreal.

Montreal, June 23.—King George the Fifth's Coronation Day was one of the quietest imperial holidays that this city has ever experienced.

The absence of the local cavalry and artillery regiments, now in summer camp, and the fact that the infantry have just returned from a strenuous outing caused the abandonment of the military parade, and the Boy Scouts and Highland Cadets attempted to give the city a martial appearance.

The day was officially recognized by the firing of twenty-one gun salutes at Westmount Park

SUCCESSFUL INAUGURATION OF CHIMES; DEDICATION CEREMONY BY BISHOP SWEENY

Citizens Displayed Great Interest in the Occasion and Large Crowds Were Present—The Documentary Deed —Luncheon in the School House—Three Concerts Given on Chimes.

The beautiful green slopes of the St. John's church grounds presented a most striking appearance in the morning of coronation day, when a vast throng of citizens assembled on the lawns, and at every advantageous view point in the vicinity to witness the long anticipated inauguration and dedication of the people's chimes, which are now installed and in excellent working order in the ivy clad tower of St. John's church.

The memorable event was in every degree a notable success and an occasion of general rejoicing; henceforth the citizens of Peterborough may congratulate themselves on having in their possession a thoroughly up-to-date and musical set of chimes which will sound forth on every occasion deemed worthy by those in charge.

The arrangements for the ceremony proceeded most harmoniously, and, although the weather was not on its best behavior, the proceedings were not interfered with in the slightest. The dedication service commenced shortly after twelve p.m., as announced, but long before that time the grounds were swarmed with eager sightseers, all anxious to obtain a favorable point of view. A platform was placed immediately in front of the church porch, between it and the steps, on which were a large number of representative professional and business men and clergy. The Lord Bishop of Toronto, Mayor Morrow, the rector and church wardens, Mr. J. R. Stratton, A. H. Stratton, the city council, members of the ministerial association and other clergy of the city, all had places on the platform. Immediately in front of the steps was the surpliced choir of St. John's, and behind them the 57th regiment drawn up in a hollow square formation with the two bands in the centre, the veterans on the right, and the Boy Scouts on the left. On either side of the platform were delegations from the fraternal societies in their regalia. The remainder of the spacious grounds were occupied by the spectators.

HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP SWEENY
Who Dedicated the Chimes.

The dedication service consisted of first the request for dedication from the officials, then the bishop's answer, after which the 150th psalm was sung by the choir.

DOCUMENTARY DEED.

The mayor then read the documentary deed under which the chimes were inaugurated, and which was as follows:

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME.

GREETING:

WHEREAS some Sixteen hundred of the present and past Citizens of the City of Peterborough, of all classes, creeds and callings have subscribed for and purchased a Chime of thirteen Bells known as "The People's Chimes," to be given as a perpetual Gift to St. John's Church, Peterborough;

AND WHEREAS the said purpose of the Subscribers has this day been completed and carried out and the said Chimes duly installed in the Tower of St. John's Church:

NOW, THEREFORE, the Subscribers aforesaid DO HEREBY absolutely Give, Set over and Transfer unto the Rector and Wardens of said St. John's Church and their Successors for ever. The said Chime of thirteen Bells now known as and for all time hereafter to be called "The "The People's Chimes."

AND in the Spirit of said gift the Rector and Wardens aforesaid for and on behalf of the Church and Parish of St. John's aforesaid, hereby accept the Said Gift of said Chimes, and for themselves and their successors voluntarily agree to use and operate them forever as a Public Trust, for the Glory of God, for the good of His Church and Holy Religion, and for the benefit of the Citizens of Peterborough and in conformity with the said last mentioned purpose undertake to cause the said Chimes to be Rung on Public Holidays and National Occasions free of any charge whatever.

AND LASTLY, at the request of any Citizen may at their discretion cause the said Bells to be Chimed on the occasion of any Marriage that may be solemnized within the said City of Peterborough, the applicant in such last mentioned case paying the Chimes Master the ordinary Fee therefor.

SIGNED for and on behalf of the subscribers aforesaid by the Secretary-Treasurer of the Committee having the matter in charge for them, and on behalf of The Church and Parish of St. John's by the Rector and Wardens thereof this twenty-second day of June, One thousand nine hundred and eleven, being the day of the Coronation of His Gracious Majesty King George the Fifth, and in the Second year of His Reign.

GILBERT C. WAINWRIGHT,
Secretary-Treasurer of Committee.

J. C. DAVIDSON, M.A.,
Rector of Peterborough.

The deed was then handed to Bishop Sweeney, who accepted it on behalf of the Church. Special dedicatory prayers were said referring to the use of the chimes for the worship of God, for sick and infirm persons in their houses, and for those passing from the world. The solemn act of dedication immediately followed, performed by the Bishop, when on his signal, the large bell of the chimes sounded forth slowly and impressively. The Doxology, the National Anthem, and the chorus of Oh Canada, was then played and sung by the 57th Regimental Band and the choir band, after which the Bishop presented the official deed to the rector, Canon Davidson, and gave a brief informal address.

His Lordship, in choice and suitable language extended his congratulations to the whole assemblage on having subscribed and purchased such an ever prominent monument of their loyalty and enterprise. "It was characteristic of the community," he remarked, "that all classes and creeds have contributed towards the securing of the chimes, which had been dedicated to the community for all time to come, as a sacred trust. All the conditions referring to its use as embodied in the official deed should be carried out such as convening people to worship and for carrying messages that would in their sweet music convey the emotions of the human heart. All classes through their instrumentality, should become more cemented in the bonds of honor, glory and mutual benefaction."

The Bishop then read a letter sent to the King of England written on behalf of the Diocese of Toronto referring to his coronation, and also the reply that was received from His Majesty.

The ceremony was brought to a conclusion by a series of cheers, in honor of the Bishop and other prominent and popular personages on the platform. The militia and the scouts marched off the grounds, after which a splendid program of national airs was given on the chimes and which revealed the beautiful clarion tones of the bells to splendid advantage.

A public luncheon was given in the school house about one o'clock, when the congregation of St. John's entertained the Mayor and Council, and representatives of all public institutions and bodies in the municipality. A most pleasing and note worthy feature of the luncheon was the attendance of representatives from every society, lodge and fraternal society, in the community, who all united on such an occasion of general rejoicing and good feeling in a most hearty manner. About 130 partook of the spread, and brief informal speeches were made.

Canon Davidson in the capacity of chairman proposed a toast to the King and to the Lord Bishop, which were magnificently responded to by His Lordship in a very happy and capable manner. Judge Huycke followed with an address which was heartily received after which the chorus of "O Canada," was rousingly sung by the banqueters. Hon. J. R. Stratton and T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., came next on the speakers list, and in most appropriate speeches won hearty applause Rev. Robert Pogue and Rev. W. C. Riddiford gave brief congratulating speeches, also warmly received. Messrs. D. W. Dumble and J.J. Hartley, also were among those who spoke the latter basing his remarks in the interests of the splendid work performed by the Trades and Labor Unions. Mr. Wm. F. Johnston made a few timely remarks, when called upon and Mr. N. F. Davidson, K.C. of Toronto spoke. All of the addresses tended to show the general feeling of good fellowship and broad mindness, which appeared to exist at the celebration of such a memorable event as the inauguration and dedication of the chimes.

CHIMES' CONCERTS

At three o'clock in the afternoon, and at seven-thirty in the evening, the chimes again contributed a splendid program of sacred and secular music and at both times, large and enthusiastic crowds either sat or strolled around the lawns or in the neighborhood of the church. The list of selections announced to be played on the chimes was adhered to as closely as possible, and the length of the program was the reason that a number were omitted. Mr. R. J. Devey and Mr. John Butcher deserve great credit for their clever manipulation of the bells and for the melody they were able to produce with such a brief opportunity at their disposal for practice.

SERVICE IN CHURCH

A special coronation service was held in the church at 11 a.m., where special music was given and prayers offered for King and Queen. The church was filled to capacity.

THE INSCRIPTIONS.

The inscription on the large bell is: To the Glory of God and George V.R.I., The People's Chimes, presented to St. John's church, Peterborough, by present and past citizens. The other bells are named according to the fruits of the spirit as follows. Love, Joy, Peace, Long Suffering, Gentleness, Goodness, Faith, Meekness, Temperance, Hope, the twelfth a memorial to Mrs. Sarah Fitzgerald by whom this bell was presented and the thirteenth is Perseverance to the End.

Kind to the Eyes

Kryptok lenses have distinctive advantages over all former near and far-sighted glasses, having no line or patch to suggest old sight or to confuse the eye. "They are truly delightful and I scarcely realize that I am wearing glasses, as my vision is perfect, both distant and reading," is the remark of one of the pleased patrons of the Optical Institute.

KING AND QUEEN IN BRILLIANT PARADE THROUGH OLD LONDON

Second Great Show of the Coronation Festivities—a magnificent spectacle of Uniforms and Decoration.

London, June 24.—A heavy rain which began at sunset and poured down constantly throughout the night brought bitter disappointment to hordes of people, who were bent upon fittingly celebrating after dark as a climax to the royal progress of King George and Queen Mary, through the streets of London yesterday.

Hundreds of thousands of persons had planned to view the illuminations and all wheeled traffic was barred from the principal streets in order that the crowds might use the roadways as well as the sidewalks.

The illuminations everywhere were turned on at dusk and sparkled their brightest in the rain, but the people who turned out to witness the effective display were only a fraction of those who would have come had the weather been propitious. Those who braved the elements splashed about in the muddy streets beneath umbrellas and keenly enjoyed the fine show of electric emblems in clubland and along Piccadilly, where the mansions of John Hays Hammond, American special ambassador to the coronation, Lord Rothschild, the Duke of Wellington and the Duke of Devonshire were a mass of glowing colors, and on the business houses down the Strand to the heart of the city, where the Stock Exchange and the Bank of England were covered with patriotic designs.

The feature of the day was the royal progress through seven miles of London streets, which include a long route through the poorer section of the city, south of the Thames.

Indian troops, colonials and detachments of Great Britain's finest soldiers in line, the procession made a fine pageant.

A great and constantly changing throng remained in front of Buckingham Palace all the afternoon. The King and Queen and the Prince of Wales several times appeared on the balcony and waved their hands to the people below. The enthusiasm of the people at each show of recognition by the monarchs and the young heir apparent was given vent to in a great roar of cheering, which could be heard for a mile.

Most of the places of amusement in London were closed last night because it was anticipated that the crowds in the streets would make it impossible for those who wished to attend performances to get to them. The managers of these places afterwards deeply regretted the mistake they had made, for large audiences doubtless would have sought shelter from the rain. A majority of the theatres will remain closed to-day.

There was a great dinner at the Foreign Office last night where Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Minister, entertained in state, King George and the members of the royal family, and also the visiting royal personages and the special representatives to the coronation.

Yesterday's procession was on an even greater scale than that of the coronation. The route was more extended, including a circuit of some of the most populous districts of the capital, and the crowds that looked on were correspondingly greater. The cheering was continuous.

The pageant included four full squadrons of cavalry, representing all branches of that arm of the service, Life Guards, Dragoons, Hussars and Lancers, each accompanied by its own band and a section of horse artillery.

These were followed by all the naval and military aides-de-camp on duty, the War Office staff, deputations of foreign officers, the royal suite, the members of the royal family, and the foreign princes and the colonial delegations, including the Canadian and Indian escorts, who immediately preceded the state carriage.

In the royal equippage with the King and Queen rode Field Marshal Kitchener and the bearer of the royal standard. The royal escort brought up the rear.

Except for the absence of the gold coach, the cavalcade was more brilliant than that of the day before, and the stands along the route certainly made a brighter appearance. These of Constitution Hill overlooking the palace garden, were filled with uniformed officers from every part of the world, with daintily dressed ladies.

On one stand were royal and other representatives of foreign states. In another, were military officers attached to the suites of these representatives, and in the front rows of still another stand were naval officers from the international ships at Spithead.

St. George's Hospital, opposite Constitution Hill, and the residence around Hyde Park corner and Piccadilly were hidden by stands occupied by a bevy of uniformed nurses, side by side with men and women who had paid enormous prices for their seats.

Almost exactly at the appointed hour the Colonial and Indian contingents, which were to lead the way over the seven-mile route, formed on Victoria embankment, and proceeded up the Mall, past Buckingham Palace to Constitution Hill and Hyde Park Corner. It was a wonderful display of soldiery that preceded the carriages, exhibiting all the cavalry uniforms of the Empire.

A contingent of Canadians escorted the first carriage occupied by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, and Premier Fisher of Australia. This was followed by other carriages carrying Premier Morris of Newfoundland, Premier Botha of the Union of South Africa. Premier Ward of New Zealand, the governors and commissioners of smaller colonies, each escorted by troops from their respective countries.

They were followed by the ever-popular troopers, the Northwest Mounted Police, and an African force organized on similar lines.

The colonials, in royal carriages and wearing uniforms and decorations, came next and were cheered all along the line, and with especial vigor when they passed the stands occupied by fellow colonials.

For picturesqueness, the Indian section, next in line, could not be excelled anywhere in the world. The Indian cavalry, in the most gorgeous silk of the uniforms and turbans, wearing medals won on the field of battle, preceded the carriages in which were the ruling Indian princes and potentates. The latter were fairly weighted down with jewels of enormous value. Their costumes, including turbans and tunics, were of every imaginable hue. They received a hearty reception.

When a salute fired by a battery in Hyde Park announced that the King and Queen had left the palace there was a rush to obtain places of vantage.

A drizzling rain fell as the royal carriage, drawn by eight cream-colored steeds, slowly came up Constitution Hill, but it did not dampen the enthusiasm of the crowds.

The King wore a field marshal's uniform, and wore a sash of the Order of the Garter.

The Queen was dressed in white, and wore a blue sash of the Order of the Garter. Her hat was trimmed with ostrich feathers in two shades of blue.

Following the sovereigns was a carriage containing the Duke of Connaught and the Duchess and princess, generals and officers of state.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

CABINET HAS GIVEN IT UP

Monis' Ministry defeated in Chamber.

Premier still on the sick list through Accident.

Paris, June 24.—The Government was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday on a question relative to the supreme command of the army in case of war. The Ministry of Premier Monis handed in their resignations last night.

These cannot become officially effective until the return of President Fallieres from Rouen, where he now is. He will return Sunday unless the events of yesterday cause him to change his plans.

The vote of lack of confidence in the Cabinet was 243 to 224, and caused amazement in the chamber. Gen. Goiran, the Minister of War, M. Delcasse, the Minister of Marine, and M. Cruppi, Minister of Foreign Affairs, accepted the vote with folded arms and then hastened to the bedside of Premier Monis, who was injured recently in an aeroplane accident, and related to him what had happened.

The Monis Cabinet was formed on March 2 last, following the resignation of the Briand Ministry on February 27. Gen. Goiran, who became Minister of War following the accidental death of Minister Berteaux, was recently quoted as saying that in the event of war, the chief of state, the President, would have the supreme command. The statement has been both criticized and ridiculed by the Opposition, causing some embarrassment to Premier Monis and his other associates.

WAS THE BUTCHER BEATEN TO DEATH?

Sequel to Disappearance of Maine Man In 1908.

Biddeford, Maine, June 24.—On the strength of information given to the York county authorities in support of an allegation that Charles Weymouth, a Saco butcher, who disappeared in September, 1908, was murdered, the sheriff arrested Joseph Buzzell, of Dayton; Olney Merrill, of Gardiner, and Mrs. Maude Snow, of Dayton, yesterday. All three were taken to Alfred, the two men to answer to charges of murder and the woman to a charge of having been an accessory to the alleged crime.

The authorities announced the information had been obtained from two persons, whose names they withheld, and who claimed to have seen Weymouth beaten to death at Mrs. Snow's home. According to their story as given out by the sheriff, Weymouth's body was then placed in a box and buried. Officers yesterday went to the alleged place of burial, near the Snow home in Dayton, to endeavor to locate the body.

LUMBERMEN ARE INDICTED

Retail Dealers Secretaries Face Novel Charge.

Chicago, June 24.—Fourteen secretaries of as many retail lumber dealers' associations indicted by a special grand jury here yesterday for alleged violation of the Sherman law, constituted a new kind of "trust" according to the United States attorneys, who conducted the investigation.

The retail lumber dealers it was admitted at the close of the investigation had no incorporation, no capital stock and did not try to control prices and prevent competition among themselves. Instead they had what the attorneys say was a "trust of power" and sought to provide that all lumber should be sold to consumers only through retail dealers and not directly by wholesalers or manufacturers.

The secretaries of the retail associations constitute the lumber secretaries' bureau of information, incorporated in Illinois in 1905, and represent thousands of retailers.

The power of the retailers' organizations was wielded through the bureau of information according to the indictments, and by a scheme resembling blacklist published in a trade paper. This publication was named in the list of over acts, as the means by which the secretaries published to the trade the names of manufacturers and wholesalers, who sold direct to consumers.

Mr. Borden Gets Enthusiastic Personal welcome—Meeting at Maple Creek and Medicine Hat.

Medicine Hat, Alta., June 24.—R. L. Borden and his party held a meeting in Maple Creek yesterday afternoon. The chairman of the meeting was W. J. Wylie, who represents Maple Creek riding in the Saskatchewan Legislature. Mr. Wylie left the chamber before the vote on the reciprocity pact, but as he made no protest against it he took responsibility for it here to-day. Explaining his occupancy of the chair at an anti-reciprocity meeting:

"I was very strongly in favor of that vote," he said, "it was sprung on us hurriedly; we had a busy season on and had no time to consider the subject. We gave a verdict of insufficient evidence. At first sight it looked as if it would be good for this province, but when you hear this gentleman you may think otherwise. It should not be in the power of two men to put such an agreement into effect. The people should have a chance of expressing their opinion."

This retort brought a cheer from a small section of the audience. He carried more of the audience with him, however, when he challenged the right of Messrs. Fielding and Paterson to bind the honor of Canada to the Washington Government. He was given a rousing cheer on the conclusion of his speech.

The town declared a public holiday in honor of the Conservative leader's visit.

On his arrival here Mr. Borden was greeted by a large number of citizens, who gave him a hearty welcome after a motor drive about the city a public meeting was held in the City Hall.

An unusual feature of the welcome was the shooting of a gas well.

As has been the custom throughout the tour, Borden was given an enthusiastic personal welcome. The audience cheered the man of the British preference. They cheered Mr. Borden's policy of the Hudson Bay Railway, the terminal elevators and similar local issues. On the subject of the tariff and reciprocity they listened carefully to the argument presented and took away the anti-reciprocity literature to read later. But it was only a small section who cheered an economic argument on the subject and the cheers came only personally. Mr. Borden cited the argument that conditions had changed since reciprocity was desired by both parties. This was the twentieth, not the nineteenth century. "Are we to be governed by the former or the latter?" he asked. "By the farmers," came an interruption.

"Yes, I agree with that," replied Mr. Borden. "This problem is of interest to the farmer, and I believe that the feeling of the farmer is that this pact should not be put into effect."

CHEAPENING TITLES

The recent handing out of titles and distinctions by the British crown, offers some very fine samples of what happens when you have to take the recommendations of others. No one will blame the King, of course, for having chosen Sir Frederick Borden to be his surgeon general. God save the king! And Judge Routhier, of Montreal gets an honor also. The only thing Routhier ever did, was to write the words of O Canada. Was that why he is remembered?

Dr. William Osler deserved his baronetcy, as most people will admit, but where does that brilliant and meteroric financial star, Max Aitken, get into the knighthood class? Max was poor at 25 years, a millionaire at 29, a member of the British house of commons at 30, and now is a knight at 31. If that doesn't qualify him as a rival of Halley's comet, we would like to know what does.

But the sins of omission are much more noticeable than sins of commission. Why wasn't Bill Pugsley given a knighthood? Who was responsible for the missing of "Cap" Sullivan? Perhaps Col. Sam Hughes, the military adviser to the imperial conference, might have been gracious enough to accept the accolade. On second thought, the effect on Lindsay might be disastrous, so we withdraw the suggestion And after George Reginald Geary went all the way over from Toronto so as to avoid not being a participant in the coronation ceremony, surely it was rank thoughtlessness that permitted him to return still a common, everyday individual.

The recommender of the honors to the crown must have been up late the evening previous, because his eye seemed to be sadly wandering. If this keeps on, most of us will be absolutely compelled to decline knighthood in order to preserve our respectability intact, so that we may go to church every Sunday in good form. Seriously, knighthood from the British crown ought to be bestowed with a careful regard of merit and worth, not merely that of political expediency, of wire-pulling, of having a friend at court Don't let the jobbery extend to working the crown for titles for men who don't deserve it.

A TARIFF POLICY

Mr. Borden's speech at Winnipeg laid down a tariff policy to which all Conservatives may easily subscribe. It is not a policy of giving to any one class or set of men undue advantages or privileges, to the detriment of others. It does not propose to sacrifice the eastern workingman in order that the miners of the prairie soil may get a few more dollars annually out of their crop. It does not propose that the wage-earner shall be forced to contribute more than his rightful share of the expenses of government.

The independent tariff commission will, if Mr. Borden is elected, be able to keep a restraining hand on the commercial institutions of the country, which the boasted Lemieux and King anti-combine acts have notoriously failed to control. Mr. Borden says no tariff should be framed to assist or permit of "monopoly, exaction or oppression." That is a wide expression. It means that as soon as some product of common use or consumption is controlled by a monopoly, the tariff will at once be altered, even to the total abolition of the duty. If it is shown that the tariff is made the means of exacting unreasonable prices or profits from the public, the tariff must go downward. This policy is one that will protect legitimate manufacturing reasonably, but it also speaks on behalf of the wage-earner and consumer. Mr. Borden's complete statement on tariff will be of interest:

"I believe in a policy which will preserve the fiscal autonomy of Canada and which will permit the production in this country of all useful articles that can be advantageously manufactured or produced by means of our natural resources, having due regard not only to the interest of the consumer but also to the welfare of our wage-earning population. The labor necessary to convert our natural resources into commodities necessary for the use and convenience of the people should as far as possible, be performed in Canada and not in foreign countries, so that our workingmen, and not those of other countries, may find employment therein.

"The Liberal-Conservative party, if returned to power, will establish a permanent tariff commission of able, independent and representative men for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon all matters connected with the tariff. No tariff should be so framed so as to assist or permit monopoly, exaction or oppression. Political or party expediency should not be permitted either to guide or to impede those who are responsible for its provisions. In my conception the tariff should be based upon business principles after a due investigation and ascertainment of facts. In other words, it should be framed by methods and upon principles which would appeal to common sense, reason and fairness.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now that the coronation is past and gone, likewise the chimes dedication, let's settle down to find out who is the prize fish-story teller.

The latest in headgear is a spy-glass concealed in the hat so that a woman may see those behind her without turning. But even this won't prevent the ladies from talking back.

The department of public works has called for tenders for about $10,000,000 worth of work in St Johns, N.B., harbor. They ask for tenders en bloc, and the specifications are so vague that no firm but those on the inside with the department can figure on it. The fine Italian hand of Mr. Pugsley is to be seen here. This seems to be another evidence of a coming election. The government needs a good-sized campaign fund. It might be as well to assure alarmed Canadians that it is not likely Mr. Oliver will be called on to do duty this time.

It is rather significant that the spokesman of the grain-growers at Indian Head, said that the resolution he had to read to Mr. Borden was prepared and sent out from central headquarters—from the same nest of Grit free-traders that has been responsible for so much trouble. This spokesman confined his own remarks to Hudson bay, chilled meat, and terminal elevator questions and made no mention of reciprocity. The stand Mr. Borden has taken on reciprocity is one that does not need elucidating. He who runs may read, and the west isn't at all short-sighted.

One of the features of the coronation day celebration that was greatly appreciated by six hundred or more people, was the musical service by the choir of fifty members of St. John's church. The coronation anthem Zadock the Priest, was sung just as it was sung by the choir of Westminster Abbey, being carried out under the able direction of Mr. Devey, in a manner seldom attempted in Canada, and certainly not in the smaller cities. Seven weeks of hard, continuous practice, without thanks or hope of reward, made it possible, and the choir of St. John's has the satisfaction of having performed a good work nobly and well.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM

Roumanians Hold a Fair Once a Year For Marriage Purposes

"In the spring a young man's fancy—" you know the rest; and a study of the different ways young men and maidens take in other countries in this matter of courtship is interesting just now.

There is nothing particularly remarkable about the English way, though Englishmen in Canada may adopt different methods when their chance comes, and the choice of 5,000 is open to them. The Roumanian plan may come in useful then. Here they hold a fair once a year which all the marriageable girls attend. Each is accompanied by a wagon, which contains her dowry of furniture, etc. Then the girls are drawn up in line, and the men form another, with the parents behind them. If a young man admires any particular girl, he goes to her, while the parents of each also begin to discuss the matter.

Should all be found satisfactory, the marriage takes place at once, and the bride accompanies her husband home.

In Russia the marriageable maiden arrays herself in white, and with her parents goes to the winter gardens. The girl carries a silver spoon in her hand. When the parents observe a young man looking towards their daughter they hand the girl over to a marriage agent, who proceeds to make the necessary introduction and arrange the dowry.

STEEL OR WOOD?

Remarkable Imitations of Oak and Mahogany in Steel

"Very soon steel will be one of the chief rivals of wood in the manufacture of furniture," said the manager of a big furnishing establishment in London, England. "Already it is being used on a large scale for this purpose.

"As a matter of fact, it is possible to produce remarkable imitations of oak or mahogany in steel. And the advantages, of course, are many. Steel is fireproof, waterproof, dustproof, and cannot be attacked by vermin.

"In the manufacture of furniture very fine steel plates are used. They are smooth and extremely light, and are, of course, specially rolled for the purpose.

"Desks, shelves, tables, and chairs are among the articles made, and they have proved stronger and more durable than wooden pieces. This makes them particularly suitable for office use.

"As a matter of fact, we have already supplied various banks, insurance companies, and Colonial Government offices with desks and other furniture made of steel."

THERE ARE NO SUFFRAGETTES

Every Person in the Isle of Man Has a Vote

The Isle of Man, whose Parliament, the House of Keys, has been on strike, has a very different set of laws from those in England. There is no income tax, no land tax, and no death duties. All the revenue required is raised from taxes on food and drink.

There are no laws to restrict the hours that may be worked in factories and shops. Moneylending is not a profitable business there, for a 200-year-old law makes 6 per cent. the highest interest that can be charged. Yet imprisonment for debt is a far commoner penalty for failure to pay than it is in England.

There are no Suffragettes in Man, for the simple reason that every woman, married or single, owner, occupier, or lodger, has the Parliamentary vote.

FASHIONABLE WEDDINGS

Family Relics Are Often Called Into Requisition

"It is very curious how many families have something which is considered indispensable at a wedding," said the verger of a West-End church. "There is a firm belief that without it—well, the couple cannot possibly be happy."

"Have you heard of the lucky Prayer-Book of the Hamiltons? That book—which is carefully preserved at Biel, near Prestonkirk—has been used at more weddings than you would imagine, including nearly every Royal wedding from the times of George III. and Queen Charlotte down to our own. The only omission, I think, was the wedding of George IV., and that was unfortunate. Dean Stanley took it with him to Russia when he went there to marry the Duke of Edinburgh and the Grand Duchess Marie. The last time it was used at a Royal wedding was in 1893, when our King and Queen were married.

"In some families the luck-bringer is a ring. The Verneys have one which has a romantic history. It belonged to an ancestor of the family who fought at Edge Hill during the Rebellion. After the conflict search was made for him, but all that was found was his gloved hand, which was still clutching the Royal Standard. On it was his wedding-ring, and ever since it has been used at all the weddings in the family. Of course, it is not worn continuously by every bride. As a matter of fact, it is taken off immediately after the ceremony and an ordinary wedding-ring is substituted.

"There are, too, many lucky bridal veils, some of them centuries old. I have seen several which have been used on occasion for more than two centuries.

"Perhaps the most remarkable of these treasures is a veil belonging to the Horners, and worn a few years ago when Miss Cecily Horner was married. It was made for Mary Queen of Scots by some nuns, who presented it to her when she was a prisoner at Fotheringay. Passing to Cardinal Yorke, it was given by him to the Horner family, and has been worn by many brides of their house. When a Horner is to be married many people try to be present at the ceremony principally to see the famous veil."

There are few women who do not

"Dearie, that was awfully good tea we had at the 'bridge' last night. Do you know what kind it was?"

"Yes, Jack, I ordered some this morning—it was Red Rose!" 5

THE REVIEW'S NEW STORY

Paid In Full Which Will Commence on Monday

That "Paid In Full" is a story of absorbing interest has been proved by its phenomenal success in dramatic form. For two seasons there has been no diminution in the drawing power of this vital piece of realism. In its present form it is not less engrossing. The features which made it so powerful as a play are not less potent in the serial. It is the same keen exposition of human motives put into the simplest forms of expression. There is no waste of material, no attempt to moralize, no break in the continuity. The three men who are the central figures in the story stand out in admirable distinctness from the very first, and the one woman whose splendid rectitude illuminates it all lives from the moment of her appearance. Although it is certain to produce frequent thrills, the story is neither melodramatic nor sensational. Its power lies in its humanness.

Seamen's Strike Over.

Southampton, Eng., June 24.—The strike of seamen which has seriously inconvenienced many of the shipping lines, particularly at the English ports for several days, was finally ended yesterday when the employes of the White Star Line accepted the terms of the company and returned to work. The other lines had already compromised with the strikers.

Town Topics.

In New York taxicab rates are going up, which means not so much hire.—Charleston News and Courier.

Pittsburg is out for a "sane Fourth." It is understood, however, that normal conditions will prevail on the third and fifth.—Philadelphia North American.

Now they are trying to demonstrate that a woman schoolteacher can't live on less than $1,240 a year. And this is in Boston, the paradise of living on 15 cents a day theories.—New Haven Register.

Claim Fire Preventible.

Montreal, June 24.—Action was yesterday begun in the practice court against the Montreal Water & Power Co. by the Queen's Fire Insurance Co., demanding $50,000 for the fire at St. Anne's convent on Feb. 8 last.

The Queen's Fire Insurance Co. claim that the fire could have been prevented had there been sufficient water pressure at the time it broke out.

Aviation.

The British government has only ten war aeroplanes standing to its credit, but negotiations are in progress for several others.

Shells with a detonating force sufficient to wreck any aeroplane within a hundred yards of where they explode have been invented for the German army.

In France the operators of aeroplanes are held responsible for damage done to persons or property when coming to the earth. In two cases such operators have been found guilty of homicide and punished, although the punishment was not as great as that for other forms of the same crime.

Dress Hints.

Always shrink a new braid before sewing to skirt; otherwise the bottom of the skirt will become puckered the first time of wearing in a shower of rain.

Always begin at the shoulders in fitting a blouse. If the shoulders are fitted in the proper manner you need have no fear about the rest of the bodice.

To clean white plumes make a thin paste from gasoline and flour. Dip plumes and cover with paste. Lay aside to dry, then shake well, and plumes will come out clean and fluffy.

Train and Track.

The government of Jamaica now operates 184 miles of railway. Of these 120 miles were built by American syndicates.

More than one-third of a billion passengers carried in eighteen years and a half and not one killed as the result of a train accident is the claim made by the Long Island railroad.

One hundred and fifty-two miles of the government railway lines in Victoria, Australia, have been relaid during the past three years with American rails, 142 miles of eighty pound rails and ten miles of hundred pound rails.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y.—I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for womb trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did more for me than the doctors did. I have gained five pounds. I hope that everyone who is suffering from female trouble, nervousness and backache will take the Compound. I owe my thanks to Mrs. Pinkham. She is the working girl's friend for health, and all women who suffer should write to her and take her advice.—MISS TILLIE PLENZIG, 3 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

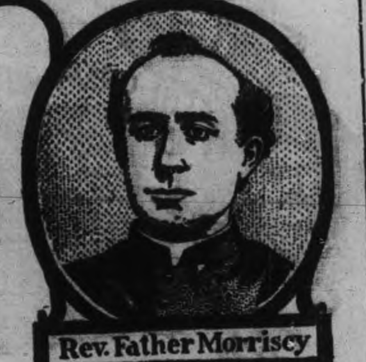
A Real Lung Tonic

There are many preparations that will relieve a cough—few that will cure it. The first class, containing such drugs as Opium and Morphine, simply deaden the irritation and stop the cough, but do little or no permanent good.



Rev. Father Morriscy

"Father Morriscy's No. 10"

does not contain a trace of these dangerous drugs, but is an absolutely safe and scientific preparation of Nature's own remedies—Herbs, Roots and Balsams.

It entirely removes the irritation that caused the cough, by cleaning out the mucus, stopping the inflammation and healing the delicate membrane of throat and lungs.

Moreover, it tones up and strengthens the whole system, particularly the lungs, and protects against future coughs and colds.

LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average person who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the lenses themselves but much of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The LENSES are the important thing. You look through the LENSES from the time you start to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see.

TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years.

Shaped like the cornea of the eye, they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view without touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens.

We grind all our own TORIC lenses. They cost a little more than the ordinary flat lenses and are worth MUCH more.

ANOTHER DROWNING IN THE OTONABEE AT YANKEE BONNET

"Jack" Costello, Engaged as Scowman With Dredge Little Lake, Lost His Life.

Albert Costello, aged twenty-eight years of age and the son of Mr. Paul Costello, of Ennismore, lost his life by drowning in the Otonabee river this morning about 8.30 o'clock.

The late Mr. Costello, who was best known as "Jack" Costello, lost his wife only a few months ago, and his three children have been living with their grandfather at Ennismore.

He had been engaged as scowman with the government dredge Little Lake, which recently came up from Hastings, and is now working at Yankee Bonnet. This morning the tug left the dredge with a scow load of dredgings to be dumped near Robinson's Island. It was on the return trip that the accident occurred. Costello, as usual, was on the scow, which was being towed back by the tug and Harry Douglas, captain of the tug, looking back as was his custom to see how the scow was towing, was surprised not to see the man on the scow, and horrified to notice Costello's head just above the water. He did not see him the second time.

The superintendent of the Trent Canal, Mr. J. H. McClennan, was immediately notified and dredging operations were stopped and the work of grappling for the body immediately proceeded with.

The late Mr. Costello was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters and for a number of years had worked in the armature department of the Canadian General Electric Co.

Besides his parents there are three small children, the eldest of whom is only six years old. They are Leonard, Paul and Mary. Six brothers, Frank, of Toronto; Joseph, Stephen, Eugene, Paul and William, of Ennismore, and four sisters, Misses Mary, Port Hope; Katharine, Toronto; Annette, Lindsay, and Margaret, Ennismore; also survive.

GAS, OIL AND SALT WATER

Found in Well on Farm Near Norwood

Mr. John Jenkins of Dummer, has had the drillers at work for several days sinking a well on his farm, about four miles west of Norwood. At a depth of one hundred feet they tapped a strong gas vein, which burned for considerable time. Thirty feet further down they struck water. There are also indications of oil and it is the opinion of many that if operations were continued to a reasonable depth a strike would be made. In cleaning out the well an oily substance would cling to the sand pump, which burned quite freely when a match was applied

The gas in the well will burn about two feet high out of a four inch gas pipe. Salt water was also found, and Mr. David Forsyth brought a sample of the water into this office yesterday

DROWNED AT PAYNE'S MILL

Sad ending of John Bennett a Young Englishman

A sad drowning accident occurred at Payne's sawmill, about three miles from Warsaw, this morning, when a young married man, John Bennett, an employe at the mill, lost his life.

The victim was missed by the other men and a search was instituted. The place where the body was found is very shallow and the drowning cannot be accounted for.

The driver of the Warsaw stage, in conversation with the Review this morning, said that the unfortunate man had been employed at Payne's for the past nine months. He was married a little over a year ago and leaves a wife and infant.

WEDDING BELLS

ASPINALL—SHERWOOD.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon in St. James' church at 3 o'clock, when Emily Caroline, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sherwood, of this city, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Thomas Aspinall, of Toronto. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Rehill, organist of St. James' church. The bride looked charming in a gown of beaded net over duchess ... tulle veil and half wreath and lilies of the valley, and carrying a spray of bridal roses. The bride was assisted by Miss Eleanor Ofield, of Grimsby, who looked very pretty in a dress of cream mull with baby Irish lace, and pink satin trimmings, and carrying a bouquet of pink and white carnations, while Francis J. Sherwood, brother of the bride, performed the duties of best man.

After the ceremony a dainty repast was served at the home of the bride's father, the house being prettily decorated with pink and white.

The numerous presents, both costly and useful, testified to the esteem in which the bride and groom are held by their many friends.

The bride travelled in a suit of alice blue broadcloth, with large white hat and willow plume. Amid a shower of rice and confetti the happy couple left on the 4.28 C.P.R. for Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara, Buffalo and Detroit on their honeymoon, and on their return will reside in Toronto.

Some of the presents came from Philadelphia, Buffalo, Grimsby and Toronto.

FREEMAN-BEATTY

Many friends of the bride and groom in this city will be interested in the following account of the wedding which took place in Toronto on Coronation Day. The bride was a frequent visitor here, when Mr. and Mrs. Jeffries visited here, and the groom is a brother of Mr. Tracy Freeman, of the Test Department of the Canadian General, here. Mr. Freeman is also a brother of Mrs. W. A. Buchanan, of Lethbridge.

A pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr and Mrs. John Jeffries, 64 Roxborough street, Toronto, yesterday, when Miss Florence M. Beatty, youngest daughter of the late George and Mrs. Beatty, was married to Dr. Carman J. Freeman, all of Beamsville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J.A. Rankin, D.D., pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church. The reception room was decorated with roses, peonies, and palms. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Jeffries, her brother-in-in-law, wore a gown of Plauen lace over white silk. She wore a sunburst of pearls and carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended only by Marie Poole. The wedding march was played by Mrs. George W. Poole of Buffalo. After an informal reception, the guests repaired to the dining-room which was decorated with coronation colors and emblems, where a dinner was served. The couple left by steamer for Montreal, Quebec and the Saguenay. On their return they will reside during the summer at Grimsby Beach. The bride travelled in a suit of black and white cloth and large black hat with willow plumes.

ROBSON—PORTER.

A pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. Learmonth Stewart street, this morning, when Miss Jean Robson, and Mr. Norton Porter, of Winnipeg, was united in marriage by Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox church.

The young couple were unattended and left afterwards for Oshawa and Buffalo where after a short visit, they will take up residence in the west.

The bride is very popular in Peterborough and was soloist at Knox choir for some time.

F. D. KERR AS A CANDIDATE

Liberals Thinking of Giving Him Dominion Nomination

It was asserted this morning by a man who is usually well informed on political matters, that there was more truth than fiction in the rumor that F. D. Kerr would be selected as the Liberal candidate for the Dominion contest in West Peterborough.

This gentleman said that he believed it to be a fact that the Liberals of West Peterborough had in mind putting Mr. Kerr forward for the Dominion elections, and not the Provincial, as was stated before. Of course this raises the question as to what would happen to the present Dominion member. Those who say that there is a likelihood of Mr. Kerr being nominated say that they have reason to believe that Mr. Stratton proposes to retire from the political arena.

Among the interesting political rumors of the day is that the government proposes to buy a considerable acreage near Hunter's Hill, in Otonabee, for rifle butts, as a sort of pre-election bribe. Some of the farmers of this district seem to know considerable about attempts to get the land quietly.

It is said that R. R. Hall is rather averse to taking the East Peterborough nomination at the convention on Tuesday, but although he would put up a good fight, it would necessarily be a losing one. The East Peterborough Liberals are not particularly pleased at having an outsider come into the riding, but apparently they have no man of their own in sight.

POOR YEAR FOR STRAWBERRIES

Prospects for Other Fruit Rather Dark

Strawberries and cherries and indeed the whole fruit crop, bids fair to be very poor this year unless there is soon a rainfall sufficient to dispel the drought which is holding them back. Such was the opinion of Mr. S. A. Oke when interviewed by the Review to-day.

"There are cherries no larger than peas on some of the trees in thefruit sections," he remarked. "In the west the fruit outlook is gloomy unless rain is immediately forthcoming."

"The amount of strawberries we have received this year falls away below previous years," said Mr. Oke,

You might as well have a Furnace that will burn both Wood and Coal—

And one that can be changed from a Coal to a Wood Furnace at a moment's notice.

¶ The "Hecla" burns wood or coal equally well.

All you need to do if you want to burn wood is to slip a wood grate in through the big door of the furnace. Not a bolt or screw is necessary. You can fix it yourself without soiling your hands or clothing.

The wood grate is supplied free with each "Hecla" furnace, and doubles its usefulness to those who sometimes want to burn wood.

Note the Air Jets in the Door.

They are there to heat the air that passes into the fire chamber. Hot air consumes the gas; cold air checks the fire.

"Hecla" Furnace

Four Grate Bars.

Ever notice how a coal fire burns faster at the edges, leaving more ashes there than at the centre of the fire pot? Now, you can shake down the ashes in a "Hecla" without losing any of the good coals in the centre.

The "Hecla" has four grate bars which can be shaken separately, so that the outside edges can get a thorough cleaning without touching the centre.

Good idea?

The "Hecla" is full of them.

CANADIAN LOCOMOTIVE COMPANY TO ENLARGE PLANT

Company Will Issue Million and a Half Bonds and Three Million and a Half Stock

The remarkable development of Canadian railways has enormously increased the demand for locomotives of ever-increasing size, power and cost. The demand is one of the most certain in any line of manufacture.

There is a big field for a larger and up-to-date locomotive building plant in Canada—the present plant of the Canadian locomotive company, of Kingston, is entirely inadequate to handle its orders, and just now there are contracts in sight which would keep an augmented plant busy until the end of 1913. The owners of the plant—a powerful syndicate of English and Canadian capitalists—intend to enlarge the works so as to cope with the increasing demands for locomotives in Canada. The present output is not much over 75 engines a year—depending on the type required—and many valuable contracts have to be declined owing to the company's inability to deliver. It is now intended to double the capacity of the plant, and perhaps triple it.

To enable them to make this expansion the company are issuing one million and a half of first mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds, one million and a half 7 per cent. cumulative preferred and two million common stock. There will remain in the treasury half a million of bonds to be used for future extensions.

Being exempt from taxation, and with little danger from labor troubles, as explained in President Harty's letter, it is in an exceptionally favorable position to manufacture most profitably.

The company's premises occupy three blocks in the city of Kingston having a street frontage of about 865 feet by a depth of about 555 feet—to a frontage on Lake Ontario of about 1,175 feet, the area enclosed being 333,000 square feet. There are about a dozen buildings, including one of the finest power plants in the country, a magnificent erecting shop with huge travelling cranes, boiler shops, riveting shops, machine shops, tank shops, tender shops, blacksmith shops, foundry and pattern rooms, paint shops and carpenter shop. In all the works occupy 7 acres. The company has its own branch railway line in Kingston and its own wharves and docking facilities on Lake Ontario.

The engines it turns out are the most up-to-date possible, and that they are satisfactory in service is proved by repeat orders from all previous buyers. The C.P.R., the G.T.R., the I.C.R., the National Transcontinental, the Canadian Northern and the Government owned Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad, all are patrons of the Canadian Locomotive company, of Kingston. Six engines recently turned out for the T. & N.O. are said to be the largest ever built in Canada. Chairman Englehart of the T. & N.O., speaking of these engines, declared them to be the finest he had ever seen, and were giving the greatest satisfaction. At present the company had contracts for some 50 engines with the C.P.R. and the Algoma Central, and it is becoming increasingly difficult to keep up with the orders.

The working staff is about 800 strong and a big proportion of the employes have grown up with the works and own their own homes in the neighborhood. This fact is a pretty strong safeguard against labor troubles common in other centres.

The men who are to control the new company are recognized powers in the financial world. The banking firm in charge of the business is Aemilius Jarvis & Company, of Toronto, and associated with them are the well known firm of Brown, Shipley & Company, bankers of London, England, Mr. Pryor, President of the Sun Life Assurance Co., of London; Lord Glenconnor, better known as Sir Edward Tennent, a brother-in-law of Premier Asquith, and Mr. E. Balfour, first cousin of ex-Premier A. J. Balfour.

Of the large amount for which firm subscriptions have been received, and which will be allotted in full, it is worthy of note that Paris (France) and London (England) have taken a substantial sum.

TRIED TO EXTORT MONEY FROM INTOXICATED MAN ?

Serious Charge Laid Against Theodore Jardine—Judgement Reserved.

A man named Theodore Jardine, who says he comes from Rochester, and a local man, who were arrested yesterday by Detective Newhall in the vacant lot at the rear of a George street hotel, appeared in police court this morning to answer a charge of endeavoring to obtain $5 from Alexander Sutherland by unlawful means.

Jardine was said to be the main offender and his alleged companion to have been an accessory. Judgment was reserved for a week.

Jardine elected to be tried summarily and pleaded "not guilty."

Sutherland was the first to give evidence. He said he was drunk at the hotel yesterday afternoon and was asleep in the yard. He was aroused by Jardine, who told him he was a police officer. The prisoner then asked him if he had any money, also searching him to see if he carried a revolver. Jardine did not find any weapon, but Sutherland showed him $7, which he had.

DEMANDED $5.

Jardine then said to him "Give me $5 and I'll let you go." Jardine then was about to arrest him, so he said when Detective Newhall happened along. No money, however, was taken from him.

The companion who was with Jardine at the time, told the story of his connection with the affair.

OUR BEER GARDENS

He had met Jardine twice, and yesterday they had a drink together in the hotel. Then they commenced talking about beer gardens of Rochester, and witness said "just come out and look at our beer gardens, referring to a vacant lot called by some of the hotel ferequenters, "The park," which is used, so the witness said, as a "sleeping off place" by intoxicated ones. He showed him Sutherland lying in the yard asleep.

At this point in his evidence the witness complained of a pain in his heart and left the stand for the time till he recovered.

Detective Newhall was called, who stated that when in the hotel yard on some other business he saw Jardine and the first witness dragging Sutherland through the fence. He heard Jardine tell the complainant that he was a police officer and detective. Sutherland then said "arrest me then," when he, Newhall, intervened and arrested Jardine, and brought him to the police station accompanied by Sutherland, where the former admitted to the chief that what occurred was right.

Jardine has been here only three days. He hails from Rochester, so he stated and is a paper hanger by trade, coming here with the hope of starting to work.

DIFFICULTY IN SECURING TEACHERS STILL ON INCREASE

County School Inspectors' Report to the County Council

Following is the report of the County School Inspectors, presented to the County Council this week:

Peterborough, June 20, 1911.

To the Warden and Council of the County of Peterborough;

Gentlemen,—Your Public School Inspectors beg respectfully to submit for your consideration the following:

Since reporting in January, nothing of note has occurred in connection with the educational affairs of the county. A number of schools were closed during the winter months. All however have been open since Easter, though many of the smaller schools are without qualified teachers. The difficulty of getting teachers is still on the increase. To meet this condition, the government is re-establishing a number of model schools, which, it is hoped, will prepare about 350 teachers annually. These will be available at the beginning of the year, and will help to relieve the situation at that time.

For this scarcity, there are various causes, but perhaps the most important is the demand for teachers in the west and the higher salaries paid there. Salaries have increased here, but we consider that students graduating from the Normal school at present, even those without experience, are readily getting positions at from $500 to $600. It will be apparent then that our scale of salaries must be raised considerably higher yet, if our schools are not to fall into the hands of untrained and inexperienced teachers, and we are to meet with any degree of success, the competition of the west. An especially regrettable feature of the situation is the fact that almost no men are entering the ranks of the teachers, the opportunities for success being so much greater in other callings.

PONTYPOOL MAN FINED

Illegal Sale of Liquor Cost Him $195.50

Port Hope Guide.—The case of W. J. Coulter, of Pontypool, charged with selling liquor without a license, which was adjourned for a week, came up this (Wednesday) morning. Mr. Harry Solomon, one of the whiskey detectives, was recalled, but before any examination was conducted, Mr. Haverson, K.C., asked for an adjournment of fifteen minutes. This was granted and upon returning to the court room Mr. Haverson stated that Mr. Coulter wished to withdraw his plea of not guilty and plead guilty. No previous offence was admitted and Crown Attorney Kerr asked that the maximum fine be imposed.

Magistrate White ordered that the defendant pay a fine of $175 with costs of $20.50, a total of $195.50, or be imprisoned in the county jail for three months at hard labor. The money was paid.

DRAGOONS ARE HOME ONCE MORE

Criticism of Test Shooting for Efficiency Pay.

The Third Prince of Wales Dragoons have returned from camp at Petawawa, after a twelve days outing that was greatly enjoyed. C squadron from Peterborough, was the biggest in the regiment, numbering 68 and it carried off the honors in the shooting. Sergt. Miller, of Warsaw, was the sergeant-instructor for the whole camp. C squadron was in charge of Major T. J. Johnston, and with him were Capt. Anderson, of Warsaw, and Lieut. Cleghorn.

Some strong criticism was leveled at the militia department for its handling of the efficiency shooting. Instead of the carbines the dragoons have been armed with and are used to, they were given Ross rifles never used by them before, and sent out to shoot fourteen shots at various ranges, On the result of this shooting, the efficiency pay was based. Thirty years ago the troops were given forty rounds. The grumbling over the inefficiency of a test with strange rifles was loud and prolonged. Another thing that marred the pleasure of the men was an attempt on the part of the camp commissariat to pare the rations down to ten days quantity for the twelve days, and it was only after a fight that full rations were served. The quality, however, was extra good.

OUTINGS ON THE WATER

The Murray street Baptist Sunday school held their annual excursion on coronation day, June 22nd, to Juniper Island and Burleigh Falls via G.T.R. railway and steamer Stoney Lake. The excursion proved to be one of the best the school has had. The boat was filled to its limit. Although the weather in the morning was showery, in the afternoon it was perfect.

Dinner was taken at Juniper Island instead of at Burleigh Falls, as first arranged. The splendid pavilion was placed at the disposal of the Sunday school for the purpose by Mr. Scott. After dinner the boat went to Burleigh Falls, where races were held.

[illegible]

to Juniper Island for tea, and then to Lakefield in time to meet the 7.30 train, concluded a very pleasant outing.

The courtesy of Conductor Jobbitt on the train, and Capt. Scollard on the boat also helped to make the trip a pleasant one.

CHOIR ENTERTAINED.

The choir of St. Paul's church were royally entertained on Coronation Day by the popular organist and choir leader, Mr. John Crane, at his summer home "Glad-Nalken," Stony Lake. The trip to the lakes was made on the steamer "Water Lily," and on arriving at the cottage a delicious spread was provided and to which full justice was done.

A mock coronation ceremony was performed which proved very amusing.

The outing was greatly appreciated by the choir members and Mr. Crane's kindness was greatly praised.

Peterborough was reached about 7.30 in the evening, after a delightful and thoroughly enjoyable day.

TATTOOING.

It Is Extensively Practiced All Over the World.

Nearly all must be familiar with the crude tattoo designs, of anchors, ships, and so on that sailors love to have upon their arms and chests. But the professional tattooist can import to his skin pictures pretty well all colors except white, so that he can produce the most elaborate and beautiful designs. Nor is his work limited to covering small areas, for while many men are satisfied with a simple design, others have different tastes, and men have been tattooed all over from head to toe.

Travelers, sportsmen, and army officers seem to favor tattooing more than other classes, and the designs one is asked to execute are many and varied. Among officers the most usual is the regimental crest. Sportsmen usually favor something which reminds them of their favorite sport.

Perhaps the funniest case recalled was a man who had texts from the Bible tattooed all over him till he was a perfect walking Testament.

Tattooing is practiced very extensively in the east, and it is no doubt for this reason that so many travelers submit to tattooing. They get accustomed to seeing people tattooed, and feel that they must be tattooed too. But there are sometimes other reasons. Natives frequently think more of a man if he is tattooed, and so the traveler may reap a real advantage. This is particularly so in West Africa. If their boss is tattooed the niggers boast about it to the others, and feel that they are on a higher plane!

Almost every eastern country has its own particular style of tattooing. In Burmah all the natives are tattoo-[illegible] of figured black pants extending from the waist to just above the knee, and until this design has been executed they are not considered to have reached manhood.

In China the art is a very old one, but, although the designs are both varied and picturesque the work is somewhat crude, and cannot be compared with that of Japan, where until late years there was such a tremendous craze in this direction that the state put a stop to it. Every Jap of the lower classes used to rush off to the nearest tatooist the moment he had a little money, and as the work is by no means cheap men reached a point when the pictures upon their bodies represent a small fortune spent in this way. Meanwhile when their working days were over they had to be kept by the state, instead of having for their old age the money expended on transforming themselves into walking picture galleries. To such an extent was this carried that with a view to encouraging thrift the Government forbade the practice by law, making it such a serious offence that so far as the Japanese themselves are concerned it is practically stamped out, although there are still Japanese tattooers who draw their clients from foreigners visiting the country.

It seems rather curious that a thing of this sort should be forbidden by law, but it is not nearly for so remarkable a reason in this case, as it is with the Maoris in New Zealand. The Maoris have a special kind of tattooing their designs being executed in the form of elaborate rings, lines and curves upon the face. So wonderful were some of these designs that, after death well-tattooed heads use to be smoked dried and kept. After a while these became curiosities which commanded a ready market, and no sooner did the Maoris discover this than they took advantage of it. Whenever any member of another tribe was captured in battle they used to tattoo them, and when perfect kill them, and keep the heads as articles of merchandise. They used even to display the living heads to prospective buyers and then kill whichever was chosen! This got to such a pitch that the practice had to be stopped by law, and the supply of heads now having run short they have an ever-increasing market value. There are several specimens in the British and other museums. The average value of a good head is about $250.

Native methods of tattooing are usually very crude. After the Maori tattooist had been at work the face of the subject used to swell to such an extent that he had to be fed through a funnel. In Samoa and the Pacific Islands the natives use fish bones to pick the skin, with the result that cases of blood poisoning are frequent, while in parts of Central Africa a kind of "relief" work is done, dirt being introduced into the wounds so that they fester for months and eventually leave a raised whitish scar.

How to Clean Old Ivory.

Antique ivory requires a good deal of care before it can be made to regain its original lustre and lose the dingy yellow tint which disfigures it. Prepared chalk, sal volatile and olive oil made into a paste should be rubbed on the ivory figure or carving with a piece of wash leather, a little more being then rubbed over it and left to dry on. When dry the powder will brush off easily.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE"

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

WHY WAS THIS?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir—I regret that "God Save the King," was relegated to the back ground at the dedication of the "People's Chimes" nor can it be attributed to negligence merely, for the desirability of giving it prominence was suggested in Wednesday's Review. Notwithstanding it was the "People's Chimes" the whole thing was a church function. After the performance was over, and while the Regiment was marching to its barracks, the chimes struck up "God Save the King" but the music was drowned by the band playing a spirited march. Such a celebration of King George's coronation does not commend itself to his loyal subjects.

WOULD NOT HELP CANADIAN WHEAT

Free Trade of No Benefit to the Producer Here, as the United States Has a Surplus Production

The possibilities of Canada gaining through free trade in wheat with the United States were shown in the following extract from an article published a fortnight ago in The Toronto News:—

"So far as wheat is concerned, and it is the chief breadstuff that United States would like to get from Canada, our neighbors do not need Canadian wheat for their own consumption. Their chief purpose in getting free wheat from Canada would be to export it through their ports, and to use it for milling purposes, thus benefitting their own courses of transportation. Prices would not be helped in any way, because the United States has a surplus production of wheat that will make that country an exporter of flour and grain for the next hundred years. The following figures show how the volume of wheat production is increasing in the States:—

	Bushels
1908	634,000,000
1909	664,000,000
1910	737,000,000

"In connection with these statistics showing the increase in the total annual yield of wheat in the United States it is most important to note the words of Mr. C. L. Olmsted, chief of the Bureau of Statistics at Washington, who has just recently issued the results of a study of the subject of population and subsistence. He combats the view that agricultural production will fail to keep pace with the growth of population, and he shows that the agriculture of the United States, after passing through a phase of decadence, incident to the exploitation of new land, has obtained a secure footing in the contrary direction toward improvement.

"The general trend of production per acre was a declining one during the two decades 1876-1885 and 1886-1895, but in the decade 1896-1905 and from 1906-1909 the mean production per acre has steadily increased. Mr. Olmsted shows that the mean production per acre for the four years, 1906-1909, has increased over the preceding ten years as follows:—

Wheat (per acre)	9.6 per cent
Corn "	7.1 "
Rye "	6.5 "
Buckwheat "	6.6 "
Potatoes "	15.5 "
Tobacco "	9.7 "

AMERICAN HOG MARKET

Patrick Cudahy Says Prices Will Continue to Decline

Mr. Patrick Cudahy, foremost of United States packers, last month made an important statement regarding the hog market of the United States. Mr. Cudahy said: "Our next sensation will be 4-cent hogs. It looks to me as though prices would keep on going down for a year or more. Unlike grain, the farmer cannot hold his hogs indefinitely, but must sell them when they are ready for the market. He has been going into the raising of hogs on such a scale that he is now getting big results, and is due to get much larger results before prices get to the point where he will be dissatisfied. There probably never was such a crop of hogs in the country as there is now, and the returns are by no means in on the big crop. Every month this year will see an increase in the accumulation of pork products at the packing centres. We are having a little better trade, but the improvement is insignificant when compared with the increase in the manufacture. The lard trade has been fairly good, but then the price of that class of stuff has been so low that it is all going into the tank, which accounts for the large production of lard. Prices are still quite a bit too high. April is a month that the farmers of the North devote to their land. They usually arrange matters so as not to have hogs to sell in April. It is also one of the busiest months with the cotton planters of the South, the month that the most men are employed and should be the month of trade. Taking the stock as reported at the five points, although they are not consistent with the increase in packing at the same points, they will show an increase of about 20,000,000 pounds of meats for the last month, and if we include the entire West, the increase will be about 40,000,000 pounds. Now, if we increase this way in April under conditions such as I have mentioned, what may we expect in June and July, when our summer run of hogs will come in full force and the trade of the South is practically over with until cotton picking begins in the fall?"

DECREASE HOME REVENUE

Reciprocity Would Diminish the Receipts From Butter and Eggs

Under a system of free trade in natural products with United States, the homes of the Canadian farmer would be sacrificed through the injury that would surely be done to the egg market. Wives and daughters now reap the profits of the egg sales, and the results are seen in the form of many extra comforts and brightening touch about the country home. By taking money out of the purses of these women-folk the reciprocity agreement would be exerting its worst influence—that of working against the best interests of the farm homes of Canada.

Our imports for consumption in 1902 were 772,572 dozen and in 1911 the amount imported was 2,378,640 dozen. In spite of the protective duty of 3 cents per dozen Canada's demand for eggs is so great that she is importing about twenty-five times as many eggs as she is exporting. Why not preserve this great national asset for the wives and daughters of our farmers.

The Devil's first idea was to be an

We have examined the books and accounts of The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, for a period of four years ending December 31st, 1910, and certify that the Current Assets and Liabilities included in the above statement are correct.

During the period covered by our examination, the profits of the Company, including interest on investments (which has aggregated about $27,500.00 per annum), after providing for depreciation, have in no year amounted to less than $300,000.00, excepting in the year 1910, when the profits amounted to only $167,032.03. The profits for the three years, 1907, 1908 and 1909, on the basis mentioned, have averaged $333,282.08 per annum, and the falling off in the business of the year 1910 is explained by the management as being largely due to the curtailment of operations resulting from the delivery of defective steel castings purchased by the Company under contract.

FIELD OF OPERATION.

Canada to-day has over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and over 6,000 under construction or being surveyed. According to statistics furnished by the Department of Railways, one locomotive is required for every six miles of track. Last year there were 4,079 locomotives in use in Canada. The completion of the present 6,000 miles under construction will call for 1,000 new locomotives. In addition, 400 locomotives will be required each year to replace existing equipment. The railroad development which is taking place in Canada is really only at its beginning, and it is expected that within the next ten years the present railway mileage in Canada will be more than doubled. The field of operation is therefore almost unlimited.

PLANT AND EQUIPMENT.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, have been building locomotives since 1855 and have therefore a thorough knowledge of the business. At the present time they are turning out 75 locomotives per year, but have had to refuse many satisfactory orders owing to their limited capacity. The Company have the most up-to-date and modern plant in Canada, covering 333,000 sq. ft.

In addition the Company have 180,000 sq. ft. of reclaimable land on which they can erect additional buildings and, as required, still further enlarge their plant at the minimum of cost. The Company are fortunate in having cheap power, unexcelled shipping facilities, and in being exempt from taxation, except School taxes, up to the year 1916. They have probably the best trained and most loyal staff of skilled workmen on the continent.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

It is estimated that as a result of the contemplated increase to the plant, the earnings within the next few years should be at least $600,000 per annum; or in the neighborhood of 18% on the Common Stock after providing for Bond Interest, Sinking Fund, and Preferred Stock Dividend.

In making provision for an increase in the capacity of their plant, the Company are not entering into a new and untried field. They have a thorough knowledge of the business, and the increased output can be managed with the same office and selling staffs. Other economies will be effected through manufacturing in larger numbers than has been the case in the past. The reputation of the Company is so good that the demand for their locomotives far exceeds the supply.

Applications will be made in due course to list the Preference and Common Shares on the Toronto and Montreal and London Stock Exchanges.

ISLINDA WELCOMES FIRST VISITORS OF THE SEASON

Nineteen Pounder Caught by New York Guest--Good Fishing

Special Correspondence.

Bobcaygeon, June 21.—Islanda opened the season last Friday crowded with fishermen from Pittsburg, Cleveland, New York and Toronto.

While the fishing has been good right up to last Wednesday, it improved wonderfully on Thursday, every man getting the law's limit.

Mr. Wm. King, of New York, won the Island opening prize for the largest fish caught during the first week of the season, he capturing an 19 pound 'lunge. Three others crawed him hard with two 17 1-2 and 18 pound fish, and one 17.

This fish was landed on a 10 ounce rod, and was some fish when brought to shore.

A number of guests enjoyed the novelty of dining on the drive with the men, which is located here for the past few days. They thought the men fared pretty well in the way of satisfying the inner man.

Rochester and Cincinnati fishermen arrive next week and Islanda is pretty well booked up until the fall.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes:

"For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifing the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

Kind to the Eyes

Kryptok lenses have distinctive advantages over all former near and far-sighted glasses, having no line or patch to suggest old sight or to confuse the eye. "They are truly delightful and I scarcely realize that I am wearing glasses, as my vision is perfect, both distant and reading," is the remark of one of the pleased patrons of the Optical Institute.

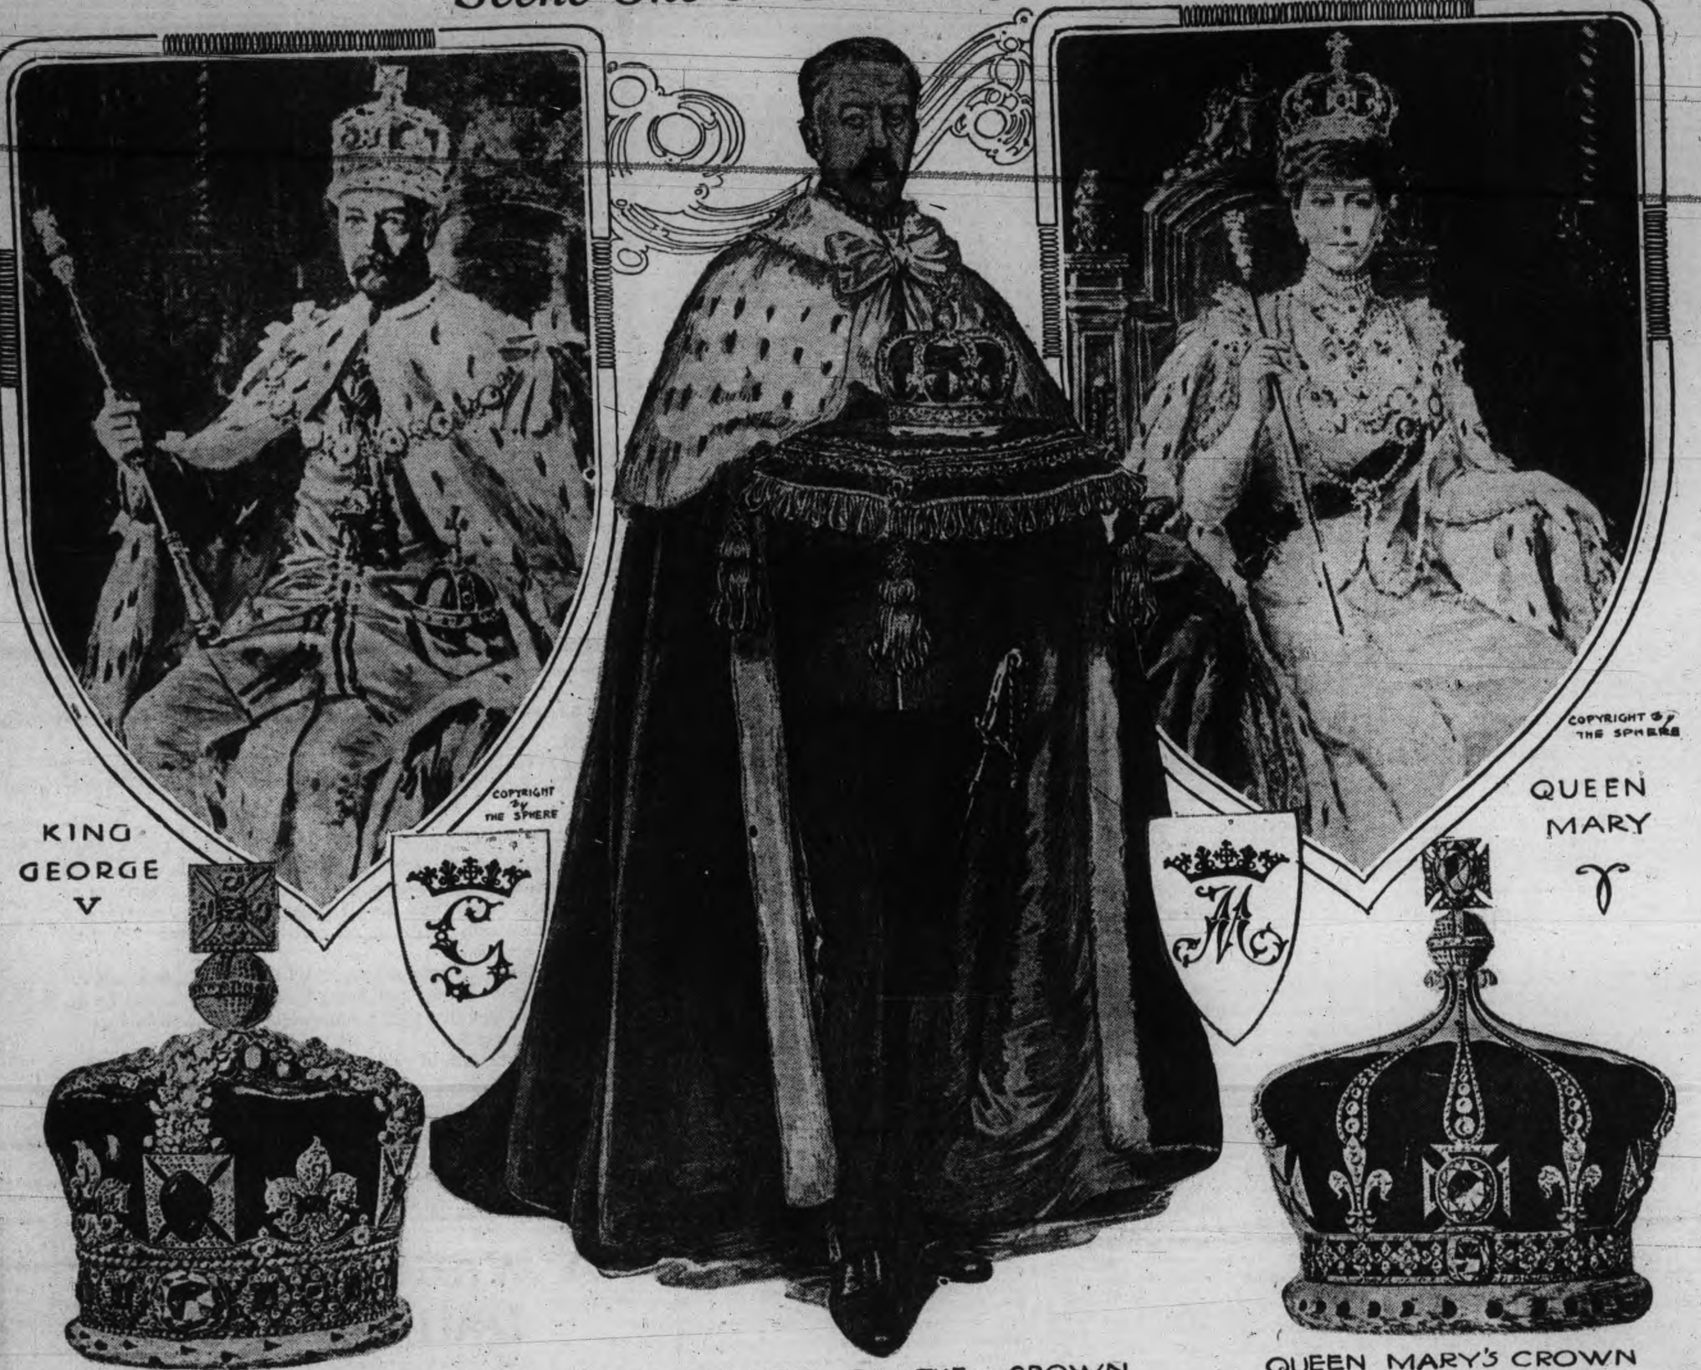
King and Queen Crowned in Westminster Abbey; Scene One of Great Splendor and Impressiveness



KING GEORGE'S CROWN — THE BEARER OF THE CROWN — QUEEN MARY'S CROWN

The coronation of King George V. and Queen Mary ta... place ... in the famous Westminster Abbey in London. The ceremony, of great splendor, is performed in a spot redolent of history. The services commence with the entry of the King at the west door of the Abbey and his procession to the crossing of the transepts. After the usual preliminary services the coronation follows, the King sitting in the ancient chair on the coronation stone. He wears the bracelet and the orb, and while the orb is returned to the altar has the ruby ring placed on the fourth finger of the right hand. A glove is presented by the Lord of the Manor or Worksop, the sceptre is placed in the King's hand and then the rod with the dove. The Archbishop of Canterbury then, taking the crown of St. Edward from the bearer of the crown, places it on the King's head.

TO PROLONG THE STRUGGLE

Senator Bailey Will Press Amendment.

Senator Clapp Also Puts in a Word.

Washington, June 24.—A declaration for straight reciprocity at an informal conference of a dozen Democratic Senators willing to vote down all amendments to the bill, an amendment by Senator Bailey adding to the reciprocity measure all the public free list provisions except meats and grain products, a unanimous decision of the Senate to vote Monday on the Root amendment to the wood pulp and paper schedule—these were features in the reciprocity fight yesterday. But there were no speeches on the subject in the Senate, and the activity was confined to the office rooms and cloak rooms, where reciprocity was the uppermost topic.

Senator Bailey announced his intention to press his amendment vigorously. While looking forward to the addition of some of the tariff provisions to the Canadian bill he admitted that such action probably would come on only as the result of a prolonged struggle.

Another tariff amendment—this one to the free list bill—was presented by Senator Clapp to add to the free list alum chloride of lime, aniline products, ultra marine, vermillion reds, soda ash, sulphur, china clay or flaolin, woollen felts or jackets, and brass or copper wire cloth.

The informal conference was held in the office of Senator Smith of South Carolina. Mr. Smith was outspoken in opposition to amendments, and he and John Sharp Williams united with Senator Stone in declaring that it was unwise to risk reciprocity for something more which would render all uncertain.

Cyclone In Chile.

Iquique, Chile, June 24.—A cyclone, accompanied by rain and high temperature, struck this place yesterday. A hundred loaded lighters were sunk in the harbor and ships were stripped of their masts.

In the city, roofs were blown from some buildings. A panic was caused, and many persons were injured. Rain almost never falls here.

Will Sue Convent.

Montreal, June 24.—At a meeting of the Provincial Board of Health yesterday it was decided to take action against the Convent of St. Jerome for allowing such a wholesale breaking of quarantine as occurred there last Monday night and Tuesday morning after the officers had discovered smallpox cases there. The law provides that a fine of $15 may be exacted for each transgression of the quarantine regulations. As 43 escaped on Monday night and 30 in the morning, if action were taken against all it would involve a sum of $1,095.

The little seven-year-old girl found at St. Andre street, while suffering from the disease, slept one night with another family, was also in the street and about the street with companions.

Circus Broke Up Church Conference.

Lacrosse, Wis., June 24.—A circus parade, passing a church where sessions were being held yesterday, proved too strong a counter attraction, and 400 delegates to the Northwestern Synod of the German Lutheran Church, listening to a paper on "The duties of the present day church," temporarily left the speaker without an audience and rushed outdoors and to the windows.

Wild and Wooly.

Montreal, June 24.—Realistic to an unexpected extent, the Wild West Show at King Edward Park has provided a hospital case, the injured being Mr. Hill, one of the proprietors.

Springing from his horse on to the back of a steer, Mr. Hill lost his grip and was severely trampled on and prodded by the animal before other "cowboys" effected a rescue.

Effort to Save Murderess.

Montreal, June 24.—Chevalier L. Scelesi, Italian consul, has received a letter from the lawyer who defended Angeline Napolitana, the Sault Ste. Marie murderess, asking him to use his influence in the prisoner's favor.

The chevalier would make no statement, except that, "If the newspaper reports are correct, the case is certainly a most deserving one."

W. J. Lindsay Remanded.

Toronto, June 24.—W. J. Lindsay, charged with conspiracy in connection with the Farmers' Bank, was remanded a week in the Police Court yesterday morning. A three weeks' hoist asked by the defence was refused, and Mr. Lindsay must appear from week to week.

While riding with his aide-de-camp yesterday at Niagara Camp, Brig.-Gen. W. H. Cotton was thrown from his horse and severely shaken up.

Caught in the machinery at Miller's lumber mill, St. John, N.B., yesterday, Harold A. Taylor's arm was torn off, and he died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Marie Milinchuk, a Galacian, aged 11, fell asleep by a camp fire on Wednesday at Shandrou, Alberta. Her clothing caught fire and she died on Thursday as a result.

The jury at an inquest last evening to inquire into the death of Chas. Fisher, killed by a G.T.R. engine in Merriton on Monday, brought in a verdict of accidental death.

The Canadian Bisley team sailed from Quebec yesterday by the Allan steamer Victorian. The team was joined there by Corpl. George Mortimore, who will represent the ancient capital at the meeting.

Death by strangulation was the verdict returned last evening regarding the death of Jong Dai Tak, the Chinese lad, who was found hanging from a stove pipe hole by means of a rope, at his uncle's laundry.

Following a meeting of the directors of the Canadian Theatres, Ltd., last night, it was announced that the erection of a theatre in Montreal for popular priced vaudeville, to cost $100,000, would be commenced within thirty days.

Newspaper Men Back.

Toronto, June 24.—The members of the Canadian Press Association returned to the city yesterday evening after a trip to Cochrane and other towns in New Ontario.

Together with the Women's Press Club the association attended a ball on Thursday evening at Parry Sound, and yesterday were entertained at Collingwood by the Town Council, after which J. F. Mackay, past president of the association, laid the corner stone of the King George public school.

Read what a Toronto lady says:

TWINGING PAINS NEARLY TOOK BREATH AWAY

Mrs. Robert Arnoth, of 125 McCaul street, Toronto, Ont., says: — "My back had been tender and painful for some time. A twinging pain would shoot through me in the region of the kidneys and take my breath away for many seconds. I was unable to stoop or do anything that required lifting. The urine plainly told the trouble arose from inactivity on the part of the kidneys, as it contained a quantity of sediment. The doctors who told me I had symptoms of Bright's disease failed to help me in any way. I procured Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement and had used them a very short time when I could notice a great change in my condition. The urine cleared, the secretions gradually became normal, and my appetite began to improve. My back is strong and the pain has gone."

SIXTY SCIONS OF ROYALTY BANQUET AT FOREIGN OFFICE

Sir Edward Grey Is Host at a Magnificent Function, Which Is Attended by Sixty Scions of European Royal Families Including King George, Queen Mary and the Visiting Representatives and Their Suites.

London, June 24.—The state banquet at the Foreign Office last night was one of the most important social events of coronation week. Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister and host of the occasion, received King George and Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, Princess Patricia, Prince and Princess Christian, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, the Duke and Duchess of Argyle and all the foreign royal personages and the special representatives to the coronation.

Altogether sixty royal personages attended the function. The entire company numbered 150, among those present being various members of the royal household, attaches of the Foreign Office, the papal delegate, Mgr. Di Belmonte, Premier and Mrs. Asquith, the Duchess of Devonshire and the Countess Minto.

The dinner was served in the banqueting hall at two oblong tables and six large tables. All were splendidly decorated with flowers and silver candelabra, and pictures loaned by the Indian Office and from other sources hung on the walls, enhancing the effect of the handsome mural decorations. The general effect of the decorations was extremely rich.

The Queen and Sir Edward Grey and a score of guests sat at the principal table, while King George and the Crown Princess of Germany with an equal number of persons were opposite them at the head of the other oblong table. The Duke of Connaught and Premier Asquith also presided at tables. The Grenadier Guards' band furnished the music for the occasion. All the men were in black court dress of knickerbockers and wore swords. The toilettes of the ladies were magnificent, and the display of jewels a gorgeous one.

Thousands See Review.

Portsmouth, Eng., June 24.—Notwithstanding a dismal drizzling rain both the City of Portsmouth and the fleet in Spithead were brilliantly illuminated last night. Vessels representing seventeen nations which had come to greet the newly-crowned King vied with the gigantic gathering of British warships in making a beautiful spectacle. The long lines of vessels moored in Spithead blazed with light, hulls and masts outlined with electric lamps glowing brilliantly against the dull skies and reflecting their images in the water upon which they rode at anchor.

Despite the rain every kind of craft, crowded with sightseers, made trips among the warships. The display continued until midnight, when upon signals flashed from the flagships the lights were suddenly extinguished.

Meanwhile the town was full of animation. Bluejackets of all nations fraternized in the heartiest manner and visited together the various places of entertainment.

Thousands of visitors from all parts of the world already have arrived here to await the coming to-day of King George.

Boy Attempted Suicide.

He has only been here a few weeks and tells a story of a search for work, which proved unavailing. He jumped off the Allan Line dock to end it all, but the captain of a barge pulled him out. He has been remanded until the 26th, and an attempt to secure his a position will be made.

TRIBUTE TO ARCHBISHOP

Dr. Burke in the Catholic Register paid the following tribute to the late Archbishop McEvay: "Even those who did not know the late Archbishop, and were not of his faith, mourned him sincerely. He had no place for cant or hypocrisy in religion. He only wanted to know whether it were God's work which lay before him, and this settled he never faltered, never turned back. He was the staunchest advocate and most striking exemplar of spiritual perfection to his priests and and people. The Catholic Church was his model. What she accepted he accepted, and Canadian nationality, he believed, was good enough for all."

PUNCTURE HINTS FOR MOTORISTS

Handy Things for Every Auto Driver to Know

Nearly every motorist has experienced the exasperating task of locating small punctures in inner tubes. If not immediately visible the perforation may be very small, no larger than a needle point, and in this case it is much harder to locate.

Inflate the tube slightly and hold it near the ground. Very often if the road is dry the puncture may be detected by the disturbance of the dust made by the escaping air.

If this test cannot be made or if it does not discover the puncture, present each portion of the tube to the cheek until the rush of escaping air can be felt. These methods failing to locate the puncture the only course is to immerse the tube in a pan of water, section by section, and watch closely for air bubbles.

Sometimes even the water test will give no indication of a leak, yet when the tube is refitted and inflated the air pressure will again decrease slowly. It is then practically sure that the trouble starts near the nut at the base of the valve. This is assuming that all other valve parts are in good condition, otherwise when the valve was immersed in water bubbles would have indicated the leak. An invisible leak of the nature described could be produced by screwing the nut at the base of the valve too tightly or not screwing it tight enough.

In either case it is safer to return the tube to the manufacturer, for it is not likely that the motorist can make a satisfactory repair.

If no puncture is found in the tube it would be well to retest the valve. This can be done while the tire is mounted on the wheel. Simply turn the wheel until the valve is pointing straight down and immerse the valve in a glass of water.

If bubbles rise to the surface of the water examine the rubber security disk at the bottom of the cap, and if this damaged fit a new one in its place. If no regular rubber disk is at hand use instead a small leather washer or one made of cloth smeared with cement.

TRAPPER'S LUCK

J. K. Cornwall, M.P.P., Pays $500 for Fox That is Half Black

An extra large fox, half black brought into Edmonton city from Lesser Slave Lake by C. W. Wannacott, a northern trapper, was purchased by J. K. Cornwall, M.P.P., for $500. Had the fox been wholly black, a much higher figure would have been paid. The past winter has been one of the worst trapping seasons on record, according to Mr. Wannacott. The catch of the average trapper did not amount to more than $20 for the season. "In addition to the Silver Fox, I secured 90 rats and one red fox and forty weasels," said the trapper.

THE PEOPLE'S RAILWAY

Network of Electric Roads to be Operated by Hydro Power

The Acme Construction Company, Toronto, has been awarded the contract for the People's Railway, which proposes eventually to connect Toronto with Detroit, and form the backbone of a network of interurban lines extending from Collingwood and Owen Sound to Goderich, Port Huron, and Port Stanley.

The municipalities of Tavistock, Blenheim township, Wellesley township, New Hamburg, Wilmot township, Waterloo township, Luther township, Fergus village, Berlin, and Guelph, it is stated, have subscribed for preferred stock amounting to $295,000, and individuals have taken up about $150,000 stock.

"This line will be second to none on the continent," said Mr. Bugg, managing director. "We shall make the trip between Toronto and Windsor in less time than the steam roads take, and our rolling stock will include sleepers, parlor, and buffet cars of the most modern type." It is planned to operate the road by Hydro-Electric power.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, of Kingston, has sold out to an English syndicate, composed chiefly, it is understood, of Lord Glenconuer Darlborough Pryor, J. Leigh Wood, and F. R. S. Balfour, who recently visited Kingston to inspect the local works.

Two runaway Seattle boys aged sixteen told an Orangeville magistrate of their adventures since they left home. At Smith's Falls a rainstorm came on, and as they were on top of the cars on which they were stealing a ride they sough shelter, crawling through the window of a through freight they found open from the roof. The open window was resealed at Toronto Junction, and it was not until 5 o'clock the following afternoon, when the train was on the siding at Weston, that their cries drew the attention of the train crew, when they were released and sent on to Orangeville, only to be arrested and lodged in jail, where they arrived completely famished, being without food or drink many hours. The boys were taken over by Mr. Peter Edwards, an extensive farmer and contractor, on their promise of good behavior, with the approval of the court. Mr. Edwards sees in the lads, who are bright and fairly well educated, the making of useful Canadian citizens.

Two Canning Plants in Prince Edward County to be Converted

The impetus given to orcharding in Prince Edward County with the abnormal amount of spraying material used by apple growers has prompted the starting of a new industry. PLENTY OF ELECTRIC POWER

The town of Bassana, midway between Calgary and Medicine Hat, is to have abundance of electric power from the dam of the Canadian Pacific Irrigation Company, who are building a dam at a cost of $7,000,000, for irrigation purposes. INDIAN'S LONG ROW

Joseph McLeod, an Indian of Cape Croker, aged seventy-four years, one day recently rowed from McGregor's Harbor around the cape to the Village of Colpoy's Bay, a distance of twenty-five miles, in a little less than nine hours. This would prove a pretty stiff proposition for a much younger man, and it is not likely that many would even care to undertake it.

Mr. William Whyte, Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, estimates that the number of new settlers from the United Etates this year will range between 200,000 and 250,000.

BABY'S LIFE THREATENED BY SUMMER COMPLAINT

The life of every baby is threatened during the hot summer months by that dreaded trouble—summer complaint. Thousands of children die every summer from this trouble—thousands of happy homes are made dark and sorrowful because a precious little life has been snuffed out. But mothers, though you fear this trouble, you can yet fight it—yes, fight it and defeat it with Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Joseph Steffs, Coutts, Alta., says: "During the hot summer days my little boy took ill with summer complaint. He was seized with vomiting and nothing helped him till I got Baby's Own Tabets. They relieved him and made him a strong, healthy child." The Tablets are for sale by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TRAGIC TALE OF ENDURANCE

The Diary, Showing the Grimly Approaching Death of Four Mounted Police

The annals of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police contain no more tragic tale of heroic endurance culminating in a slow and horrible death than that disclosed in the story of the finding of the frozen bodies of Inspector Fitzgerald and three other members of the force by Corporal Dempster of Dawson last February, whose detailed report was received by Comptroller White. The diary of Inspector Fitzgerald for the ten days preceding his slowly and grimly approaching death and a will of twenty-two words were found on his body. The will was written on a torn piece of paper, with a burned twig. It left all his effects to his mother, and concluded with the words, "God bless all."

The last few days of desperate endeavor to make Fort Macpherson are thus described in Inspector Fitzgerald's diary:—

"Wednesday, February 1, 51 below in a.m.—Strong south wind; left camp at 7.30 a.m. Nooned one hour, and camped at 4 p.m. Followed our old trail, but found it very heavy. Killed another dog to-night. This makes eight dogs we have killed, and we have eaten most of them.

"Thursday, February 2, 23 below in p.m.—Fine; very misty in mountain in p.m. Left camp at 7 a.m., nooned one hour and had to camp on the mountain at 3.30 p.m., as we got astray in the mist. Going heavy in creek; very good on the mountain ten miles.

"Friday, February 3, 26 below.—Misty in a.m., clear in p.m. Strong northeast wind. Left camp at 7.45 crossed the mountain by 1.30 p.m. and camped on Trail Creek. Killed another dog to-night and had to feed some of it to the dogs, as we have no dried fish. The men and dogs are very thin and weak and cannot travel far. We had travelled about 20 miles on dog meat and have still about 100 miles to go, but I think we will make it all right, but will have only three or four dogs left. Fourteen miles.

"Saturday, February 4, 52 below.—Fine, with strong southeast wind. Left camp at 7.45. Nooned one hour and camped at 3 p.m. eight miles down Trail Creek. Going very heavy and everybody suffered very much with the cold. Eight miles.

"Sunday, February 5, 48 below.—Fine, with strong southeast wind. Left camp at 7.15 a.m. Nooned one hour, and camped about eight miles farther down. In afternoon I broke through the ice and had to make fire; found one foot slightly frozen. Killed another dog to-night; have only five dogs more, and can only go a few miles a day. Everybody breaking out on the body, and skin peeling off. Eight miles."

That was the last word written before the final tragedy.

The camp kettle was found near the bodies of Kinney and Taylor half full of moose hide, cut into small pieces, which had been boiled for a stew.

USED A FRENCH SIGN

Unique Demonstration at Vercheres in Front of the Post Office

A demonstration unique of its ind was held in Vercheres, Que. The postoffice was indicated by a notice bearing the English sign "postoffice." The population, wholly French-Canadian, decided to protest against this state of affairs. The pupils of the college and the schools formed in procession before the church, and, headed by a banner, assembled in front of the postoffice under the direction of Brother Regis, singing patriotic songs. A board bearing in gilt engraved letters the words "Bureau de Poste" was carried by a member of the procession. Father Dulude, the vicar, and the Brothers of the Christian schools, also took part in the demonstration. A the postoffice the whole parish had assembled. Father Baillarger, the curate, welcomed the processionists, and delivered a stirring speech in favor of the French language. The French sign board was then placed in front of the postoffice amid the acclamations of the crowd. The sign board was engraved by Mr. P. A. Bouvier.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Member of Ontario Cabinet Says They'll Come Soon

"The day is not far distant when women will be closely associated with the politics of our country. You are the pioneers of a movement which cannot fail to be beneficial, and as such I welcome you to the active political arena."

In these words, Hon. I. B. Lucas, Minister without portfolio in the Ontario Cabinet, assured the members of the Women's Club of the Centre and South Toronto Conservative Association that their inception into the sphere where heretofore men alone had dared enter was not without his approval. It was the club's first political meeting, and the choice of "The Boy-Faced Minister" as their first political speaker seemed a happy one, for he went on to say: "Though I am not in sympathy with the militant tactics of the Suffragettes on the other side of the ocean, I am in favor of granting the franchise to women, and when a reasonable number of women show that they want the vote, no Government can afford to refuse it to them."

"Tag Day" for Ottawa hospitals realized $8,664, or about $3,000 less than last year's record.

Failed to Cure Rheumatism

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure With "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. I call Nerviline my "Life Guard," and urge all to try its merit."

A TYPICAL WESTERNER

A. A. Titus Went From Prince Edward County to the West in 1882

A. A. Titus, one of the prosperous farmers of Manitoba, went to Deloraine from Prince Edward County, Ontario, in 1882, along with his father and mother. The Titus family was the first to reach Turtle Mountain from Brandon, the earlier ones teaming up from Emerson. Only two sod houses, owned by settlers named Bates and Myers, about eight miles south of Souris, could be seen between that place and the Deloraine settlement. Being old enough to homestead the following year, Mr. Titus got a quarter section at Napinka; he also had unlimited confidence in the country by this time, and has both yet, together with 750 acres adjoining. Although a partner with his father for a few years in a hardware store in Napinka, he has been a farmer every time and all the time, drawing his first crops 65 miles to Brandon, for 43 to 45 cents, and his last to Napinka, two miles away, for 93 and 95 cents. While his grain brought best returns, Mr. Titus gives his sympathy to his stock, claiming animal husbandry the pleasantest and most interesting of all labor, and good stock the key and crowning interest of the farm. A typical Westerner, Albert Allen Titus never misses a meal, a train or a crop; never lacks a friend, fifty cents, an answer, a partner at the ball, a good word for the West, or a plan for the future. He has served four times in municipal councils, is a Presbyterian, sings bass, keeps a pack of hounds, is a checker champion, a fair public speaker and a justice of the peace. He is a bachelor.

ADMIRED PLUCKY ROBINS

A Car Sidetracked to Avoid Disturbing the Nest

Admiration for the gameness of a pair of robins in sticking to their nest on a flying trip between Hamilton and Buffalo, has resulted in a car being taken out of the train and side-tracked for their benefit until their young are ready to shift for themselves. Patrolman Mooney noticed the nest behind the top rung of a brake ladder on an empty car that came over the International bridge. When the train came to a standstill he clambered up to investigate. Before he reached the top of the ladder a pair of robins were fluttering around and making a great ado. There were four eggs in the nest. Railroad men, who became as interested as the policeman, managed to find something wrong with the brakes and the car was placed on a dead siding, where it will be allowed to remain until the birds get through with it.

HOW TO KEEP FIT

An Exercise Which Will Greatly Develop the Chest

The great majority of clerks, typists, students and others whose occupations are of a sedentary nature are sadly deficient in chest measurement; the truth of this is very apparent by a few minutes' observation. This is due to continual stooping over work which causes the chest to become flat and cramped, and the only way to counteract this defect is to devote a few minutes daily to scientific exercise, which will expand the chest, improve the lung capacity, and prevent chest disorders. Perseverance in the exercise given below—which has been selected by Mr. Sandow—will both develop the chest and improve the carriage of the body. A point to bear in mind is that all air should be inhaled through the nose, not only during exercise, but "all round the clock." When performing the movement, inhale as directed, and exhale forcibly through the mouth, taking care not to hold the breath.

Ready Position.—Stand erect, arms extended in front of the body. Movement.—Bring the arms slowly backward in a line with the shoulders, inhaling steadily all the time the hands are travelling. Make a momentary pause, brace up the chest, bring the arms forward again, exhaling to the utmost all the time that the hands are travelling. Breathing movement slow.

FINE NEW STATION

Union Depot of the C.P.R. and C.N.R. at Regina

Plans for the new union station of the C.P.R. and C.N.R. at Regina, Sask., show that the new building will be very large and imposing. There will be a central main building, three stories high, flanked by annexes on either side of one story, the dimensions of the whole being 316 feet in length by 62 feet deep. Directly inside this doorway is a large lobby or vestibule from which other rooms radiate. Offices for baggage checkers, depot master, and customs officials are provided on this floor. The baggage room will be equipped with freight elevators. Two ticket offices are provided in the main building, one for each company. These are situated in the centre of the waiting-rooms, which they will partition, and are placed immediately facing the main entrance. The material used is principally stone.

NEW HEALTH AND NEW STRENGTH FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

Aching Backs, Tired Limbs and Splitting Headackes Need Not be Endured

In silent patience nearly every woman endures suffering that casts a shadow over half her existence. An aching back, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, and headaches and backaches, need not be part of a woman's life. Such trials indicate plainly that the system requires the new blood that is supplied through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are valued by suffering women who have used them above all other medicines, because they give the rich, red blood that makes women well, bright and at their best. Mrs. Fred. Collard, Poplar Point, Man., says: "I can give you but a very small estimate of the suffering I endured before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After the birth of my first child I suffered intensely from ailments that too often afflict my sex. This was complicated by an attack of bleeding piles, and the agony of the days and nights I endured is almost past comprehension. I tried many remedies, but they did not help me in my trouble, and from a healthy young woman weighing 140 pounds I fell away in weight to 95 pounds. I grew so weak I could hardly walk across the floor, and and there were times I hardly knew what I was doing so great was the agony. I went to Brandon and consulted a doctor who said that nothing would help me but an operation for both my troubles, and that I would have to remain in the hospital for at least eight weeks. Being a farmer's wife I felt that this was impossible, and while in Brandon I met a friend who strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that they had cured her trouble similar to mine, after an operation had proved of no benefit. She had such strong faith in them that she gave me the first box, and I began using them. It was not long before I found much relief. I continued to use the Pills all the rest of that summer, and the result was they restored me to perfect health. I told the doctor what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for me, and his reply was that he considered what they had done for me less than a miracle. I have since recommended the Pills to many others who have suffered from woman's troubles, and they always produced beneficial results. I hope that this statement will be of benefit to some other suffering person."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HABITS OF CROWS, CURIOUS BIRDS

The Interesting Observations by Nelson R. Wood, a Taxidermist at Washington

"The popular belief that crows must have their tongues split before they can talk is a fallacy," said Mr. Nelson R. Wood, bird taxidermist at the Smithsonian Institution, the other day. "I have had crows for pets all my life, and the majority have talked without any doctoring whatever."

This statement was made after a visitor to Mr. Wood's workshop had been introduced to a big intelligent looking crow, "Young Jack," who upon being noticed, made a great commotion by hopping around in his cage.

Mr. Wood it is who stuffs the specimens which are on exhibition at the museum, and his little shop, which is in reality nothing more than an old barn, is a veritable "Old Curiosity Shop." Big birds and little birds sit together in the various cases, or lie around dismally in bunches on the tables waiting to be mounted.

"The crow," Mr. Wood continued, after "Young Jack" had been made to keep quiet, "is the most intelligent of all birds, to my way of thinking, but is at the same time the most silly in its fear, which is apparently without foundation. That one is the fourth bird I have had within the last few years. The other three died during my absence in the summer.

"In those birds I noticed certain characteristics. One was afraid of a common soda cracker and a swinging door. Nothing could induce him to leave his perch if a cracker were put in the cage. Another was afraid of peanuts, and would go without eating for hours at a time should a peanut be put on the top of his food. Still another would be terrified at the sight of anything black, a ribbon or tie having the same effect as a whole suit."

From the fund of knowledge which Mr. Wood has stored up about crows, he is able to tell many interesting and amusing little tales which illustrate his statement concerning the intelligence of the bird.

"In my youth, I was a farmer boy," said Mr. Wood, "and one of the few pets I had was a crow, which my teacher had given me. No matter where I went, the crow would follow. When at work, Jack would be put a few feet away looking for something to eat. Sometimes I would find a worm, and would call to him, 'Come here, Jack, and see what I have found.' That was all that was needed to bring him to my side. The wild crows tried to get Jack to go with them, but he refused, and from that time on he lived in mortal terror of them.

"I have seen some wonderful instances of intelligence on the part of the crow. One old fellow, for instance, used to delight in taking the top of a blackening box to the top of an old board which stood against the house, and, getting in it, slide to the bottom. He found pleasure in that at all times. One of my Jacks used to like his bread soaked. One day he saw a box top. He took it, turned it over, and put his bread in it. Then carrying it to his trough, put it under the water for a second, and then proceeded to eat it.

"As to the crow's ability to talk, some will and others will never learn how, but I do not believe that splitting their tongues has anything to do with it. The first of the four birds I have had recently was a wonderful talker. Unlike the parrot, his conversation was intelligent, rather than simply imitative. For instance, if I said to him, 'Hello, Jack,' he would answer 'Hello' and not put on the 'Jack,' as so many parrots do when one says 'Hello, Polly.'

"But he would imitate me also. He found that when anyone called and said 'Hello, Wood,' my reply was a low 'Hello.' He tried in every way to imitate that low tone of mine, and finally succeeded. He would go over to his water trough, and with his head in the air would cry, 'Hello, Wood;' then down would go his head in the trough, and out would come the 'Hello,' just like mine.

"A crow is the most affectionate of birds, so far as I have been able to find out. Once a crow attaches himself to you he will always be your friend. Leave him, and he will be fond of but one person till you return, and when you do he will go back to you. Their affection is almost like that of a dog.

"A crow must have playthings, and he really plays with them. When I am busy hammering away, for instance, 'Young Jack' hammers away in his cage with a stick he has. They are also the cleanest birds I know. Even while eating, if the tiniest bit gets on their plumage, they stop immediately and remove it.

"But I have never been able to understand their fear," concluded Mr. Wood. "It is so absolutely without reason. But, so far, I am glad to say, 'Young Jack' has not developed any special brand of fear."—Washington Star.

AFRAID OF AN APPLE

Antipathy, like fear, is something unreasonable. It is an instinct, and therefore absolutely unconquerable.

Great men have suffered from strange antipathies. King Henry III. could not remain alone in a room with a cat. The Duc d'Epernon fainted at the sight of a leveret. Tycho Brahe was all in a tremor at the sight of a leveret or a fox. Marshal d'Albret was made ill if a young wild boar or a sucking-pig were served at the table where he sat. The famous scholar, Scaliger, shook all over at the sight of watercress.

Lord Bacon swooned away at an eclipse of the moon. Bayle went into convulsions at the sound of water running out of a faucet. Lamothe le Vayer had nervous convulsions on hearing any musical instrument. But the most extraordinary of all was King Ladislaw of Poland, who fled precipitately at the sight of an apple.

This is a funny world, and it is a little funnier than usual this year.

TWO DESPERATE CASES

These Two Men Owe Their Lives To GIN PILLS.

Stone in the bladder is a direct result of kidney trouble—one of the results of neglecting the kidneys that have taken cold or are slightly out of order. Mr. Herman and Mr. Lessard whose letters are given below, were in a bad way until they tried GIN PILLS which cured their trouble by removing the cause.

There is no other kidney pill anywhere that has the merits of GIN PILLS. Sick and diseased kidneys respond quickly to their treatment. Many a case of incipient Brights or Diabetes has been cured by them. They cleanse, restore and build up the entire urinary tract.

573 JAMES ST. NORTH, HAMILTON, ONT.

Gentlemen,

Four years ago I was taken down with Inflammation of the Bladder. During the attacks, which occurred more and more frequently, the agony was unbearable, and I became so weak I could not walk across the floor. The doctors could do nothing to relieve or cure me.

My wife sent for a box of GIN PILLS to try and see if they would help me. From the first they did me good—the pain was relieved at once, and the attacks began to come at longer intervals. I continued taking the pills for six weeks, and then, to my surprise and delight, the stone I sent you some time ago came from me and my pain stopped. It is now three years since GIN PILLS cured me. I have had no return of the trouble, and I have not lost a day's work on account of it since.

There is not the slightest doubt that GIN PILLS saved my life. Yours gratefully, JOHN HERMAN.

JOLIETTE, P.Q.

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with stone in the Bladder.

He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS.

They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.

GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life".

J. ALBERT LESSARD.

Perfumes.

Civet is an aromatic substance of the consistence of honey and is obtained from a pouch on the civet cat, an animal from two to three feet long and about ten or twelve inches high. The best known of animal odors is musk, which is obtained from the musk deer. China furnishes the best quality. Twenty-five pods or sacks are packed in oblong boxes composed of plates of lead inclosed in a caddy made of pasteboard. Musk is obtained from Assam, Siberia, the Altai mountains and other parts of northern Asia. Ambergris is another animal odor. It is secreted in the intestines of the spermaceti whale. A very curious fact is that ambergris is only accumulated by disease—that is, it is only secreted in a sick whale. It is very hard, of a light gray color and is found in quantities varying from twenty to fifty pounds. It is worth about £6 an ounce.—London Standard.

Mucilage and Gum.

"I went into a stationer's shop in London one day," said an American, "and said to the shop assistant:

"'Do you keep mucilage?'

"'No, sir,' the young man answered. 'We try to take in all the papers, but there are so many new ones coming out. Still, I can order mucilage for you, sir. Which number did you want?'

"I learned afterward that I should have asked for gum. They don't have the word 'mucilage' over there in England.

"But an Englishman traveling on one of our railways stopped a train boy and said:

"'Have you got any gum?'

"'No; I don't use it, boss,' the boy replied in friendly fashion, 'but I can let you have a chaw off this here plug.'"—Washington Star.

An Accomplished Linguist.

"Did you learn any French while you were in Paris?" asked Bildad, meeting Slithers shortly after his return from Europe.

"Oh, a little," said Slithers. "Not so very much, though. I got so I could say cigarette in French."

"Good!" said Bildad. "What is cigarette in French?"

"Cigarette," said Slithers.—Harper's Weekly.

He Was Just Thinking.

"Mary," said a man to his spouse, who was gifted with a rapidly moving tongue, "did you ever hear the story of the precious gems?"

"No," she replied. "What is it?"

"It's a fairy legend that my grandmother told me when I was a boy," the husband continued. "It was about a woman from whose lips fell a diamond or a ruby at every word she spoke."

"Well?" said his wife as he pause.

"That's all there is of it, my dear," he replied. "But I was just thinking if such things happened nowadays I could make my fortune as a jeweler."

Love of Trees.

We find our most soothing companionship in trees among which we have lived, some of which we ourselves may have planted. We lean against them, and they never betray our trust, they shield us from the sun and from the rain, their spring welcome is a new birth which never loses its freshness, they lay their beautiful robes at our feet in autumn; in winter they stand and wait, emblems of patience and of truth, for they hide nothing, not even the little leaf buds which hint to us of hope, the last element in their triple symbolism.—Dr. O. W. Holmes.

TWO MILLION IN A DECADE

The Immigration to Canada From the United States Almost the Same as From Britain

During the past ten years Canada has received nearly two million immigrants, of whom approximately 750,000 were from Great Britain and Ireland, and 700,000 were from the United States. An immigration bulletin gives the actual figures up to the end of the last fiscal year, March 31, as 1,714,326 for the decade. Since then nearly 200,000 more have arrived, divided about equally between British and American.

According to occupation, about 65 per cent. of the immigrants arriving from the United States have been farmers or farm laborers, who for the most part have settled in the prairie provinces. Thirty-eight per cent. of the total number from across the line made entry for homesteads in the West. About thirty per cent. of the British and continental arrivals were farmers or farm laborers, while twenty-five per cent. were classed as general laborers, and nearly the same percentage were classed as mechanics.

The influx of negroes has totalled only a little over 400, while 5,200 Hindus have come. Of the British immigrants approximately 560,000 have been English and Welsh, [illegible]0,000 have been Scotch, and about 45,000 have been Irish.

Figures for other nationalities include the following:—Austria-Hungarian, 121,001; Italian, 63,817;; Hebrew, 48,675; Russian, 38,950; Swedes, 19,349; Germans, 21,145; French, 16,236; Norwegians, 13,798; Syrians, 5,223.

The distribution of immigrants by Provinces gives a good idea of their respective population growth . Saskatchewan and Alberta got a little over half a million immigrants during the decade; Ontario came next with 403,898; Manitoba got 303,623; Quebec, 258,820; British Columbia and the Yukon, 188,599, and the three Maritime Provinces only 73,902. Western Canada therefore got some 300,000 more new settlers than eastern Canada.

PICTURESQUE COAST CITY

In 1886, Vancouver Had Less Than 1,000 People

No man needs the art of prophecy, but only business common-sense, to foretell with accuracy the ultimate destiny of Vancouver. It is but a few years, a mere clock-tick in the vast sweep of time, since Vancouver was marked on the map on which it is now a bright red spot. In 1886 less than 1,000 people called Vancouver, a pine-board village home. To-day it is a city of possibly 130,000, growing at the rate of 1,000 a month. The black coal of the earth and the white coal of British Columbia's ample water-power will make the Pacific Coast province a great manufacturing country. As a shipping point on the Pacific seaboard, Vancouver will be the one rival of San Francisco.—British Columbia Magazine.

SIMPLIFICATION OF SPELLING

Important Suggestion by Dr. MacKay of Nova Scotia

At the Imperial education conference recently held privately the Foreign Office resolved that the simplification of spelling was a matter of urgent importance throughout the Empire, demanding such practical steps in every country as may appear most conducive to the creation of enlightened public opinion and the direction thereof to the maintenance of English in purity and simplicity among all English speaking people. Among the suggestions was a proposal from Dr. MacKay that there be progressive simultaneous simplification of spelling with recurring periods throughout the United States. Dr. MacKay did not propose that adults be compelled to adopt the new methods, but that new ways be adopted and new spellings issued, say, every 25 years, these to be taught to each new generation of children. The conference adopted various resolutions unifying educational arrangements in the Empire.

NEW WOMAN CHAMPION

Stella Mayhew Asserts That She Can Outwhistle Any of Her Sex

Stella Mayhew has no respect for the ancient superstition that whistling in a theatre brings bad luck. On the contrary, she insists that she has been the most persistent behind-the-scenes whistler in the profession and that it has always brought her good fortune.

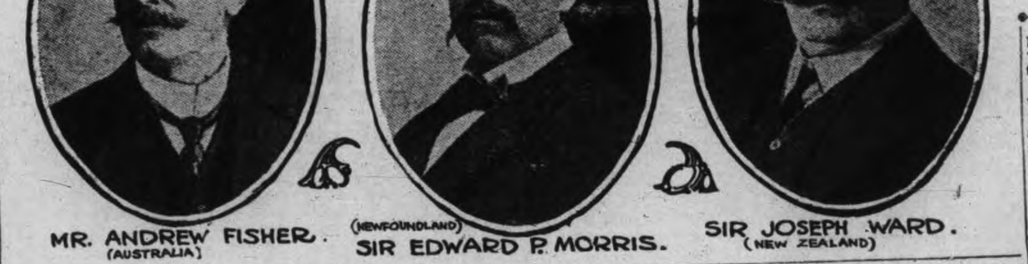
"I've been whistling all the time for 11 years, and in all that while I've been in only four different shows, except for a few summer engagements in vaudeville and at roof gardens," Miss Mayhew says. "I was five seasons in 'The Swanee River,' two in 'The Show Girl,' two in 'Coming Through the Rye,' and two in 'The Jolly Bachelors.' If that's the kind of bad luck that comes from whistling behind the scenes I'm just going to keep it up all the rest of my life.

"So, now, when I come to the theatre, I go right up to my dressing-room, shut the door tight, so nobody can hear me, and whistle as hard as I can all the time I'm putting on my make-up."

Miss Mayhew claims that she can whistle 365 different tunes, one for every day in the year. She believes that she can whistle longer without pausing than any other woman in the world.—New York Review.

No one knows enough to warrant conceit.

Subjects from All Quarters of the Globe Pay Homage To England's King and Queen at Their Coronation



In the great human maelstrom which surged through the city of London for the coronation, filling its highways and byways, there were hundreds of thousands of types of the men and women who make up the empire upon which the sun never sets. Beturbaned high caste Brahmins from India's coral strand jostled against gaunt, giantlike subjects of the King from Australasia; the energetic, hustling Canadian, bound to Britain by sympathetic ties, which he defends in the nasal twang of the American, rubbed elbows with browned, muscular and hardy looking New Zealanders.

While the over seas thousands were predominantly of the white race, there were black men, brown men and yellow men, who, while adding a note of color to the vast throngs, emphasized the influence of the island kingdom, which extends to the remotest corners of the earth. All acknowledged George as their King and emphasized by their attendance the hold which England has upon her subjects in the four quarters of the globe.

In the hurrying, scurrying crowds there were many notable figures. There were princes by the hundred, some who, if spared, will cut a wide swath in the affairs of the world; others who, as the titular heads of petty States, will have scarcely caused a ripple in the ocean of life when they pass out.

There is an army of Americans in the city, too, and they add to the gayety of the momentous occasion by injecting a spice of the hurry and bustle of life in the United States into ordinarily placid English surroundings.

A Product of Peru.

One day in the course of study the teacher had occasion to give a description of the republic of Peru. After describing its natural features, people, commerce, industries, products, etc., he gave his class a test to find out how much they remembered of what he had told them. Having received satisfactory replies to a number of his questions, he asked, "Now, who can tell me what the principal products of Peru are?" Instantly there came from somewhere in the rear of the room the answer, "Prunes."—Philadelphia Record.

A Solution.

There's hardly been a year of late when people didn't ask,
Shall woman have this privilege? Shall she perform that task?
"Shall women smoke?" "Shall women bike?" are samples we may quote.
Today of course the problem is, "Shall women have the vote?"

If I were called to arbitrate this answer I would give,
"She shall." 'Twould solve the problem
just as surely as you live.
From what I know of woman's will, of what she does and don't,
I'm certain if we said "She shall" she'd tell us that she won't.

Wit That Stung.

Father S. was remarkable for his ready wit. On one occasion while traveling on a steamboat a well known sharper who wished to get into the priest's good graces said:

"Father, I should like very much to hear one of your sermons."

"Well," said the clergyman, "you could have heard me last Sunday if you had been where you should have been."

"Where was that?"

"In the county jail," answered the bluff priest as he walked away.—San Francisco Star.

THE SILVER DOLLAR.

Many Changes In Its Design Since It Was First Issued.

The silver dollar has undergone a great many changes since it was put in circulation in 1794. On the face of the first dollar there was stamped the head of a young woman turned to the right and with hair flowing, as if she was in a gale of wind. But in 1796 congress came to her relief and ordered her hair to be tied up with a bit of ribbon. The fifteen stars which appeared on the first dollar were after this reduced to the original thirteen in recognition of the number of states.

In 1836 the design was again changed, and the dollar bore the figure of a woman dressed in a flowing garment. The designer forgot, however, to put in the thirteen stars, and the coin was soon called in, the new design having the woman surrounded by stars. Her air was defiant and stiff looking, and in 1838 dollars were issued which were more artistic in treatment. The first dollars bearing the motto, "In God We Trust," were coined in April, 1864, and in 1873 the era of the trade dollar began, lasting just five years.

The Liberty dollar made its appearance in 1878. Miss Anna W. Williams, a public school teacher of Philadelphia, sat for the portrait.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Sure of a Raise.

An enterprising woman who rents several apartments in a new building and sublets them furnished, room by room, has profited at the rate of several hundred dollars a year by woman's propensity for telling everything she knows. To each applicant for a room she named an exorbitant price to start with.

"Now, understand, this is a concession to you alone and must be regarded as strictly confidential. If you tell a soul in the house that I have made a reduction in your favor I shall have to charge the original price."

Within two weeks rents had gone up.

"Mrs. Smith tells me," said the astute landlady to each gossiping tenant, "that you told her you pay only $6 for your room instead of $7." And as no one was in a position to plead not guilty the additional rental was exacted.—New York Times.

The play's the thing! When life grows gray,
When smiles beguile and tears betray,
We seek the land where lovers dance
While baffled villains glare askance
And happy endings hold their sway.

OPPONENTS OF RECIPROCITY WILL TEST IT IN THE COURTS

Say They Doubt the Constitutionality of the McColl Bill Say it is a Trade Treaty, and Must Have Two-Thirds Vote of Senate.

New York, June 26.—The Washington correspondent of the The Sun writes:

"Among the interesting developments in the reciprocity situation is the statement that the constitutionality of the Canadian reciprocity bill will be attacked in the courts if it should pass by less than a two-thirds vote on the ground that it is in the nature of a treaty, which requires a two-thirds vote of the Senate for ratification.

"The Republican insurgents are now the only obstacles in the way of an agreement to vote on the reciprocity bill and the two tariff bills now before the Senate. If the insurgents would consent to the fixing of the day it is reasonably certain that the regular Republicans and the Democrats could agree upon dates for votes in time to brings about the adjournment of Congress before September 1.

"The insurgents are still hopeful of making a combination with the Democrats by which they can amend the Canadian bill. The Democratic Senators, it was learned yesterday, will hold a conference next week, and it is now certain that a great majority of them will decide to support the reciprocity bill without amendment. Against this proposal will be arrayed not to exceed four and probably only three Democrats. Senator Bailey of Texas will be commander-in-chief of this small insurrection, and it looks as if his only backing would be Senator Simmons of North Carolina and Senator Thornton of Louisiana. Mr. Bailey wants to amend the reciprocity bill and also to kill it if possible.

"Senator Jones of Washington is not making much headway with his plan for uniting the Republican regulars and insurgents on a tariff revision program. The plan looked attractive Saturday, but some of the regular Republicans promptly sat upon it, saying it is a foregone conclusion that any Republican program in the Senate for revising the tariff would be rejected by the House and that any attempt at revision after the plan proposed by Senator Jones would only result in prolonging the session of Congress and disturbing the business interests of the country. Senator Reed Smoot of Utah voiced the protest of the regulars against such a program.

"I refuse to play politics with this question," said Senator Smoot. "I consider it positively wicked to enter upon an endless consideration of the tariff question at this time when there is no hope of any legislation resulting from it. We should have a vote on everything that is pending and adjourn as speedily as possible. The business interests want peace. Just now merchants are planning their purchasing for the next season and with the tariff under consideration they would be in doubt as to an agreement for an early vote and that we should work to bring about an adjournment before September if possible. I believe that in course of time we will be able to do this."

WONDERFUL ARMADA SHOWN IN THE GREAT NAVAL REVIEW

King George and Queen Mary See Great Fleet of Warships, Representing Seventeen Nations, off Spithead.

Portsmouth, Eng., June 26.—Saturday was the day of ships and sailors. The King and Queen and the foreign representatives at the coronation left the capital and came here for the great naval review off Spithead. Fine weather put the finishing touches on one of the most magnificent displays of the week.

Their Majesties, accompanied by the official envoys of other countries, came from London in a special train. The King wore an admiral's uniform with a riband of the Order of the Garter. The Prince of Wales was in a midshipmen's uniform. The Queen, Princess Mary and nearly all of the royal ladies were dressed in navy blue. With Their Majesties were all the other members of the imperial family.

Never has such an armada been brought together for review by a monarch as was assembled in the narrow waters of the Solent on this, the navy's day in the round of coronation pageantry.

Ranged in a parallelogram six miles in length and two miles broad floated 127 British warships and 18 foreign vessels, representing 17 nations.

The aggregate tonnage of the British craft alone was over one million, as compared with a little more than one-half of those present at Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee review in 1897. This aggregation of British Dreadnoughts and smaller sisters represented approximately the huge outlay of $400,000,000, while, if the value of the eighteen foreign warships is added, there was moored in this historic roadstead of Spithead an international war fleet representing a total initial expenditure of $500,000,000.

Dressed from stem to stern in a riot of bunting, the grey lines of the warships with a background formed by the blue coast line of the Isle of Wight, made a magnificent spectacle. A strong southwesterly breeze blowing across the anchorage raised a choppy sea and incidentally conflicting emotions in many among the scores of thousands of spectators who viewed the scene from the multitude of beflagged excursion craft crowding the roadstead.

At noon picket boats from all the warships covered the review area like a flight of gulls warning off the fleet of excursion vessels, and from then on until the King's yacht weighed anchor for a return to the harbor, none but official craft were within the lines.

The sun was shining brightly when King George and Queen Mary with their brilliant suites left the naval port aboard the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. The Trinity yacht Irene led the way and the Victoria and Albert was followed in line by His Majesty's yacht Alexandra, the Admiralty yacht Enchantress, and the commander-in-chief's yacht Fire Queen.

An additional convoy of four torpedo-boat destroyers picked up the royal yachts before they reached the review waters, and showed the way up and down the lines of fleet. As the Victoria and Albert approached she gave a signal for a salute and immediately the guns of the warships thundered a welcome to the King.

At the completion of the royal progress of the Victoria and Albert, and the Alexandra, the latter with the foreign envoys together with the accompanying vessels, took up their moorings in a group.

His Majesty then received the British flag-officers and foreign flag-officers, and the commanders of all foreign warships not carrying a flag officer.

London, June 26.—According to the program arranged by the Foreign Office, last evening was set aside for the entertainment by the resident diplomats of the special representatives of their countries. All the embassies and legations, therefore, gave dinners which were largely family affairs.

That at the German embassy was the most brilliant, Crown Princess and Prince Henry of Prussia and the Princess being the principal guests.

Catholic and Free Churches in London, as well as the English churches, held coronation thanksgiving services. That at the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Westminster was unusually impressive. It was the first opportunity for more than two centuries that the English Catholics had had of joining their fellow-countrymen in rejoicing at the coronation of a monarch, without feeling resentment that the dead hand of bygone prejudice made it the occasion one of condemnation of the central tenet of their faith.

It was a notable and large congregation, including the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl Marshal of the coronation ceremonies, who is the leader of the English Catholics, with many members of the House of Howard; the Earl of Denbigh, Lord Francard, many members of Parliament, members of the aristocracy.

After the Pope's envoy, who was the celebrant, surrounded by dignitaries of the cathedral, knelt at the high altar and offered prayers for the King and Queen.

Later Archbishop Bourne gave a luncheon in honor of the envoy. The Duke of Norfolk and other distinguished personages were guests.

The King and Queen will return to London to-day to face another active week of festivities, including gala performances at the opera and His Majesty's theatre, another royal progress through North London, a children's fete at the Crystal Palace, a garden party at Buckingham Palace and numerous important social functions.

LOS ANGELES MAN AS A SACRIFICE

Offers to Die in Place of Soo Murderess.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 26.—Dr. H. S. Tanner of this city, 82 years old, "the original 40-day faster," has offered himself as a substitute for Mrs. Angelino Napolitano, who is under sentence of death at Sault Ste. Marie, His offer follows:

To the Hon. Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, Ottawa:

Dear Sir,—An Aug. 9 of this year there is scheduled to be hanged in Sault Ste. Marie prison one Mrs. Angelino Napolitano, sentenced to die because she killed her husband to protect her honor.

Her death will leave four children now living motherless. It will also orphan a month-old babe, yet to be born.

Her execution will be nothing short of murder—the foulest blot on the criminal annals of yours or any other country.

Permit me to offer myself as a substitute for Mrs. Napolitana. May my life be taken that the law may be appeased without robbing five young children, one a month-old babe, of a mother.

Awaiting instructions from your honor, I remain, yours very truly,

BONES OF 1812 HEROES BURIED

Remains of Four British Soldiers Interred at Niagara.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 26.—An event of great historical interest took place yesterday morning when Brig.-Gen. W. H. Cotton and his staff, with an escort of soldiers from the camp and the Canadian Army Service Corps band, crossed the river to participate in the burial of the bones of the four soldiers of the King's Eighth Infantry, unearthed at Fort Niagara.

The United States soldiers stationed at the fort, the 29th U. S. Infantry, turned out under command of Mayor Henry D. Styer, the post commandant. At 11 o'clock the columns marched off with the C.A.S.C. band at the head, followed by the American Infantry and the Canadian non-commissioned officers. Gen. Cotton with his staff and escort brought up the rear.

Halting in front of the fort chapel, the bones of the four soldiers were brought out in a single casket on the shoulders of six stalwart U. S. sergeants. Marching to the doleful dirge of the Dead March the cortege proceeded to the old military cemetery just outside of the walls of the fort, whose foundations were laid by the French, where the casket was slowly lowered into the grave.

The services were held by Rev. Mr. Capp of the Ninth Regiment, assisted by Rev. S. R. Wood, chaplain at Fort Niagara, and Capt. Baynes-Reed, chaplain of the 9th Mississauga Horse. After the burial service was read a firing party from the 29th U. S. Infantry fired three volleys over the grave, and four Canadian buglars, Sergt.-Major M. Caughan of the 35th Regiment, Sergt.-Major Elton, R.C.D.; Trumpeter Foster, G.G.B.G., and Trumpeter Simpkins, R.C.D., sounded the last post.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA ARE IN SESSION

St. Catharines, June 26.—St. Catharines Chapter-General of the Knights of Malta in Canada met in annual session here yesterday. There were a large number of delegates from Toronto, Hamilton, London and St. Catharines. The meeting was held in the Knights of Malta Hall and Grand Master E. Collett, Toronto, presided. Other officers in attendance were C. Nash, Toronto, grand lieutenant; Alex. Johnson, West Toronto, grand pilot; Dr. Burns, East Toronto, grand captain guard; A. G. Harwood, Toronto, grand chancellor.

The principal business on Saturday was consideration of amendments to the constitution.

Yesterday at 11 o'clock Sir Knights paraded at St. Barnabas Church, where special services were held and a sermon preached by Rev. de la Rosa.

Crystal Palace For Sale.

New York, June 26.—London's crystal palace, which for more than half a century has been England's great show place, is advertised for sale in announcements which are being sent to real estate firms and wealthy men in this country, as well as Great Britain. The announcement is qualified with the statement that "It is earnestly hoped that some one may come forward and save the crystal palace for the people." The property includes about 200 acres, valued at $7,000,000.

The palace has not been a financial success in recent years. Its inaccessibility has prevented it being used for many popular entertainments, while the growth of new amusement centres has withdrawn much of the old-time patronage.

No Fatalities, But Many Have Limbs Broken—Hundreds Tumble Into Debris Underneath.

Montreal, June 26.—Through the collapse of a wharf at King Edward Park, a pleasure resort on Isle Gros Bois, 12 miles from here, between fifty and sixty people were injured and the wildest excitement caused throughout the city.

The disaster occurred at 7 o'clock, when the wharf was packed with hundreds of pleasure-seekers awaiting the ferry boat which would carry them back to Montreal.

The only warning was a crackling of strained timbers a few seconds before the whole centre of the wharf caved in. The people tried frantically to retreat, but so large was the crowd that escape was impossible and hundreds plunged downwards in the midst of shattered beams and planks.

The exact nature of the accident was then not known and every ambulance in the city was hastened to the city pier, while rumors of 30 and 40 killed were spread everywhere. At the park, meanwhile, cooler heads organized those who had escaped the cave-in and the victims were extricated from the debris, while petticoats and handkerchiefs were hurriedly torn into bandages to do duty until the doctors should arrive. As rapidly as possible the injured were placed on the ferry boats, but it was after midnight before the last of the injured had been removed to the city.

So far no deaths have been reported, the worst cases being broken legs and ribs. About twenty cases were removed to the hospitals, the others being sent home after the wounds had been dressed.

The park has just been opened for the season after a great deal of new construction work having been done. Over ten thousand people visited it on Sunday.

No official statement has been made by the proprietors of the park.

Two Trampled by Horse.

Shedden, Ont., June 26.—William Stafford, a farmer near this village, was seriously injured by being trampled by a horse that he was leading. He had his ear almost severed and his shoulder dislocated. A boy in a nearby field, who went to the rescue, fared still worse. He was rendered unconscious from injuries received, and was taken to St. Thomas' Hospital. It is feared he may not recover.

BISHOP CLARK IS CONSECRATED

New Head of Niagara Diocese is Installed.

Hamilton, June 26.—Ven. William Reid Clark, M.A., was consecrated Anglican Bishop of Niagara, in Christ's Church Cathedral here Saturday morning. The ceremonies incident to the event were most impressive and were participated in by the Archbishop of Ottawa; the bishops of Huron, Ontario, Toronto and Algoma, Rev. Canon Abbott and a large number of the clergy of the diocese. The cathedral was well filled with spectators, but not crowded.

The consecration service began at 11 o'clock, when the Archbishop of Ottawa, the bishops, their chaplains, and the clergy, all fully robed, entered the cathedral to the strains of the processional hymn. The communion service was administered by the Archbishop of Ottawa, and the presentation of the epistle by the Lord Bishop of Huron. The gospel was read by the Lord Bishop of Algoma.

TWO AERONAUTS ARE DROWNED

Elmira Man Kills Himself.

Elmira, June 26.—G. Haemacker, aged 24, committed suicide Saturday afternoon at his boarding house by cutting his throat in three places with a razor, which was found under the lounge where he was found. At times he appeared to be very despondent, and no doubt this was the cause of his taking his life. He left a note bidding his friends good-bye, but gave no cause for the deliberate act. Coroner Schultz view the body and considered an inquest unnecessary. His body will be taken to Preston for burial.

A Generous Gift.

St. Catharines, June 26.—H. E. McSley, treasurer of the St. Catharines General and Marine Hospital, has received a letter accompanied by a check for $1,000 from David B. Mills, a St. Catharines' old boy, who has recently been visiting his native city. The money is to be added to the proceeds of the fair of nations, which will be held this week in the armories here in aid of the hospital.

YOUTH LOST HIS LIFE IN FIRE

Parents and Other Children Had Narrow Escape.

(Special to the Review.

Montreal, June 26.—Verdun Rouleau, the five-year-old son of A. C. Rouleau, Wellington street, lost his life in a fire, which destroyed the home this morning at an early hour. The parents and several other children narrowly escaped with their lives.

FRENCH LIFE IN ONTARIO

Species of Armed Peace, Says This Judge.

Justice all Round in Quebec, But Not in Ontario.

Montreal, June 26.—The celebration of St. Jean Baptiste Day here terminated with the holding of a large banquet, at which prominent French-Canadians from all over Canada and the United States were present.

Mony important subjects were brought up by the speakers.

Mr. Justice Constantineau of Ontario drew a contrast between conditions prevailing in this province and in the Province of Ontario. Here the minority lived in peace with the majority, because justice was given all round. In Ontario, though the French-Canadian minority lived in peace, a species of armed peace it was. In the great work of opposing assimilation all along the line, French-Canadians of Quebec should be the guiding star of their compatriots throughout all the provinces of the Dominion as well as in the United States.

Armand Lavergne, M.P.P., opened with an attack upon the policy of immigration now being pursued. This was threatening to swamp French-Canadians.

Oliver Asselin, in taking up the situation in Maine, declared that matters were critical there for French-Canadians. A bishop had closed a parochial school because the French was there taught, and a similar course had been taken in regard to a bilingual school. French-Canadians must needs resist such tactics, which were patiently designed to efface their race.

ONE THOUSAND MORE ON STRIKE

Sailors Reinforced and May Get Railway Men.

Special to the Review,

London, June 26.—The sailors strike assumed alarming proportions to-day when one thousand employees of the companies who have not met the demand for increased wages, walked out. There are now more men out than at any time since the inception of the strike. Railway men are discussing the question of a sympathetic strike.

Lancaster Chosen.

St. Catharines, June 26—Enthusiasm reigned at the convention of Lincoln County Conservative Association held in Standard Hall Saturday for nomination of a candidate for the Dominion House in the coming Dominion elections. Upwards of 250 delegates were present from the city and every part of the county.

The unanimous choice of the meeting as next candidate was the old stalwart E. A. Lancaster, K.C., M.P., who for the past twelve years has borne the standard in this county, defeating Hon. Senator William Gibson in 1900, after the latter had held the seat four years.

Great Britain Wants to Know.

Paris, June 26.—A despatch to The Temps from Madrid says that the Spanish Cabinet having replied vaguely to the request from Great Britain to explain her intentions in connection with the occupation of El-Araish and Alcazar, England has asked Spain to give the British Government more precise information concerning Spain's Moroccan program.

A reply to the second enquiry has not yet been received.

Runaway Caused by Auto.

St. Catharines, June 26.—While returning home at 5.30 Saturday evening a young boy named Walter Schumaker, 10 years old, who lives in Louth Township, was thrown out of the buggy in which he was driving and badly injured. The horse took fright at a passing automobile and galloped down the hill, dashing into the curbing at the residence of Dr. Taylor, who found an arm broken, the wrist injured, and the young lad otherwise badly shaken up. After his injuries had been dressed the boy was taken to his home in Louth.

A Handsome Booklet

C. R. Wilson, of the Review press room, has issued a very neat and compact pocket guide and directory of Peterborough, containing names of streets, churches, a list of the industries, fire alarm boxes, parks, schools, time tables, lift lock information, etc. These guides are very serviceable and may be secured free from the leading merchants of the city.

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color, and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys, and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, in yellow boxes, 25c. per box, from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

THE SERVANT QUESTION

Things have indeed made great progress in the emancipation of the down-trodden and much maligned Bridget of kitchen and policeman fame. In one country, at least, no longer shall Bridget do the dusting, and sweep the floors, and mop the kitchen floor, and perform sundry other menial tasks, unless she is guaranteed by official label that the poor working-woman who employs her is able to give a "character certificate."

In Australia a servant will insist upon a mistress producing a certificate of character and references as to the kind of employer she is, before accepting the job of having her mornings, afternoons and evenings off while the lady of the house does the work. Hitherto, the certificate of character has been required of the servant; now the shoe is on the other foot, the tables are turned, and conditions are reversed.

This new dispensation is a great step forward. We have always held that it was wrong to expect a servant to demonstrate that she is all right. It is most necessary that the mistress shall be of good character, in order that the Bridgets' reputation for keeping only first-class employers may not be damaged. It is so embarrassing to the aesthetic souls to have to endure the lack of refinement, the lack of breeding and gentility, the common or garden variety of mistress so often exhibits in Bridget's presence. If the lady of the house will give references that she is amiable, willing to perform the household work, and willing to provide an automobile for a morning's spin, the drawing-room for an afternoon call, the silverware for an evening entertainment of Bridget's friends, Bridget will accept the post provided always that she is not held responsible for the quality of her mistress' callers.

The Australian servants evidently have the right idea as to elevating the tone of society. Knowing that her character and record will be minutely examined, every mistress who wants to pay a girl to help use the trappings of the house, will be very careful to observe every rule of propriety. It doesn't matter much what the neighbors say. They always put a bad construction on everything they see, anyway; so that is to be expected. But they say no man is a hero to his valet; and it has been said that no woman is good in the eyes of a servant. In spite of all the poor women can do, servants will persist in exacting still more time and attention. Some of them make so much work for their mistress that it is a wonder how the poor woman ever bears up under the burden. In these latter days, O Bridget, if you want to join the four hundred, or the upper ten, and qualify for real society, just get the applicants for your services lined up in a row, and after proper cross-examination and searching investigation with the grocers and butchers of the town as advisers, make your selection of the mistress who is the least worst of the lot.

INDUSTRY GETTING

The president of the Standard Cable company has given for publication the reasons why his concern decided to establish in Hamilton, its half million dollar factory. The official says:

"In reply to your inquiry as to why we chose Hamilton as the location for our new plant for the manufacture of electrical wires and cables in Canada, I beg to say that we believe it to possess to a degree not excelled elsewhere, and not equalled in many cities the requisite facilities for assembling the great variety of raw materials entering into our products, and for distributing our manufactures by rail and water to all parts of Canada and the British colonies.

"We also found the labor conditions favorable, both from a point of view of high average intelligence and freedom from labor troubles.

The excellent manufacturing site which you were able to procure for us at a reasonable cost, with ideal railroad connections, cheap electrical power and water, and reasonable assessments and tax rates, were also important features influencing our decision.

"Your city is a splendid manufacturing city already, and will undoubtedly always maintain a prominent position among the foremost of Canada's manufacturing communities.

"I take this occasion to express my high opinion of the businesslike and progressive character of the gentlemen whom we had the pleasure of meeting while investigating conditions in your city as to its eligibility for our purposes, as well as my sincere appreciation of the manner in which the newspapers, the city officials and members of the city council co-operated in furthering our investigations, and in meeting the wishes of the company in every way."

Is there not a little hint in this for Peterborough consumption? Here is an American branch of a big concern coming to Canada. These are the reasons why it selected Hamilton. Much of what is said of Hamilton in a favorable sense can also be said of Peterborough. Labor conditions are favorable in Peterborough, manufacturing sites are comparatively reasonable in price, railroad facilities are very fair, assessments and taxation are reasonable, and this city can be described as one of the best manufacturing cities of its size in Canada.

The fact that Peterborough cannot show such a number and variety of steel and iron industries and allied manufactories may militate in favor of Hamilton in this one line, but as compared with St. Catharines, Galt, Guelph, Stratford, Brantford, Kingston, Peterborough can most assuredly make a very favorable showing indeed.

It might be mentioned here that Guelph passed the Independent Tire company proposition, the details of the organization of which do not appear as roseate as were promised when the company sought to get an endorsement from Peterborough. The Jules company is also apparently trying to get settled in Guelph, but neither of these is a brilliant catch by any means. Hamilton laid the foundation of great industrial progress, not with a publicity commissioner, but with an industrial committee of three, independent of the city, handling an appropriation for entertaining and receptions without having to render an account. This industrial committee was composed of John Patterson, and two other gentlemen, all prominent business men interested in booming the city.

Of course Peterborough has its board of trade, but boards of trade are usually dead ones, and it has a manufacturers' committee that might do good work, and has done it. But the only way to get industries in the face of present-day fierce competition is to have a particularly qualified official give his WHOLE TIME to the work, and be more concerned about the factory-getting end of the business than playing for the favor of any body of citizens or the council.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The letter of "Reader" on the subject of candidates for the coming elections is not published for the same old reason—no name is signed with the communication.

The rumors that the Liberal Dominion candidate in West Peterborough will not be Mr. Stratton are very interesting, but the chances are that election day will find him doing business at the same old stand.

President Taft says that the time for the Chinese wall between Canada and the United States has gone by. Well, there's nothing to prevent the United States from taking away the barbed-wire fence it put up behind that Chinese wall as a moral support.

Those enterprising Americans who offer to take the place of the Soo woman who is under death sentence, would probably think twice if they thought their offer would be accepted. The world might be better off if the exchange were made.

The Toronto Star says that Borden's outspokenness has undoubtedly helped him with the western farmers. At this rate Borden cannot qualify as being as "mealy-mouthed" as the Catholic Register says the Star is.

The Burlington railway system has asked its employees to make up $250,000 loss sustained through a big wreck a few weeks ago. The ten dollar a week employee will feel like a millionaire at the idea of the railroad coming to him to help it out financially.

Five new racing tracks in Ontario are proposed, but it is not likely they will be given licenses, in spite of the fact that the moral reformers won't oppose them. The racing at the existing tracks is usually sufficient to relieve the sports of their superfluous cash without addition to it.

The practice of decorating the graves of the departed brethren is a happy one, and the Oddfellows might well be imitated in this by other societies. Those who pass into the life beyond are all too soon forgotten. Anything that recalls the reflection that we all are facing the same end, and makes us think seriously of whither we go serves a good purpose.

His reverend nibs of the Toronto Globe writes an article in an English publication in which he says that the loyalty of the colonies is the loyalty of equals—not any old-time notion of empire, but a new-born ideal. This is very consoling to Canadians. We really need someone to assert our status, and tell old John Bull that we are willing to acknowledge him as our equal.

LIVERPOOL, June 24.—As a result of the American market yesterday opening here easy, ⅛d to ¼d lower, and further declined ¼d to ⅜d. During the early trading there was some disposition to support, owing to predictions of lighter world's shipments. Corn opened ¼d lower and further declined ¼d on the continued free European offers and lower offers of parcels.

CHAPTER I.

"NO; I'll not give 'em a raise of 3 cents an hour nor of a cent an hour; nary a raise, understand. And I don't want you to come here thinking you can bulldoze me, because you'll find mighty quick you're mistaken. If any man thinks he can do that I want to see him."

The words, uttered in a wrathful bellow, came through the closed door of the president's room and were heard by every employee and visitor in the main office of the Latin-American Steamship company, which occupied an entire floor of a big building in Bowling Green, New York city.

Some of the employees smiled and passed the remark that the boss "had 'em bad" that day, but the smiles were of the sickly, apprehensive order, for the fact that he was in execrable humor was perfectly well known to each and all, having been impressed upon them very forcibly at intervals from the minute the great man had made his appearance with his unvarying punctuality as the clock struck 9 a. m. Others scowled and kept their reflections to themselves.

The voices of the other parties to the conversation were not audible to the listeners, but that of the president, with its all penetrating roar, burst forth again:

"I don't give a tin whistle what you or your unions do, understand. Let 'em strike, strike and be d——d. But you tell 'em this from me—that any man who's fool enough to throw up his job does so for good and all. He'll never work again for the Latin-American Steamship company in this or any other port. I'll take care of that. I'll show 'em who and what I am if they don't know."

The door opened, and two white faced, intimidated men emerged, cap in hand. They were rough looking men, evidently laborers inured to the hardest kind of work. They shuffled quickly past the neatly dressed clerks and did not breathe freely until they found themselves in the cross streams of hurrying passersby on the street. There, as they mopped their brows and looked around for a saloon, something of the arrogant insolence with which they had demanded audience of the head of the company and which had been speedily cowed out of them by that formidable and choleric personage returned to them.

Meanwhile at the open door of the room in which they had been through the ordeal of their interview Captain Amos Williams, president and general manager of the line, glared after his departing visitors and round the office. There was dead silence, and every employee, from the highest to the office boys, impudent and irrepressible there, as everywhere else, save when Captain Williams was nigh, became deeply engrossed in his work.

"Call up Mr. Smith and tell him I want to see him at once," he growled to no one in particular. Then he reentered his room and slammed the door.

In a few minutes, however, his bell rang, and a boy responded to it with an alacrity not customary in any other office in all New York.

"Tell Mr. Brooks to come here," was the order he received.

The boy hurried out and approached one of the men behind the brass lattice screens.

"Mr. Brooks, the captain wants you," he announced.

Mr. Brooks did not reply, but he got down leisurely and with bad grace from his stool and moved with equal deliberation to the president's room.

"Brooks, has Fernandez & Co., that Pernambuco firm, been heard from yet?" demanded his employer.

"Check came today," was the laconic reply.

"Full amount?"

"Yes, four thousand eight hundred and seventy-five."

"All right. That's all."

Brooks went out, closing the door behind him, and returned to his desk. He was in a bad temper himself and made no effort to conceal it, for a sullen scowl marred his handsome and usually genial face. Not only was Joseph Brooks handsome, but a rather distinguished looking young fellow, whose clothes sat well and becomingly upon him, albeit they were somewhat shiny from wear and from ironing by inexpert hands at home. And if his collars and cuffs also were just a trifle the worse for wear at least they were immaculately clean.

"Cheer up!" admonished one of his fellow clerks, noticing his ill humor. Brooks' moods were never taken seriously, for with him fits of despondency alternated with a contagious cordiality and an optimism that knew no limit. Of late, however, his spells of gloominess had become wearisomely frequent, and usually they were accompanied by a nervous irritability.

"Cheer up?" he answered, with some heat. "I don't see any reason for cheering up, and I don't feel like cheering up. Did you hear how the brute received those delegates of the Longshoremen's union because they asked him to add a little to their starvation pay to help them keep skin and bone together? Why shouldn't he raise them? Why shouldn't he raise all of us? He's reeking with money, doesn't know what to do with it, yet what does he do but grind us down—grind and grind and grind—grind us as a grain of wheat is ground to powder between the millstones—grind us with his heel, squeezing from us the very sap of brain and life that he may add to his pile."

The clerks near him had listened to this outbreak with amused surprise.

"Well," said the man who had addressed him before, "I haven't noticed

"I hope the longshoremen do strike!"

you sweating blood to any extent under the grinding process."

"Jenkins, you're a—a camel," retorted Brooks. "For a wisp of hay you'd let yourself be loaded till the last straw broke your back, and then you'd lick the hand that crushed you."

"Sure," said Jenkins enthusiastically. "Anybody can load me up that wants to."

"And I'll back his liquid capacity to equal that of any camel," chimed in another clerk, while every one within earshot grinned.

"Oh, you can laugh," grumbled Brooks, "but it doesn't alter the truth of what I say. It's men like him that have made our society today what it is, a soulless, heartless, oppressive civilization in which Croesuses walk roughshod over the men who are down and thrust them deeper into the slough with one foot as they climb higher and higher to the power that the possession of inconceivable wealth carries with it."

"'Twas ever thus!" sighed Jenkins. "But there is yet hope. Our Joseph hath received a call to uplift the downtrod."

"How did he get it? What is his record?" went on Brooks, ignoring the interruption. "Why, he started out as a sealer or a south Pacific trader, which in those days was the same as being a pirate, and you know and I know that his name was a terror to sailormen from San Francisco to Australia. He made his first money by bullying and ill treating other men and killing them, too, on occasion. It's a matter of common knowledge. And he's been a buccaneer ever since. Didn't he bunko and sandbag my father-in-law out of control of this company? And what has he done since then but act the brutal tyrant over everybody connected with it, beating us down to the lowest wage a —— can exist on that he may add to his dirty heap, running this office with fist, boot and rope end as though it were his lawless ship and we were his groveling Lascar crew. I hope the longshoremen do strike! They would be doing humanity a service if they'd fill him full of bullets."

"There's a lot of truth in what Brooks says," assented a youthful clerk in low tones, looking around cautiously as he did so.

"Well, after all, I don't see that you've got such a fierce kick coming," observed Jenkins to the disgruntled orator.

"You don't, eh?" sneered Brooks. "You think $20 a week is big pay for an accountant and collector who's handled half the money of the line for five years, eh?"

"No; I mean that you are at least solid with the boss and sure of your job, which is more than anybody else here is, and that you stand to become an officer high up in the company one of these days. Williams is a friend of your family, isn't he? You yourself have boasted often that he visits you and your wife."

"That's just it. The swine takes advantage of his relations with my wife's people to keep me down and rub it in. Other people get their salary raised, but I don't. Do you call that a square deal?"

"It hardly seems so, but perhaps there's a reason. He may have some object that will appear in due course, and you'll go up several numbers at one sweep. In the meantime," continued Jenkins, lowering his voice, "I wouldn't let on like you have this afternoon if I were you, Joe. It can't do any good and might do you a deal of harm. You don't know who might hear you, and the boss somehow knows everything that goes on in the office."

"I don't care," affirmed Brooks sulkily. "I'd just as lief tell him to his face what I think of him, and, by gum, I will one of these days, darn him!"

"All right," laughed Jenkins. "I hope I'll be around at the time so that I can perform for you the last sad rite of gathering up your scattered remains. Ah, here's Jimmy Smith!"

CHAPTER II.

JAMES SMITH, superintendent of the Latin-American Steamship company's docks, had arrived in response to the president's summons, conveyed to him by the telephone. Smith, known to his familiars as Jimsy, was a tall, gaunt, angular man, bearing all over him the stamp of westerner. He was, in fact, from Colorado, where he began his active career by engaging in mining. Scant success attended his efforts in this direction, however, and after working with the dogged determination that was one of his traits until even his patience was exhausted he finally entered the employ of the steamship company in whose service he had risen to his present position, with headquarters in New York.

There was something about Smith that caused men, and women also, for that matter, to take to him on sight. The unbounded good nature, big heartedness and unselfishness beaming in his blue eyes and in his whimsical smile were written in every line of his clean shaven face. Another thing that made him remarked by all who came in contact with him was his absolute imperturbability. In all his thirty-seven years of existence he never had been known to "get a move on," not even when a premature blast in a mine had sent the diggers helter skelter for safety and carried death and suffering to many. Smith had walked tranquilly away amid the rain of rock and earth until it was all over. Then he had returned and organized the work of rescue, his placidity causing the others instinctively to look to him for direction. Nor was his speech more hurried than were his movements. He spoke but little, and then his words came in a quiet, even, distinct drawl. But he "got there" as quickly as most men, and a good deal quicker than some whose nerves were highly strung and with whom rapidity of action was as necessary as breathing, for he was possessed of keen powers of observation and common sense, an earnestness of purpose that gave his utterances weight and an integrity as unshakable as the rock of Gibraltar. As a fitting, almost necessary, complement of such a nature he was added not a little to the attraction he exercised for those who knew him sufficiently well to be able to appreciate his qualities of heart and mind.

He took a calm, all embracing survey of the office as he entered, looked over to Brooks' desk and saluted him with a cordial motion of the hand and instructed a boy to notify Captain Williams of his arrival. He was ushered immediately into the chief's presence.

That worthy, who, like his superintendent, was clean shaven, was seated at his desk in his shirt sleeves, and the whole room, despite the wide open windows, was thick from the smoke from an old blackened corncob pipe at which he was puffing vigorously. He was a burly man, and the short, thick neck, the broad shoulders, the powerful, big jointed fingers and the muscles that stood out in bunches on the hairy arms disclosed by his rolled up shirt sleeves denoted that he possessed unusual physical strength. An ugly man to get into an argument with was Williams, one who, it needed no mind reader to judge, would be capable of following the word with a blow that would crush an ordinary opponent. For years, as Brooks had intimated, he had led the roughest life a man can lead, hammering by sheer brute strength a way to wealth by ways in which scruple had counted for nothing at all and expediency for a good deal, and his entrance upon a higher plane of civilization had not imparted much polish to his appearance, habits or speech, which were those of the old time sailing ship mariner, although of late years he had striven to conform more closely to the examples of refinement he witnessed in the only polite society he cared for, which was that of the family of his dead friend, Stanley Harris, who was general manager of the Latin-American line when he obtained control of it. He had a way of glaring at a person from under his bushy eyebrows with a scrutiny that seemed to read through and up and down him and made him most ill at ease under it.

He made his decisions promptly, authoritatively, after the manner of a man accustomed to command and to be obeyed without question, and he never changed them, at least in his business and administrative dealings. Add to all this a voice like a foghorn, the effect of which, when he raised it, was, as he knew full well, to make his subordinates quake and to intimidate others who had to do with him, and it will be realized that he lived up fully to his reputation of being a hard man.

For his quiet, unmovable and thoroughly capable dock superintendent he entertained a certain respect. He knew from experience that the man was not the least bit afraid or even disturbed by his bullying manner and his bellowing and that his glare, always squarely met, had no more effect upon him than it would have upon the bronze statue of Washington which stands sentinel on the steps of the subtreasury in Wall street.

Smith lowered himself slowly and easily into a big armchair beside the president's desk.

"Two delegates from the Longshoremen's union were here just now," announced the captain. "They say the freight handlers are going to strike."

"Ya-as?" said Smith interrogatively.

"Yes. What do you know about it?"

"Nothing, except that they came to me with a demand for higher pay for the men. I referred them to you."

"Well, I didn't leave 'em any loophole for doubt as to my position in the matter."

"You turned them down?"

"Turned 'em down! Of course. What do you think? Suppose I handed 'em a raise on a silver platter and bowed 'em out of the door?"

"I don't suppose anything about it. I'm asking for information."

"Them two blatherskites came swaggering and blustering in here and said every last one of the men would quit tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock unless they got 3 cents more an hour. They wasn't swaggering when they went out of here, I tell you. I pretty soon took the starch out of 'em."

A faint smile flitted over the superintendent's face, but he ventured no remark.

"I told 'em," Williams went on, "that I wouldn't give 'em a cent a century more and to strike and be d——d. I also told 'em that any man who did go out would never get another job with this company, and, by Sam, he won't!"

The captain's voice had risen to a roar, and he brought his fist down on the desk with such force that pens and pencils went flying in all directions and the ink splashed from the wells in their solid crystal stand.

Most Canadians Have Catarrh

Our Changeable Climate Is Responsible.

Where the atmosphere is damp, with sudden changes in temperature, almost everybody has Catarrh, in some form or other. The ordinary cold in the head inflames and weakens the membranes lining the nose and throat, and starts a discharge. The next cold is more easily caught, and soon the patient is never quite free of it.

As Catarrh develops the discharge increases—drops into the throat, especially at night—and takes on an offensive odor. Besides being exceedingly disagreeable, there is great danger of the disease extending to the lungs, stomach, or bowels.

Though it is very difficult to cure, Father Morriscy devised a combined internal and external treatment that has cured thousands. The Tablets tone up and invigorate the system, and assist Nature in throwing off the disease, while the salve, applied up the nostrils, clears out the discharge and heals the membranes. Combined treatment, 50c at your dealer's, or from Father Morriscy Medicine Co., Ltd., Montreal, Que.

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP AND CHRISTIAN PATRIOTISM

Two Timely Sermons by Rev. G. W. Henderson at Charlotte St. Church.

"Every man should take a deep interest in public affairs. Every citizen should know something of the constitution of his country and take some interest in politics. Ballots should be cast for principle and not for party, and men should be incapable of being bought or bull-dozed. We must have a proper sense of the sanctity of the ballot, regarding it as holy and bribery as a sacrilege. It is one of the most precious privileges and greatest responsibilities that rests upon manhood."

Two splendid sermons were delivered by Rev. Geo. Henderson, in Charlotte Street Methodist Church, on Sunday morning and evening, his subjects being Christian citizenship and Christian Patriotism.

In dealing with the former in the morning, he urged all men to take an active and intelligent interest in municipal and political matters, and made a strong plea for the purifying of the ballot. Principle he said, should not be sacrificed for party, and the man who put his party before what he thought might be in the best interests of his country, was not doing the best for his country.

His evening sermon, "Christian Patriotism," was also a strong forcible exposition of the principles of every patriotic Christian. The text of the discourse was taken from verses 5, 6, of the 137th Psalm, "If I forget thee O Jerusalem let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth."

CULTIVATE PATRIOTISM

"We do well to cultivate the patriotic spirit," said the pastor. "A well-known writer has said that the man without a country is nobody. Forty-four years the confederation of the provinces took place, and the Dominion of Canada came into existence. To-day we are only beginning to realize the noble heritage God has given us. To-day we boast of a country stretching from sea to sea, equal in size to the continent of Europe."

"In the West 50,000,000 of people will yet find homes," was the remark of Mr. J.J. Hill recently.

"We believe that Canada possesses the elements of true and abiding prosperity. The climatic conditions are almost ideal and the seasons are well defined. Some one has said that Canadian air has splendid tonic properties. Some of our brothers across the sea have even yet vague ideas as to conditions in Canada, many still believing it to be a land of frozen lakes, snow and continual cold. In mineral and agricultural wealth, the country is also fabulously rich, and there are yet vast areas of unbroken virgin soil. The commerce that moves upon the Great Lakes is already marvellous, although only in its infancy. Besides a splendid educational system the country can boast of a government that grants her citizens civil and religious liberty, second to none, and perhaps best of all, we have the good fortune of belonging to perhaps the greatest Empire the world has ever seen, and on which the sun never sets.

TRUE PATRIOTISM

"We love the flags above us as the emblem of justice and liberty. But there are some things more essential than what has been enumerated for the upbuilding of a nation's life. We must develop a spirit of patriotism. This does not consist of processions, the beating of drums, and fireworks. True patriotism is something larger than all this effervescent manifestation. The gun is all right in its place, but as long as our boys and girls are taught that the gun and the soldier are the only symbols of patriotism, then such a condition is sad.

"Patriotism is a love of one's country, its laws and the test of it is the readiness to serve and abide by its laws."

"A man must take a deep interest in public affairs. Every citizen should know something of the constitution of his country. He should take some interest in politics and to hold aloof from them is a mistake. Ballots should be cast for principle and not for party, and men should be incapable of being bull-dozed or bought. We must have a proper sense of the sanctity of the ballot, regarding it as holy and bribery to be a sacrilege. It is one of the most precious privileges and greatest responsibilities that rests upon manhood. The only safe defence of a nation is the integrity of its people.

The sermon was very elevating and evidenced extreme thoughtfulness.

BIG CANDADIAN INDUSTRY IS ENLARGING ITS PLANT

Locomotive Company's Increasing Business Demands More Room.

The interest which Great Britain takes in Canada continues to show no abatement. For generations we have looked upon John Bull as our great banker and during the past few years his financial interest in Canada has been increasing. The latest example of British interest in Canadian industrial concerns is in the re-organization of the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston, Ontario. The present plant which has been turning out 75 locomotives a year has been found altogether too small to satisfy the demands of the railroads and it has been decided to at least double the capacity of the plant. To help finance the project a number of British capitalists are interesting themselves in the matter and at the same time a flotation of stock will be made in Canada.

It is very gratifying to Canadians that our industrial concerns are progressing at such a rate that they are forced to increase their capacity, and it is also gratifying to know that British financial men are eager to invest their money in such projects.

ANNUAL FLOWER SUNDAY AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

Bright Services With Sunday School Scholars Present in Morning

Yesterday was flower Sunday at George street church, and the observance of this annual event was fully as happy and effective as any that have preceded it. It is essentially a day for the children and for the Sunday school, and all entered most heartily into the spirit of the occasion. The scholars met in the school room half an hour before service and were afterwards seated in classes in the body of the church, the friends and parents and regular attendants occupying the gallery and transepts. When the large congregation was seated the church presented a beautiful sight, brightened with the profuse display of flowers and the bright gowns of the young girls and ladies. The orchestra of the school was added to the organ and swelled the musical part of the service with inspiring melody and music. The design in which contributions of flowers were displayed, was erected and arranged by Mr. T. Pratt and Mr. J. J. Hartley, and did credit to their taste and skill. As the offerings of flowers were brought forward they were affixed to the frame and presently it stood rounding the national flag and portraits of the King and Queen.

The service was appropriate and the hymns were joined in most heartily by the congregation. Mrs. Renwick sang a vocal solo during the offertory. Rev. Mr. Couch made an address to the children, using as illustrations the functions and growth of plant and tree life, and pointing out how these attributes were paralleled in our own life and growth and progress.

Rev. Isaac Couch in his sermon in the evening told the story of the fallen monarch, who had asked Queen Victoria what the secret of England's greatness was, and she at once said that the Bible was the secret and quoted the 105th verse of the 119th psalm. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." "The Bible has been a lamp unto England's feet and a light unto her path," said Rev. Mr. Couch. "The Bible is a revelation God has made of Himself unto man. The language is the fundamental distinction between man and beast. It is fitting that God, who gave us this distinction, should use it as a channel of communication between man and Himself."

Rev. Mr. Couch discussed at length the history of the language of the Bible, which was found in the palace of the king and in the cottage of the peasant.

The speaker said he must pay tribute to England's scholarship in this, the year of the crowning of King George V., king of the greatest country in the world. He spoke of Smith, Sanderson, Horton and many others who had done so much for the advancement of good literature. Old England was doing everything in her power for the advancement of literature.

Don't forget the lawn social at Curtis' brickyard to-morrow evening. 1d

DECORATION DAY OBSERVED IN THE CITY OF THE DEAD

Annual Service Held by the I. O. O. F.—Cemetery Presented Beautiful Sight.

Decoration Day was suitably and thoroughly observed by the citizens of Peterboro yesterday, and Little Lake cemetery it is safe to say had not presented for some time a prettier or more animated aspect. Of the hundreds upon hundreds of visitors, who thronged the grounds the entire day, the majority carried a floral tribute of some description to place upon the last resting place of some departed relative or friend as a token of their thoughtfulness and love. People for miles around in the vicinity of Peterboro also drove in; some on Saturday and many yesterday, and nearly all had their rigs and vehicles filled with beautiful floral designs of some nature to decorate graves.

In the afternoon the influx of visitors was undoubtedly the largest, and this time was chosen by most of the people as the most suitable and convenient time to visit the grounds.

Interest centred also in the visit of the Independent Order of Oddfellows who marched in a body to the cemetery and the attendance was perhaps the largest in its history at an affair of like nature. By actual count 230 were in the procession. The visiting order left their lodge rooms shortly after three o'clock and reached the grounds about 3.45. Headed by Col. Miller, who was in charge as marshall, and each man carrying a bouquet, the sight was most impressive.

The members lined up behind the chapel, where prayer was offered up by the chaplain, Brother Allen, of the Otonabee Lodge. Mr. David Moore P.G., who is a member of Unity Lodge 47, acted as Noble Grand, and announced that the ceremony of decorating the graves would be proceeded with. The Order then marched to the front of the chapel where Brother Moore gave the following address.

My Brethren,—We have taken part in a simple service whereby we have paid a tribute of respect to the memory of those brothers who have heard the call, which, sooner or later, we all must hear, and all must obey. Simple as this service has been, it is in keeping with and worthy of the high principles of the Order to which we belong and which we here represent. Instituted for purposes of self-help, and calculated to aid its members in the struggles incident to life, Oddfellowship does not allow death to terminate the fraternal relationships formed within its ranks. After the remains of a departed brother have been laid to rest, he still retains a claim on our affections. Through his bereaved and orphaned family, he still asks our sympathies and our material aid; and while he has himself passed beyond the need of these kindly benefactions we owe each other in life, he still holds a place in our memory and love.

As I now address you the thought occurs to me that the last time I raised my voice in the open air at a gathering under the auspices of our Order, was at the graveside of a Brother Oddfellow, whom I had loved in life, and whom I mourned in death. So one by one the links that bind us are severed here on earth, and I have no doubt that looking back over a long period of membership in our Order, many before me will recall the forms and faces of brothers once familiar in the lodge room in committees or other work of our Order, who, to-day, are not of our number, and

"Sigh for the touch of a vanished hand
And the sound of a voice that is still
Friend after friend departs,
Who hath not lost a friend;
There is no union here of hearts,
That hath not here an end."

It is well amid the grief that these partings occasion we have the assurance Though sorrow may endure for a season, joy cometh with the morning. It shall be no part of our task to pronounce eulogies on the lives of those in whose memory we have met. We have stood by the graves of our Brethren who have gone to their rest. Some have reposed beneath the sod for years and their names are almost forgotten by the world. Some have but lately been laid in their silent bed, and warm hearts are still grieving over their departure. But for all alike in sorrow and in love, we have come to-day to awake the thoughts of old associations, to call to memory the virtues of our departed brothers, and to lay on their graves the floral offerings that shall speak for us better than we can speak for ourselves. Wordsworth has said; "To me, the meanest flower that blows, can give thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears."

And as with thoughts quickened and sympathies aroused, we stand here now, is it not well that we should learn a practical lesson from it all. Let us resolve that while it is a good thing to scatter as we have to-day, flowers of rememberance on the graves of our departed ones, it is better still as we pursue our work, under the motto of "Friendship, Love, and Truth," that—

"By kindly word and loving deed,
And helping hand in time of need,"

we scatter flowers in the pathway of those with whom we come in contact, day by day. So shall our lives be a blessing to all we meet, and send forth a fragrance that shall live in memory long after we have passed away, sweeter than that of the flowers on this bright day of June.

Upon returning to the I.O.O.F. hall after the ceremony, the following votes of thanks were moved and carried.

To the cemetery board, for permission granted the holding of the ceremony of decoration and the courtesy shown the members of the committee.

To Rev. Canon Davidson for his kindness and sympathy in having the chimes ring during the progress of the ceremony.

To the acting Noble Grand, the Chaplain and Marshall for their services, also the committee who had charge of the arrangements, and to all who had assisted them in making Decoration Day a success. Visiting brothers congratulated the local lodges on the splendid gathering and the magnificence of the floral offerings. A good number of the brethren from the Lakefield lodge were present.

CHOIR GAVE FULL CHORAL SERVICE

At St. John's Church at Evensong —Outing on Wednesday

St. John's choir concluded a hard season's work by a full choral service last night at which over forty members were present. Notwithstanding the heat all the service was well rendered and the final number sung during the office was Handel's Coronation Anthem, Zadock the Priest. During the last nine months many standard works have been added to the library and a general improvement noticeable all along the line. At the conclusion of evensong last night the Rev. Canon Davidson and Mr. R. J. Devey spoke with gratitude of the faithful voluntary service of the whole of the choristers and wished them a pleasant day's outing on Wednesday. The choir will be accompanied by the clergy, wardens, Chancel Guild and many officials of the church, past and present. The arrangements are in the hands of Mr. H. W. Morphet and Mr. R. J. Devey.

At the morning service heartfelt reference was made to the departure of the late W. J. Coleman and Chopin's Funeral March was played on the organ at the conclusion of service.

CENTRALS WON FROM EAST CITY

After the regulars and Yannigans had played their game Saturday afternoon the Central T.A.S. beat the East City nine in an inter-Catholic league fixture.

The play was good in spots, but at times it bordered on the burlesque. Hickey did not let the East City brigade bunch their hits and was not at any time in much trouble.

Johnston, who opened for East City, struck out ten men in his five innings, but in the second Heffernan and Dergaber each broke in with a three-bagger. Guerin, who went in the box to relieve Johnston, struck out five men in the three last innings, but gave three hits in the sixth, which cost two runs, putting the Centrals on easy street.

W. O'Brien handled the indicator for the first six innings, when he retired in favor of F. D. Craig.

PROGRAM ON THE PEOPLES' CHIMES

In connection with the decoration ceremonies a program of appropriate selections was arranged and played upon the chimes from 4 to 5 p.m. The wind was blowing away from the cemetery, consequently the selections were not heard there, but they were heard in a great part of the city, and had the effect of reminding citizens of the significance of the day. The selections played were:

Days and moments quickly flying.
Hush, blessed are the dead
Shall we gather at the river.
O Paradise.
Safe in the arms of Jesus.
Nearer, My God, to Thee.
Blest be the tie that binds.

REGULARS AND PICKED TEAM HAD TIGHT GAME

Errors Beat Rahmal Who Allowed Only Two Hits

In one of the best games of baseball seen here this season, the regulars defeated "Happy" Brydie's picked aggregation Saturday afternoon by the narrow margin of one run, the score being 5—4.

The game developed into a pitcher's battle between Cresswell, for the "Regulars," and Rahmal for the "Stars." Each struck out two men in the ninth, when a hit meant a run. Both were stingy with their hits, Rahmal only allowing two throughout the game.

"Happy" is prepared to put his team against a picked aggregation from Port Hope and Cobourg. Judging from the class of ball dished up by the teams on their visits here, he could make good.

After Craig had been retired to centre field for a couple of juicy errors at short, he redeemed himself by tearing off a couple of nice running catches.

Guerin, in right garden for the regulars made the nicest catch of the day, when he picked off what looked like a threebagger from Rahmal.

"Big" Hefferman, who has been making the fans sit up at Ottawa held down the initial corner for the Yannigans. "Cressy" gave him one hit and struck him out once.

J. J. Dorris, the Midland league secretary, made a very satisfactory umpire.

TIGERISH TUNAS.

Wild Carnage When They Meet Their Natural Prey, Flying Fish.

One time at St. Clements we sighted a feeding school of tuna, an exhilarating sight. A flying fish weighing a pound and a half or more would start from the water and soar an extraordinary distance, nearly out of sight, but every inch of that flight I knew was covered by a big tuna keeping his place just beneath the "flier" and ready to seize it the moment it fell into the water. This rarely failed. The moment the fish began to drop the tuna would spring at it like a tiger, turning and tossing the spume into the air with a splendid and electrifying rush, a maneuver that was repeated all over the blue channel.

The sensational charge meant that a school of tunas had discovered a school of its natural prey, flying fishes. At once the lust for blood and food was on, and the carnage was the result.

I have observed some curious scenes at sea, but never have I seen fear so forcibly expressed as by a school of flying fishes exhausted and at the mercy of the voracious tunas. I have had them gather about my boat and cling to its keel as closely as they could, while the air was full of leaping tunas and soaring flying fish. At such times when a school of sardines is rounded up the fishes are so terrified that men have rowed up to them and scooped them in by the pailful.—C. F. Holder in Outing.

Delhi and Its History.

Shah Jehan in 1631 built the present city of Delhi, close to the old Delhi, and made it the royal residence. The Mohammedans still call it Shahjehanabad, the "city of the king of the world." Nadir Shah, the Persian usurper, captured it in 1739, massacred thousands of the inhabitants and bore away plunder to the value of nearly $100,000,000, including the famous peacock throne and the great Kohinoor diamond. The British first came into control in 1803, when the Mahrattas were defeated near Delhi by Lord Lake. When the sepoy mutiny broke out in 1857 Shah Mohammed Bahadour, then ninety years old, took command of the city and until the English again triumphed enjoyed the imperial state to which he had long been a stranger.

Harriman Told Him.

Harriman had an almost supernatural instinct for knowing what was going on and who was doing it in the mysteries of stock manipulation. Once when Southern Pacific had been going up fast, Harriman and various banking houses buying in concert, he called up on the telephone one of his private brokers. "Somebody is selling," he said. "Yes, sir," was the answer. "Well, hand the market 25,000 for me." Immediately he called up the head of a banking firm much interested in the market. "Who's selling Southern Pacific?" he asked. "I don't know; we haven't been able to find out," was the answer. "I'll tell you," snapped Harriman; "it's your house." And he cut off the connection before any reply to him could be made.—Exchange.

WESTERN FARMER AND HIS PROFITS

A Typical Instance of the Receipts and Expenditures on 640 Acres in Ten Years

A farmer writing to a Toronto daily paper from Indian Head, Saskatchewan, under the nom de plume, Saskatchewan Farmer, refutes the statement made by many Westerners, that the farmers of the West have been ill-used by the Dominion Government, which is identified largely with Eastern interests. This Saskatchewan Farmer gives a typical instance of the expenditure and revenue connected with a section of land, 640 acres, from the year 1900 to 1910. He says:

"I will give you an idea of what a section of land, 640 acres, will earn, and how it will increase in value, in the most favored wheat producing districts of Saskatchewan under normal conditions, management and price of land, from 1900 to 1910, allowing the average price of land to be $10 per acre for that period. In so doing it should be borne in mind that 30 per cent. of the land in this Province was Free Grant.

Capital Expenditure.

	Duty.
Land, 640 acres at $10 per acre		$6,400.00
Cultivation, 440 acres at $6 per acre		2,640.00
Dwelling house		2,000.00
Stable for 12 horses, granary and implement shed		1,500.00
1901
12 horses and harness		3,000.00
Implements.
3 seed drills	$33.00	330.00
3 plows	30.50	210.00
2 disc harrows	10.00	80.00
2 six-section harrows	6.50	60.00
3 7-ft. binders	53.00	465.00
4 wagons complete	72.00	360.00
One-sixth interest in thresher	125.00	500.00
Extras, say	20.00	455.00
	$350.00	$18,000.00
Crop for 10 years, from 400 acres at 25 bush. to the acre, at 75 cents		$75,000.00
Working expenses for 10 years at $5 per acre	$32,000.00
Interest on capital for 10 years at 6 per cent.	10,800.00
		42,800.00
Surplus (not taking into account increase in value of land, which may be figured at $18,000)		32,200.00

Duty on Implements.

"Now note right here, that all a farmer working a section of land under these conditions would pay in duty on the implements required to earn this large profit, assuming the average life of same to be 10 years, comes out at approximately $35 per annum. This is no exaggerated statement of profits and increase in value of land, as thousands of farmers in Saskatchewan can testify, and hundreds who have specially applied themselves and taken advantage of the opportunities at hand, have realized far greater profits than are here shown. How, then, can the farmers of the West claim that they have been ill-used, or not given a fair deal?

"Of course we have had, and have, grievances, such as elevator monopolies, grain blockades, and grievances connected with grading and marketing of grain, and they are not altogether remedied yet, but what great industry has not had minor difficulties equal to or greater than these to overcome.

"In conclusion, I may say that many farms in the Indian Head district, which have been well cultivated, and have been cropped continually with a one-third summer fallow each year since the early '80's, last season produced 30, 35, 40 and even more bushels to the acre, in quality almost if not quite equal to the first crop; at all events not more than one per cent. lower."

AMERICAN CAPITAL

Senator Beveridge Says This Must be Kept Out of Canada

As the result of some investigations conducted by The Monetary Times, Toronto, it is known that at the present time at least 200 United States manufacturing companies are operating branch factories in Canada, representing an aggregate investment of $226,000,000. For this influx of capital, with all the benefits accruing to the Dominion therefrom, the country must thank a tariff which made it worth while for those who hoped to sell Canada goods to come over the line to manufacture. Had that tariff not been a protective one, those United States manufacturers would probably have enlarged their home factories to take care of Canadian business instead of building on the Canadian side, in which case Canada would now be using goods made from United States material with United States labor, instead of goods made from Canadian material with Canadian labor.

That the States look upon this movement as a distinct loss to be remedied by Reciprocity with Canada is shown in the following extract from a speech recently delivered by Senator Beveridge, of Indiana:

"There must be reciprocity with Canada. Our tariff with the rest of the world does not apply to our northern neighbor. That policy already has driven American manufacturers across the Canadian borders, built vast plants with American capital on Canadian soil, employing Canadian workingmen to supply trade. That capital should be kept at home to employ American workingmen to supply Canadian demand. We should admit Canadian wood pulp and Canadian paper free in return for Canada's admitting our agricultural implements, our engines, pumps and other machinery free. We should freely admit Canadian lumber to American planing mills in return for Canada's freely admitting other American manufactured products to Canadian markets."

WORKING WITH GOLD.

Factories In Which Dark Colored Clothes Must Be Worn.

Light suits of clothes are not favored in factories where work is done on gold. In fact, in many such factories a dark suit of clothes is absolutely required, and even a light waistcoat may lose a man a job. The reason for this is that any stray grains of gold that may get on the clothing can easily be caught on a dark suit, while they might get away from the establishment if light clothes were worn.

That such a rule was enforced among gold workers one man learned recently when a Bohemian gold beater applied to him for a helping hand. The Bohemian said that he had only recently come to this country, that he had had a chance to obtain a good job at his trade, but that the place had been refused him because he turned up with a light coat and waistcoat on, and they were the only clothes he had.

The man whom he approached was struck by the story and offered to help him out if it proved true. He went to a downtown factory with him and found out that the man could have the job if he presented himself within an hour with the proper clothes on. Two dollars enabled the man to rig himself out in the dark coat and waistcoat to go with his dark trousers, and, sure enough, he got the job.

"You may think this strange," said the man at the factory, "but it means quite a little to us. Every man's clothing is carefully examined when he leaves here at night and the gold brushed off whenever we see any on his clothing.

"It is impossible to hide even tiny grains on a dark background, but take a mixed or a light suit and we might easily lose quite an amount of gold, and gold isn't anything you want to lose even in small quantities."—New York Sun.

HE WON THE HOUSE.

Ned Harrigan's Plea at a Critical Point In a Play.

Edward Harrigan once said that the most trying moment in his theatrical career occurred in New Orleans soon after the civil war. He had gone south with his company and, yielding somewhat to popular request, put on "The Blue and the Gray." The play had been a success up north, but down south, with the air still full of the bitterness of the war, it was a dangerous experiment. Tony Hart was to represent the Confederate gray, so he hunted up a uniform of the Louisiana Tigers, and when he came marching on, young, stalwart, handsome, the typical soldier boy in the beloved uniform, the house, men and women, cheered and shouted and cried for all their heroes embodied in this boy. Harrigan, standing in the wings in his northern blue, waiting to go on, had just one thought—"They'll kill me!" Then he stepped out, the embodiment of the enemy, and a cold, dead silence fell upon the house. Not a hand moved for him. The audience was tense with emotion, and there was only an instant to act if the play was to be saved. Harrigan, big, kindly, good looking, came swiftly down to the front and stepped over the footlight gutter, leaning down to them. "For the love of heaven, won't you give the Yankee a hand?" he exclaimed. At once the house was caught and all the pentup feeling turned the right way. There was a yell of applause.

PHYSICIANS
Failed to Cure Rheumatism

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure With "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. I call Nerviline my "Life Guard," and urge all to try its merit."

The new automobile route, part of which is being built by the Dominion and the remainder by the British Columbia governments, will be one of the very finest to be found anywhere. Up to now the government has not allowed autos in its Rocky Mountain Park, but is making a change in its regulations. A road is now opened from Calgary to Banff, and will be extended to Laggan, while the British Columbia Legislature will build its part to connect with it.

Cheese Markets.

BROCKVILLE, June 24. — At the cheese board to-day, 3665 boxes, of which 2230 were colored, were offered. Bids ranged from 11c to 11 1-4c, but found no takers. The board adjourned without a sale being recorded. On the street the factorymen were at the mercy of the buyers, as the cheese had gone forward on Friday, the regular shipping day, to the warerooms of houses to which the salesmen sell regularly. Now it is a question of fixing the price for next week's settlements, which is a matter of conjecture only.

BELLEVILLE, June 24. — At the weekly meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board to-day, thirty-three factories boarded 2525 cheese, all white. All were sold at 11 3-16c and 11 1-4c.

LONDON, June 24.—The offerings on the London Cheese Board to-day are as follows: Gold Creek, 34 T.C.; North Branch, 10 4T. C.; Blanchard and Nissouri, 110 C.; Avonbank, 120; W. Arkona, 80 C.; Thorndale, 75 C.; Glanworth, 150 C.; Pond Mills, 100 C. Seven hundred and seventy-three boxes were offered. The bidding was from 11c to 11 3-16c.

Beachey at Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 26.—Soaring above the clouds at an altitude of about two thousand feet, Lincoln Beachey, the fearless Curtis aviator, who will attempt to fly over the horseshoe falls, and under the upper steel arch bridge, during Niagara's international carnival on Tuesday and Wednesday, made the trip from Buffalo to the falls yesterday afternoon in just fifteen and a half minutes. Five thousand people witnessed his arrival here. A heavy downpour of rain drenched the crowd for a few minutes after Beachey landed near the river.

When seen by the press last night, the plucky American aviator declared he was confident of being successful in his perilous flights here. Several hundred Canadian militiamen from the camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake witnessed the flight.

YOUTHFUL TOTS TRAVELLED ALONE

Ted Carey and His Sister, Aged 5 and 3, Came to Toronto from Liverpool

Two little children, Ted Carey, aged five years, and his sister, aged three years, made the trip safely from Liverpool to London. During the twelve days on the way they received much kindness, thanks to a little card attached to the lad's coat, which read: "This is Ted Carey and his sister, travelling alone to Toronto. Please be kind to them."

Their father, Mr. Edward Carey, came to Toronto from England some months ago, and as soon as he was settled, sent for his wife, the children still remaining in the Old Country in the care of relatives. When it was decided to bring the children out to the new home the finances of the family would not permit of their going back to get them, so the unusual course of having them sent alone was adopted. Each child bore a tag marked with its destination, in care of the transportation companies, and in their tribute to the kindness shown by the officials all along the route. Their ticket entitled them to second-class only on the Grand Trunk, but they arrived in Toronto in state, a Pullman berth having been purchased for them by a generous official in Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Carey, the parents, were down to the station to meet the children, and hurried them off through an admiring throng as soon as the train arrived.

THE HOME MARKET

The Needs of Manufacturers of Canada in the Way of Minerals

The mines branch of the department of mines has an extensive programme of work mapped out for it. One of the most important investigations it has yet conducted will be that in which Mr. H. Frechette of the branch will tour the country to investigate the needs of manufacturers for non-metallic minerals and endeavor to create a home market for such. These minerals include mica, asbestos, clays, chromite, corundum, feldspar, graphite, grindstone, gypsum, magnesite, phosphate, salt, and others. Although produced in large quantities in Canada they are chiefly for export, while manufacturers import equally large amounts. It is evident, therefore, that opportunity exists for the establishment of a large home market. Mr. Frechette will visit the various larger manufacturing centres of Canada and possibly certain localities in the United States to study the methods of preparing raw materials for the market.

KILLED A MOOSE

Train Out of North Bay Ran Down a Big Fellow

A train from North Bay, bound for Cobalt, ran into and killed a large moose. The moose are very plentiful, and have become sufficiently acquainted with the Government trains that they are observed crossing the tracks in herds very frequently. The great fellow that was killed was only one of a herd, and he stood stolidly on the track to dispute the right-of-way of the train. Thirty-four miles north of North Bay is not far to go for a plenitude of big game, and the abundance increases as you travel north.

IN HUDSON BAY DISTRICT

R. J. Flaherty Is Making Explorations for the Canadian Northern

The Canadian Northern Railway has sent R. J. Flaherty to the shores of Hudson Bay with one of the most complete outfits for the careful study of that great sea that has ever left this country. Mr. Flaherty is one of the best pioneers of the north, and last winter, with a number of Eskimos, went 200 miles north of Fort George to examine an iron deposit for the Mackenzie interests. At that time he obtained a unique collection of native photographs and information. That he is now being sent back with a much more complete equipment is proof that the information he then brought down to his principals was sufficiently satisfactory to warrant further and closer inquiry. Mr. Flaherty expects to be away from civilization all this summer. He will travel with Eskimos and dogs.

WARFARE AGAINST FLIES

"The only thing to do with the fly is to kill it," said Dr. Louis Laberge, medical health officer, Montreal, who is busily engaged making a report for the Board of Control respecting the best means of exterminating this disease-carrying pest. "Two flies," he states, "will, in one brief season, propagate their species to the number of four millions. Therefore, every time you see one, kill him dead." In England, the doctor says, the school children are encouraged in "fly-killing" missions, and he considers it would be a sensible thing if Canada would follow the example. The best weapon to destroy the insect is a small wire brush, he stated.

STEEL INDUSTRY AT THE COAST

Arrangements have been completed for the establishment at Pitt Meadows, twenty odd miles from Vancouver, of a large steel industry. Blast and open hearth steel furnaces and rolling mills are to be part of the plant. Ore and coal may be obtained from Vancouver Island. The company will be a British one, with a Vancouver board of directors, and an advisory board in London. The proposition is a gigantic one, for the capacity of the works will be 1,000 tons per day, and 3,000 men are to be employed. The purchase of a site of 200 acres on the Canadian Pacific Railway main line has been effected.

HAT ORNAMENTS.

Trimmings That May Be Successfully Made at Home.

GARDENIA QUITE POPULAR.

The Latest Fancy, However, Is a Bunch of White Grapes—Make One of These Designs For Your Spring Chapeau. White Kid Lends Itself to Various Attractive Designs.

The vogue for white kid as trimming for hats has reached a point where the needlewoman can step safely to the rescue. Any of these ornaments can be made at home from white kid purchased at a leather store or cut with clever fingers from discarded gloves. These ornaments can be cleaned, they are soft and of light weight, and if you wish a touch of water color can be added.

The round form is of kid and gold braid. On a disk of heavy scrim the long strip of kid is shirred, allowing a space in the center. The outer edge is held in place under the heavy gilt cord, and a wheel of the same is used for the center of the whole ornament. This is quite easily formed at home and in this season of millinery simplicity is sufficient decoration for an outing hat.

Gardenias of white kid are made of several round petals, with four or five smaller ones with irregular edges. The gardenia can be tinted with pink and changed by the wave of a brush to a camellia. Such is life!

Perhaps the latest is a bunch of grapes in white kid on the black. In the form of a poppy the white kid petals are held in the center by a cluster of yellow stamens. These can be bought at any millinery department, and the form of each petal is sufficiently clear to guide you in cutting it out of the leather. A wire stem is covered and attached at the base.

Cotton is used, and circular pieces of white kid about the size of a fifty cent piece are gathered around the wadding. The grapes are attached to a triangular foundation of black net and a wire stem covered with a narrow strip of kid wrapped around it.

The kid wing on wire, a military fan of two or three rows of plaited or fluted leather, a jeweled buckle—these you have seen, perhaps, on hats. It is now urged that you make an ornament for that little hat of the season.

Spool Holders.

Did you ever go hastily to your sewing basket and find all the thread unwound and tangled? If you ever did you will appreciate the very simple holder for spools of cotton and silk described here. In size and scope it may be varied as you please, but the sample described is just about what the average housewife needs.

The foundation is a board 12 by 8 inches and a half inch thick. Into this drive two rows of six long nails, each long enough, that is, for their points to project through to the other side the length (almost) of a spool.

On the board mark in plain letters above the top row "20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70." In the top row put your black thread of the corresponding number, in your bottom row your white.

If you wish to add a row of colored silks, mark them also, the proper color under each.

So that the spools shall not fall off the nails drop a bit of hot sealing wax at the top of each nail. This will prevent hurting the hand on the sharp nails also. When the spool is exhausted it is easy enough to knock off the sealing wax and apply new.

Put screw eyes at the back of this board and hang it up by your work table or sewing machine. You will find it one of the most useful articles in the room.

Cranberry Muffins.

Beat one-third of a cupful of butter to a cream. Gradually beat in one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, then one egg, beaten light; three-fourths of a cupful of milk and two cups of sifted flour, sifted again with two rounding teaspoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt. When well mixed beat in one cup of cranberries, cut in halves. Bake about twenty-five minutes in a well buttered muffin pan.

A Swiss authority insists that 200 Russians will spend more in a month than 1,000 British men and women for the same period of time.

Some History About Typewriters Modern and Ancient

CHAPTER FOUR

SCIENTIFIC typewriter operation was made possible by the Underwood.

THE Underwood was the first typewriter with the standard keyboard which made scientific and invariable fingering practicable.

ITS mechanical perfection is shown by the fact that it holds all records for speed; has won the World's Championship in 14 successive contests. It has been operated at a rate of 17 strokes a second and 130 words a minute for an hour's continuous writing.

THE Underwood has been the most effective agency in fostering, encouraging and developing scientific typewriting, and in increasing the efficiency of typists generally.

ALL the best schools which teach typewriting use the Underwood exclusively.

THISTLES ARE JUNIOR CHAMPS

Northern Lights Won Only Game Played Saturday

The Tecumsehs defaulted to the Thistles Saturday. This gave gives the Thistles the league leadership and the championship of the city juvenile league.

The afternoon game at the oval between the Leaves and the Northern Lights was somewhat loose, the Lights showing up strong in team work and winning out by ten to four.

Batteries—Lights, Swanston and Taylor; Leaves, Brumwell and Murty.

TWO GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE

Knox and St. James Were the Winners Saturday

In a very poor exhibition of football the tail-enders, Park Street and Knox, played their last Church Football League contest on the latters' grounds, Patterson Street, Saturday afternoon. The final score stood Knox5 Park St. 0.

Park Street played with six of their regular men, and during the first five minutes of play, the Presbyterians scored twice, but the Baptists held them down during the remainder of the half.

The second round was not very keenly contested, the heat making the players indifferent. Knox scored three more, and then it was a matter of who couild kick the ball over the fence the most times.

ST. JAMES 7, ALL SAINTS 4.

St James and All Saints battered on the exhibition grounds, and the game ended in favor of the Methodists, 7-4.

The players were handicapped by the fierce heat, and the play was a little below what those teams usually put up.

C.P.A. MEMBERS' ENJOYABLE TRIP

Pressmen Went to Georgian Bay for Two Days Outing

On Tuesday, 21st, the Canadian Press Association closed up the two days session of the association meeting, and on Thursday, 22nd, some two hundred and fifty members took possession of a long G.T.R. special train in readiness for the trip to Penetanguishene. Through the smiling farm lands they sped until the sparkling waters of the Georgian Bay were seen, and a short walk from the wharf brought the party to the Penetanguishene Hotel, beautifully decorated with Union Jacks. The large company sang a verse of the National Anthem and "Rule Britannia" before doing justice to the excellent luncheon provided by the Mayor and town.

A short speech of welcome was given by Mayor Jennings, to which Mr. C. W. Young, President of the C.P.A., replied in charming terms, referring to the intensely historical character of the pretty town, and the story which has been stirringly set forth by the chroniclers of the martyred Jesuits, who gave their lives for the cause of their religion.

After luncheon, the party went on board the splendid steamer Waubic to pass a charming afternoon going through miles of the most beautiful island scenery in the world, the waters placid, the gulls flying in hundreds, the rocky islands, the lovely homes for summer residents, until amidst the glories of a crimson sunset the pretty town of Parry Sound, with its magnificent lumber booms all afloat, was reached.

The dining room of the Hotel Belvidere was a picture with its brilliant lights, its blue walls, hanging baskets of flowers and bountifully set tables. An excellent orchestra played entrancing dance music in the hall, to which some hundreds waltzed and two-stepped to their hearts' content.

Some amusing incidents occurred, but though there was a doubt as to whether there might be an abiding place for all that night, owing to the temporary breakdown of the Majestic, which failed to materialize, good humor reigned supreme, and all were quite ready to make a night of it "literally," if necessary. After the charming arrangements made, no one could ever grumble.

Friday morning, on board the Northern Navigation Co.'s steamer, "Germanic," the return run was made for Collingwood. The arrival of the party as the boat swept into the splendid harbor, backed by the gorgeous Blue Mountains, the frontage of the fine shipyards eliciting the admiration of all on board, was hailed by continuous salutes from vessels within the harbor and responses from the Germanic.

A walk up the busy and beautiful main street of Collingwood with its Coronation decorations still flying, led to the Temple, owned jointly by the Masons and Oddfellows here. In a large banquet hall, the Ladies Auxillary of the local Y.M.C.A. served a sumptuous luncheon, the tables being beautifully decorated with June flowers.

Mayor Currie gracefully presided, and welcomed on behalf of the Corporation the members of the Press Association and the Women's Press Club of Toronto. The King, the guests and the town of Collingwood, were toasts duly honored, speeches being made by Messrs. C.W. Young, President of the C.P.A.; Town Solicitor Burney, J. G. Elliott of Kingston, and Geo .C. Creelman, President of the Ontario Agricultural College. A special tribute of cheers was given by the visitors to Mr. David Williams, editor of the Collingwood Bulletin, and former President of the Canadian Press Association.

An interesting ceremony was the presentations of some Crown Derby china to Mr. C. A. Macdonald, Assistant Manager Northern Navigation Co., and handsome pins to the captains of the Waubic, the Germanic and the Majestic, also a set of Crown Derby to Mr. A. E. Duff, D.P.A of the G.T.R.

The presentations were made by Mr. Geo. Scroggie of Toronto, and Mr. Wilgress of Brockville, who expressed the sentiments of the party towards these men for uniform courtesy throughout the trip.

The afternoon was spent in viewing the thriving and beautiful town of Collingwood.

The last event on the program was the laying of the corner-stone of the new $30,000 King George School. Mr. Prentice, Chairman of the Board of Education, Dr. Conally, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Mr. Maire, made splendid addresses after which Mr. J. F. MacKay, Business Manager of the Globe, and ex-President of the C.P.A., was handed a silver trowel, neatly inscribed, and asked to lay the stone. After briefly addressing the two thousand spectators, Mr MacKay on behalf of the Canadian Press Association, presented the new school with a large Union Jack.

The party was given a royal sendoff at the station by several hundred Collingwood citizens, and a speedy run home on a G.T.R. special closed a delightful and restful outing for two hundred and twenty-five journalists.

DODGING MR. SPEAKER

Rich Instances of Some "Nasty Ones" Handed by M.P.'s

It is very difficult for a member of Parliament to be openly rude to another when under the eagle eye of Mr. Speaker.

When Mr. Tim Healy, many years ago, said to an interrupter, "If you interrupt me again I will break your neck!" he was promptly suspended for a fortnight. All the impolite adjectives such as untrue, dishonest, etc., have long been barred. And the Speaker may at any time add to the list of phrases on the black-list.

But though Mr. Speaker is always on the watch for offensive phrases, there is many a case in which a witty M.P. has managed to make himself extremely nasty without being called to order. Sometimes it is in the withdrawal, however, that he turns the dagger in the wound.

It was an Irish member who some years ago remarked of the Irish Secretary, who had just answered a question, "Even the right honorable gentleman can at times be persuaded to tell the House the truth!" There were loud shouts of "Order! Order!" dnd the Speaker rose. Crushed, the erring member humbly begged unreservedly to withdraw the remark, and to state that there was not the slightest foundation for the statement! The Irish Secretary and Mr. Speaker still looked worried, however, as the business of the day went on.

It was Lord Cranbourne who once compared Mr. Gladstone's conduct on a certain matter to that of a pettifogging attorney. The Speaker, appealed to, declined to treat the phrase as out of order, but appealed to the good taste of the honorable member. The honorable member rose and remarked, "I wish, Mr. Speaker, to withdraw the phrase that the House considers offensive, and to apologize humbly—to the attorneys!"

One of the wittiest evasions of the Speaker's ruling was one by Sheridan, in the old Irish Parliament.

Sheridan was making accusations of corruption. There were shouts of "Name! Name!" The orator was really attacking the Secretary of the Treasury, a Mr. John Robinson, but before he could go on the Speaker ruled the name out of order.

"Mr. Speaker," Sheridan went on slowly, "you have ruled the mention of the name out of order, but I can assure the House that I could as easily give the name as I could say 'Jack Robinson'!" And a delighted House roared.

It was presence of mind that saved a hot-headed Kerry member some years ago from the Speaker's rebuke. He sprang up to answer an opponent. "The honorable member boasts so-and-so, and I will admit to the fool—" ("Order! Order!") "I will admit to the fool—" The speaker paused, and then went on, looking innocently puzzled, with "I will admit to the full the value of his observations and experience." The angry shouts died away, and delighted chuckles took their place.

It is impossible for an M.P. to call another M.P. an ass with impunity, unless he does it very neatly indeed. Some fifteen years ago a Nationalist member used a phrase that brought from another member a reminder that he was still a subject of the Queen.

The interrupted member happened to be a member of the Queen's household. The interrupted orator stopped.

"In loyalty to the Queen I yield to no one," he went on, without glancing at his critic, "or in respect for her household—her menservants and her maidservants, her ox or"—and here he turned slowly and examined the interrupter through a pair of pince-nez—"or her ass!"

And not even the Speaker could intervene to save that unfortunate interrupter.

A JEWEL OF ILL-OMEN

Peculiar History of the Famous Hope Diamond

What ill-luck will befall the Washington millionaire who recently paid $300,000 for the famous Hope diamond? His wife, who intends to wear it, refuses to believe in the superstition attached to the stone. But the history of this jewel is one of misfortune and death.

The man who brought it from the East in 1688 was Tavernier, the great French traveller. His affairs at once went wrong, and, setting out to retrieve his fortune, he died of fever abroad.

Madame de Maintenon, the famous French beauty, dated her decline from Royal favor from the day she persuaded the King to allow her to wear it. Later, it was worn by Marie Antoinette, who died under the guillotine, and Princess Lamballe, who also wore it, was killed by a mob.

For forty years the stone was lost, but afterwards came into the possession of an Amsterdam diamond-cutter, whose son stole it, ruined his father, and then killed himself.

Since then its history has simply been a repetition. For a time it was in the possession of a Sultan of Turkey, who afterwards lost his throne, while its keepers at Constantinople were killed.

It has been lost several times, always to return with its message of ill-luck. Even the most unsuperstitious are inclined to wonder what will be the next misfortune it will bring.

ATE 144 EGGS FOR BREAKFAST

Sam Miller, a resident of Wilkes-barre, Pennsylvania, has issued a challenge to the world at large to compete with him in an eating contest. He declares that he will eat more in a given time than any other man living. Miller declares that his record as an eater has never been equalled. According to the New York Herald he once ate 144 fried eggs for breakfast. In a pie-eating contest he disposed of forty-eight ten cent pies. His latest feat was that of eating five chickens and fifty waffles, and drinking four quarts of coffee while the cooks prepared more food.

Some men are honest because it is too much trouble to be otherwise.

Kind to the Eyes

Kryptok lenses have distinctive advantages over all former near and far-sighted glasses, having no line or patch to suggest old sight or to confuse the eye. "They are truly delightful and I scarcely realize that I am wearing glasses, as my vision is perfect, both distant and reading," is the remark of one of the pleased patrons of the Optical Institute.

ROOT AMENDMENT TO RECIPROCITY BILL IS DEFEATED WITHOUT EVEN ROLL CALL

Rider to Bill Gets Very Poor Reception in the Senate—Prospects That Pact Will Pass.

Washington, June 27.—The Canadian reciprocity bill emerged from its first ordeal in the Senate last night unscathed. The Root amendment, proposing a modification of the wood pulp and print paper section of the agreement, was defeated after seven hours of debate, by an overwhelming vote. The friends of the amendment were so satisfied of its defeat that a roll call on the vote was not demanded.

This leaves the reciprocity measure open to the general fight that is to follow of amendment of important provisions of the Payne tariff law. Senator Lafollette announced, in a speech opposing the Root amendment, that he would give to the Senate a chance to pass on general tariff amendments for free paper, free lumber and lumber products, and for reductions in many other schedules. Senator Clapp also announced his intention of offering a free paper amendment later; and other Senators gave evidence of their purpose to force, from now on, consideration of the tariff revision on the widest plane.

Attack on the Root amendment was interspersed with attack on the whole reciprocity measure in the debate that ran throughout the afternoon, and which resulted in the defeat of Senator Root's proposal to change the House bill by requiring that all Canadian provinces should remove their export restrictions on pulp wood and its products before the reciprocal features applied to the wood pulp and print paper items of the agreement.

"I am opposed to this so-called reciprocity legislation as a whole, because I believe it is wrong, harmful and unjustifiable," said Senator Lafollette. "If it must pass, I want to see it made as nearly perfect as possible. I shall vote against the Root amendment because I believe it will defeat the very purpose of the wood pulp and print paper paragraph of the agreement."

Senator Lafollette declared there was no justification for any duty on print paper. He analyzed the figures of the tariff board to show that the best mills in the United States actually produce paper cheaper than the best mills in Canada. To continue a high tariff on paper, he said, was to put a premium on "inefficiency and sloth," and to make the protective tariff "deaden all constructive force" for the development of efficient management.

Senator Lafollette criticized the newspapers for having urged the reciprocity measure as a means of getting relief from the oppressive charges of the print paper manufacturers. He said they had joined with the "packers, the railroads, the flour millers" and others who would secure advantages through the passage of the reciprocity bill.

Senator Lafollette declared that in the testimony taken by the finance committee it would be shown that the newspapers had suppressed the news of the reciprocity proceedings, but on this point Senator Stone, who also is a member of the finance committee, declared the Wisconsin Senator was mistaken.

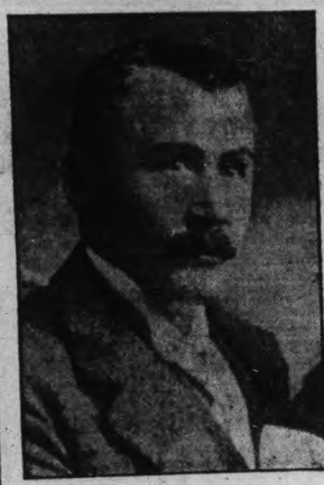
R. L. BORDEN'S GREAT RECEPTION IN CALGARY; OPENED NEW CITY HALL



E. A. LANCASTER.

Who is again the choice of the Lincoln Conservatives for the Dominion Elections.

Enthusiastic Welcome in Calgary for Conservative Leader—Fifty-Seventh Birthday.

Calgary, June 27.—The Conservative leader celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday yesterday by addressing two audiences on reciprocity and by opening the new City Hall of this city with a golden key. Mr. Borden came up to Calgary from Lethbridge yesterday morning, and on his arrival here was presented with a civic address of welcome. A large number of citizens turned out and gave him an enthusiastic, though non-political reception. After the ceremony at the City Hall, the pa was driven around the city, and then returned to High River, where he addressed a public meeting attended by about six hundred people.

The audience at High River contained a large infusion of members of the United Farmers of Alberta, who wore badges bearing the word "reciprocity." An address was also presented to him in behalf of this body. It was couched in the same terms as that read at McLeod by the Provincial Secretary of the organization.

Speakers were interrupted with a frequency which has been rare during the tour. G. H. Perley, the first speaker, met with it when he was discussing the origin of the reciprocity agreement.

"We asked Laurier for it," came a voice from the crowd.

"Did you ask for reciprocity?" Mr. Perley asked back.

"We asked for free trade," was the reply.

"This is not free trade," replied Mr. Perley. "It is like climbing a ladder by beginning at the top."

MORGAN GIVES KAISER A LETTER

He Had Paid $25,000 for Martin Luther's Autograph.

Kiel, Germany, June 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan yesterday presented Emperor William with the autograph letter written by Martin Luther to Emperor Charles V., and for which the financier recently paid $25,500. His Majesty was immensely pleased, and forthwith conferred the Grand Cross of the Order of the Red Eagle on Mr. Morgan.

The letter, which is in Latin, is of great historical importance. It was written in 1521, during the reformer's return journey from the Diet of Worms, and described the proceedings and defended his attitude. The letter never reached Emperor Charles, as its contents were such that no one dared deliver it.

CHOOSING SITES FOR G.T.P. HOTELS

Montreal, June 27.—H. R. Charlton, general advertising agent of the G.T.R. and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, leaves for the west on an extended trip. At Edmonton he will meet Dr. A. Wheeler, director of the Canadian Alpine Club, and Mr. Douglass, superintendent of the Canadian National Parks, and will proceed to Jasper Park, the new national park of 5,000 square miles, reserved in the heart of the Canadian Rockies.

Mr. Charlton made the trip last year over the mountains of the through Yellowhead Pass to Fort George and many points were suggested in his reported hotel sites. On the present expedition sites that are considered the most attractive will be chosen and surveyed, so that the building of these mountain hotels may be proceeded with by the Grand Trunk Pacific as early as possible. The steel is now within 20 miles of where probably the first of the hotels will be located.

TEN THOUSAND BARRELS OF OIL BURN IN TEXAN HARBOR

Two Lives Lost, and Property Loss of $300,000 in Great Explosion.

Port Arthur, Texas, June 27.—Two lives were lost, half a dozen men were injured, some seriously, three oil barges and one tug were burned to the water's edge and about 10,000 barrels of oil, two large warehouses and over 600 feet of wharves were destroyed as the result of an explosion, which was followed by a fire in the Port Arthur harbor and waterfront yesterday. The loss is about $300,000.

Capt. Frank Weber of the barge Humble and Samuel Sicero, an Italian laborer, lost their lives in an explosion aboard the Humble, where the fire started.

The flames swept rapidly over several small vessels belonging to the Texas Company and spread to two large warehouses of that concern. These, together with the wharves, were soon a mass of ruins. Other buildings were slightly damaged.

Charged With Theft of Bonds.

Pittsburg, June 27.—A. L. Pearson, an attorney and president of the Union Realty Co. of this city, and S. M. Carnahan, a clerk, employed in the office of Holmes, Wardrop & Co., brokers, were arrested here late yesterday, charged with the theft of bonds valued at $10,000, belonging to the brokerage firm.

Pearson is prominent socially. His father, Gen. A. L. Pearson, was at one time commander of the troops of the state.

Both men were held in default of $12,000 bail each.

Dartmouth Hotel Burned.

Halifax, June 27.—Fire last night partially destroyed the Handley House, an hotel in Dartmouth, across the harbor from Halifax. Most of the damage was from water. A servant who entered her room over the kitchen to secure some of her belongings was almost suffocated by smoke, and had to be carried out. The insurance, amounting to $3,500, is in the Acadia and Halifax companies.

WANTS MEN TO HELP HIM OUT

M. Caillaux Looking For Cabinet Material.

Promises to Give Reply to President To-night.

Paris, June 27.—M. Caillaux, Minister of Finance in the Monis Cabinet, who was requested by President Fallieres to form a new Ministry, announced last night, after advising with his friends, that he would be unable to give a definite answer to the President before to-night. At the same time he has made material progress towards the organization of a strong combination.

Leon Bourgeois, former Premier, declined the portfolio of Foreign Minister on the grounds of ill-health, and suggested Raymond Poincare, ex-Minister of Finance, for that office. M. Poincare at first was reluctant to accept the heavy responsibility of that post, for which he feared he was not sufficiently prepared, but agreed to give the matter his consideration, and answer to-day. In event of his refusal M. Deselves, prefect of the Seine, will be asked to take the Foreign Office.

While as yet nothing definitely has been decided upon, it is understood that M. Caillaux, in addition to the Premiership, will take charge of the Ministry of the Interior; M. Doumergue or M. Cruppi, justice; L. L. Klotz, finance; Eugene Etienne or Adolphe Messimy, war; M. Delcasse, marine; Jules A. T. Steeg, public instruction; M. Augagneur, public works; M. Chaumet, commerce; Jules Pams, agriculture; M. Messimy or M. Lebrun, colonies; M. Renoult, labor.

Of these MM. Cruppi, Delcasse, Steeg, Pams and Messimy were in the Monis Cabinet; MM. Klotz and Doumergue were members of the Briand Cabinets, while M. Etienne is an ex-Minister of the Interior.

A Pacific Expedition.

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 27.—President Simon has started out again at the head of his troops for the purpose of bringing about peace in the northern districts of Hayti. He left yesterday with a large force under his command aboard the cruiser Antoine Simon, his destination being Cape Haytien, but the cruiser will call at St. Marc and Port a-Paix.

It is said the President has undertaken the expedition with the most pacific intentions, and will make an endeavor to persuade the insurgents to lay down their arms before employing force.

Freighter Wrecks Bridge.

Montreal, June 27.—A serious accident occurred at the bridge over the Lachine Canal at Cote St. Paul road yesterday. A large freighter from Kingston passing down the canal struck the bridge with great force, knocking it completely off the pivot, so that it is now impassable for traffic. The canal is free for boats to pass up and down, but pedestrians, vehicles and street cars are all blocked. A gange of men was set to work at once and are rapidly proceeding with the repair of the pivot.

The freighter suffered little damage and was got safely through the locks.

All Were Vaccinated.

Montreal, June 27.—The Allan line steamer Corsican arrived in port yesterday morning from Liverpool, after being detained at the quarantine station for ten hours.

A case of suspected smallpox was discovered amongst the steerage passengers, and nearly two hundred passengers who had come more or less into contact, on the voyage, with the suspect, were detained.

Everyone on the ship, including the officers, were vaccinated.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 27.—It is reported that the Atlantic Fruit Co. is arranging to establish a steamship line between Jamaica and England.

The United Fruit Co. recently announced its intention to enter the West Indian-British trade and to establish a passenger and fruit service between Kingston and Southampton.

Barns, jr., the prominent New York Republican last Saturday, died last night when Thomas Kerr of New York succumbed to his injuries. Kerr was badly burned in an effort to rescue Helen Wilson of New York, and Mildred de Haven of Brooklyn, who were trapped by the flames.

COVENT GARDEN THEATRE WAS ABLAZE WITH REGAL SPLENDOR

E. N. LEWIS.

Nominated by the West Huron Conservatives for the House of Commons.

Command Performance for European Royalty—The World's Greatest Singers Participate in the Program

London, June 27.—One of the most magnificent spectacles in connection with the coronation was the command performance last night in Covent Garden, the interior of which was transformed into a veritable floral palace, wreathed with England's fairest flower. Those privileged to be within the gerat auditorium will long remember the gorgeous, scintillating picture, the fragrance of 100,000 perfect rose blooms, the noble company of men and women representing the royalty of the world, and all the most distinguished in British official and social life, who filled every box and every stall.

The King and Queen drove from Buckingham Palace in a state coach, escorted by Life Guards. On their arrival Their Majesties were received by the chief state officers and escorted to the royal box, while the brilliant audience rose.

The royal box consisted of ten boxes in the centre grand tier thrown into one, providing 100 seats, nearly all of which were occupied by guests of royal rank. Flanking the royal box were two other large boxes, each occupied by 100 representatives of foreign countries in gorgeous uniforms, and the representatives of the dominions. About half the stalls were allotted to the suites of the distinguished guests.

In point of picturesque attire, the Indian princes, glittering with jewels, were easily first, eclipsing the royalties in their most splendid uniforms. Special American Ambassador Hammond sat in the second row of the royal box, between the Duke of Connaught and the Grand Duchess of Hesse, his plain evening dress rendering him conspicuous by contrast.

The King was in an admiral's uniform and wore the Order of the Garter. The Queen's gown was of delicate pink, over which the blue riband of the Garter showed in marked relief. On her bosom were the twin stars of Africa, on her head a diamond fleur de lis and a maltese cross. The Queen was escorted to the royal box by Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, and the German Crown Princess entered on the arm of His Majesty.

Although rain again fell to mar the occasion, dense crowds gathered outside Covent Garden to witness the arrival and departure of Their Majesties, and the royal visitors. After the performance the royal guests, the special envoys and members of the diplomatic corps attended a ball given by the Duke and Duchess of Westminister at Grosvenor House.

Renowned artists took part in the gala performance. The program opened with a scene from the second act of Verdi's "Aida." This was followed by the second act of Gounod's "Romeo et Juliette." Then came Act III. of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," and Tableau II. of the Russian ballet, "Le Pavilion D'Armide."

Among the artists were Mmes. Melba, Destinn, Tetrazzini, Berat and Kirkby, Lunn and John McCormack, Sammarco, Franz, Bassi and Malatesta.

Suffragettes In Mexico.

Mexico City, June 27.—A suffragette movement which promises to become a factor in Mexican politics under the new regime was launched on Sunday by a woman's club, of which many of the leading women of the capital are members. In a petition directed to Emilio Vasquez Gomez, Minister of the Interior, more than 500 women, who style themselves "friends of the people," demand the right to vote and hold office. They announce their choice of Francisco I. Madero, jr., and Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez for President and vice-president respectively.

Broke the Record.

Halifax, June 27.—Records between New York and Halifax were eclipsed yesterday on the arrival of the Red Cross Liner Florizel, which made the run from New York to this port in forty-three hours. Twenty-five years ago a schooner made the run in fifty-six hours, and until the present no sailing vessel has ever been able to duplicate that record. The Florizel brought 150 tourists from New York, and sailed for St. John's, Nfld.

FIGHT TO THE FINISH

Shipping Federation's Challenge Answered by Further Walkouts

Special To The Review

London, June 27.—The Federation of Shippers has decided to fight the striking seamen to the finish and their challenge has been accepted by sailors and dockmen, who to-day quit work at northern ports in hundreds, thereby paralyzing shipping. The trouble is spreading to other unions and miners federation are taking a strike vote to-day.

"Conned" Man In the Cell.

Welland, June 27.—While Thomas Ward was languishing in the police cells at the Town Hall awaiting trial on a charge of vagrancy, an angular man, with a red moustache and red hair, strode into the room adjoining the cells, and announced himself to be a detective of some note.

He condescended to get the prisoner a good square meal if he would hand over his watch. This formality was agreed upon, and the "detective" strode out of the door.

He did not return, and when the prisoner was taken to court he explained matters. Later a farmer named T. Overholt was arrested on the charge, and admitted having taken the watch. He was remanded to jail.

Veto Bill Again.

London, June 27.—Parliament reassembled yesterday after the coronation recess, and the struggle over the veto power of the Lords will be immediately resumed.

In the House of Lords, Lord Lansdowne gave notice of a series of amendments to the veto bill, providing for the exclusion from that measure of bills such as that relating to Irish home rule, for a joint sitting in cases of a disagreement between the two Houses, and for a referendum in other cases. As it is quite certain that the Government will not accept these amendments if passed, another deadlock and eventually the creation of 500 additional peers seems the only outcome, unless the Lords yield.

BIG NAVIGATION MERGER IS NOW MADE AN ACTUAL FACT

Capital of Company is $10,000,000, and Richelieu Shares Are Exchangeable.

Montreal, June 27.—The big navigation merger, including the Northern & Inland Co., and the Richelieu & Ontario, is now practically an accomplished fact, the arrangement for the consolidation having been ratified at a special meeting of the shareholders of the Richaelieu & Ontario Navigation Co., held yesterday, with the president, Rodolphe Forget, M.P., in the chair. The basis of consolidation was approved, as well as the increase of the capital and the appointment of the additional directors.

The capital of the company is raised to $10,000,000, the directors having the power to exchange shares of the Northern & Inland Co. for those of the Richelieu.

The five new directors named are: John R. Binning, W. Grant Morden, and C. A. Barnard, K.C., Montreal; Edmund Bristol, K.C., M.P., Toronto; and James Playfair, Midland, Ont.

Found Dead In Bed.

Chatham, June 27—Samuel Sullivan, an aged resident of this city, was found dead in bed in his house on Houston street late yesterday afternoon. Sullivan has not been seen for some time, and had been dead for several hours when found. It is supposed that he died last Saturday night. He was found by some of his neighbors. Heart failure is supposed to have been the cause of death. There will be no inquest. He is survived by a grown up family. His wife is dead.

Increase In Infant Mortality.

Montreal, June 27.—Sixty per cent. of the total mortality in this city last week was of children under five years of age. Up till now it has been well under 50 per cent., but this great increase seems to show that death will reap a great harvest from children in overcrowded quarters, where sanitary arrangements are not well looked after, and the food, through poverty, is not of the right kind. Of 197 who died last week, 118 were children under five years of age.

Coughs, Colds Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes, because its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Broncritis, or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapor of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing, curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid, which goes merely to the stomach, and fails entirely to help the throat or lungs.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing, and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only. 50c and $1, at all dealers. 10

THE "SUCKER" LIST

The "sucker list" business in New York is now on a new and highly profitable basis for the brokers and promoters who sell their stock by means of cleverly-worded letters, and bargain-day offers, and by brass-band methods.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, a "sucker list" is a list of the names and addresses of people who have at some time bought some of these get-rich-quick-stocks, or who are liable to do so. These stocks are usually the kind that are worth 50 cents a share, and are selling to YOU, Mr. Investor, at a bargain price of 7 1-2 cents, and guaranteed to make you a fortune within thirty days after taking, or money refunded.

It has been customary in the fakir mining and cheap company promotion circles in New York to peddle the "sucker lists" around. For a list that has been worked once or twice, the price is $20 a thousand; for an extra choice list, made up of names of investors in good companies, higher is paid. For the list which has gone the rounds and the patients have been made supposedly immune to offers of untold wealth to be shipped by express direct from N. Y., on receipt of $2 or $5, the price is about $1 a thousand.

The New York circuit court of appeals has recently given judgment in a case in which it holds that anyone owning one share of the stock of any corporation has the right to examine the stock books of the company at any time in business hours. The "sucker lists," as known heretofore, will disappear, because to get a nice, fat list of choice "suckers" all a broker or firm has to do is to buy a share of stock, get the names and addresses, and then sell that share.

Previously the law of New York state was held to mean that any stock-holder who wanted to examine the stock books for any legitimate purpose had the right to do so, but it prevented the examination to provide "sucker lists." Now that anyone has a chance to get choice lists of names of investors, Uncle Sam's financial mail business is expected to take a great leap forward.

PURE WATER SUPPLY

John Burns, the well known English M.P., took a dig at Canadian water systems the other day, in opening a new pumping station that is certainly most deserved. The Canadian water systems of the Canadian cities and towns are in many cases are wretchedly improvised, and the wonder of it is that there is not far more sickness and disease. Peterborough water seems to be chemically all right, but river water that is the outpouring of Stoney Lake, does not offer a satisfactory guarantee that it is free from filth and objectionable matter.

In a report just issued by the Conservation Commission on the typhoid epidemic at Ottawa, an exhaustive treatment is made of the water and sanitary situation, and some of the facts recorded, and photographs reproduced show appalling conditions. Yet it is not to be doubted that many places just as bad could be found in this city, places where there is no sewer connection, and the filth is abominable. The lowness of the contagious fever rate in Peterborough does not mean that there are not serious menaces to the public health that should be removed, and it is certainly a necessity that a city of 18,000 people should have a sewage disposal system and not dump the sewage into the river, and send its poison all the way down to Rice Lake for deposit.

John Burns' remarks apply to some of the western towns particularly, where sanitary arrangements are really shocking. He says:

"I have a description of a water supply from Canada. A town, enterprising in many ways, was exceedingly anxious to score off the rival town to the east, and, referring to itself, said: 'Edmonton is a young but pushful city that prides itself on its water supply. We have no desire to depreciate our eastern rival, but in the matter of water supply we are far ahead of her. The wood and the flotsam and jetsam were so bad in her reservoirs that they had to filter the water through a ladder. The citizens have to extract the water from the debris with a gimlet, and when they have done that necessary sanitary process they have to disinfect it with chloride of lime, manganese and iron. This clearing process did not suffice because after all these operations were carried out so many dangerous bacteria had escaped the ladder, the gimlet and chloride of lime that they had to be taken into the back yard and killed with a club."

EDITORIAL NOTES

John Herron, the Conservative member for Macleod, says that he hasn't made up his mind on reciprocity yet. Canada is at the parting of the ways, and so is John Herron.

When forty farmers openly announce opposition to reciprocity at a western meeting, Mr. Borden's missionary work seems to be bearing quick fruit. His plain spoken attitude has caught the fancy of the west.

Alfred Austin was supposed to have written a coronation ode, but they say it was so full of "hot air" that the and queen at once banned it, and Alfred is now in hiding. If Alfred isn't a satisfactory verse cobbler, there's plenty in Canada in about the same class, and we'd gladly spare one.

A government inspector was sent north to investigate fish stories appearing in the Cobalt Nuggett, but the fishermen hustled to acknowledge themselves as the biggest liars in the north country. Some of them probably came from Chefoo, and knew their business.

The reports of new strikes in what may be broadly termed the Porcupine district, seem to lend some weight to the claims of many that Ontario will have a goldfields of great value. Gold-mining with low-grade ores is a heavy proposition, and takes time to work out, but with the addition of gold to its mineral products, Ontario has about everything except coal, and even some of that has been found, though not of good quality. Ontario is the good old province, after all, in spite of what the breezy optimists of the west may say.

Some of the anti-reciprocity crowd in the United States propose to have the constitutionality of the pact tested, claiming that as it is in the nature of a treaty, requiring two-thirds vote for ratification. The great point that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been making in his reciprocity references is that the pact is not a treaty, but only concurrent legislation, and terminable at any time by either party. Either the United States men are wrong, or Sir Wilfrid is wrong. It is unlikely that a trade arrangement subject to termination at any time could be construed to mean a treaty, which is a solemn binding agreement. It is probable that the Canadian public will have something to say as to this "treaty" before a court can get near the question.

Rabies Cases.

Toronto, June 27.—And still they come!

Two more dogs' heads have just been examined for rabies by Dr. Amyot, provincial bacteriologist, and positive signs of the malady have been found in either case.

Dr. McCullough of the Provincial Board of Health said yesterday that one of the dogs came from Palmerston avenue, being sent in by Dr. Campbell. The other was sent in from East Toronto by Dr. Milne. No record is at hand of any person having been bitten by either of the dogs.

The yacht is commanded by Capt. Basil Richardson, a Nova Scotian skipper. After coaling, she proceeded yesterday morning for the Thousand Islands, where her party will board her for a cruise. The yacht showed herself able to reel off thirty knots an hour under favorable conditions.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Largely on the strength of a big broad market in oats to-day, every staple on the board today closed at a net advance—wheat 1-2 and 5-8 to 3-4; corn 1 1-8 and 1 1-4 to 1 1-4, and provisions 2 1-2 and 2 5-8 to 25. Compared with 48 hours previous, latest figures showed that oats had risen 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 and 2 1-2 a bushel. The chief cause was a prediction by a crop expert that the government report next month would make a sensationally bullish exhibit.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ¼d to ⅝d higher than on Saturday on wheat, and ¼d to ⅝d lower on corn. Antwerp closed ⅝c lower on wheat, Buda Pest 1⅝c lower.

Veal calves sold at $4 to $7.25 per cwt., and extra quality calves are worth $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, light, sold at $4 to $5 per cwt.; ewes, heavy, $3.50 to $3.75; rams, $3 to $3.50; yearling lambs, $5.50 to $6.50; spring lambs, 9c to 10 1-2c per lb.

Hogs.

Some of the packers are quoting prices lower, while others are quoting them unchanged. Some drovers stated that they had hogs sold at $7, f.o.b. cars, and we heard one drover say that he had hogs bought to ship at $6.90, f.o.b., and we heard another drover say that $7 was being paid to the farmers in his district, and that was the ruling price.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 26.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending June 24, were 2306 cattle, 550 sheep and lambs, 1940 hogs and 1100 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 850 cattle, 325 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 250 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle since this day week, prices being fairly steady. There was no demand for export account, owing to the fact that cable advices from all the leading foreign markets show no improvement in prices, but as the supply was not excessive and there was a good demand from local butchers and packers, a fairly active trade was done, and at the close few were left over.

Sales of choice steers were made at 6½c, good at 6c to 6¼c, fairly good, 5½c to 5¾c, fair at 5c to 5¼c and common, at 4½c to 4¾c per lb. Among the offerings there were a number of cows, of which the choice lots sold at 5½c, and the lower grades from that down to 3¾c per lb. A few very choice bulls brought as high as 6c and the commoner ones went at 4½c to 5¼c per lb.

A very unsettled feeling prevailed in the market for hogs and in consequence prices were irregular at a very wide range. This condition of the market is attributed to some extent to the keen competition on the part of some packers for supplies, both here and at country points, and the indications are that as long as this lasts there will be some irregularity in the course of values. The demand was good and an active trade was done with sales of choice selected lots at $7.50 to $7.75, mixed lots at $7 to $7.25 and heavy hogs at $6.25 to $6.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

There was no further change in the market for small meats, the recent advance in the price of lambs being well maintained under a good demand and sales were made at from $5 to $7 each. Sheep were steady at $4.50 to $6 each, and calves were fairly active and unchanged at from $2 to $8 each.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, June 26.—Cattle—Receipts, 3750 head; market, dry fed cattle active and steady; grass kind, lower; prime steers, $6.40 to $6.50; butcher grades, $5.50 to $6.10; cows, $3.25 to $4.75.

Calves—Receipts, 2000 head; market fairly active and steady; cull to choice, $6 to $9.

Saskatchewan estimates that 20,000 men will be needed to harvest the next crop.

"Them labor agitators ain't got no notion of the fitness of things. They ain't got a grasp on economic conditions for a cent. They got to do something to live without working, so every once in awhile they go to the men as pays 'em to be walking delegates, gives 'em some glib talk about their rights and advises 'em to strike for more money. Do they look around and try to find out whether an advance is warranted by the conditions? Nary a look. Do any of the men they hand out their advice to try to find out? Not on your life! They go ahead like a lot of sheep and strike and starve and blame the result on capital."

Smith nodded.

"If they carry out their threat and quit," continued the captain, "you will clear all the strikers from the docks, throw 'em off if necessary, knock their silly blocks off, but tell them as wants to work that full protection will be given. I'll arrange with police headquarters to have a sufficient force of bluecoats on hand to guard our property and will also notify our docks at other ports to be prepared. You will fix up accommodations for the strike breakers in the sheds here until the trouble is over and make arrangements to bring men from the inland cities. In this matter you need spare no expense. Understand?"

"I guess so," replied the superintendent.

"Then it's up to you."

"Anything else you want to see me about?"

"Not now. You can get in touch with me any time you want me. You know about where I'm to be found."

Smith drew in his long legs, raised himself from the chair and took up his hat to go.

"See here, Smith," said the captain, his voice rising gradually to its fearsome bellow, "it's nigh on to twoscore years since I took my first vessel, the Sally Moran, out of Frisco as master and owner, bound for the south sea islands to trade, and I've commanded my own ship every minute since and held my own against all sorts of lubbers as would have done me and done for me if they could. And do you think I'm going to be dictated to by any white livered gas bag of a crawling delegate who comes here holding a knife to my throat by threatening a turnout without giving me a chance to meet it if I don't give in to his demands on the spot? No, sir, not by an all fired sight! No, sir, not in a thousand years! I own this outfit from keel to main peak, and if I can't run it my own way I'll scuttle it and go down with it. Understand? And if any man's looking for a fight with me he'll find me quick enough, and I'll break him, no matter who or what he is. Yes, sir, by Sam, sir, like this!"

"Yes, sir, by Sam, sir, like this!"

Seizing a thick ruler on the desk, he snapped it without apparent effort, and as he sat glaring there with his disheveled hair, his pugnacious, massive underjaw protruding and his big fists tightly clinched on the broken wood, causing the muscles of his arms to bulge like knots on a gnarled tree, he presented the embodiment of might and ferocity.

"I don't know but what you're right, Cap'n Williams," drawled the superintendent with his unchangeable equanimity. "Anyhow, you sure are entitled to do what you like with your own."

He went out and on his way to the office exit stopped at Brooks' desk.

CONSERVATORY CLOSING CONCERT

A highly successful musical evening was held in the Conservatory Hall last night, the occasion being the annual closing exercises of the Conservatory of Music faculty and pupils. The lengthy program, composed of most enjoyable and high-class numbers, was thoroughly appreciated by those present, and the affair was in every way a most gratifying and encouraging climax to the season's work of the Conservatory of Music. The delightfully skilful arrangement of the choice program excluded the faintest tendency to tedium and judging by the warm applause which greeted each number, the program was in every way most enjoyable. To enlarge on the work of any of the artists would scarcely be just as all excelled in their various performances. A somewhat unique performance, however, was the pianoforte rendition of "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohns, played by a quartet of the Conservatory teachers namely, Mrs. Hodgson, and the Misses Starke, McKee and Chiles, on two pianos.

Additional interest was added to the concert, by the presence of the noted and well-known musical director of the Toronto College of Music, Dr. Torrington. Mr. Gliddon invited him to say a few words previous to the last number on the program, which he did, taking the opportunity of congratulating most warmly the splendid work of the Conservatory, and urging citizens to lend it their heartiest support.

PRESENTATION AT MARK ST. PURSE OF GOLD FOR REV. COON

Mrs. Coon and Family Also Remembered by Friends —Going to Lakefield.

Representatives of the quarterly and trustee board of the Mark street Methodist church called on the retiring pastor, Rev. C. H. Coon, last evening, and Mr. Jos. Sucee made the presentation of a purse of gold, while Mr. John Speer read the following address:

Peterborough, June 26th, 1911.

To Rev. C. H. Coon:

Dear brother,—You are about to leave us for another field of labor. Having been with us for four years, the last of the four by unanimous invitation of the quarterly official board, you have remained the full limit of time allowed by the General Conference, and we feel it keenly that we have to part with you and your lovely family.

You have been most unselfish and kind, and many have expressed their appreciation of your efforts and faithfulness as your pastorate has drawn to a close among us.

We would ask you to accept this purse of gold as a slight expression of our hope for you; and we pray that the blessing of God may attend your every effort in your new field of labor. Also we pray that you may soon find a place in the hearts of the people, such as you hold in ours.

Signed on behalf of the board and members of the Mark street Methodist church, Peterborough.

JOSEPH SUCEE,
MALCOLM McINTYRE,
JOHN SPEER.

MRS. COON REMEMBERED.

Dear Mrs. Coon,—Upon the last occasion of your meeting with us, and before you leave for your new home, we, the members of the Mark street Ladies' Aid, wish to express our appreciation of your valuable services among us, both as a worker with us and later as our president.

Always willing to help us in things temporal and spiritual, your life has been an example to us, and we feel that much of the success of this department of our church has been due to your faithful efforts in labor and prayer.

We hope that in your new field of labor God may abundantly bless you and yours.

We ask you to accept as a remembrance from us these dishes, and may they remind you of old friends, although among new faces and scenes.

Singned on behalf of the Ladies' Aid.

MRS. A. A. FOWLER,
President.
MRS. S. MATCHETT,
Secretary.

In addition to the above presentations members of Mr. Coon's family have been the recipients of valuable tokens of friendship, accompanied by addresses, among them being a beautiful gold locket to Miss Myrtle, from some companions, and a leather suit case to Master Willard, from his boy chums, accompanied by a beautiful address.

Rev. Mr. Coon and his family leave this week for their new home in Lakefield, where Mr. Coon will have the pastorate of the Methodist church. With Mrs. Coon he has established a warm friendship with the congregation of Mark street. Both have worked faithfully for the interests of the church, and it is a matter of much satisfaction to every member of the congregation that in going to Lakefield they will be only a comparatively short distance away, and the pleasant associations may be from time to time renewed.

Climbed the Social Ladder

¶ Fifteen years ago there was a disinclination on the part of some men to go into a Semi-ready store.

¶ To-day we are in the position of Leaders of Society; it is the mark of social prestige, and the sign of the cosmopolitan to wear high-class tailoring like ours.

¶ We have won out. The man who knows will proudly display the Semi-ready label to his friends. He knows that it is the hall mark of good dress.

¶ Suits are shown from $15 to $35, and for design and craftsmanship our facilities are far beyond the reach of the retail tailor.

POOR WORK ON LIBRARY LAWN

No Grass Has Grown, If it Was Seeded

Citizens who pass the grounds of the Public Library are making bets as to whether any grass seed has been put into the ground about the building to convert it into a lawn. The gentleman who lately prepared the ground, when questioned about three weeks ago, said he "would put it in on Monday, the Lord willing." So far there is no evidence of growth.

The making of this lawn is about as bad a sample of how not to do it as can be remembered. It seems fated that things left to be done by the municipality are so often bungled or not done at all. Last fall the powers that be paid $37.50 to have the ground levelled, mind you, only levelled. The amount was a close bargain, and the city got what it bargained for. The result was that the holes were filled with big stones. They did this work in a perfunctory way. As it stands a fresh crop of weeds is springing up, and no grass in sight.

Here is a lawn that would, when properly made, be a part of our municipal buildings to which we might point with pride. If the work had been done for a citizen it would have been properly executed. The stones should have been removed. As it is they lie close to the surface to absorb the heat on a warm day and give it out, drying out the roots of the grass, if any grass appears. The plot should have been dug over, every stone removed with a fine rake, to a depth of 10 or 12 inches, the seed thoroughly worked in and covered with three or four inches of mould. As it is the whole thing is a farce.

When will the time come that any little thing done for the municipality will be done properly?

WAS THROWN OUT OF THE BUGGY

Mr. George Stenson in a Runaway Mishap

Lighted on His Head and Was Unconscious

Mr. George Stenson, caretaker of the local Post office, narrowly escaped fatal injuries when he was thrown from a buggy last night and landed on his head in a ditch, rendering him unconscious. Mr. Stenson was returning to Gibb's livery barn with the horse of Mr. Horace Walkey, after having driven him home about 1.30 o'clock, and the spirited horse became unmanageable. On descending the hill on Benson Avenue to Smith Street the animal started to run, and on turning the corner the buggy was upset, and Mr. Stenson was thrown out, striking his head on the ground. The buggy was turned over several times until finally the horse broke away from it, leaving it badly smashed.

Some neighbors heard the noise and ran out to see what the trouble was. Mr. Stenson was found and taken to the house of Mr. Alex Reid, corner of George and Smith streets, and Drs. Morgan and McClelland were summoned. The patient was removed to his home in the Post-office block, in Belleghem's private ambulance.

This morning he was able to talk of the accident and feels as though he will soon be around again. Other than a slight bruise on his head and a severe shaking up, his experience will not trouble him much.

Mr. Walkey, who is crippled, keeps his horse at Gibbs' livery and as there was no one around to drive home with him, and return the horse, Mr. Stenson very obligingly volunteered.

The horse was recovered about 9.30 o'clock this morning, in the north part of the city. A few scratches was all the injury it sustained.

LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average person who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the lenses themselves but much of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The LENSES are the important thing. You look through the LENSES from the time you start to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see.

TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years.

Shaped like the cornea of the eye, they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view without touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens.

We grind all our own TORIC lenses. They cost a little more than the ordinary flat lenses and are worth MUCH more.

SPRIGS OF SPORT

ST. JAMES WERE WINNERS AGAIN

Easily Disposed of Coldsprings by 4-0 Score

In a Church League game last-night St. James won from Cold Springs, 4-0. The Methodists had it on their opponents at nearly every stage. The game would not have helped Cold Springs in the league standing, much, so they did not usher out a very strong team. The referee did not like some insinuations from a few Cold Springs supporters, and ordered the "Springs" captain to have it stopped or forfeit the game. As the score stood 1-0 against them, the alternative and left the field.

This practically gives St. James' the championship of the Church League.

THINKS HE GOT A BAD BARGAIN

A case of a horse dealer named Tinney who was not possessed of the sagacity of David Harum, will be heard in Havelock to morrow before Magistrate Edmison.

It appears that Tinney purchased a mare from a man named Defoe, taking as payment a cow, and the balance in money. The horse, so it is stated, was bought by Mr. Tinney on the understanding that it was a quiet well behaved beast, and guaranteed not to be fractious in the least. Alas! when put between the shafts, the mare failed to live up to its recommendations, and showed herself to be the owner of a fierce temper and a tendency to kick skywards. Accordingly Mr. Tinney claims that he was fraudulently treated and had an information laid before the Magistrate against Defoe.

MODERNIZE EDUCATION

Superintendent Seath Thinks Radical Changes Should be Made

Dr. Seath, Superintendent of Education, has enumerated several obstacles which stand in the way of the "modernization" of the schools of Ontario. Chief among these is "the system of uniform departmental examinations which for over a quarter of a century have not only determined the character of the teaching but have held in thrall the pupils, the teachers, and the public." It is upon the results of these examinations that a teacher's standing, promotion, and salary depend. Next, the general desire for an occupation that allows clean hands and good clothes and the lack of suitable provisions for industrial and agricultural education explains, or along with the academic tradition, explains why the principal products turned out by the schools have been teachers and professional people generally. The schools send out increasing numbers of clerks, book-keepers, and stenographers whose work also admits of the clean hands and good clothes and whose courses are brief and comparatively inexpensive. Add to this the third great obstacle, the difficulty of securing regular and adequate attendance. Only 2,801 of the 456,302 pupils enrolled in the schools reach the highest class.

The Superintendent recommends as fundamental a good general education as an essential preparation for all vocations and a closer connection between the schools and the activities of life. With this as a basis Dr. Seath goes on to enumerate in detail the special features of a scheme of organization to include courses in manual training and household science, general and special industrial schools and technical high schools. For work people there are to be part time day industrial schools and evening apprenticeship schools, and also correspondence study schools. In order to secure an adequate supply of teachers an industrial and technical college is recommended. Agricultural courses in the high schools are to be organized. Provision is to be made for the encouragement of the fine arts in a central art school. The Dominion Government is expected to establish an institute for industrial research, and to provide a special subsidy for the advancement of agricultural and industrial education in all the provinces.

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA

The Grand Trunk Railway system announce that on Tuesdays, June 13th and 27th, July 11th and 25th, August 8th and 22nd, September 5th and 19th, 1911, Homeseekers' Excursions will be run from all stations in Ontario and Quebec to Western Canada, via Chicago, and Duluth or via Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis, at reduced round trip fares.

The well-known double track line of the Grand Trunk from the East to Chicago appeals to the traveller, and with the superior train service that is offered by this line, including the famous "International Limited" from Montreal daily at 9 a.m., and which is the finest and fastest train in Canada, many passengers will be attracted this way. The route via Chicago is a most interesting one, taking passengers through the principal cities and towns in Canada and in the States of Michigan and Indiana. In addition to this a choice of seven lines between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis is offered.

Owing to the great number of Canadians who reside in Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and other cities en route, there is no doubt that the Grand Trunk will find many patrons who will take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded them for a brief visit at the stations with their friends.

Canadian citizens are exempt from so-called Immigration examination, and there is no detention at any point.

Baggage is carried through the United States in bond without requiring any special attention on the part of the passenger. Inspection is not necessary at any of the points at the Border.

Another feature that will appeal to the home-seeker is the comfortable transfer at points like Chicago, St. Paul and Duluth into freshly ventilated clean cars, avoiding the necessity of travelling a long distance in the same car.

In addition to the above routes, the sale of tickets is also authorized via Sarnia, and the Northern Navigation Company's magnificent steamers across Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

For further particulars apply to any agent of the Grand Trunk Railway System, or write to Mr. J. Quinlan, District Passenger Agent, Bonaventure Station, Montreal, or Mr. A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto.

To Mr. and Mrs. Barrigan,

Dear Friends—It is with feelings of the deepest regret that we learn of your intended removal from our midst. During your residence in Havelock, you have endeared yourselves to a very large circle of friends, and more especially to those of us who are your neighbors. We assure you that we will miss you greatly in our daily life, and will cherish the memory of the happy social hours we have spent together. As a slight token of our regard, we ask you to accept this rocking chair, with the hope that, as you rest within it, you may think of the true friends you left behind in Havelock.

We wish you both every happiness and success in your new home in Sterling, and hope that you will frequently visit your old friends, who now wish you adieu and Godspeed.

We have examined the books and accounts of The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, for a period of four years ending December 31st, 1910, and certify that the Current Assets and Liabilities included in the above statement are correct.

During the period covered by our examination, the profits of the Company, including interest on investments (which has aggregated about $27,500.00 per annum), after providing for depreciation, have in no year amounted to less than $300,000.00, excepting in the year 1910, when the profits amounted to only $167,032.03. The profits for the three years, 1907, 1908 and 1909, on the basis mentioned, have averaged $333,282.08 per annum, and the falling off in the business of the year 1910 is explained by the management as being largely due to the curtailment of operations resulting from the delivery of defective steel castings purchased by the Company under contract.

Yours very truly,

FIELD OF OPERATION.

Canada to-day has over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and over 6,000 under construction or being surveyed. According to statistics furnished by the Department of Railways; one locomotive is required for every six miles of track. Last year there were 4,079 locomotives in use in Canada. The completion of the present 6,000 miles under construction will call for 1,000 new locomotives. In addition, 400 locomotives will be required each year to replace existing equipment. The railroad development which is taking place in Canada is really only at its beginning, and it is expected that within the next ten years the present railway mileage in Canada will be more than doubled. The field of operation is therefore almost unlimited.

PLANT AND EQUIPMENT.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, have been building locomotives since 1855 and have therefore a thorough knowledge of the business. At the present time they are turning out 75 locomotives per year, but have had to refuse many satisfactory orders owing to their limited capacity. The Company have the most up-to-date and modern plant in Canada, covering 333,000 sq. ft.

In addition the Company have 180,000 sq. ft. of reclaimable land on which they can erect additional buildings and, as required, still further enlarge their plant at the minimum of cost. The Company are fortunate in having cheap power, unexcelled shipping facilities, and in being exempt from taxation, except School taxes, up to the year 1916. They have probably the best trained and most loyal staff of skilled workmen on the continent.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

It is estimated that as a result of the contemplated increase to the plant, the earnings within the next few years should be at least $600,000 per annum; or in the neighborhood of 18% on the Common Stock after providing for Bond Interest, Sinking Fund, and Preferred Stock Dividend.

In making provision for an increase in the capacity of their plant, the Company are not entering into a new and untried field. They have a thorough knowledge of the business, and the increased output can be managed with the same office and selling staffs. Other economies will be effected through manufacturing in larger numbers than has been the case in the past. The reputation of the Company is so good that the demand for their locomotives far exceeds the supply.

Applications will be made in due course to list the Preference and Common Shares on the Toronto and Montreal and London Stock Exchanges.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE PASS MILK BY-LAW; ALL DEALERS MUST DELIVER IN BOTTLES

They Get Three Months to Install Bottling Plant—All Milk to be 3.04 Butter Fat—S. A. Band to Give Concert on Holiday Afternoon—Where are the Assessors' Maps—Rutherford Bros. Account Again.

The Property Committee at its meeting last night had a request from the Salvation Army band asking that that organization be allowed to play on the afternoon of Dominion Day at Victoria Park, the same to count as one of the season's Tuesday night concerts. The Army also asked that permission be given to hold Sunday afternoon meetings at Central Park. Both requests were granted.

PROTESTANT HOME

Ald. Graham remarked that he had staked out the lines for the new Protestant Home.

PARK LANE

The street connecting Bolivar and Sherbbrokke streets, and which is practically a continuance of Park St. was named, at the suggestion of Mayor Morrow, Park Lane.

NO MORE RIVER ROAD

The highway known at River Road running north from the corner of Smith and Concession, will be known as Concession Street.

The property which was once covered by the Ashburnham City Hall, will be cleaned up.

MILK BY-LAW

The committee went over the proposed by-law for the inspection and regulation of the milk supply, and gave approval to same.

Under the by-law, the vendor must report cases of contagious disease in his family, sickness to cattle, and submits to an inspection by the health officer or veterinary suergeon. He also answers a number of questions relative to the conditions under which the milk is secured.

The milk must be not less than 3.04 butter fat and 12 per cent solids. It must be delivered in bottles.

"The milkmen are objecting to being put to the expense of establishing a bottling plant and they say that some customers want it in bottles, while others want it in the cans," said Ald. Duncan.

Dr. McPherson, who entered at the time, said that he would like to see the milk delivered in bottles.

Ald. Bradburn was against the practice of exchanging milk on the streets.

Dr. McPherson held that the customers should be made clean the bottles.

"There are a whole lot who won't," said Ald. Graham.

"Where the dirt comes in, is using the bottles for other purposes," said the M. H. O. "The bottles should be cleaned after being emptied. This milk business is a much more serious question than the water."

Dr. McPherson was also of the opinion that there were too many milkmen in Peterboro.

"If I was assured that the bottles would be cleaned, I would be in favor of the bottling system," remarked Ald. Bradburn.

"Some of the dealers say that they can't afford the bottles, and I wouldn't like to see them go under," said Ald. Duncan.

Ald. Brown objected to the bottles because there were some dealers who had made a small investment and were doing their best to give a good pure milk supply. A further expense they could not meet.

It was finally decided that the milkmen be allowed three months in which to install the bottling plant.

The by-law further provides for the cleaning of the cattle and stables and that the water used for drinking purposes be free from contamination. Also that a milk house be erected separate from the stable or at a point suitable to the health authorities. All milkers must keep their hands dry while milking, and all milk must be strained in the milk house, where the temperature is not higher than 55. Milk drawn from cows thirty days before and ten days after calving must not be sold.

Any person violating any provision of the by-law, is liable to a fine, as provided for by the Milk Act.

After passage, copies of the by-law will be given to the vendors of the city.

The garbage by-law was held over for another meeting.

RUTHERFORD BROS. ACCOUNT

The chairman had a letter regarding the unpaid account of $300 from Rutherford Bros. The money had been hald back pending the proper execution of the work on the pillars at the Fubiic Library.

It was stated that Rutherford Bros. had agreed to have the money held back till the work was done. The contractors will be notified to finish the work and the account will be paid.

NEW MAPS

The assessors asked for a new map of the city. The only available ones are too ancient.

The committee couldn't figure out where the old maps were, and as the trouble looks to be an annual occurence, it was suggested that the matter of appointing permanent assessors be taken up.

The city clerk noted that the men had about three-quarters of the work done.

The matter was left over.

The grass on the park, at the corner of Hunter and Park streets will be cut, and a number of new benches purchased by the chairman distributed.

EARN DOUBLE IN FUTURE

In an interview to-day with Hon. Wm. Harty, President of the Canadian Locomotive Works, your correspondent learned some of the reasons' for the Company's decision to double the capacity of the plant. "We were simply deluged with orders," said Mr. Harty, "and found ourselves totally unable to fill them. During the past 10 years we have more than trebled the capacity of our plant, and have spent over $1,000,000 in machinery and equipments. All this money has come out of earnings. In addition to spending this large sum, we have built up a cash reserve of $1,250,000, all of which is being turned over to the new company. For the past 4 years we have earned over $300,000 per year, and on a conservative estimate we believe that we will be able to earn double that amount in the future. The tremendous developments taking place in connection with our railroad, made it absolutely necessary for us to extend our plant. We have to-day about 25,000 miles of road in Canada, this serving 8,000,000 people. You know this is Canada's century, and when we have 80 or 100 million people in the country, we will require many times our present railway mileage. This means increased demands for cars, locomotives and other railway equipment and it was to take advantage of this increased demand that we decided to double the capacity of our plant." When asked what he regarded as a probable railway mileage in Canada in 25 years, Mr. Harty said, "It would be a bold man who would make an estimate, and I am fully convinced that none of us realise what a tremendous developments will take place [illegible] quarter or half century. Certainly, everyone of our industrial concerns will be taxed to the utmost to meet the demand. Canada's development is only commencing." Mr. Harty, who has been connected with the Canadian Locomotive Company for over 20 years is very proud of the expansion which is taking place, and at the same time has confidence in the future, not only of his own company, but in the expansion of the Dominion. — Kingston Standard, June 24th.

A THOUSAND PLAYERS APPEAR IN COMMAND PERFORMANCE BEFORE THE KING AND QUEEN

Entertainment Put on Such as Was Never Attempted Before—Great Actors Participate—Festivities Nearly Over.

London, June 28.—The King and Queen and royal distinguished guests attended the second command performance in connection with the coronation festitivities at His Majesty's Theatre last night. This might be described as an all-star performance to an all-star audience.

For the occasion Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree had arranged a superb program. He received their Majesties in the beautiful house, made still more beautiful by the adoption of a scheme of decoration along Grecian lines, remarkable for their delicate simplicity. He had insisted that the play was the thing. Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, boldly paraphrasing Shakespeare in the prologue composed for last night's performance, emphasized the fact by writing:

"The play's the thing,
Wherein to snatch a conquest of the King."

So the distinguished audience was treated to scenes from "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "David Garrick," "Julius Caesar," "The Critic," and Ben Jonson's Masque, "The Vision of Delight," in which appeared more than 300 actors and actresses, standing at the top of their respective branches in the profession, with minor actors and actresses filling supernumerary roles, the whole number engaged reaching nearly one thousand. To accommodate this extraordinary cast, dressing-rooms were provided in the shops in the arcade at the back of the theatre and the Carlton Hotel.

Long before the doors opened a great crowd had gathered about the theatre and along the route from Buckingham Palace. When Their Majesties appeared, they were loudly cheered, the band of the Irish Guards stationed near the royal entrance to the theatre playing the National Anthem.

At the conclusion of the performance there was a remarkable display of loyalty. The whole audience stood motionless while Miss Clara Butt, the English contralto, sang the National Anthem, the Indian princes and the gentlemen with their hands raised at the salute.

The principal coronation festivities are nearing an end, but subsidiary functions and social entertainments are still sufficiently numerous and important to keep London in a constant state of effervescence.

While in one section of the city an army of workmen is busy removing decorations and stands, in another section great numbers are employed erecting new arches and stringing bunting to do honor to their Majesties on the next royal progress on Thursday. Although the authorities are taking the same apparently needless precautions in the shape of gates, as on the route of the royal procession, Thursday's affair will be of minor importance, their being none of the grand military display which characterized the second procession during coronation week.

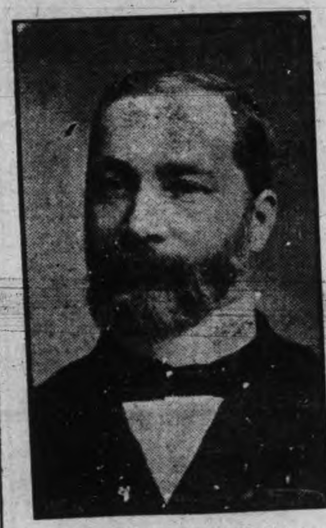
WATCHMAN KILLED IN SHANTY WHEN CABOOSE LEFT THE RAILS



JUDGE WINCHESTER.
Who is busy conducting civic investigations in Toronto.

Fatal Accident at London in Collision of Street Car and Freight.

London, Ont., June 28.—Timothy O'Leary, a watchman, was killed, Motorman J. H. Facey injured, ten passengers badly frightened and three freight cars were thrown across the tracks, obstructing traffic for several hours, as the result of a collision between an Ottawa avenue car and a freight train at Rectory street and the Grand Trunk tracks last night.

Watchman O'Leary had thrown the derail for the car to cross the tracks. A freight train backing down a siding failed to stop on signal and crashed into the front end of the car.

The car was turned entirely around but remained in an upright position, allowing the frightened passengers to escape. The caboose of the freight train left the rails, striking the shanty in which O'Leary was sitting. O'Leary was crushed to death under the wheels, which ground the shanty to pieces. The caboose then struck and derailed two other cars, which were piled in a pyramid on the tracks.

Motorman Facey jumped just in time to save himself from being crushed in the vestibule of his car, which was broken to splinters. He struck the track with his left leg doubled under him. On examination it was found that several muscles had been torn. Aside from a few insignificant bruises none of the passengers were injured.

Mr. German Won't Resign.

Welland, June 28.—W. M. German, M.P., in reply to a question of a correspondent yesterday, stated that he intended paying no attention to the challenge of J. F. G. Gross, an ex-M.P.P., made at the Liberal convention, in which he said: "If I were in his (German's) place, I would resign at once, and test the issue by running against reciprocity."

"But," added Mr. German, "I'll do it if the Premier wants me to."

TORONTO TO HAVE AVIATION MEET

BORDEN POPULAR

Conservative Leader Receives Great Attention

Red Deer, Alta., June 28.—The demand on the Conservative leader for public meetings continues to be greater than he is able to meet. In Manitoba the party lost two members, who entered upon parallel tours within that province. In Alberta the same step has had to be taken. Yesterday Mr. Borden addressed two meetings personally, one at Lacombe and one at Red Deer, while Dr. Roche addressed a gathering at Olds, and Andrew Broder spoke at Stettler.

Mr. Borden spent the day in the riding represented at Ottawa by Dr. Mchael Clark, Liberal and free trader, Yet a larger portion of the audience at Lacombe cheered heartily an appeal by G. H. Perley for protection to build up factories in the west.

"Let the Americans come over here and do their manufacturin,g" came a friendly interruption.

"That's what we want," promptly rejoined Mr. Perley. "That's what we are doing now." (Cheers.)

Mr. Borden repeated his intention to force an appeal to the people, if possible, on the reciprocity issue and announced himself in favor of imperial preference. There were few cheers, however, when he stated his confidence that reciprocity would be "a curse."

Mr. Bergeron's arguments for protection drew out a stout protectionist from Utah, Amos Gregg by name. He was strongly opposed to reciprocity.

"I was born in the United States," he shouted, "and I love it as myself, but if you are going to give your goods and money to the United States you will have to go yourself, body and soul." (Cheers.)

Steel Barrel Floating In The Big Rapids

Special to the Review.

Niagara Falls, June 28.—Bobby Leach, who has navigated the whirlpool rapids of Niagara Falls several times, tried it again this afternoon, and it is believed fatally. At 3 o'clock the barrel had been floating two hours in the whirlpool with the air hole submerged, and the worst is feared.

Ottawa Fireman's Escape.

Ottawa, June 28.—Two firemen were seriously injured, and several others partly overcome by smoke, in a blaze on Somerset street, in the west of the city, at noon yesterday.

The fire was in a shop, and Fireman Gravelle fell through a trap door into the burning cellar. It was some minutes before he was rescued, but his life was probably saved by Capt. Alex. Potvin turning a hose on to him. In getting Gravelle out, Fireman Garnet, who made a heroic rescue, was also burned. Both were taken to the hospital.

FLIES IN AEROPLANE UNDER BRIDGE AT NIAGARA FALLS

One of the Most Daring Feats Ever Accomplished—Machine Sucked Down by Whirlpool

Niagara Falls, June 28.—For the first time in the history of aeronauts, an aeroplane circled over the majestic cataract of Niagara and dipped gracefully under the upper steel arch bridge shortly before six o'clock last evening, when Lincoln Beachy piloted his Curtiss bi-plane safely over the perilous course in the view of a quarter of a million of people. His successful flight marks another milestone in the achievements of daring bird-men. Enthusiastic aviators who witnessed the flight declare that it was more perilous than the recent race across the Alps. Beachy won the thousand-dollar prize offered by the international carnival committee on the under-the-bridge flight.

Beachy rose into the air in his machine about a mile from the roaring cataract, soared several thousand feet into the clouds, then clung near to the earth. Several times he was lost to view. Like a great sea gull the aeroplane passed over the steel structure, clearing the trolley that crosses it by a meagre twenty feet. Down the gorge for a mile the machine raced, then passed over the city on the Canadian side.

Circling over the horseshoe falls for the second time, Beachy dipped his machine as soon as he cleared the cataract and ducked under the bridge without even brushing a guy wire. As the aeroplane passed under the bridge, the whistles of the Maid of the Mist and the gorge route cars screeched out the news of the successful attempt to perform a feat which James McCurdy, the Canadian aviator, and other well-known bird-men had refused to try, declaring it to be suicidal.

Beachy will fly over the falls again this afternoon, aviation features being the star attraction of Niagara's international carnival, in progress yesterday and to-day.

Here is Beachy's own story of his epoch-making flight, as he told it to a reporter last night:

"I would not again attempt to fly under that bridge for $5,000, let alone the $1,000 purse such as I won to-day. It is the uncertainty as to what is before the aviator as he passes through clouds of spray over the falls that makes the flight so perilous.

"As I neared the Horseshoe Falls I dipped my machine to the spray. I could hear the roar of the cataract above that of my machine, but I could not see three feet in front of me.

"As I passed through the spray and out into the daylight again I dipped my machine and made directly for the bridge. I was within a few hundred feet of the bridge before I was sure that my attempt to pass under it would be successfully accomplished.

"As I passed over the falls I noticed a great suction that seemed to suck my machine down into the rushing waters. I breathed a sigh of relief when I had cleared the Cataract on both my flights over the falls.

"The strong air currents in the gorge made it difficult for me to come up from the chasm. When within a thousand feet of the Cantilever Bridge, about a mile below the bridge I passed under, I was about level with the upper river bank. I was fifty feet above the ground when I changed my course and turned my machine towards the Canadian shore."

Yesterday morning Canadian and American soldiers marched side by side under arms through the streets of the twin "Power Cities." The parade was the greatest ever held on the Niagara frontier.

THE MILLING MEN FORM A MERGER

Amalgamation of Western Ontario Concerns Announced.

Guelph, June 28—Another big merger has been formed. This latest consists of a union of the various milling companies scattered throughout western Ontario. The stated object is to secure, if possible, a larger share of the export trade, and to do away with overlapping of orders. Six companies are interested, these being the owners of mills situated in Chatham, Blenheim, St. Mary's, Stratford, the John Campbell Milling Co., with two mills at St. Thomas, and the Goldie Milling Co. of this city.

When interviewed yesterday, the officials of the Goldie Milling Co. stated that this merger has been under process of formation for some time past, and that the arrangements were concluded at a meeting of the millers, held at Toronto on Monday. The capital has not yet been announced, but it will be large. The merger will not affect the output of the Goldie Milling Co., for some time at least, and the staff will be kept intact. It may mean, however, that some of those who have been at the head of the Goldie Milling Co. for many years, will retire from active participation in the business, and will allow the younger men to have the control.

HEAD MORMON ON THE GRILL

Washington, D. C., June 28.—President Joseph F. Smith, of the Mormon Church, was the principal witness at yesterday's hearing of the House committee investigation of the so-called sugar trust. The oath was administered to him by Chairman Hardwick, the Mormon leader remaining seated while being sworn.

"Have you any official connection with the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co.?" asked Chairman Hardwick.

"I am president of the company," Smith replied.

"Do you own any stock?"

"Yes, sir; I own about 5,000 shares individually, I hold 48,815 shares for the Church."

CANADIAN SOLDIERS NEARLY KILLED WITH HOSPITALITY

Princes Visit the Overseas Camp at Chelsea, and Inspected the Troops.

London, June 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Yesterday the Prince of Wales, Princess Mary and Prince George visited the overseas camp at Chelsea, and inspected the different contingents. The Prince of Wales especially asked where the different companies of Canadians came from, and begged a button from Col. McLean's tunic. The request was promptly complied with, and all commandants gave him their badges, whereupon Prince George demanded a similar gift.

The South Africans gave their peculiar lion's roar, and the Canadians gave the royal children three cheers and a "tiger," and sang "O Canada."

Hon. Louis Harcourt visits the camp later in the day. To-day the Canadians go to Windsor Castle, and the officers take tea at Eton. Lord Strathcona dines the officers and wives at night, and on Friday the King presents the coronation medals at Buckingham Palace.

On Saturday the Canadian camp will be struck at one o'clock, and the men will embark on the Empress of Britain at Liverpool at seven. Col. McLean says the officers and men have been nearly killed with kindness and hospitality.

A Handsome Present.

Toronto, June 28.—The treasurer of the National Sanitarium Association has received the handsome donation of $500 as a contribution from Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cockshutt of Brantford, to maintain two beds for one year in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. The beds thus endowed are to be set apart specially for the benefit of patients coming from Brantford, and the County of Brant.

Many Under Surveillance.

New York, June 28.—Pending official developments, ten men and women of social prominence in this city are under surveillance in connection with the Jenkins' jewelry smuggling case, and the names of a score are on the list of Collector Loeb. Action against six customs inspectors is likely also.

Declaration of London.

London, June 28.—Hon. A. J. Balfour spoke at a great non-political meeting of protest against the declaration of London yesterday. He said starvation, not invasion, was the danger of this country. Her seizure of an enemy's vessels was almost the only pressure we had against other powers, but the declaration intended to hamper the right of any power attempting an effective blockade distinctly diminished the power of counter attack which Britain had exercised in the past.

A resolution carried that the declaration seriously weakens the empire's naval position, highly prejudiced her commercial interests, and gravely threatened Britain's food supply in war.

Stole Eight Cattle.

Toronto, June 28.—Provincial Inspector Reburn returned last night from Lindsay where, after a few days work, he rounded up a couple of cattle thieves named Roderick Grant and Fred. Hawes, both of whom have been sent down to the Central Prison for two years less one day.

Eight head of cattle were stolen from D. C. McEachren, in Victoria County, near Lindsay, and driven to Beaverton, where they were sold for $250. The thieves were located and arrested in Toronto, taken back to Lindsay and sent down by Magistrate S. D. Moore.

NOT RACE SUICIDE HERE

Woman on Visit to Ottawa Gave Birth to Triplets

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, June 28.—Mrs. Robert A. Hardy, of Quappelle, Sask., who is here visiting friends, gave birth this morning to triplets. There is one girl weighing 7 1-4 pounds and two boys each weighing 6 1-2 pounds. All are doing well.

On Trial For Alleged Perjury.

Colborne, June 28.—Henry Hicks, the aged auctioneer, accused of having committed perjury in his evidence at the trial for murder of "Son" Matthews, appeared yesterday before Magistrate Miller.

The crown is represented by Crown Attorney Kerr of Cobourg, and Provincial Inspector Miller of Toronto. The accused is represented by F. M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg.

Of a large number of witnesses summoned by the crown, only four had been heard early yesterday afternoon. They swore to statements by Hicks that Matthews was guilty, but that a large amount of money was being spent to swing the evidence. Evidence was also given as to Hicks' presence at the Bristol house at the time he says he saw the alleged murdered woman alive.

LAD LOST HIS LIFE IN TANK

Was Son of Proprietor of Athens Creamery

Special To The Review

Brockville, June 28—Orville Henderson, three years of age, was drowned in a tank of his father's creamery at Athens. The body was only found after a protracted search. The employees in the building did not hear any outcry.

SEEKING ALL-RED RAILWAY CHARTER

Object is to Shorten Sea Voyage Between England and Canada

Montreal, June 28.—The All-red line railway company, of which notice of charter has just been given at Ottawa, will result in the shortening of the sea voyage between England and Canada to two and a quarter days, if the scheme upon which the company is working is carried out.

This, at any rate, is the statement of Hon. Achille Bergevin, legislative councillor, who has interested influential authorities in the project, both here and in Great Britain.

The proposal is to build a railway from Montreal or Quebec to a point at or near Cape St. Charles, on the Labrador coast.

This point is on the 52nd degree of latitude, which is the same as London and Bristol. It is proposed to establish a port. The only months when it possibly could not be used are May and June, when the big fields of floating ice come down the coast. At this time, however, the harbors of Montreal and Quebec are open.

Important Decision Rendered.

Winnipeg, June 28.—Judge Robinson, in the case of Wolfson v. Olfield, Kirby and Garner, handed down a very important decision yesterday, affecting real estate dealings all through the west. The plaintiff is an Englishman who holds certain valuable property in this city.

The defendants cabled him stating that a capitalist had made an offer for this property, and he cabled his acceptance. Subsequently plaintiff visited Winnipeg and found property had been transferred to a law student, and then transferred to an investment company, in which one of the defendants was interested.

Judge Robinson ordered that defendants receive back from plaintiff the purchase price of the lot, and restore title to him and make account to him of all rents, etc., received since the sale, and pay costs of the action.

MONTREAL CHURCH HIT BY LIGHTNING, GOES UP IN FLAMES

Will Be the Secretary.

Ottawa, June 28.—John Byrne, of the grain inspection branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce, is said to have been slated for the position of Secretary of the commission to be appointed under the Grain Inspection Act.

Muzzle the Dogs.

Toronto, June 28.—An order from the Provincial Department of Health is likely to go forth to this effect at any time. Yesterday two more dogs' heads arrived at the provincial laboratory, and these show signs of rabies.

A Nasty Accusation.

New York, June 28—Ernest T. Rossiter, a son of the late E. V. W. Rossiter, once vice-president of the New York Central Railroad, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday for trial on a charge relative to impairing the morals of children. A ten-year-old girl claims that Rossiter annoyed her in a trolley car Monday night. Her mother beat Rossiter with an umbrella.

LONDONERS DO NOT LIKE STAMP

Special to the Review,

London, June 28—The public is not favorably impressed with the special coronation stamp issue, and Parliament has been asked to withdraw the stamp for one with a better likeness of the King.

Loss is $200,000 Covered by Insurance—Second Time Church is Burned,

Montreal, June 29.—Lightning yesterday struck the Church of St. Jean Baptiste on Rachael street, and completely destroyed the splendid edifice, at a loss of about $200,000.

This was the second time the church had been burned, but the present fire was much the more disastrous, since after the fire in 1898 it had been rebuilt into one of the finest edifices in Montreal.

At midnight there was little left but the walls and the tower, facing on Rachael street, which still stood, although it was momentarily threatening to fall.

There was, fortunately, no loss of life in connection with the fire, which started about 9.30 o'clock, very shortly after a service had been held. The only person injured was Fireman Bourgeoin, who was thrown from a ladder by a toppling wall and suffered a broken leg and other injuries.

At a late hour this morning the fire is still raging within the almost bare walls of the church, and it is said by Chief Tremblay that it will probably be noon before the firemen would be able to leave the ruins.

While the losses are very heavy they are well covered by insurance, it being state that there was $175,000 insurance on the main building, spread over a number of companies, while the insurance on the organ amounted to 14,000. Oddly enough the organ insurance had only been concluded at noon yesterday, the organ having been only recently installed by the Casavant Company of Ste. Hyacinthe.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

CANADA'S FUTURE

Looking ahead into the mists of time, what of Canada, and her future, and of the relations between the United States and Canada? We may be able to see for ten or twenty years, but what about fifty or one hundred? Who is the rash man who will prophesy that Canada will be then commercially and politically separate and distinct from the great republic to the south?

It may be taken for granted that the United States will still be in national existence one hundred years from now. A nation of 90,000,000 vigorous people, many of them Anglo-Saxons, may have many troubles, but their virility is unquestioned. Canada cannot hope to take in the United States, so the question is whether Canada will be able, in spite of the steady Americanization of the long years, to retain her distinct identity, as separate and as free from American influence then as she is to-day.

Egypt is nominally ruled by the Khedive. It is outwardly still under local government. But the map-maker paints it red. Cuba is governed by a ministry of its own people, but it is nevertheless a ward of Uncle Sam. Is it not possible that in the course of changing conditions of commerce and sentiment, that we may still elect a parliament to legislate at Ottawa, yet be controlled from Washington in our policies? A writer, W. R. Lawson, deals with this phase of Americanization in his work "Canada and the Empire," and he makes out a good case. He says:

"Even with all the power and prestige of the British Empire behind her Canada will find it a hard enough task to resist the many and various forms of Americanization to which she will be subject in the next twenty years of her history. It is not violence she need be most afraid of, though her three thousand mile frontier puts her entirely at the mercy of an overwhelmingly powerful neighbor. Her chief danger lies in the fact that she possesses so much natural wealth which may not only be coveted by the Americans, but may become indispensable to them. Her lumber, her materials, her footstuffs, will one day be needed to make good the shortage of American supplies of the same kind. Her markets may also become necessary as an outlet for the surplus output of American mills and factories."

President Taft and others may talk of the folly of a Chinese wall, but the Chinese wall was of great assistance in keeping back the Tartar hordes. If a Chinese wall of customs duties would preserve Canadian national independence from the sapping influences steadily at work, insidiously gaining control of the arteries of commerce, and possessing themselves of the safety valves of Canadian financial strength, would it not be doing a good work for Canada?

No one will say that Canada will become a part of the United States in five years, or ten years. This generation may not live to see it. But the natural forces are at work, and will continue to work, drawing the two peoples together as one, commercially, socially, politically, just as a magnet will exert a powerful influence on steel filings. The contiguity of the two peoples constitutes a menace to Canadian national life, but not to the United States. Canadian safety lies in the British connection; for once loose from that firm anchor we would ultimately drift to what even now would appear to be our natural destiny—geographically.

This is the reason why R. L. Borden has announced himself as so opposed to the reciprocity pact, the biggest step towards this continentalization which Canadians dread. Mr. Borden and the Conservative party recognize the danger the temerity of Laurier and Fielding would plunge us into; on national, imperial, and economic grounds they stand for a Canada for Canadians, a Canada for the empire, and a Canada for the king.

MR. KERR'S NOMINATION

The Liberal convention of East Peterborough in selecting F. D. Kerr as its candidate for the expected Dominion election, sprang a surprise, apparently, on the party managers. In fact the Examiner seemed to be so stunned by the blow that it did not even announce the news in its issue yesterday that Mr. Kerr was selected over the favorite, R. R. Hall, and left it to the Review to give the people the news.

It is somewhat of a mystery why Mr. Hall was turned down in favor of a tyro. Perhaps the East Peterborough Grits thought younger lamb would add zest to the election dinner for the Conservatives of the riding. Mr. Hall has done yeoman service for the party, and it seems a shame that he should be denied the opportunity of once more sacrificing himself on the altar of partyism, and possibly earning some sort of since as one of the Laurier wounded birds.

Mr. Kerr is a very nice youngman, and it seems rather tough that he should mix at so impressionable an age with such political allies. It seems rather deplorable that a promising career should have its lily white bespattered in its very bud. But apparently there was some good reason why R. R. Hall should not get a show at the East Peterborough nomination, and so the big upset of the plans of the managers happened. The

"Plans of mice and men
Gang aft agley."

Mr. Kerr becomes the apologist of Laurier. He will, presumably, support reciprocity, support the graft and corruption that have so frightfully marred the last five years of administration at Ottawa. He will be a supporter of Pugsleyism, of the man who made the wreck of the Farmers' Bank possible, of the dark lantern brigade, of the sawdust wharf deal, of the National Transcontinental steals and over-classification, of the Quebec bridge blunders, of the anti-imperial, continentalist plans of his leader. He has elected to seek the votes of honest men and women for a crowd of politicians whom he knows he would not trust very far himself. In standing as a candidate, he puts himself into the same class as the Ottawa gang, who have made decent Canadians sometimes blush with shame. As a candidate Mr. Kerr must assume responsibility for these acts and follies, though personally he had no part in them. He becomes the apologist for the most brazenly corrupt government Canada ever had.

Contrasted with his opponent, who will be Mr. Sexsmith, probably, Mr. Kerr cuts a sorry figure. Mr. Sexsmith is a farmer, who is an expert on farm matters, who is one of those whom he represents, and it certainly should not take East Peterborough men long to decide whether they want their present able representative returned, or want to be represented by an outsider, and an inexperienced one at that.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Hamilton Spectator in describing the dresses worn at the jockey club meeting says "Mr. G. Glassco wore a brown suit, cream lace and straw hat." Was it a peekaboo waist or merely a frill on the bottom of his trousers?

Leader Borden's fifty-seventh birthday was spent in Calgary, in the happiest kind of a manner. The welcome the west is giving Mr. Borden piles up like waves on a shore. Far from being in trouble over his trip, Mr. Borden is carrying all before him with his open frankness, and is winning support on all sides.

The powers that be at Ottawa intimate that when parliament reassembles, the first motion will be for the introduction of some kind of gag. This will result in the first big fight of the new session. The Liberals are in a peculiar sort of a predicament when they are afraid of the effect of free speech by the opposition. If they did not fear the result, they would be content to have untrammelled discussion, without crying for the gag like a lot of babies. There's some squeal in the Liberal hog yet.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, June 27.—There was an increased enquiry from European sources for Manitoba spring wheat for July-August shipment, but as the prices bid were all from 1c to 2c per bushel out of line no business was done. The foreign demand for oats also showed some improvement, but at the sharp advance in prices in the Winnipeg market bids were too low. The tone of the local market was stronger for oats, and sellers were asking an advance of ¼c per bushel, but the demand was quiet. American No. 3 yellow corn in cargo lots afloat here was quoted at 62½c to 63c per bushel. The enquiry from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour was better, and firm bids for winter wheat grades were 3d per sack below sellers' views.

For the Family

You work to provide for your wife and children. Your ambitions are for them. You intend to make up to your wife the self denials she has practised. You plan that the girls and the boys shall have their chance; you picture the future by your hope.

But have you had the forethought to realize that death does not halt for any man's hopes, or wait for any man's convenience? Have you made such provisions for the future that your family will receive an income adequate to their needs in case of your death?

By devoting a small part of your income to life insurance, your hopes will become realities to them.

A guaranteed income policy for $1,000 at age 35 costs less than 10c a day and will not lapse if you become unable to pay the premiums in consequence of total and permanent disability from accident or disease, and further if you wish it, the Company will begin immediately to pay the amount due under the policy, not necessarily waiting until it becomes a claim through death.

"Well, how's things, boy?" he inquired with an interest so kindly that one might have thought there was nothing else in the world with which his mind was occupied and never could have suspected that there lay before him for immediate solution the problem of preparing for a great strike that threatened to tie up the business of one of the most important steamship lines in the country, with ramifications extending from Boston all around the coast of South America to San Francisco.

"Oh, so, so," answered Brooks. "By the bye, I'd be awful glad if you'd come up to supper tonight. Emma was saying only this morning that we hadn't seen anything of you for a week."

"That's so. I've got to square myself with Emma, though it hasn't been my fault altogether."

"Then we'll expect you to supper?"

"I can't promise, because I've a deal to do between now and this evening, but I'll come if I can."

"So long, Jimsy."

"So long."

And Smith sauntered out to attend to one of the greatest emergencies he had ever been called upon to meet in his life.

CHAPTER III.

HE was a skillful architect indeed who first devised the bandbox apartment houses so common now in all parts of New York and must have sat up many nights working out how to extricate the maximum of rent revenue from the area on which he had to fit the structure.

If there were any flats in Harlem of smaller dimensions than the one of four rooms occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brooks the most experienced [illegible] hunter after a place in which to lodge his family with relative economy and some semblance of comfort would have had the time of his or her life finding it. And if other flats there were more luxuriously fitted up, as easily might have been—in fact, certainly must have been—the case, at least there was none, whatever its size, that was kept cleaner or neater or in which more effective use of available material had been made than that over which Mrs. Emma Brooks presided as mistress and factotum.

And Mrs. Brooks herself—how she graced it, altogether unconsciously! As the elder of two daughters of Stanley Harris, who, while not rich, had been well to do, she had been brought up in the comfort of a good home and had enjoyed the advantage of an education at a private seminary. Her father, whose constant companion she had been and whose sense of democracy in the matter of association she had inherited, had adored her, and when she had given her heart to Joseph Brooks, electing him from among numerous suitors, including James Smith, he gave his consent to their union against his own judgment and in face of the strenuous opposition of his wife, esteeming the girl's happiness superior to all other considerations.

Brooks, who had been in the employ of the Latin-American Steamship company for one year and had been brought into relations with the family by virtue of his selection as secretary to her father, the general manager, had no means whatever of his own, and his salary, then $60 a month, was a desperately small income on which to begin housekeeping for a girl reared as she had been. But her father helped them, and the young couple counted upon his influence to procure the advancement of his son-in-law to a more remunerative post.

Unfortunately for them, however, Mr. Harris had died a few weeks after their wedding, and they found themselves thrown upon their own resources. Mrs. Harris, a selfish, shallow, unfeeling woman with social pretensions, who regarded her daughter's marriage with the young clerk as a mesalliance and Brooks himself with disdain, left them to shift for themselves and with her other daughter, Beth, who was seven years younger than Emma and shared her mother's views, as she imitated her haughtiness, settled down to the enjoyment of the modest fortune her husband had left her and the indulgence of the ostentation she loved, but which during Mr. Harris' lifetime she had never been able to gratify to the top of her bent. She did not for this, however, withdraw altogether from association with Emma and Brooks and continued on more or less amicable terms with them. Now and then she condescended to call upon them with Beth, but her visits, as a rule, were a good deal of a trial to the young couple, for she regarded Brooks' failure to get on in the steamship company as a vindication of her opinion as to his ability and the judiciousness of their marriage and was prone to condone with her daughter, assume an exasperating I-told-you-so attitude and lament what might have been.

During the four years of their married life Brooks' salary had been raised only $20 a month, although in addition to his work as accountant, to which he had been assigned after Mr. Harris' death, that of collector had been thrust upon him. It had been a hard, bitter experience for pretty little Mrs. Brooks, this unaccustomed drudgery of housework, this continuous scouring of greasy pots and pans and washing of dishes, which she loathed; this deprivation of comforts and luxuries that she had known all her life; this privation of many personal things considered indispensable by the dainty woman; this necessity of perpetual rigid economizing, which barely sufficed to make both ends meet. She deprived herself of much needed clothing, to say nothing of finery, that Joe might go properly clad to his office, but she never for that reason descended to slovenliness, never "let herself go," as so many women in their own households make the mistake of doing, and never had she allowed one word of complaint, one indication of regret, to escape her. She had married Joe for love, for better or for worse, and resigned herself bravely and cheerfully to the consequences, however hard to bear, hoping for the better times that were so long in coming and encouraging her husband to fight on and win.

Joe, for his part, lacked his wife's grit and energy, and constant disappointment had undermined his fortitude. He loved Emma. He hardly could have done otherwise, though calculation had entered largely into his courting of her. Chivalrously, while the sweet bliss of their early married life held him in its spell, he had done as much of the heavier work of the menage as he could to spare her when time and opportunity afforded, but very naturally he had soon tired of this—where is the man who does not?—and by degrees had left as much of it as he could to her, except when his moods of optimism and affectionate solicitude impelled him to go to her assistance. At such times he wanted to do it all.

On the evening following his outburst at the office he was still resentful and "down in the mouth" when he let himself into his little flat, and the smiles of his wife as she raised her rosebud lips to receive his kiss of greeting failed to dispel his gloom.

"You seem out of sorts tonight, dear," she said solicitously. "Anything wrong at the office?"

"Nothing in particular. I'm tired and hungry after slaving all day in this awful heat, that's all."

"Never mind, supper's all ready, so sit down and tuck in."

"What did you get?"

"Chops and potatoes."

Joe turned up his nose, but took his seat at table and began to eat. He answered his wife's questions in monosyllables. His thoughts, it was plain, were not on his meal or Emma's conversation, and, seeing that he was preoccupied and troubled, she ceased to try to engage his attention.

"I paid the gas bill today," he vouchsafed at length. "Ninety cents more than last month."

"Ninety cents more!" she commented with concern. "I'm sure we didn't use half as much. And we owe the butcher four-sixty."

"Every month it costs more to live. I don't know what we are going to do, I'm sure."

"I'm sorry, Joe. Goodness knows I try to be as economical as I can."

"I know, but it's all wrong. It's all wrong that you should be spoiling your hands with those beastly greasy pans. They weren't meant for such work. I wish we could afford a hired girl."

"So do I, but we can't, so what's the use of wishing? Didn't you get the raise you asked Captain Williams for?" she inquired.

"No."

He hung his head and lapsed into gloomy silence. She dropped the morsel she was raising to her mouth and rose from the table, filled with dismay, her appetite completely gone. Tears of disappointment followed the realization of what the failure of their plans meant, for neither had doubted that his request would be complied with, and she had built many castles in the air on the strength of it. A few dollars more a week added to their distressingly small income would have meant much to them. But, gazing at her husband sitting there utterly dejected and crushed, her heart went out to him in pity and love, and she moved over to his chair and put her arm consolingly round his neck.

"Never mind, Joe, boy," she urged; "don't look so solemn. We're no worse off than we were before, and you'll win out some day."

She placed her hand under his chin and raised his head to kiss him. He saw that she was smiling at him encouragingly through her tears, but refused to be comforted.

"I made out the payroll today," he said. "Three other men in the office who also asked for a raise last month got it; so did Smith."

"What, Jimsy?" she asked.

"I said Smith. There's only one Smith in the office," he replied somewhat surlily.

"Well, I'm glad for Jimsy's sake he got what he wanted."

"I think he told Williams to come across with more money or he'd quit."

"How much did he ask for?"

"Eighteen hundred."

"Eighteen hundred? My gracious, isn't that fine?"

"It means that he'll be getting nearly $5,000 a year now. Great for him, isn't it?"

"Yes, indeed it is."

"I saw Jimsy today. Asked him to come to supper. He said he would if he could."

"I wonder why he didn't?"

Her husband did not answer immediately. When he did he burst out savagely:

"Suppose he thought we couldn't afford it. Two don't eat as much as three."

"Why, Joe, how absurd!" she laughed, beginning to gather up the supper plates. "Jimsy knows it's pot luck."

"That's the trouble. Jimsy knows—your mother knows—Williams knows—everybody knows, and they're always talking about how you've got to work and slave because you married me and all that sort of stuff."

"Jimsy doesn't."

"Well, he thinks it, and your mother's always rubbing it in, harping on the same old string—that I ain't worthy of you, that it's a shame the way you have to work and slave, that I don't seem to get along at all and that you"—

"Oh, don't mind mother; you know her."

"She never did want us to marry."

"But dear old dad did, and he was the one I wanted to please—after you, Joe, of course. Mother is just a bit peculiar. I'm sure she doesn't understand me much, and I'm equally sure that I don't understand her, so we won't bother about her. Just sweep up a bit, will you, while I wash the dishes? Jimsy may drop in by and by."

Brooks went into the kitchen, donned an apron from force of habit instilled into him by his wife, ever careful of [illegible] and reappeared with a carpet broom and a dust cloth. He was laboring under excitement, as was manifest by the reckless manner in which he used the broom. Finally, with an expression of determination, he said in a firm voice:

"Emma, you know it will be six months or a year before I get another chance at a raise—unless, of course, I quit and get a job somewhere else. I was thinking that perhaps you're tired and want to call it off."

"Call what off?"

"Why, everything—the whole business. I mean our marriage," he said desperately.

Her eyes opened wide with incredulous astonishment.

"You mean separation?"

"That's exactly what I mean."

"What for—because I'm tired?"

"Something like that."

"What an idea! You must have the blues badly to talk such nonsense as that. Don't you think it would be as well to wait until I complain?"

"You have complained."

"No—at least I can't remember."

"Not in words, but"—

"But what?"

"Look here," he said impatiently "don't you suppose I have eyes? Don't you suppose I have feelings? I've seen—I know that you're sick of this drudgery and all the rest—sick of it and sorry. There's Smith with his five thousand—he wanted you first You could have"—

She interrupted him sharply, her face flushing.

A Richibucto School Teacher

Once a Dyspeptic—Now Well, Thanks to Father Morriscy's No. 11.

Richibucto, N. B., Nov. 17th 1909.

Father Morriscy Med. Co., Ltd.,

I have been teaching school for upwards of thirty years, during the last twenty-five of which I have suffered seriously with stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia.

I have tried many remedies, and while I would get temporary relief from some of them, yet the old trouble would return, and with it the sufferings only known to the chronic dyspeptic.

Last year I had made up my mind to abandon my profession, feeling that in my condition I could neither do justice to myself or to the many pupils under my charge. A friend suggested to me that I try Father Morriscy's No. 11 Stomach Tablets; I did so, and have continued to use them with the result that my stomach trouble is cured—my indigestion and dyspepsia gone and I feel as well as I ever did.

I have, thanks to the Tablets, been able to continue in my profession, and feel that I am once more enjoying my work and am able to give justice to the fifty-four pupils under my care.

Yours Gratefully,

(Signed) MARY CHRYSTAL.

Are you one of the many thousands who, like Miss Chrystal, are prevented from doing their best work, or really enjoying life, by stomach trouble?

If you are you cannot do better than she did—take Father Morriscy's No. 11 Tablets.

Each No. 11 Tablet, when dissolved in the stomach, will digest 1¼ pounds of food—a good, hearty meal—so that no matter how weak your stomach may be No. 11 Tablets will enable you to get the nourishment out of your food and build up your strength, while the stomach, thus relieved, recovers its vigor.

FIRE HALL BY-LAW BUMPED, BUT PASSES THE COUNCIL; MAYOR SAYS IT'S A MISTAKE

All Engagements or Dismissals at Station Are Subject to Approval of the Fire, Water and Light Committee—Other Council Matters.

One subsection of the by-law to govern the Fire Hall, as recommended by the Fire Water and Light committee, met with opposition at the City Council last-night but the by-law passed without any changes being made, and the chairman of the committee anticipates no trouble between his committee and the Fire Department.

The much discussed subsection read to the effect that the Fire Chief shall have authority after first securing the approval of the committee to employ or discharge a man. Ald. Anderson held that the Fire Chief should have full control of his department and with Ald. Bradburn a seconder, moved that the words "after first securing the approval of the committee," be struck out.

Ald. Morgan said that the object was to keep the committee and Fire Department in closer touch. He hoped to see a better condition of affairs in regard to the calibre of the men at the hall. Ald. Bradburn, in holding that the Chief should have full control said, with the subjection in force the responsibility of the Chief would be taken away. Then too, a man could say to him, "the comittee hired me, "

Mayor Morrow held that it was a mistake, and remarked that the committee would be meeting as a court of judgment every week. Ald. Metheral said that the chief had had control, and the men were still going out, and this, the committee wished to stop.

Ald. Brown was in favor of having the matter referred back to the committee for further discussion.

The motion of Ald .Anderson was put to a vote, and lost, and the by-law which is contained in twenty-five type written pages was passed.

Ald. Morgan is optimistic for the success of the by-law, and looks forward to a better service to the city from the Fire Department.

There were present at the meeting last-night, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Duncan, Bradburn, Metheral, Brown, Graham, Kerneghan, Anderson and Morgan.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

The chairmen of the various committees submitted their reports of recommendations, and all were passed. The recommendations have been reported at the time of committee meetings. The Board of Works however was in session at 7.30 o'clock and the following business received attention—

The Peterboro Light and Power Co., asked for permission to trim the trees from Park Street to Belmont Aavnue but the request was refused.

The city engineer reported on the streets on which the Peterboro Light and Power Co., asked to be allowed to lay gas mains. The work will mean the tearing up of streets which are now in first class condition, but the company agree to restore the streets to their former condition. A letter to this effect was read from Mr. Munro, of the Company. The Board decided to permit the work being done.

TAKE NO CHANCES

The mayor opined that in future, where city work is being done on streets, the same should be closed to traffic. His worship remarked that the city should not take any chances of an accident, which might mean a law suit. The suggestion found favor, and passed the committee.

PRINCESS STREET

Ald. Duncan asked for a board sidewalk on Princess Street, as soon as sufficient planking is obtainable. Granted .

LANDMARK TO GO

The matter of cutting down a large tree on Sherbrooke Street, as suggested by Ald. Brown, was left in the hands of the chairman and engineer, with power to act. This tree is dangerous, the top being rotten.

ANOTHER APPOINTMENT

A change has also been made as to the foreman of the sewer construction; Mr. John Thirnbeck was given the appointment, but as he did not care to take the position, as he is foreman for the Waterworks Company, and has steady work, the position goes to Mr. Wm .Ball.

LIGHTING CHANGES

Ald. Morgan read the report on the visit around the city. It was as follows.—

To the Council of the City of Peterborough :

Gentlemen,—Your fire, water and light committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the Peterborough Light and Power company be requested to move the light at Smith street and Dennistoun avenue to the south-east corner of the intersection on these streets.

Move the light on Water street at the Lakefield line of the Grand Trunk railway 200 feet south and turn the frame so that it will not obstruct the light down the street.

Place the arc light at Park and Weller streets in the middle of the street.

Move the incandescent light at the corner of Belmont and Homewood avenue across Homewood avenue.

Place two incandescent lights on the western part of Sherbrooke street, the one furthest west to be about 300 feet east of the boundary.

Move the arc light on Paterson street to the corner of Hart avenue and put in four incandescent lights on Paterson street.

Place one arc light on Chamberlain street,

Place one arc light on Romaine street west of Park street.

Cancel the former order for lights on Robinson street and place one incandescent light on Robinson street and three incandescent lights on Concession street south of Hunter street.

Place one arc light at the corner Dalhousie and water streets.

2. That the chairman of this committee be authorized to have all the street lamps, the light from which is obstructed by trees, placed in the centre of the street.

3. That the water commissioners be requested to place a hydrant on Boncord street at a point to be located by the chairman ,and a hydrant on Charlotte street about 500 feet east of Monaghan road.

4. That a by-law approved by the committee be passed, containing rules and regulations for governing the fire department.

5. That the Brinton Carpet company be informed that the council will install a factory alarm box instead of box No. 12, provided the company pays the difference in the cost between an ordinary fire alarm box, and that the council will permit the company to connect it with their factory.

That a hydrant for the Protestant Home be placed at the corner of Anson street.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ALD. MORGAN,
Chairman.

BY-LAWS PASSED.

The following by-laws were passed;

1. To authorize an increase in the salaary of the city clerk and authorizre the appointment of Miss Thompson as assistant in the industrial commissioner's office. Mr. Armstrong for taking up this work gets $100 of an increase.

2. To authorize the naming of two streets.

3. To regulate the granting of licenses to milk vendors.

4. To authorize the construction of sewers and sidewalks and to authorize an agreement for making temporary advances to carry on the work.

5. To authorize the registration of a plan.

6. For the government of the fire department.

TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS.

Ald. Bradburn suggested that some steps be taken to avoid accident between the street cars and the wagons of the fire department. He pointed out that the corners of George and Hunter streets, Simcoe and George and Aylmer, and Charlotte were dangerous. There should be some understanding whereby the cars would either stop or move slowly at the time of an alarm.

The committee will take this matter up with the street railway company.

Ald. Bradburn also brought up the matter of flooding at the corner of Hunter and Simcoe streets at Payne's drug store. He suggested that a catch basin should be installed.

Ald. Kerneghan asked that a board sidewalk from Harvey to Water street receive attention, as it was out of repair. This will be another job for the Board of Works.

Ald. Kerneghan also asked why some accounts sent to the Queen Mary Lospital in April and May had not received attention?

Mayor Morrow, chairman of the Board of Management, replied that all accounts reaching the board had been dealt with, and that the next meeting would be the first Tuesday in July. It was pointed out that the accounts might have gone astray.

W. A. B. ASKS $500 DAMAGES FOR FALSE INPRISONMENT

He Also Has Something to Say About Police Court and a Detective.

William A. Bailey, who was arrested a couple of weeks ago by Detective Newhall, for using abusive language, and who was fined $2 in the police court, now claims $500 damages from the city, for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution. The City Clerk at the council meeting last-night, read a communication from Holmes and Holmes of Toronto, and which was as follows—

Toronto, June 26,

To the Mayor, City Clerk, and Corporation of the city of Peterborough, Ont., re Bailey vs. city of Peterboro.

Dear Sirs—This is to notify you that we are retained by Mr. W. A. Bailey, of Peterboro, Ont., to institute proceedings against the city of Peterboro for false arrest, imprisonment, and malicious prosecution ,on or about the eleventh day of June, this year, when he was arrested on the public street, and thrown into a dark, wet cell, and there imprisoned all night, and convicted on what we are informed, was malicious and perjured evidence.

The dog tax, as stated to us, had been previously paid to the clerk, who received it for the Corporation, and who admitted having made a mistake about it ,and not reporting that it had been paid.

We shall wait a reasonable time to hear from you as to what statement or statements you have to make, or what settlement you are prepared to offer. Our client claims $500 damages

We are,

Yours very truly.
HOLMES & HOLMES

MR. BAILEY WRITES

Mr .Bailey also had something to say His letter to the council read—

Peterboro, June 15, 11.

To the Mayor and Corporation of the city of Peterboro.

Worshipful Sir, and Gentlemen of the city council—Permit me to have the honor to address you to say, that Charlotte Street ,on a dark night is very badly lighted, and that on Saturday, I thought your detective some low, hold-up blackguard. Also that if your police court were more worthy of the name, there might be less perjury and more justice, and that the police cells are a disgrace to those responsible for the above mentioned disgraceful conditions.

Yours respectfully,
WM. A. BAILEY

BIG BUSINESS SMALL START

One of the best evidences of the real development of Canada is shown in the history of her insdustrial and transportation enterprises. For example, the first C.P.R. Transcontinental train crossed the continent but a quarter of a century ago, to-day the C.P.R., has gross earnings of over $100,000,000 per year.

Away back in 1855, two men began the construction of locomotives in a small way in Kingston. Ever since then ,through the ups and downs of our financial and industrial crises, locomotives have been turned out by the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston. The plant is not only the oldest in Canada, but has grown from a small beginning to its present capacity of 75 per year. This output has been found entirely inadequate to supply the enormous demands made upon the company and they have decided to meet the demand by the doubling of the capacity of their plant. They are also providing for further extension, should business warrant it.

During the past four years the company have been earning at the rate of nearly $300,000 per annum, and a conservative estimate places their future earnings at $600,000 per year. To enable the company to finance the extensions a bond issue of $1,500,000 will be made and $1,500,000—7 p.c. Preferred Stock will be issued to the public, carrying a bonus of 25 p.c. of common stock.

LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average person who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the lenses themselves but much of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The LENSES are the important thing. You look through the LENSES from the time you start to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see.

TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years.

Shaped like the cornea of the eye, they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view withont touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens.

You cannot expect good work from a furnace unless it is properly installed.

You cannot buy a Furnace like you do a Stove—send it home and have the "Handy-Man" put it up—not if you expect to get all the heat out of your coal.

¶ Your heating system must be planned. The registers must be properly placed. The warm and cold air ducts must be a certain diameter. The furnace must be located in just the right spot—and it must be just the right size. ¶ We supply plans to you absolutely free and you do not need to buy a furnace to get them either.

¶ If you have a heating problem to solve—new building or old—send us a rough diagram of your building, showing the location of doors and windows. ¶ We will prepare for you complete plans and specifications for heating that building, give you an estimate of the cost of the heating system, and also the advice of our experts on every detail.

The plan is essential, but it is also essential to have a furnace that will give you ample heat—one that will supply pure, fresh air without a taint of gas, and, for the lady of the house, heat that will be free from dust and smoke.

The "Hecla" is such a furnace.

MOTHER THREATENS TO END LIFE BY TAKING LAUDANUM

Piteous Case Investigated by Childrens Aid Society.

A sad condition of affairs was revealed this morning before Magistrate Edmison, when Mr. and Mrs. Londsberry, residing about 4 miles from Norwood, were arraigned on a charge of neglecting their three children.

The mother of the three little children is now in the county jail, where she will be confined until medical examination shows her to be a proper person to rejoin her husband. The three children were taken to the Children's Shelter, and and the husband has returned to the now deserted home near Norwood.

The particulars of the piteous case were termed by the magistrate to be the worst that has come under his attention for a long time.

For some time past it was shown that the husband and wife have failed to live together peaceably. The mother is alleged to have regarded the children as practically incumbrances to her, and to have neglected properly caring for them. Neither, it is stated, could she agree with her husband. In one occasion she admitted having bought a bottle of laudanum and threatened to end her life if her husband would not give her $2. To save her the husband gave her the money, taking the precaution immediately, however, of destroying the bottle of poison.

When she appeared with her husband and the three children, consisting of two girls, aged 8 and 3 years respectively, and the little boy, aged five, before the magistrate this morning, she did not appear to have the least thought for the children. When his Worship committed her to the county jail, she left his office without casting a glance in their direction or bidding them good-bye before they were taken to the shelter, until reminded that she had not done so by Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill, secretary of the Children's Shelter.

The three children are very bright and good looking, and cried when their mother was taken away to the jail.

The husband, who evinces considerable affection for his children, said that it was his intention to obtain a housekeeper, if possible, who could properly care for them, and if one is secured the authorities will allow him to have his children back.

Some Peculiarities About the Delegates Voting

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—At the Liberal convention held at Norwood yesterday there appears to be a large number of the Liberals very much dissatisfied with the result of the vote. There are 37 subdivisions entitled to five delegates each, making in all a vote of 185. When the votes were polled it appeared that there were 104 for Mr. Kerr and 98 for Mr. Hall, making in all a vote of 202, showing that there were either 17 plugged ballots or a misdeal to the same extent.

It is suggested that if there has been a tampering of the ballot boxes in the convention the Conservatives will require to watch the ballot boxes during the election.

We think under the circumstances that Mr. Sexsmith is in a better position to-day than he was the day before the convention, by reason of the fact that some of Mr. Kerr's friends showed too much anxiety to carry the convention according to the proper method.

It also happened at the meeting that a resolution was brought forward which was not actually passed proposing that the delegates for each township should vote for the absent delegates. This apparently was done although not authorized by the meeting and the result was that about 75 or 80 absentee votes were put in which were wholly unauthorized by the delegates present.

Mr. Sexsmith will also have to have his polling divisions closely watched to see that cute manipulators do not vote absentees at the next election.

Court Stanley A. O. F.

There was a large attendance of members at the regular meeting of Court Stanley, A.O.F., held last night, at which C.R. Bro. Brotherson presided. Four candidates were duly initiated and one member joined by clearance. Bro. R. J. McWilliams and Bro. George R. Record were elected delegates to represent the court at the annual meeting of the High court to be held here in August. Bro. Pratt reported that the committee had made all arrangements for the annual excursion, to be held on Tuesday, July 25th, per steamer Stoney Lake to Lindsay and return by train. Douro Farmers Suffer Loss by Lightning

Bolt Had Good Aim on the Town Clock

Lightning played a prominent part in yesterday afternoon's storm, for while the rain was assisting vegetation and causing trouble at street corners the electric bolts were causing harm. The barn of James Blackwell, just north of Auburn in Douro was struck and totally destroyed. None of the cattle was in the building at the time The damage, in the neighborhood of $600 is partly covered by insurance. Mr. Blackwell, is the father of Mr. Wm. Blackwell, C.E., of Benson Ave.

NOT ON THE BILLS

At the Royal Theatre, an audience mostly women and children became greatly alarmed, when following a heavy clap of thunder the lights went out. Almost immediately the aisles were crowded with excited people, but the ushers acted promptly and opened all the exits, and when it could be seen that a storm was the only thing in progress, the people returned to their seats and the show was proceeded with. The pianiste stood by her guns and continued playing, changing the selection, used during the picture and at the time of the excitement to one more livery, "Yankee Doodle."

A CLOSE SHAVE

The north east post of the belfrey on the town clock was splintered, but no damage was caused to the mechanism of the clock.

GREEKS COME BEARING GIFTS

An impulsive young man opened the door of this office and deposited on the marble topped counter a shower of the following goods, to wit: 1 can soclean, which is said to make a clean sweep of any floor; 1 cake cutter (with the compliments of Purity flour); 1 package of Toasted Corn Flakes, 1 bar Richards' soap, 1 can Eggo baking powder.

This contribution to the effects of this office is esteemed, but it is misplaced, in part. We can absorb and use the soclean and soap, but the balance of the outfit are suitable for family use. The shower is appreciated, and if others will follow the press will only be getting, in part, what it deserves.

CANNIFF IS THE CHAMPION H. WOOD LOWERED RECORD

The final series of events in the "Stratton Cup" contest were run off at Riverside Park Tuesday night, and they furnished some good sport as well as surprises. In the running hop, step and jump S. Canniff won with a jump of 39 feet. The half-mile was a great race between "Joe" Mahoney and P. Goforth, and after a long sprint Mahoney breasted the tape two feet in front of his opponent. Time 2.12 3-5.

The greatest surprise of the evening came in the 440 yard run, when H. Wood went out at the crack of the gun, and without any let up in the fast pace that he set, wheeled off his 1-4 in 54 3-5 seconds, clipping a 1-5 of a second off the record.

The standing by points is as follows;—S. Canniff, 770 points; H. Wood, 666 1-2; Joe Mahoney, 552 1-2; C. Bartlett, 545.

This cup carries with it the all round championship of the association. Below will be found the records of events and holders.

GOT MILLIONS FOR THINKING

Some of the Really Great Inventors Who Have Got Their Dues

The popular idea of the inventor is a half-starved, out-of-elbows sort of individual, whose brain teems with brilliant ideas, but who has not got sufficient business sense to make even a living out of them.

But times change, and so do inventors, and within the past few months we have seen two instances of men of humble birth becoming rich by the fruits of their clever brains.

The more recent case, and the one which has caused most interest in this country, is that of Mr. James Hodgkinson, who, in February last, received a cablegram announcing that his agent had disposed of the American rights of his new process for making salt for five million dollars. He will probably receive as much again for British rights; so here we have an inventor who, by dint of a brilliant idea carefully carried out, has obtained riches.

The Great Gates

The other great inventor of 1911 is George Gates, a Californian, who, like Mr. Hodgkinson, is no longer a young man. He fought in the American Civil War in the early 'sixties.

Years ago, seeing the vast waste of timber entailed by the cutting of millions of railway sleepers, and the very short time which these lasted, he set to work to devise a substitute. He found it in a form of concrete, a composition of substances which afford extraordinary resiliency and durability combined.

In January last he sold the patent rights to a great syndicate of eleven railway companies for the gigantic sum of three and a half millions sterling. He now has machines at work, each of which will turn out 3,500 of these sleepers per day. It is said that within a very few years wood will have become quite obsolete as a material for railway sleepers.

Speaking of inventions for producing salt at low cost, Mr. Hodgkinson had a predecessor, who made a very fair fortune out of a patent of this kind just two hundred and fifty years ago. His name was Edward Burt, and he was one of the Puritans who left this country and settled in America in the seventeenth century.

A patent was granted to him at Charlestown on May 27th, 1652, to make salt for ten years, and it is recorded that he made more than $2,000 a year—a very much larger income in those days than it is now.

Case upon case may be cited to prove that the inventor by no means always fails to get his deserts. Four years ago James Develin, a railway fireman, got an idea for making rotary engines reversible, and set to work to build a model.

One of those miserable thieves who are always trying to pick the brains of the inventor, got hold of him, and tried to drug him and steal his model. Feeling himself becoming sleepy, Develin had the presence of mind to smash his model to pieces and burn his plans before he became insensible.

Fortunes in Slot Machines

He carried the whole idea in his head for some months, then reconstructed a model, patented it, and presently sold it to a syndicate of steamship companies for a very comfortable little fortune indeed.

Penny-in-the-slot machines have made many a fortune. Mr. Mills, "the penny-in-the-slot king," said not long ago that three men, working together for an hour, evolved a fortune-telling machine. Fifty thousand were sald, and the profit was enormous.

The Howard patent for boiling sugar in vacuum was one of the finest ideas from a money-making point of view ever evolved. Howard's income from royalties, which were paid at the rate of one shilling a hundredweight, ran, it is said, into many thousands of pounds for years.

On April 11th, 1904, a new metal was patented in Paris. The inventors, two Italian engineers, had spent years of time and all the money they possessed—about $20,000—in perfecting their discovery. The two of them ate dry bread for dinner on the night they succeeded. A few weeks later they sold their rights to the Corbel Electric Company of Belgium for $1,200,000.

The metal is composed of copper, iron, and infinitesimal portions of silver and phosphorous. It is stronger than steel, a better conductor than copper, and costs only a tenth as much as bronze.

ANTS SCARE ELEPHANTS

Every Kind of Beast and Reptile Fears the Bull Ant

In the vast equatorial forests of Africa the most dreaded of animals is the great bull-ant. Unlike other ants, it carries nothing away; everything is eaten on the spot. Every kind of beast and reptile—elephants, lions, gorillas, snakes ,and man himself—flees before this terrible insect.

These ants march through the forests in a long thin column, two inches wide and miles in length. If they come to an open space where there are no trees to shelter thm from the sun, they burrow underground and form tunnels, through which they march on. It often takes as long as twelve hours for one of these armies to pass.

Any creature overtaken is at once attacked with irresistible fury and instantly devoured. The strongest and weakest, the most fierce and the most timid of creatures, are alike their prey.

Natives overtaken by them seek refuge in the nearest pond or river. Yet, even when the ants themselves are drowned, their strong pincers refuse to relax their hold upon any flesh they may have attached themselves to, and, though their bodies are torn forcibly away, their heads remain.

HAUNTED JUNGLE.

An Explorer's Vivid Description of Dutch New Guinea.

Details of the experiences and hardships of the British expedition in Dutch New Guinea, which for months past has been engaged in an apparently hopeless attempt to reach the great interior snow range, show that Mr. Goodfellow, the leader of the expedition, is now on his way home owing to sickness. Writing at the end of August from the British camp at Parimau, on the Upper Mimika river, one of the explorers says: "A climate hot, steamy, and unhealthy, never varying more than 25 degrees Fahr., night or day, winter or summer. Sickness and disease rampant, and deaths the rule rather than the exception. Heavy rains and storms all the year round, hardly a day or night passing without a downpour; and during the so-called wet season, June-September, incessant rain night and day, and, in consequence, heavy floods. About a week ago Capt. Rawlings and Dr. Marshall had just reached the Iwaka river by a 5 1-2 mile route, which, however, only places us three miles or so due east. The jungle in this direction is the worst we have yet encountered, and one might well spend a life-time in jungle trails and yet meet with nothing to equal this. The mere fact that it exists in one of the only remaining spots of the world yet to be explored is sufficient reason for presuming that the difficulties to be overcome are exceptional.

It is virgin jungle, never before trodden by the foot of man; to its hidden depths the natives are complete strangers; the pigmies from the hills shun it; and the natives from the low lands fear it, and do not probe its dark mysteries. The outskirts and more open parts bordering the river are frequented by cassowary, boar, and walleby, and are the haunt of the greater Bird of Paradise, whose shrill, joyous calls from its dancing trees enliven these dark depths. Less than a mile from the river the trees and saplings encroach upon one another to such an extent that it is impossible for a man to stand at any spot without being touched on every side by their straight stems. In addition to this these are heavy undergrowth and manyother obstructions from falling and rotting trees. It is the haunt of all creeping things, from the deadly puff adder to the greater, yet comparatively harmless python. Noxious insects abound, and leeches swarm on the saturated, moss-ridden trees and undergrowth. Everything decaying; no air seems to circulate there, and what little there is is foetid and stiffling.

Dismal, dark, dripping—this is the jungle where for days and weeks we have been trying to cut a path, along which we may squeeze through to the big valley, which undoubtedly lies 12 or 13 miles to the east. With Gurkhas and natives cutting and hacking with axes for hours on end, some slight advance is made. Never a halt or rest—for as soon as one man's hand gives out, rendered incapable by bruises and blisters, his place is promptly taken by another and a fitter. Four weeks' arduous and constant work has resulted in the cutting of 5,900 yards of road."

Dr. Eric Marshall in a letter gives some interesting details of the natives in these unknown regions. He says: "Woman out here is relegated to a very inferior position. Her duties are numerous, for she drags up the children, cuts the firewood, brings in the sago from the sago swamps, and works the canoes so far as poling and paddling go; occasionally proving her skill as a warrior in the family and village quarrels, and always coming off best with her tongue. The tailoring department does not worry her much, she being usually content with a strip of bark cloth which adorns her person if it does not suffice to clothe her.

On the death of a man—men predominate in this region—the night is spent by the mourners in shouting, chanting, and yelling around a large fire, with the purpose of driving away the ghosts or devils. From time to time the widow, clad like Eve, but as ugly as Satan, crawls around the grave wailing and chanting, and performing weird movements with arms and body."

Premier's Test of Fitness.

Brockett Hall, Hatfield, where the King and Queen are to pay a visit to Lord and Lady Mount Stephen, formerly belonged to Lord Palmerston, and it was there he went after his last election for Tiverton. Of those last days a story has been told of the moribund Premier's unconquerable pluck and cheerfulness. There were then some tall railings just opposite the front door. One day the invalid, who imagined himself unobserved, was seen to walk out bareheaded and deliberately climb over the rails and climb back again to feel how fit he was.

One of the real romances of life is associated with the career of Lord Mount Stephen. Born of Scottish parents, he received his early education in a parish school, and worked between his studies as a herd boy. He passed into a draper's shop in Aberdeen, and when in his twenty-first year emigrated to Canada, where he made a fortune in the woollen trade, and largely financed the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He received the honor of a peerage in 1891, and is one of the most generous men in the world, generally contributing to charities in thousands of pounds.

A Well-Earned Honor.

Cordial congratulations from members of both parties reached Sir Robert Hudson, chief agent of the Liberal party, when he was knighted in 1906, for he has earned the respect and goodwill of political opponents as well as political friends. The knighthood came to him as a complete surprise, being carefully planned by the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman; and it was an honor richly deserved, for, thanks to Sir Robert, the Liberal party was never better equipped for fighting than it is to-day.

Saskatchewan estimates that 20,000 men will be needed to harvest the next crop.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Midgie Station, N. B.—One can hardly believe this as it is not natural, but it was my case. For ten months I suffered from suppression. I had different doctors, tried different medicines, but none helped me. My friends told me I would go into a decline. One day a lady friend told me what your medicine had done for her, so I wrote you for advice and received your reply with pleasure.

I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at the second bottle showed improvement. Now I am regular and never was so well in my life, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine.

Please publish my letter for the benefit of others.—MRS. JOSIAH W. HICKS, Midgie Station, N. B.

Indian Head, Sask.—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is indeed a boon to women who suffer from female ills. My health is better now than it has been in my five years of married life and I thank you for the good your advice and medicine have done me. I had spent hundreds of dollars on doctors without receiving any benefit.—MRS. FRANK COOPER, Box 448, Indian Head, Saskatchewan.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side — Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Condemned 400 Houses.

Toronto, June 27.—The inspectors sent out by the medical health department to investigate housing conditions condemned no less than 400 houses in various parts of the city, and notified the owners to put them in proper condition. The houses condemned were chiefly situated in the Ward and on Eastern avenue and adjacent streets. Some were in an indescribably filthy condition and unfit to accommodate beasts. Sanitary conditions at some places were unendurable.

In most places the owners complied with the orders to put the places in better condition.

Shadowed by Detectives.

Washington, June 27.—Shadowed for weeks by detectives instructed to get anything possible against him, was the alleged experience of which C. S. Funk of Chicago, star witness in the present Lorimer investigation, complained of yesterday to the Senate committee enquiring into the Lorimer election. The statement produced a sensation, because the name of Edward Hines, whom Mr. Funk had testified had asked him to contribute $10,000 towards "$100,000 used to put Lorimer over at Springfield," was mentioned in connection with the services of the detectives.

Assaulted Employer's Wife.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes, and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty; and the lashes are short and lifeless. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes, on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. TARIFFS ON BUTTER

A Comparison of These as They Would Work Out Under Reciprocity

The following comparison of tariffs on butter, if reciprocity becomes law, shows that Canada gives free entrance to all her competitors, but must pay duty to all of them, except the United States, if she wishes to send butter back to them.

Canada—Free from favored nations and British possessions, including Denmark, Russia, Australia, Sweden, New Zealand, Argentine Republic, Norway and United States; otherwise 4 cents per lb.

Australia—6 cents per lb.

New Zealand—General tariff 30 per cent. ad valorem.

British preferential tariff, 20 per cent. ad valorem. (Canada is entitled to the B.P. tariff).

Denmark — In hermetically-sealed vessels, 4⅞ cents per lb.; otherwise free.

Argentine Republic—4 2-5 cents per lb.

United States—From Canada free; otherwise 6 cents per lb.

Sweden—2 2-5 cents per lb.

Norway—Minimum tariff, 1 4-5 cents per lb. Maximum tariff, 3 cents per lb.

Russia—1 7-100 cents per lb.

Canada's export trade in butter is not so great at the present time that her farmers can afford to imperil their dairy inndustry by a tariff scheme that would, in all probability, make the country's imports in this article greater than her exports. In the year ending 1910 Canada shipped only 4,615,380 pounds of butter, worth $1,010,274. Canada's imports of butter on the other hand, amounted to 687,454 pounds, worth $104,301.

THE CANADIAN HEN

Lessons from the Statistics of the Country's Trade in Eggs

The expansion of Canada's home market can be measured in no better way than by the statistics relating to the country's trade in eggs. The enormous increase in the Canadian consumptive demands during the past ten years have been due largely to the development of industrial centres. The history and present condition of the egg industry in Canada can best be shown by the following statements of exports and imports in the years 1902 and 1911.

Imports

Imported into Canada for home consumption in 1902 with values,

	Quantity, Dozen.	Value.
United States	762,802	$162,795
Other countries ...	9,770	662
Total	772,572	$169,457

Since 1902 Canada has taken eggs from Hong Kong and Great Britain, both of which would have equal privileges with the United States under the reciprocity agreement.

The imports of eggs in the fiscal year 1911 for home consumption were:—

	Quantity, Dozen.	Value.
United States	2,212,727	$417,857
Great Britain	12,040	2,128
Hong Kong	62,012	4,200
Other countries ..	91,861	14,881
Total	2,378,640	$439,086

Exports

The following statement of Canada's exports of eggs shows conclusively that it is the home demand for this commodity that determines its price. For fiscal year 1902:—

	Quantity, Dozen.	Value.
Great Britain	11,353,825	$1,691,024
United States	237,435	35,764
Other countries ..	43,848	5,454
Total	11,635,108	$1,733,242

Fiscal year 1911:—

	Quantity, Dozen.	Value.
Great Britain	7,067	$2,428
United States	24,688	6,927
Other countries ..	60,409	15,321
Total	92,164	$24,676

Whereas in 1902, when millions of dozens were shipped to Britain and Canada's markets were directly dependent on that export trade, to-day this country imports more eggs from Britain than she exports there, showing that in a decade the positions of the Mother Land and the colony have been reversed, so far as eggs are concerned.

CANADIAN PULPWOOD

American Publishers are Counting on Getting Raw Material from Canada

Eastern Canada's illimitable pulpwood resources have been for many years a golden prize to be gained by the keen-eyed American. The Reciprocity Agreement has raised the hopes of the American paper manufacturers, and lately at Woolrington, Mr. John Norris, chairman of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, has been endeavoring to strengthen his cause with the Finance Committee. A dispatch from Washington telling of Mr. Norris's visit said:—

"The opponents of Reciprocity in Canada have few more satisfactory witnesses than Mr. John Norris, Chairman of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. He has just been telling the Finance Committee of the American Senate that he wants the pulp and paper clause in the Taft agreement left entirely alone. Senator Smoot intervened with the question:—

"'You take the position that the Canadian manufacturers should make the paper for this country?'

"'Not at all,' declared Mr. Norris. 'The pulp will be made there and converted into paper here.'

"Later he added—'We have been very broad in this matter. We want the paper we use to be made in the United States, and have been working to secure a supply of raw material from Canada!'

"To comment on that would be to 'paint the lily.'"

The Kaiser now says the Socialists are "not so black as they are painted."

To be Issued		1,500,000.00
		$5,000,000.00

We have examined the books and accounts of The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, for a period of four years ending December 31st, 1910, and certify that the Current Assets and Liabilities included in the above statement are correct.

During the period covered by our examination, the profits of the Company, including interest on investments (which has aggregated about $27,500.00 per annum), after providing for depreciation, have in no year amounted to less than $300,000.00, excepting in the year 1910, when the profits amounted to only $167,032.03. The profits for the three years, 1907, 1908 and 1909, on the basis mentioned, have averaged $333,282.08 per annum, and the falling off in the business of the year 1910 is explained by the management as being largely due to the curtailment of operations resulting from the delivery of defective steel castings purchased by the Company under contract.

Yours very truly,
PRICE, WATERHOUSE & CO.,
Chartered Accountants.

FIELD OF OPERATION.

Canada to-day has over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and over 6,000 under construction or being surveyed. According to statistics furnished by the Department of Railways, one locomotive is required for every six miles of track. Last year there were 4,079 locomotives in use in Canada. The completion of the present 6,000 miles under construction will call for 1,000 new locomotives. In addition, 400 locomotives will be required each year to replace existing equipment. The railroad development which is taking place in Canada is really only at its beginning, and it is expected that within the next ten years the present railway mileage in Canada will be more than doubled. The field of operation is therefore almost unlimited.

PLANT AND EQUIPMENT.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, have been building locomotives since 1855 and have therefore a thorough knowledge of the business. At the present time they are turning out 75 locomotives per year, but have had to refuse many satisfactory orders owing to their limited capacity. The Company have the most up-to-date and modern plant in Canada, covering 333,000 sq. ft.

In addition the Company have 180,000 sq. ft. of reclaimable land on which they can erect additional buildings and, as required, still further enlarge their plant at the minimum of cost. The Company are fortunate in having cheap power, unexcelled shipping facilities, and in being exempt from taxation, except School taxes, up to the year 1916. They have probably the best trained and most loyal staff of skilled workmen on the continent.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

It is estimated that as a result of the contemplated increase to the plant, the earnings within the next few years should be at least $600,000 per annum; or in the neighborhood of 18% on the Common Stock after providing for Bond Interest, Sinking Fund, and Preferred Stock Dividend.

In making provision for an increase in the capacity of their plant, the Company are not entering into a new and untried field. They have a thorough knowledge of the business, and the increased output can be managed with the same office and selling staffs. Other economies will be effected through manufacturing in larger numbers than has been the case in the past. The reputation of the Company is so good that the demand for their locomotives far exceeds the supply.

Applications will be made in due course to list the Preference and Common Shares on the Toronto and Montreal and London Stock Exchanges.

HUDSON BAY RAILWAY

Construction Will Be Pushed Along This Summer

The construction of the first 120 miles of the Hudson Bay Railway from The Pas is to be pushed forward this year. The route of the second half of the line will depend on whether Port Nelson or Fort Churchill is chosen as the terminus. It is altogether likely that the former will be selected, but no definite decision will be announced until the reports of the engineering and hydrographic surveys, now being made, are completed. By next year it is expected that work will be started from the eastern terminus of the line and construction will be vigorously pushed to completion by 1914.

A new Atlantic line between Providence, R.I., and Europe is talked of.

THE NORWOOD AFFAIR.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The convention at Norwood yesterday was a surprise to many people, the two chief actors being included. I have nothing to say against our friend, Mr. Hall, but Mr. Kerr is a different sort of man and will serve party better because of his ideals, that Mr. Hall. It is plain that no East riding man wanted the position, because they were able to get a man right there for the local.

I am a Conservative and cannot vote for Mr. Kerr, because I don't believe in reciprocity, and there is no better man in the township than Mr. Sexsmith, but I congratulate the people of both parties on their two candidates.

HEALTH CONDITIONS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—On Sunday an inspector from the medical health department in Toronto was out to the northwestern section of that city to investigate the numerous complaints of residents regarding bad odors. Sundays or week days the health department of Toronto does its duty. How is it with our health department? You cannot get our health officer, police or council to budge one inch towards doing their duty, while we are at enormous expense for maintaining these people in office for that purpose. Can it be said that while health and life are regarded so highly in Toronto and elsewhere, they are of no value in Peterborough?

Yours, etc.,

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir—As one of the citizens interested in the welfare of the brigade, I desire to protest against the unnecessary and improper interference with the management of the brigade, which has been promoted by a few irresponsibles in the council. It is a very unfortunate circumstance that the hiring of men for the brigade is left in the hands of members of the council, who have openly avowed their desire to make things as difficult as possible for the Chief and his men. There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed at the present time at what has taken place, and I trust that the council will repeal this thoughtless piece of legislation.

I remain,
RATE-PAYER.

EFFECT OF HIGHER CRITICISM.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Sixteen Protestant converts were received into the Roman Catholic church here by Bishop O'Connor on Sunday last. This is but the beginning. It is the same everywhere. Do not we read that Protestantism is going down in numbers, not up, and that the every-preacher-his-own-prophet style of interpreting the Bible is driving those who want a sure and certain hope as a basis of religious belief, away from their various churches. The present day was well chosen by the Church of Rome for its new decrees against free Protestantism. It looks as if the great fabric of Protestantism was about to collapse, and there's no good in ignoring plain and admitted facts and statistics. Get busy. From a religious point of view the sects had at least a sure foundation in an infallible Book, but now, they have kicked that away from under them and it looks as if they were to be left hanging to the beam in the barn. It was one thing to proclaim to listening congregations that the Book said so and so, but it is another thing to contradict that Book in its plain meaning. We charge Catholics with credulity, but Higher Criticism looks as if it thought Protestants were credulous also. The shadow of an eclipse is in its first stage. Watch it as it travels across the face of the religious world.

Yours,
READER.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

Of The Canadian Car & Foundry Co. on The Canadian Locomotive Co.

Montreal, June 28.—Mr. James Redmond, one of the newly elected directors of the Canadian Locomotive Company, is most sanguine regarding the future of the company. As is well known, Mr. Redmond is actively identified with the Canada Car and Foundry Company, being chairman of the Board of Directors. He is thus in excellent position to know the requirements of the railroads in Canada and believes that the demand for locomotives, cars and other railway equipment is only commencing. In an interview to-day, Mr. Redmond said:—

"Railroad development in Canada is only in its infancy. The population of Canada is increasing very rapidly and will continue to increase with the coming years. At present we have only 8,000,000 people but as our population increases our present railroad mileage will increase correspondingly."

Speaking of the Canadian Locomotive Company, Mr. Redmond said:—

"The growth of this company in the past ten years is little short of phenominal. Ten years ago the company was housed in one building, today they have twelve. During this time they expended over $1,000,000 on new plant, machinery and equipment. The whole of it came out of the earnings. In addition the company was able to put aside a cash reserve of over $1,250,000 and are thus in a most enviable position."

Mr. Redmond is naturally very optimistic regarding the future of such a company, as is shown by his identifying himself with it.

The well-known firm of Bankers and Brokers, Aemilius Jarvis & Co., of Toronto, are offering to the public the securities of the new company, viz., $1,500,000 of the 7 per cent cumulative Preferred stock, carrying with it a bonus of 25 per cent on common stock.

OBITUARY

The Late Mrs. Wilson

The news of the passing of Ada Helena Thorne, wife of Mr. William Wilson, 700 Water street, at the Nicholls Hospital this morning after a brief illness, will be received with widespread regret.

The late Mrs Wilson was born in Cavan township in 1869, the fifth daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Thorne. In 1889 she was married to Mr. William Henry Wilson, also of Cavan, and shortly after their marriage they removed to Peterborough, where they have made many friends. The late Mrs. Wilson was a member of All Saints' church. Always taking an active interest in the welfare of her church, she belonged to the Women's Auxiliary and was for a number of years its secretary. Since their removal a short time ago to the northern section of the city, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have attended St. John's church. Deceased was beloved by all who knew her for her many estimable qualities. She was always ready with sympathy for the afflicted and aid for the needy.

Those left to mourn her loss besides her husband are three brothers, Thomas and George, of Cavan, and John, of Lindsay; five sisters, Mrs. J. Nesbitt, Alameda, Sask.; Mrs. J. Heaslip, Peterborough; Mrs. M. Gardnier, Port Hope; Mrs H. Gardnier, Sutherland, Sask.; Mrs. Leonard Westwood, Toronto.

WAS CAUGHT IN WHIRLPOOL

Bobby Leach Rescued More Dead Than Alive.

Beachy, the Aeronaut, Had Narrow Escape.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., June 29.—Lincoln Beachy, the fearless aviator, who on Tuesday afternoon performed a feat hitherto declared impossible, when he flew over the Horseshoe Falls and under the upper steel arch bridge, narrowly escaped death in his second flight over the Niagara River, yesterday.

Bobby Leach, who shot the whirlpool rapids in a barrel, was almost suffocated before he was taken from the whirlpool.

Yesterday, which marks the closing of Niagara's great international carnival, was hard on all three star performers, whose exhibitions were witnessed by three hundred thousand people, the great Houndin being marooned for half an hour on the wire on which he slid across the gorge. Leach is in a serious condition at his home here, but Beachy and Houndin are none the worse for their experiences.

When Leach entered the whirlpool rapids in his steel barrel, he was caught by a giant wave, and hurled twenty feet into the air. With a splash that could be heard above the angry roar of the rushing water, the staunch red-painted barrel re-entered the rapids and was carried on to the whirlpool, buffeted from wave to wave, and severely shaking up the man slung on a canvas hammock within its dark interior.

The barrel was caught by the outer current when it entered the whirlpool, and carried around the mighty maelstrom for over three hours before it was brought ashore.

Exhausted, Leach was dragged through the small opening through which he had entered, apparently carefree, earlier in the day. Those who took him from the barrel thought that Leach was dead, but he soon revived and was carried up the steep river bank and hurried to his home on the Canadian side.

Leach's barrel was tossed on end many times in the very centre of the whirlpool. Despairing of over again seeing the man alive, hundreds of those watching the barrel bob about on its merry-go-round like course, left the scene.

After the barrel had been held in the middle of the whirlpool for more than two hours by the mighty grip of the swirling water it suddenly shot out towards the outer edge of the pool. Several times it circled around within twenty or thirty feet of the shore before the expert swimmers, feverishly awaiting a chance to bring its human freight ashore, could grasp it.

The great Houndin, who really is Oscar Williams, Toronto, steeplejack, was within a hundred feet of the American shore on the wire on which he slid from Canada, when he was marooned. The wire was too slack to allow him to reach shore. There he stayed until hauled ashore by ropes. When Houndin made similar trips during last year's carnival, he was marooned in the middle of the wire for forty-five minutes. He was to have made the slide yesterday, hanging suspended from the wire by his teeth, with his wife suspended from his body on a trapeze, but the woman failed to make the trip, because of the dangerous footing at the landing stage.

A great grotesque and industrial parade, over five miles long, took place yesterday afternoon. The carnival closed last night with a reproduction of the burning of the steamer Caroline, which was destroyed by the British in 1837. A sixty-foot steamer was sent over the Horseshoe Falls ablaze.

Local option campaigns will likely be waged in Merriton, Port Dalhousie, Niagara, Louth, Grantham and possibly St .Catharines next year.

R.M.C. CADET LOSES RESULT OF THREE YEARS HARD WORK

Deprived of Commission For an Indiscretion—Comes of Good Family and Was Popular.

Kingston, June 29.—An interesting fact is disclosed through an editorial in The Daily Standard of this city.

A graduate of the Royal Military College was deprived of his diploma and commission on the very last day of his college term, and this after his name had been announced among the graduates and as having won a commission. The Standard takes the occasion without mentioning the cadet's name, to make a plea on his behalf, claiming that the punishment does not fit the crime, and declaring that it is "Puritanical Justice," if justice at all, that deprives a graduate of his diploma and commission after three years of hard work, merely because of a personal lapse of this kind, committed, as The Standard points out, "not when on duty, or in the performance of duty, but on a purely social occasion." It, therefore, suggests that this is a case where Government clemency might well be exercised and expresses the hope that the Ottawa authorities will take the matter up and "not punish for a lifetime," a youth "who has sinned no more than many another good man."

The graduate in question comes of a good family, has been a good student, and popular with the professors.

A delightful trip over the lift-lock and up the canal followed as far as Nassau. where the party disembarked, and were whirled back to Peterboro in autos which were in waiting, and the whole party adjourned to the National Hotel for luncheon. Local citizens in the party in addition to those already mentioned were, Dr. Browett. Hon. J. R. Stratton, and Messrs. J. H. McClelland, T .F. Matthews and W. J. Robinson and Vincent Eastwood.

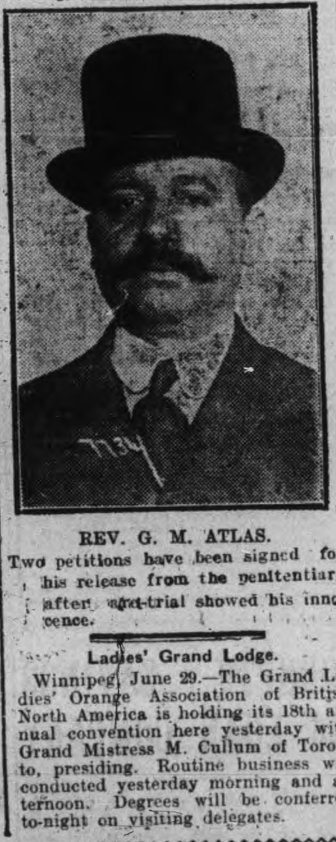
Rev. Thos. D. D Trotter opened the service with a scripture reading, and this was followed with prayer by Rev. B. D. Thomas, D.D. BORDEN CHEERED IN EVEN STRONG GRIT SECTION OF ALBERTA CONSTITUENCY



REV. G. M. ATLAS.

Two petitions have been signed for his release from the penitentiary after a re-trial showed his innocence.

Ladies' Grand Lodge.

Routine business was conducted yesterday morning and afternoon. Degrees will be conferred to-night on visiting delegates.

Weslaskiwin Applauds Anti-Reciprocity Sentiment in Vigorous Meeting- Farmers Present Arguments to Leader Borden.

Edmonton, June 29.—"The Empire first, last and all the time," read a banner stretched across the platform at the Conservative leader's meeting at Wetaskiwin yesterday afternoon. The demonstration had been arranged for in the open air, but the continued rain, which is bringing much joy to western farmers, made it necessary to hold it in the town theatre. The audience numbered about 400, and they gave the Conservative leader a hearty welcome. Wetaskiwin is in the Liberal riding of Strathcona, but, nevertheless, there appeared to be nearly half of the audience who cheered against reciprocity.

After the presentation of a civic address of welcome, G. H. Manser read a memorial from the United Farmers of Alberta. This memorial argued against the view that reciprocity would lead to the loss of the distinctive character of Canadian wheat. It contended that it would not pay to mix, because that would lower the price, and it also cited the Premier's argument that it would go by the Canadian route. The memorial also declared that Canada had trusts in spite of her tariff, and maintained that, even if American trusts came in, other laws could control them. Finally its declared for an increase in the British preference over Great Britain or any part of the Empire.

Mr. Borden, whose voice has almost recovered its former power, was again cheered when he declared that he would rather leave public life than support reciprocity. He answered the arguments in regard to the mixing of grain by pointing out that in the theories of the advocates of reciprocity they would not get the higher price for grain if it did not go to the United States. He declared himself in favor of closer trade relations with Great Britain, but added that within the Empire he was for Canada first. "An industry in Canada," he said, " is just as good for the Empire as in Great Britain." (Cheers.)

At Strathcona, a large number of Edmonton Conservatives welcomed the leader and escorted him over to where he addressed a large meeting. The city set special electric cars at the disposal of the Conservative leader, and on his arrival here was tendered a civic welcome.

Lebrun, colonies; Rene Renoult, labor.

PRISONER'S BOLT NOT MUCH USE

Chatham Man's Liberty Was Short Lived

Chatham, Ont., June 29.—Walter Taylor, an immigrant, appeared in the Police Court yesterday morning before Magistrate Houston, charged with fighting on the street, but when the magistrate announced his fine Taylor refused to pay. He also refused to be locked up. Instead, he bolted from the prisoners' dock and started for the door.

Chief Holmes tried to intercept him, but Taylor broke away from him. Officer Dodson likewise grabbed him when he was near the door, but he eluded the policeman and gained the street. Later, Dodson found him at his home and arrested him once more. It was necessary for the officer to choke him before he could be managed. Taylor was placed in the cells.

It is likely the whole family will be deported. Taylor has served time in England, and was brought out here by an immigration agency.

While Taylor was making his thrilling escape, his mother, who was in the court room, offered every encouragement in a high, shrill voice.

HACKED THROAT WITH KNIFE

Cook in Niagara Camp in Serious Condition

Special to the Review.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 29.—His brain affected by the heat, James Counts, a cook for the army service corps, wandered from the camp and hacked his throat in a terrible manner with a knife. His condition is serious.

King Entertains Hon. Mr. Duff.

Toronto, June 29.—Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture, was entertained yesterday by King George at the Royal Agricultural Show, Norwich, England. The Minister sails for home July 14. Sir James Whitney is expected home the previous week.

Serious Runaway.

Chatham, June 29.—While driving to Rutherford to deliver a carload of steers, Malcolm McDiarmid, an aged and well-known Dawn farmer, met with a serious runaway accident. His horse became frightened at a dog and bolted. Mr. McDiarmid was thrown from his rig and sustained a number of serious injuries. He was badly shaken up and bruised, and his hand and fingers were broken. The buggy was also badly demolished.

Struggle Now Begins.

London, June 29.—The real struggle over the Parliament bill dealing with the veto power of the House of Lords began yesterday afternoon, when the Lords entered upon committee stage with the Marquis of Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition in the Upper Chamber, and his followers apparently determined to press the official amendments as announced by the marquis at the reassembling of Parliament on June 26.

The amendments provide for the exclusion from the operation of the measure of bills such as that relating to Irish home rule; for a joint sitting in case of a disagreement between the two Houses, and for a referendum to the country in other cases.

Urgent whips had been sent out by both parties and the benches were crowded with members.

Debate on the bill is likely to be prolonged until the end of next week.

STRIKING SEAMEN ARE WINNING

Two Steamship Lines Give up the Fight

Special to the Review.

London, June 29—Allan and Anchor lines gave in to seamen's union to-day, but otherwise the situation is very critical. Lightship crews in the Mersey deserted this morning and many ports report perishable cargoes completely held up. Factories in a dozen cities are closed for the want of raw materials.

She Used an Axe.

Ottawa, June 29.—According to Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday, Mrs. A. Paquette was quite justified in using the axe on her husband last week to defend herself, but he did not believe in using an axe unless in extreme cases.

The magistrate let the accused go on suspended sentence. He warned her that an axe was a formidable weapon to use except in cases of extreme emergency. The bench, however, considered that the prisoner was goaded to use the axe and had done so without intent to kill.

Paquette, arranged on a charge of drunkenness, was also released, in view of his punishment with the axe.

RECIPROCITY GETS BUMPED

Antis Have Field Day in the U.S. Senate.

Senator Cummins Opens the Fusilade With Big Noise.

Washington, June 29.—Yesterday was a day of bitter arraignment of the Canadian reciprocity bill in the Senate. Beginning with Senator Cummins' attack on the measure as legislation unjust to the agricultural interests of the country, and concluding with Senator Borah's denunciation of the bill as Republican betrayal of the farming interests, the debate was all antagonistic to the agreement and critical of the President and his methods.

The Senate gave but partial attention to the speeches, although they were among the most important that will be made against the bill. Several times a call of the Senate was demanded. Senator Nelson of Minnesota finally proposed that as so little attention was given to the subject the Senate take a recess until November or December.

Senator Cummins, who will continue his speech to-day, attacked not only the construction of the reciprocity agreement itself, which he said put the whole burden of free trade upon the farmer without giving him any benefits in the way of reduction of duty on manufactured products, but he criticized also the power exercised by the President to negotiate and to bring it to the point of a definite agreement between the two countries.

"I know that the day has come for the farmer," declared Senator Cummins, "the day in which he is to be excluded from the benefits of the protective tariff. The decree has been written; it needs only the official signature for the time to begin to exclude him from the company of the manufacturer of the United States."

Senator Borah's criticism was placed on the record of the Republican party as the advocate of protection for the farmer. He quoted at length from Republican platforms, campaign documents, campaign arguments and definitions of policy to show that the abolishment of the protection on farm products was a reversal of all Republican policy.

Senator Borah said both political parties were now striving for the vote of the cities and the support of the press.

"The administration now in control," said Senator Borah, "came into power on a pledge to protect the American market for the American farmer. The time was when the farmer was not disputed within this chamber, that such legislation as this was destructive of his prosperity. Then every Republican in the Senate was his attorney. Now, because he calls in a New York attorney to present his case before the finance committee, he is accused of being the friend and companion of the trusts and big interests."

AVIATOR DELIVERED PARCEL TO DECK OF LINER ON OCEAN

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

On Dominion Day he will have the great honor of being the only father of Confederation now alive.

Won't Do It Again.

Kingston, June 29.—Because her mother objected to her keeping company with a boy friend, a fourteen-year-old girl drank a mixture of laudanum and carbolic acid, but was caught as she had taken one sip from the bottle. Her mouth was badly burned. She is not anxious to try it again. She belongs to a prominent family.

Remarkable Feat at New York—Steamer Olympia Reached at the Narrows.

New York, June 29.—The first piece of merchandise ever delivered at sea by aeroplane fell on the upper deck of the giant White Star liner Olympic yesterday, as she steamed through the Narrows, outward bound, on her maiden eastward passage.

W. Atlee Burpee of Philadelphia had contracted for delivery before sailing, with a New York and Philadelphia department store, which in turn engaged the services of Thomas Sopwith, the English aviator. With Richard R. Sinclair, secretary of the Aero Club, holding the package, Sopwith rose from the aviation grounds at Garden City, spied out the Olympic as she bore down the Hudson, timed his flight to meet her in the Narrows, and set his course over land and sea.

Even from the pier end, passengers on the Olympic are no more than animated dots of white and black to those on shore. Presently there was to be seen among those dots a scurrying to and fro, as bits of paper blown by the wind. Sopwith had been sighted bearing down on them from aloft. Working nearer and nearer, he circled the ship as low as he dared, hovered overhead for an instant, and then made back for shore, landing safely on the grounds of the Crescent Athletic Club at Bay Ridge.

While Sopwith controlled the aeroplane, Sinclair dropped the package at the given signal. No word came from on board whether it had landed or not, but to those in nearby craft, and to the aviators it seemed certain that it had fallen true.

"We descended to a height of about 250 feet, I should think, above the Olympic," said Sopwith after landing, "and I am positive the package reached its owner. We felt no disturbance worth speaking of from the ship's hot breath pouring from her great funnels—only a slight rarification of the air—what we call a 'willie-waw,' or pocket, that caused us to dip perhaps 20

CURE THAT COLD

This is Quickly and Pleasantly Accomplished If You Use

Catarrhozone

Catarrhozone will relieve colds almost instantly and in a few hours will cure completely. If it is old-standing asthma or bronchitis its quick and curative results will astonish you.

Catarrhozone is little drops of healing medicine carried by air to the sore and diseased parts. You breathe them through the Catarrhozone Inhaler and they spread throughout all the air passages.

It is sense as well as healing, because Catarrhozone is a germ killer, a healer and restorer of weak tissues, because it is so prompt and certain in its results, better than any other remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, and it is neither alcohol, morphia or cocaine—all dangerous.

Tens of thousands have used Catarrhozone without reporting a single case of failure to cure diseases of the throat and lungs and nasal passages. Remember, CATARRHOZONE is taken in air, and is little drops of healing for the throat, nasal passages, or lungs. It always does cure—is guaranteed.

Price 25c., 50c., and $1.00 at all druggists or by mail, post paid, from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Ald. Anderson and Mayor Morrow will get the approval of the majority of the council in their opposition to the proposal to make the fire chief consult the members of the fire, water and light committee regarding every man in the department he hires or fires.

Evidently the members of the committee like the job of firing so well—having succeeded in a couple of cases already—that they want to have a hand in every case. The principle is a wrong one, and the experiment will not work satisfactorily. If the members of the committee want to get rid of the chief by making things as unpleasant for him as possible, why not say so openly, instead of moving in a manner like this.

The pretence is made that the members of the committee want to have some control over the conduct of the of the department as regards the men. The truth seems to be that they think they are well enough qualified to run the whole show. They are some aldermanic pumpkins, all right, but experience has not apparently taught them that butting-in usually ends sadly for the butters. The chief should have the control of his department, subject to the committee in matters of regulations, equipment, etc., but distinctly free from aldermanic interference.

SEX EQUALITY

The progress of Woman towards absolute equality with mere man is not so slow as we are sometimes led to believe. Women still have their sacred wrongs—but they are beginning to right them as nearly after the manner of men as a comparative unfamiliarity with the usual methods will permit, says the Montreal Star. For example, a woman with a broken heart, and a pearl-handled revolver, both gifts of the same fickle Adonis, met her faithless lover on a crowded New York street yesterday and gave way to her emotions. Not content in setting forth in the clear and unstilted English of that section her personal convictions on the subject of gentlemen who jilt ladies, our heroine took advantage of the opportunity to demonstrate the equality of the sexes by drawing her revolver and generally discharging it in the direction of the accused with great zeal, but not much accuracy. Three of her audience are, in consequence now in hospital suffering from bullet wounds and the young lady herself is waiting trial on a number of serious-sounding charges. It is interesting to note, however, how nature will assert itself. Hotly pursued by two policemen after the shooting, she took refuge on a roof, and, throwing away her revolver, held off her assailants for nearly an hour with woman's normal and natural weapon—two hat pins. This reversion to type, it is to be feared, will go far toward neutralizing the uplift which Female Suffrage might otherwise have derived from the revolver incident. No honest effort in a good cause, however, is ever wasted, and the next young woman with a grievance who runs amuck may prove more consistent.

REV. DR. CLIFFORD

Dr. John Clifford, the famous Nonconformist Baptist preacher of the old land, and a leader in political thought, as well as in religious teachings, is honoring Peterborough to-day with a visit, in laying the corner stone of the Murray street Baptist church.

Dr. Clifford is one of the striking figures of the age, one of those whose personality has been projected from the crowd by tremendous force of character, by an ability equalled by few and surpassed by none. He is a picturesque boulder in the pathway of events; a moulder of thought, a leader of note in the fight to further the interests of the masses — than whom there is no stronger champion than Dr. Clifford.

As a social reform leader, Dr. Clifford has been in the van of the fight. He has submitted to imprisonment rather than pay compulsory rates in support of Anglican schools, as provided in the 1902 educational act. He is an evangelical preacher of great force and directness, his power lying in the sweep of energy with which he endows his speaking, in the marvelious sympathy that seems to permeate his action and thought. He has been called the "uncrowned premier of Britain," by his friends, because of the great power he wields in the large section of British people who might be classed as dissenters.

The people of Peterborough will have an opportunity of hearing him in the opera house this evening, free of charge. He will speak on a subject both educative and interesting. This afternoon he officiated and spoke at the corner stone laying of the Baptist church and those who are interested in watching his career, now ripening into its fullest fruition, will not miss hearing him this evening. Peterborough is honored in the visit of the man who has constituted such a great public force in the affairs of the old lands.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Kerr has the East Peterborough nomination now, but will he have it a month from now in opposition to the plans of the bosses?

Complaints about the post-office service are so numerous that it was time there was something done to either remedy the conditions—if they are as described—or prove that they are not well founded.

Well, if the East Peterborough farmers' wives want a nice young man to help them at their picnics, carry their baskets for them, serve tea, and make himself generally handy, Candidate Kerr has much to recommend him.

With the ward meetings being held to select delegates for the Conservative convention, it begins to smell like a campaign. The Conservatives chances were never better than they will be, if an election is held this fall.

Those who count on a divided Quebec are guessing on a long chance. It will take the efforts of a few dozen Bourassas combined to shake the faith of Jacques Bonhomme in the Quebec idol, Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Now that the fire chief has to consult the fire, water and light committee before hiring or firing men, a butt-in privilege card should be handed the members. On second thought, they don't need even such an excuse as that.

Those people who suffer with nerves should take a lesson from the human fly, who was working on the nineteenth story of a Chicago building, and seeing a comrade fall from the story above reached out and swung the falling body in on some timbers on the eighteenth story, saving what would have been a frightful death. And the rivetter calmly resumed his work.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 28.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the offerings of live stock this morning were 700 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 900 calves. Owing to the increased supplies of cattle, the extreme heat and the somewhat limited demand from butchers, an easier feeling prevailed in the market and prices only ruled ¼c per pound lower than on Monday, and even at this reduction the trade thruout the day was slow. Consequently some stock was left over. Choice steers sold at 6½c; good, at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good, at 5½c to 5¾c; fair, at 5c to 5¼c, and common, at 4½c to 4¾c per lb. Cows brought from 4c to 5¼c, and bulls, from 4½c to 5½c per pound.

There was a good demand for small meats and as the supplies of such were larger than they have been of late, a more active trade was done. The tone of the market for lambs was weaker and prices declined with sales at $4 to $5, as to size. Sheep were steady at $4 to $5.50 each. A good trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $2 to $7 each.

There continues to be a very unsettled feeling in the market for hogs and prices in consequence are very irregular and at a wide range. The supply was considerably larger than on Monday, but at a reduction in prices the demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $6.50, and mixed lots at $6 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the offerings of live stock were 400 cattle, 660 sheep and lambs, 1375 hogs and 900 calves.

The condition of the market for cattle, sheep, lambs and calves was much the same as the above one and the prices realized showed little change except for hogs, which ruled much higher, as sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 to $7.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, June 28.—Cattle—Receipts, 100 head. Market, fairly active, steady. Prime steers, $6.50 to $6.60; butcher grades, $3.50 to $6.25.

Calves—Receipts, 50 head. Market active, strong. Sheep and lambs—Receipts 800 head. Market, active; lambs, 25c higher. Choice lambs, $7.60 to $7.75; cull to fair, $5.25 to $7.50; yearlings, $5 to $5.50; sheep, $1.75 to $4.

Hogs—Receipts, 2550. Market, fairly strong, 5c to 10c lower. Yorkers, $6.75 to $6.80; stags, $4.50 to $5.25, pigs, $6.40 to $6.50; mixed, $6.80 to $6.85; heavy, $6.75 to $6.80; roughs, $5.50 to $5.75.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Beeves—Receipts, 1982 head; good steers steady; grass-fed 15c to 25c lower; bulls and cows steady to 15c lower; steers, $4.50 to $6.70; few fancy tops, $6.90; bulls, $3 to $5.25; cows, $1.50 to $4.40.

Calves—Receipts, 3500 head; market 5c to 50c lower; westerns, 50c to 75c off; veals, $6.50 to $9; tops, $9.25; culls, $4 to $6; buttermilks, $3 to $3.75; westerns, $4.10 to $5.35.

"Joe!"

"Well, I think"—

"That's enough of that!"

"Oh, well," he declared sullenly, turning away and dropping into a chair. "I didn't mean"—

She followed him and placed her hand on his shoulder.

"Joe, I married you because I loved you," she said gently, "and for nothing else in the world. There wasn't any influence except that, and that overcame all the rest—mother and all of them."

"I know all about that."

"There has been a little hard luck"—

"There has been a precious sight too much of it."

"I know you haven't been treated right, but bad luck and ups and downs are what a woman ought to expect when she marries. She has to take the bad as well as the good, and she ought to know enough to accept the one as cheerfully as the other when the bad is nobody's fault. That is what I think, and that is what I have tried to do. But there are some things"—

"Joe, I married you because I loved you."

She paused, reluctant to carry her thoughts further into words.

"What? You may as well say all you've got to say while you're about it," he snapped.

"It's just this," she went on. "Never refer to Jimsy in the way you did. I married you, Joe. Please try and leave unsaid things that might make me regret it."

He ventured no further remark and lapsed into his gloomy reflections. Emma put her arm around his neck and snuggled her face against his.

"Poor old boy!" she murmured. "That setback we got today when we had it all fixed up was enough to make you feel sore and glum. Never mind; cheer up. You know what Jimsy says, 'Hard luck can give you an awful battle, but if you're on the square you can hand it a knockout punch some time.'"

It was no use, however. Joe's sulkiness had sunk in; his temper was vicious, deep and ingrowing, a temper such as she had never suspected in him, and all her petting, all her loving coaxing, could not wean him from it. She pressed her cheek more closely to his and fondled him, but he jerked away from her embrace and surlily sought another chair.

As he did so the bell rang from downstairs.

"I'll bet that's Jimsy now," he muttered.

Much hurt, but disguising her feelings, Emma hurried into the kitchen and pressed the button that opened the entrance door of the house.

CHAPTER IV.

THERE was a knock, the unlatched door opened, and James Smith walked in.

"Anybody at home?" he demanded briskly.

"Not a solitary living soul," Emma assured him. "Come in."

"Hello, Joe! You a dead one, too?" he said.

"Almost," replied Brooks, brightening up a little in spite of himself under the influence of his friend's good natured smile and cheeriness that positively emanated from him. "Just come up?"

"Yep, and I reckon in about time to help," he said, glancing at the crockery on the table.

"Just in time," assented Emma, whose drooping spirits also began to rise under the diversion caused by his advent. "But first explain what you mean by not coming to dinner."

"I couldn't come, really. I tried my best, but I had to attend to such a lot of business that couldn't be put off that I was unable to get here in time. I hope you didn't wait long for me. I'm awfully sorry."

"You look it—I don't think," she scolded. "Go on; get busy if you're going to!"

"All right," he answered, taking up a small pile of cups and saucers very gingerly. "Where do these go? If you left it to me, like as not I'd be putting a soup plate behind the door and slip a broom into the sideboard."

"They go right in here."

He stopped on the way to the sideboard and turned to Brooks.

"Seen the latest extra, Joe?" he inquired. "The Orinoco wasn't hardly scratched getting out of Rio Janeiro."

"You don't say!"

"Kind o' scraped over the bar. She'll only be a day late now."

"Do be careful with those cups, Jimsy," admonished Emma. "They're china."

Mother Couldn't Pay.

Boston, June 29.—Thirteen-year-old Jimmie Conway of South Boston will accept no more invitations to play ball in the street on a Sunday. Twenty-three hours in Charles street jail has taught him the enormity of his offence against the laws of this sovereign state. When Jimmie and two other boys were arrested on Tuesday, the parents of his comrades were able to pay the fines imposed for Sunday ballplaying, but Jimmie's widowed mother could not furnish the $200 bail ordered to hold the boy for the next session of the juvenile court on Saturday, and he had to go to jail. Friends bailed him out yesterday afternoon.

Citizens Should Help.

Ottawa, June 29.—Sir Alan Aylesworth addressed the Chief Constables Association meeting yesterday afternoon. He thought the ordinary citizen should take more part in the police work than he does. Now he merely gets a policeman to lay the information and do all the hard work. It was not right that the police should chase after every petty little complaint that the people made. Let them lay the information themselves, and then help to prosecute. All right minded people should be on the side of the law and order, and ready at all times to help and not refuse as is often the case.

Crushed to Death.

Montreal, June 29.—Crossing St. Lawrence street to buy something to eat for his dinner, Francois Xavier Menard, a cabman for over thirty years, was crushed to death under a street car at Milton street crossing yesterday. He lived at the corner of Cadieux and St. Emily streets, Villeray Ward. He leaves a wife and six children. He was 66 years of age.

Menard was well-known to Montreal citizens, and when Sir John Macdonald would visit Montreal he always called for him, and he drove that statesman in many processions.

Injured In Auto Collision.

Montreal, June 29.—F. W. Thompson, managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., was injured in a collision yesterday afternoon between his motor car and a Beaver Hall street corner car at the corner of St. Catherine and Bishop streets.

Examination at the hospital showed bad cuts about the head. There was, however, no other injury, and he is reported as doing nicely.

The Cockshutt Plow Co. of Brantford will increase the plant and put on 500 more employees.

LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average person who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the lenses themselves but much of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The LENSES are the important thing. You look through the LENSES from the time you start to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see.

TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years.

Shaped like the cornea of the eye, they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view without touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens.

We grind all our own TORIC lenses. They cost a little more than the ordinary flat lenses and are worth MUCH more.

$24,000 FOR MORE PARKS

By-law for This Amount Recommended to be Prepared

At a meeting of the manufacturers' committee last night, at which there were present the chairman, Ald. Buller, Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Anderson, the matter of purchasing more property for parks in the city was discussed and the following resolution was passed for submission to the city council.

That a by-law be prepared for submission to the electors, to issue debentures for $24,000, to purchase property in the south, west and east for park purposes, the debentures to bear 41-2 per cent interest and on a 4 per cent sinking fund basis and that, the committee recommend that the by-law be submitted to the electors. In passing this resolution the committee feel they are recognizing continuous requests from the ratepayers for more parks and also the fact that city property is increasing in value every day and that if anything is to be done, prompt action should be taken.

Further information relative to the properties will be published shortly.

WOMEN WARRED; COURT SETTLED IT

Magistrate Advised Neighbors to Live in Peace

A case of war between neighbors from all appearances, was sifted out before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning, the parties to the trouble being Mrs. Killingbeck and Mrs. Bolton, two south end residents living beside each other. The former woman accused Mrs. Bolton of trying to alienate her husband's affections, and a conversation which she overheard once made her very angry, as she was the subject under discussion.

Mrs. Bolton is alleged to have said to Mrs. Killingbeck, "If you do not get into the house I'll blow your brains out," although the most formidable weapon she carried at the time was a broomstick.

His Worship dismissed the case on the ground that there was no evidence to show that Mrs. Killingbeck was in danger of bodily harm. He gave Mrs. Bolton some sound advice, however, as to what her future conduct must be. He also advised Mrs. Killingbeck to stand by her husband.

WILD WEST SHOW IS COMING HERE

Young Buffalo Show Here Saturday July 8

With the Young Buffalo Wild West show, which will give exhibitions afternoon and night in Peterboro, Saturday July 8, are a group of names to conjure within the arenic world, chief among them being Ambrose Means, the daring American cowboy, who, with the Buffalo Jones expedition, went to East Africa on the famous bloodless hunting trip. Means is the man who actually cast the lasso which captured lions, tigers, rhinocer ,and other denizens of the dark continent—a feat of recklessness and daring, the like of which has never before been recorded Ambrose Means, will give a vivid illustration of just how the wild animals of Africa were captured at each performance of the Young Buffalo Wild West show. Although a big feature in this show, which boasts of so many men and women, who have won international fame, he is by no means the pre-eminent one. Annie Oakley, the famous lady rifle shot, is a bright star in the aggregation. Annie Oakley has appeared in every city in the civilized world. She has appeared before all the crowned heads of Europe and is the possessor of many valuable gifts from the royal family in recognition of her wonderful skill with the rifle. There are at least twenty others in the Young Buffalo show that are famous for their daring. On the payroll of this stupendous aggregation appear the names of over 700 cowboys, cowgirls, indian chiefs and warriors, Russian Cossacks, Mexican ruralies, Northwestern Canadian mounted police, and U.S. cavalrymen. It requires two large trains to support this exhibition a larger number of cars than has ever been required to handle any similar enterprise. The street demonstration of this mighty monarch of the West is said to be the most elaborate ever given by any similar enterprise. One of the big features of the parade is Col Stewart and his 20 ox-team.

AN EXPLANATION FROM R. R. HALL

Newberry Was Not Responsible for Turning on of Switch

Mr. R. R. Hall of the Otonabee Power Co. writes to the Review as follows

In an interview which I gave to you on the 19th inst. respecting the late George Wagner, who was unfortunately electrocuted while working on the line of the Otonabee Power Company at Nassau, I find that I made a statement which cast reflections upon Mr. Geo. Newberry, who is in charge of the Power House, at Dam No .5, for the company, which are not borne out by the facts, nor by the evidence before the Coroner's inquest.

In the interview I stated as follows:

"While Peter Kerr was in the telephone booth, Newberry undertook to put in one of the switches in order to start the generator, thinking that there would not be enough current to do any injury to any person who might be working on the line. In addition he supposed that the men would be at their lunch, it being between the hours of twelve and one o'clock. Mr. Newberry unfortunately miscalculated the volume of water, and the consequent current which came from the generator."

Upon reading the evidence taken before the Coroner's inquest ,and upon making a personal examination of the works and hearing the statements of Messrs. Peter Kerr, superintendent of of the works, George Newberry and others employed at the works, I am satisfied that Mr. George Newberry was not in the Power House, nor was he in any way responsible for the turning on of the power ,which, in any way contributed to the electrocution of the unfortunate young man. It appears that before Newberry came into the Power House at all, that the generator was set in motion in order to test whether or not the crown wheels which were being repaired, properly meshed in the pinion wheel. Mr. Peter Kerr is quite satisfied that the switch was out when the generator was started up and consequently no power would be transmitted over the line. The only theory which Mr. Peter Kerr says that can be advanced for the transmission of power is that the oil in the oil switch must in some manner have become carbonized and thereby came in contact with the power line, and transmitted current over it. This theory seems to be borne out by the fact that the electric current which did come over the line, was unsteady and seemed to come in undulating waves .

Previous to my interview I had not discussed the matter with Mr. Newberry and I very much regret that any injustice was done to him.

Yours etc.,
R. R. HALL

SPRINGVILLE OLD BOYS EXCURSION

Outing to Rice Lake Points Very Successful

About two hundred people attended the excursion of the Springville Old Boys to Rice Lake points yesterday and the steamer Geneva, which took passengers at Peterborough and Whitfield's landing had a happy crowd aboard. The excursionists had dinner at Idyl Wyld and at Gore's Landing a stop of half an hour was made. At Jubilee Point games and sports, including a football match, tug-of-war and races were held. CITY MILK VENDORS DO NOT LIKE THE NEW MILK BY-LAW

Dealer Intimates That Customers Will Have to Pay Higher Prices

The city milk vendors are not taking very kindly to the new milk by-law passed by the city council on Tuesday night. Their chief grievance is against the decree that all milk must be delivered in bottles, and a vendor told the Review to-day that from conversations with other dealers he believed the price of milk would be considerably advanced. His opinion was that the new by-law would have the effect of lessening the number of milk dealers, and this would indirectly bring about an advance in prices. At the present time he said milk was being sold at five, six and seven cents per quart.

Regarding the 3.04 butter fat percentage, he held that this was not possible all the time, as the quality of the milk varied, and in his own case it had been as high as five one day and down to three the next. As to the question of the cleanliness of the bottles, he said that a druggist had told him that people came to his place of business with the milk bottles and carried away turpentine or other goods in them.

REV. DR. CLIFFORD IS WELCOMED

Christ. You will never lose your life in the attempt to save it, and long after you have entered the world where conflicts are no more, thousands will rise up to call your name blessed, because of the battles you have fought and the victories you have won for truth while serving your day and generation.

We, however, hope that the splendid health which you seem to be enjoying may be a prophecy of many more years of activity in this world before you go to your reward.

We count ourselves honored in having you to lay the corner stone of the Murray Street Baptist Church, and beg your acceptance of this trowel with which to render the service, after which we will listen with pleasure to the message you bring us.

Signed on behalf of the Church.

MR. EASTWOOD'S SKETCH.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood's very interesting historical sketch of the church said that the first document relating to it that is extant was dated 1843. At any rate the first concerted action towards erecting a Baptist church in Peterborough was taken about that time, and the site was donated by Rev. John Gilmour. The first trustees were J. W. Gilmour, chemist; John Walton, farmer; James Edwards, merchant. Thomas Graham, farmer; Duncan McDonald, blacksmith.

In September 1855 the church by vote declared for strict or close communion. But this was not unanimous, Rev. John Gilmour and others withdrawing early in 1856 and organized a regular Baptist church. A dispute over the deed of the old site led to some litigation, but the fight was given up, and the open communionists erected another chapel, which was opened in 1862, Rev. Mr. Gilmour being the pastor. In 1865 there was a waiving of objections by the close communionists, resulting in reunion. In 1867 Rev Thomas Stock became pastor, and in 1869, Rev. Thomas Gilmour died. The successive pastorates while the church was still in the old Aylmer street building, were occupied by Thomas Dyall, J. Mulhern, J. Stobo and A. H. Munro. Since the change to Murray street in 1885, the pastors have been Rev. A. H. Munro, P. C. Parker, A. T. Dykeman, John Nathan Bastow, J. Freeman Scott, and John R. Webb.

CONTENTS OF THE BOX

In the box laid under the corner stone were copies of the Examiner, the Review, the Times, the names of the officials, coins of the realm, up to 50 cents.

Rev. Dr. Clifford next laid the corner stone, during which ceremony "The Church's One Foundation" was played on the people's chimes.

Next followed the introduction of Dr. Clifford by Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the building committee, and the address on the contribution of a Baptist church to the life of a growing city.

At the close of the address Rev. J. R. Webb announced the offering and Mr. J. R. Stratton was called upon to speak.

Other short addresses were made and the service was brought to a close by the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. J. R. Webb.

To-night Rev. Dr. Clifford will speak in the opera house on the Social Evolution of Great Britain.

TWO HYDRANTS ON BONACORD ST.

The Intention of the Water Commissioners

A letter was read from the H. W. Petrie company, Toronto, at the water commissioners' meeting yesterday afternoon, saying they would keep the selling of the old pumps in view.

A. R. Williams wrote also asking for further particulars in regard to the old pumps. These are the pumps used in the old station.

An offer was read from Johnston Greer to take up the old pumps and load them on cars for $290.

A letter was read from the city clerk authorizing the locations of hydrants on Bonacord street, one on Charlotte street, 500 feet east of Monaghan road.

The secretary was instructed to ask for authority to set two hydrants on Bonacord Street.

It was moved and seconded that an account for $198, from Wm. Hamilton Company be paid, and also $100 of the $200 held back on their contract, and that the company be informed that the balance will be paid, when No. 1 and 2 pumps are in good working order.

The secretary was instructed to inform Mr. R. A. Morrow that a sewer connection was needed at the superintendents office on Hunter Street, and to ask him to have one put in.

PRUDENTIALS TO HOLD OUTING

Annual Trip to Chemong on Dominion Day

The third annual outing of the Prudential Insurance Company's employees will be held on Saturday, July 1st., when the superintendent, assistant superintendents and agents of this district, which comprises Peterboro Lindsay, Cobourg, Port Hope, Oshawa, and Bowmanville, together with their wives, or lady friends, will spend the day at Chemong Park, when a long list of sports will be run off and some grand prizes awarded to the winners of the different events.

This district has been in a contest with the other districts of the Eastern Canadian Division for the past nine weeks and has succeeded in winning seven pennants out of a possible nine, which speaks well for the progress of the district.

The party, which will number about fifty, will leave for Chemong in automobiles about nine a.m., and the success of the outing remains in the hands of the weatherman, as the Gibraltarites are leaving no stones unturned towards making it a grand success.

A pleasing feature of the occasion will be the presence of Mr. W. H. Wilkie, Inspector of Canada, and Mr. E. W. Porter, Chief Canadian agent.

WEDDING GIFTS WERE STOLEN

Couple Arrived in West to Find They Had Been Robbed

Special Correspondence.

Campbellcroft, June 27.—Reports are that some light-fingered gentry made a haul at Garden Hill station the night before Wm. Maize took his car of effects to Saskatchewan. Mr. Maize loaded his car the day before starting all but his horses, and Mr and Mrs. James (nee Miss Hoover) put all their wedding presents and Mrs. James' clothing into Mr. Maize's car the first night Mr. Maize was on the road he looked for his fur coat to wrap up in and it could not be found. When the car arrived at Swift Current Mrs. Jones opened her boxes. Imagine her surprise. Everything was gone out of the boxes. Wedding presents clothing and Mr. Maize's fur coat were all missing. The only time the deed could have been done was the night before the car started, as Mr. Maize was on the car himself afterwards. It is to be hoped the gentry will be found out.

During the period covered by our examination, the profits of the Company, including interest on investments (which has aggregated about $27,500.00 per annum), after providing for depreciation, have in no year amounted to less than $300,000.00, excepting in the year 1910, when the profits amounted to only $167,032.03. The profits for the three years, 1907, 1908 and 1909, on the basis mentioned, have averaged $333,282.08 per annum, and the falling off in the business of the year 1910 is explained by the management as being largely due to the curtailment of operations resulting from the delivery of defective steel castings purchased by the Company under contract.

Yours very truly,

FIELD OF OPERATION.

Canada to-day has over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and over 6,000 under construction or being surveyed. According to statistics furnished by the Department of Railways, one locomotive is required for every six miles of track. Last year there were 4,079 locomotives in use in Canada. The completion of the present 6,000 miles under construction will call for 1,000 new locomotives. In addition, 400 locomotives will be required each year to replace existing equipment. The railroad development which is taking place in Canada is really only at its beginning, and it is expected that within the next ten years the present railway mileage in Canada will be more than doubled. The field of operation is therefore almost unlimited.

PLANT AND EQUIPMENT.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, have been building locomotives since 1855 and have therefore a thorough knowledge of the business. At the present time they are turning out 75 locomotives per year, but have had to refuse many satisfactory orders owing to their limited capacity. The Company have the most up-to-date and modern plant in Canada, covering 333,000 sq. ft.

In addition the Company have 180,000 sq. ft. of reclaimable land on which they can erect additional buildings and, as required, still further enlarge their plant at the minimum of cost. The Company are fortunate in having cheap power, unexcelled shipping facilities, and in being exempt from taxation, except School taxes, up to the year 1916. They have probably the best trained and most loyal staff of skilled workmen on the continent.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

It is estimated that as a result of the contemplated increase to the plant, the earnings within the next few years should be at least $600,000 per annum; or in the neighborhood of 18% on the Common Stock after providing for Bond Interest, Sinking Fund, and Preferred Stock Dividend.

In making provision for an increase in the capacity of their plant, the Company are not entering into a new and untried field. They have a thorough knowledge of the business, and the increased output can be managed with the same office and selling staffs. Other economies will be effected through manufacturing in larger numbers than has been the case in the past. The reputation of the Company is so good that the demand for their locomotives far exceeds the supply.

Applications will be made in due course to list the Preference and Common Shares on the Toronto and Montreal and London Stock Exchanges.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

DEVELOPMENT OF C.P.R. IS A WONDERFUL GROWTH RECORD

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day First C.P.R. Train Left for the Coast—A Tremendous Increase in Wealth and Power.

Twenty-five years ago to-day the first transcontinental train of the Canadian Pacific Railway pulled out from Montreal for the Pacific Coast. It was a memorable occasion, marking the consummation of the greatest work that Canada had ever undertaken.

For a country with less than four millions of people to build a railway across the North American Continent—the first and still the only actual continental line connecting the two great oceans—was a remarkable achievement whose importance was accentuated by the fact that for many hundreds of miles its lines traversed regions altogether unknown—where men did not live—around the rock-bound northern shores of Lake Superior, across the far western plains, then in utter solitude, and over Nature's majestic sky-scrapers in the Canadian Rockies.

No less wonderful has been the growth and expansion of Canada's great national highway during the intervening quarter of a century. The company did not merely remain a common carrier—it became more—a developer and an Empire builder—and so potent a facor in filling the wants of others as well as the vast army of travellers that both on land and sea the C.P.R. to-day is a name to conjure with. From comparatively small beginnings, as seen by twentieth-century eyes, it has developed into a world encircling institution with magnificent fleets on ocean and inland waters—an immigration agency that has peopled half a continent, even to furnishing ready-made homes to the homeseekers—a forceful factor in the development of mines and mining—an inaugurator of huge irrigation works that are reclaiming a kingdom. The company, too, besides having extensive car works at different points where thousands are employed in building its rolling stock, has its own telegraph and express services that reach everywhere, and a chain of palatial hotels to comfortably house those who travel, and it even employs Swiss guides to pilot daring mountaineers to dizzy heights and runs sanitariums and summer resorts where the pleasure seeker may holiday and the health of the invalid be restored. Its record fully justifies the name happily bestowed upon it by an eminent European—"Providence Incorporated."

A few figures will give some idea of the greatness of its growth:

The total earnings in 1886 were a little over $10,000,000, and the net earnings less than $4,000,000, the surplus after deducting fixed charges being $635,444. This year's gross earnings will probably be over $104,000,000, and the net earnings about $37,000,000. The mileage then was 4,651 miles; to-day it is, including controlled lines, about 15,500 miles. The number of passengers then carried was 1,899,319, and the tons of freight aggregated 2,046,195. The approximate figures for the past twelve months are over 12,000,000 passengers, and 21,350,000 tons of freight. A comparison of these figures shows that a considerable reduction in the rates has taken place. In 1886 the average earnings per passenger per mile was 2.10 cents and freight averaged 1.10 cents per ton per mile. To-day the figures are for passengers 1.93 cents per mile and for freight 0.800 cents per ton per mile. A comparison of the equipment then and to-day shows how the company has kept pace with the requirements of the traffic:—

	1886.	1911.
Locomotives	372	1,629
First and second-class passenger cars and colonist and baggage cars	634	1,757
First-class sleeping and dining cars	47	311
Parlor, official and paymaster's car	27	63
Freight and cattle cars	8,253	50,863
Conductors' vans	178	880
Boarding, tool and auxiliary cars	71	3,684

Still more marked is the increase in the marine department. In 1886 the C. P. R. fleet consisted of two steamers on the Great Lakes. To-day, it has fleets on many waters. Its red and white checkered house flag floats over sixteen Atlantic liners, four Pacific liners twenty-two steamers on the Pacific Coast service, five on the Great Lakes service, twenty-two on the inland waters of British Columbia, and two in the ferry service on the Detroit River—a total of 71 vessels—and this number will be increased by the building of several new steamships for the ocean service and by the acquisition of the Dominion Atlantic railway and its steamships.

There seems to be no finality to the company's work. In addition to the large original cost of the railway and equipment hundreds of millions of dollars have been expended on improvements such as double tracking, reduction of grades, curves eliminated, replacing wooden bridges with steel structures, erecting new stations and enlarging old ones, etc., and the policy of extending branch lines wherever needed is still being vigorously pursued.

In one way only has the C.P.R. remained "as it was," and that is in the retention of the services of officials and employees. It is practically manned to-day as it was manned a quarter of a century ago, with, of course, the addition to the many thousands required by the expension of the road. The total number employed now reaches 80,000 and these are stationed in almost every civilized country on the face of the earth. There was no pension fund in 1886, for none was needed. To-day there are over 500 of the old faithful workers on the pension roll, none of whom receive less than $20 a month—a positive contradiction of the proverbial saying that corporations have no souls.

All this shows that the Canadian Pacific is, as stated, more than a transportation company in the generally accepted sense of the term. It is an Empire builder and its name will ever be remembered as the creator of Western Canada and a great developing factor wherever its lines penetrate.

NEW CHURCH AT FENELON FALLS

Rev. Mr. Couch Present at Corner Stone Ceremony

Fenelon Falls, June 28.—Weather conditions were very propitious for the laying of the corner stone of the new Methodist church at Fenelon Falls yesterday afternoon and the interesting ceremony attracted a large crowd of people.

One of the corner stones was laid by Mr. Jos. W. Flavelle, of Toronto while the other was laid by Mr. Jos. McFarland, of Fenelon Falls, one of trustees of the church, Superintendent of the Sunday school and a well known class leader. Two tin boxes were cemented into the corner stones and contained issues of the leading daily papers, the local papers, various coins, the names of the present and past trustees, pastors and other officials of the Methodist church at Fenelon Falls, the names of the officials of the Sunday school and Epworth League and the Sunday school paper, the Bible and the Methodist discipline.

Excellent addresses were delivered by Mr. Jos. Flavelle, who spoke on the ministry and Rev. Isaac Couch, pastor of the George street Methodist church, Peterborough, who spoke on Christianity.

Rev John Bedford, pastor of the Methodist church at Fenelon Falls, presided and also gave a short address, after which all adjourned to the lawn of the parsonage where a beautiful tea was served by the ladies of the congregation.

The new church will be modern in every respect and will be 78 by 52 feet in dimension.

TRADE MARK DECISION GIVEN

Ordered to Change Their Name or Quit Business by Supreme Court

Half a dozen local men in Vancouver recently sought to secure a provincial charter under the name of Semi-ready Limited, for the purpose of tailoring and selling high-class garments. The Supreme Court of British Columbia was promptly appealed to by the Semi-ready Company of Montreal, and this judgment was recorded:

"This court doth order and adjudge that the name of the defendant be changed so that the name 'Semi-ready' do not appear therein, and that until such change is effected by the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies the defendant be restrained from carrying on any business in the Province of British Columbia under the name of the 'Semi-ready, Limited,' similar to that carried on by the plaintiff."

The "Semi-ready" name covers articles of all kinds for men's wear, and for women's wear, and the registered rights are vested in the Semi-ready Company, who tailor semi-ready garments.

Alfred Wood, vice-president of the Semi-ready, Limited, and a director in other corporations in Montreal, said, "We got quick action. Most people do not. I am going to work hard for a Business Men's Court, where transgressions against the honor and integrity of the moral business code will be delt with by trained business men, by men of stainless business reputation. Every profession has such a domestic court, and the industrial or business profession is the highest type of occupation in any civilized country. Such a court would be business-like and quick, would be sound in its views and certain in its directions. It would not be hampered by hoary rules of practice and procedure, nor delayed by any admiration for the traditions of the kindergarten age of commerce.

WEDDING BELLS

BARRIE—JOHNSTON.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston, of Park street, when their daughter, Edith Mabel, was united in marriage to Mr. Norman Barrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Barrie, 520 Chamberlain street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. C. Riddiford, pastor of Park street Baptist church, in the presence of the near relatives and a few friends. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents, which showed the high esteem both bride and groom hold among their many friends. The bride was married in her travelling costume, and after the wedding repast, Mr. and Mrs. Barrie left for Toronto and other points. Upon their return they will take up residence on George street, south of Romaine.

RAILROAD GROWTH IS ASTONISHING

Demand for Locomotives Far Beyond Factory Capacity

For a country so scarcely settled as Canada, her railway mileage is exceptionally great. In Canada to-day we have over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and this mileage is increasing at the rate of about 2,000 miles per year. The growth and development of Canada can be quoted in terms of the growth and expansion of the country's railroads. About twenty-five years ago the C.P.R. ran its first train across the continent, to-day the company has gross earnings of over $100,000,000 per year. This company alone has nearly 1,600 locomotives, while the total number of locomotives in Canada for the year ending June 1910 was 4,079. It has been shown by the Department of Railways that one locomotive is required for every six miles of track in Canada. As there are over 6,000 miles of road being built and already surveyed, this will mean an addition of at least 1,000 locomtoives to supply the mileage already under construction. In addition, 400 locomotives are required each year to replace the existing equipment on the Canadian railways.

Away back in 1885 the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston began making locomotives and ever since has been engaged in this branch of manufacturing. The company have built up such an enviable reputation as makers of good locomotives that to-day the demand far exceeds their yearly output of 75. To take advantage of the unprecedented growth of our railways, the company have decided to double the capacity of their plant and manufacture at least 150 locomotives per year. To enable them to do this they are increasing the capitalization and issuing $1,500,000—6 per cent First Mortgage Bonds, $1,500,000—7 per cent. Cumulative Preferred and $2,000,000 common. The company are in the enviable position of having possibly the best trained staff of workmen on the American continent, the present employees being the sons and grandsons of the men who enlisted with the company in its early history.

Careful management, skilled workmen, and a knowledge of the requirements of the Canadian railways have made the locomotives of the company, the best and most favorably known on the continent.

Kind to the Eyes

Kryptok lenses have distinctive advantages over all former near and far-sighted glasses, having no line or patch to suggest old sight or to confuse the eye. "They are truly delightful and I scarcely realize that I am wearing glasses, as my vision is perfect, both distant and reading," is the remark of one of the pleased patrons of the Optical Institute.

ALBERTANS GIVE BORDEN A HEARTY PERSONAL RECEPTION

Like His Hudson Bay Railway Plan and Other Western Planks—Back to Saskatchewan.

Vermilion (Alta., June 30.—The Conservative leader held his last meeting in the Province of Alberta at Vegreville yesterday afternoon. In the evening he spoke at Lloydminster, which is on the border between the two provinces. The main street is the dividing line, and Mr. Borden's meeting was held on the Saskatchewan side.

The audience in Vegreville exceeded the capacity of the Town Hall. As usual the personal reception accorded the Opposition Leader was enthusiastic. A large section of the audience cheered the reciprocity arguments, but apparently it was not a majority. Vegreville is in a Liberal constituency. A civic address was read by the mayor, who is a Liberal.

The Conservative Association of Fort Saskatchewan presented an address of welcome, in which it was declared that reciprocity can confer no benefit, and can only work injury to the country and the Empire.

In the morning addresses were presented by two locals of the United Farmers of Alberta. That from Vegreville was along the customary lines. That from Lavoy began by stating that this society is framed independent of party politics, and the farmers of Western Canada will support the party which is willing to support their end. Then, dealing with Mr. Borden's statements on the Hudson Bay Railway, terminal elevators and the chilled meat trade, it went on to express satisfaction at the Opposition Leader's plans.

Too Drastic Measure.

Montreal, June 30.—The Provincial Board of Health has ordered the Intercolonial Railway to discontinue all service to Lac-Au-Saumon, in the County of Matane. The move was made by the officials of the board after a severe outbreak of smallpox in Lac-au-Saumon, the local authorities notifying the board that they were unable to cope with the situation, owing to the resistance of the population.

Dr. Ouimet Acquitted.

Ottawa, June 30.—Dr. J. A. Ouimet of Hull, arrested in Ottawa on June 7, on a charge of murder, was given his freedom yesterday morning in Hull Police Court by Magistrate Goyette. He was accused of having caused the death of Mrs. Frank Spain by a criminal operation. The preliminary hearing ended on Monday, but judgment was reserved until yesterday.

Steamship Sunk.

Quebec, June 30.—The steamship Gen. Wolfe, belonging to Holiday Bros., Quebec, was struck by the S. S. Aranmore, belonging to the same firm, on Wednesday morning at 1.05 o'clock, when opposite Murray Bay, about 80 miles from Quebec, and went to the bottom. The crew and passengers of both steamers are safe.

SIR RICHARD ON GERRYMANDER

"Blue Ruin" Knight Talks to Toronto Liberals

Toronto, June 30.—Sir Richard Cartwright was tendered a banquet by the Toronto Reform Association last night and in his address to the large gathering of Liberals he made some important political forecasts.

The veteran politician showed a good deal of his old-time vigor, although he said his mission was not a fighting one. One of his suggestions to the voters was the grouping of constituencies and another was the limitation of Parliamentary debate.

He spoke of Canadian opportunity, Canadian progress, Canadian prosperity. So remarkable had been the all-round development under Liberal rule that political opponents were to-day acclaiming it, and constituting their campaign on the extraordinary argument that everything had become so prosperous that "we beg of you to let it alone."

"There may be force in that," gleamed Sir Richard, "in this respect at least. It would seem that both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. R. L. Borden are the right men in the right places."

But there were other things beside material progress. He felt that something more might be done towards improving and amending the present system of representation which he held was exposed to certain dangers. These he defined as the necessity felt by both parties to "recognize and make provision for" the loose vote not dominated by principles and party allegiance; and the opportunity for "setting at naught the will of the people by the legislative fraud of gerrymander."

The remedy prescribed was proportionate representation and the grouping of constituencies, thereby reducing the turmoil and expense of election and placing a number of seats at the disposal of the respective parties in proportion to the popular vote of the province.

Canada was essentially a leader in reform and progress. Sir Richard elicited renewed applause when he pointed to the fact that Britain was soon to follow the example of Confederation in a home rule legislative system for the third units, and a central Parliament for all.

TWO MONTREAL BOYS IN COURT

Are Charged With Arson in Lumber Yards.

Montreal, June 30.—Raymond Bamford, John Collins and James Milloy were in court yesterday on a charge of arson, in connection with fires discovered in the lumber yard of Shearer, Brown & Wills and in other places in Point St. Charles, and were remanded for voluntary statement on July fifth.

Thomas Mitchell and John Currie pleaded guilty to the charge last Saturday, and it is expected that the evidence produced by these last two youths will set the responsibility on the five, who are all companions. The boys state that they lighted the fires to see which of two fire stations could get its men on the spot first.

She Leaped From Train.

Toronto, June 30.—Rose Rae, 24 years old, who with a party of four other women was being conveyed by Female Bailiff Mrs. J. Scott from the North Bay jail to Toronto to serve a term in the Mercer Reformatory, jumped from the G.T.R. train in which they were traveling near Gravenhurst yesterday afternoon and regained her liberty. The bailiff, owing to the fact that no one was with her, to guard the remaining quartette, was unable to have the train stopped, and it would have been almost suicidal to have followed the escaping one.

Great Dog Harvest.

Chatham, June 30.—The municipal authorities are conducting a strenuous campaign against the dog-owners of the city. There are so many ownerless dogs traveling the streets that the police have received instructions to compel owners to procure tags or destroy the stray dogs. As a result, the city is reaping a great harvest in additional revenue from dog taxes.

Brilliant Shakespeare Coronation Ball

THE COUNTESS OF CREWE — THE DUCHESS OF SOMERSET — LADY LOCH

The Shakespeare coronation ball, with quadrilles, in which peeresses represented the principal characters from "As You Like It," "Anthony and Cleopatra" and others of the plays, marked the opening of the coronation festivities in London. "The Court of Queen Elizabeth," representing scenes of Elizabethan days, was also a feature. Those who took part were the direct descendants of the persons they represented. The scene was one of splendor and rivalled anything of its kind ever witnessed in London. Portraits of the noted women who took part are shown above.

WIRE TRUST IS INDICTED

Nine Charges Against U. S. Combine

Accused of Forming Pools Violating Sherman Act

New York, June 30.—Nine indictments charging restrait of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, were returned by a federal grand jury yesterday afternoon against that many associations, and a long list of individuals comprising the so-called "wire trust," affiliated with the steel industry. Prominent amongst the defendants are: Herbert L. Satterlees, a son-in-law of J. P. Morgan, and Wm. P. Palmer, president of the American Steel & Wire Co., a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, and Frank J. Gould, the well-known railroad financier.

The Government does not seek to establish a physical or fiscal merger of the properties or interests indicted, but a series of pools to maintain prices and apportion territory, in elimination of competition.

There is no indication, however, that evidence gathered by the bureau of corporations in its investigation of the steel corporation, played any part in the indictments. Only two of the indicted associations contain subsidiaries, namely the American Steel & Wire Co., and the Trenton Iron Co.

It is set forth that the various associations described organized under their association names, and each elected what was called a supervisor and adopted sets of rules and regulations. An arbitarary rating was determined, it is charged, by the ratio of output for an agreed time; each member was obligated to pay $5,000 or less into a fund called "the general deposit," and in case any member failed to abide by the regulations, his deposit was forfeited.

Raw materials were bought, it is alleged in one indictment, at "arbitrary and non-competitive prices to be agreed upon by said defendants, being prices lower than those for which the respective corporations would be enabled to purchase said raw materials but for the unlawful conspiracy herein described."

In the indictment against the Bare Copper Wire Association, it is charged that the corporations forming the association produced 95 per cent. of the bare copper wire consumed in the United States and that they had absolute control of the price.

ANGLO-AMERICAN TREATY ON ARBITRATION AWAITS THE SPLASH OF THE PEN

Treaty Ready for Signature now—Permanent Court of Arbitration to be Provided

Washington, June 30.—All formalities necessary to the final conclusion of the general arbitration treaty between America and Great Britain could be completed within four hours, assuming that the machinery was working properly and smoothly, was the official declaration yesterday. The differences between the two countries now relate merely to phraseology and can be readily adjusted. The British ambassador has full powers to sign the treaty and the administration so far has failed to find any signs of objection to the compact on the part of the Senate.

It is distinctly stated that, notwithstanding impressions to the contrary, the treaty conserves to the utmost the constitutional powers of the Senate in treaty making, and that every question to be submitted to arbitration must first receive the approval of the Senate. But it is pointed out that the very negotiation of the treaty will almost have the effect of lessening the number of issues to be arbitrated. This is explained by the fact that through the creation of a commission of enquiry, composed of disinterested members of The Hague tribunal, most of the issues that may arise between the two Governments can be settled satisfactorily by the adoption of the findings of that commision and without the necessity of proceeding to arbitration.

Unofficial advices indicate the French Government is practically ready to enter into treaty with the United States on the basis of Secretary Knox's terms, and action may soon be had in that direction, the French ambassador being on his way here.

Nothing definite has been heard from Germany since the Knox proposal was handed to Ambassador Bernstorff upon his application. Holland also has been furnished with a copy of the projected treaty, and other nations are showing marked interest in the subject.

An interesting feature of the projected treaty is the provision for the reference of issue to a tribunal. This is so framed as to forecast the creation of the permanent court of arbitration, towards which the administration is steadily working.

Finally he was thrown off and the wheel passed over his head. A clerk from a nearby store picked up the little fellow and carried him home, where he died shortly afterward. The driver of the wagon did not learn of the accident till yesterday morning. Coroner Singer is investigating.

A Redistribution Saw-Off.

St. Catharines, June 30.—The Conservatives will not put up a candidate to oppose W. M. German, the Liberal member for Welland, who opposes reciprocity, provided that in the redistribution bill, the Township of Pelham, a Liberal stronghold, returning 500 Liberal majority every election, is not tacked on to Lincoln, which would result in E. A. Lancaster's defeat.

Fifty-One Years With G.T.R.

Montreal, June 30.—Wm. Thompson, for many years associated with the Grand Trunk Railway, died yesterday afternoon at the age of 80.

The late Mr. Thompson was born at Perth, Ont., and came to Montreal early in life. He entered the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway, with whom he remained fifty-one years, retiring a few years ago on a pension. He is survived by five sons and four daughters.

MACKENZIE KING IS BITTER ON RECIPROCITY QUESTION

Labor Minister Addresses a Meeting at Home—Talks of Combinesters and Sycophants.

Berlin, Ont., June 30.—Hon. Mackenzie King addressed an audience that filled the Town Hall at Waterloo last night on the reciprocity agreement. He dealt with the question in a comprehensive manner and argued that its adoption would result in increased prosperity of the people as a whole, because the benefit that would accrue to the great primary interests in the free interchange of natural products could not but have that effect.

He was bitter in his denunciation of the opponents of the pact, arguing that their actions tended to corruption of the press and deterioration of public morals in the manner in which they were seeking to deceive the great mass of the people. He believed that this opposition came chiefly from the "combinesters," as he termed them, "members and sycophants of the trusts and combines existing in Canada, and from the tariff reform party of England," whose efforts, if successful, would tend to destroy rather than forward the permanency of the British Empire.

He believed Sir Wilfrid Laurier's action at the Imperial Conference had resulted in action constituting more real advance in strengthening the Empire than had been accomplished in the past fifty years.

Memorial to Tecumseh.

Chatham, June 30.—The citizens of Thamesville have decided to erect a boulder on the battlefield of Moraviantown, to commemorate that important event in history, and also to establish a mark of esteem for the Indian Chief Tecumseh. John McDowell, on whose farm the site is situated, has donated sufficient ground for the erection of the boulder, and the citizens of Thamesville have already subscribed the funds, so that Kent County's greatest historical site will be plainly indicated.

This has again aroused in Chatham the interest in a public monument to Tecumseh, to be erected in Tecumseh Park here. It is quite likely a subscription will be started with this object in view.

Formed New Church.

Brockville, June 30.—Owing to a split in the congregation of the First Baptist Church some months ago, the majority of the members and adherents withdrew and formed a new church, under the pastorate of Rev. S. J. Robins, who went out with them. A council composed of lay and clerical representatives of the 22 churches forming the Central Canada Baptist Association have just concluded a meeting here, at which the new church was officially recognized and extended the hand of fellowship. Officers have been elected and a name will be decided upon at a congregational meeting to be held later. Preparations are being made for the building of an edifice.

Was Seventy Years of Age and Had Been Ill for One Month

Special to the Review.

Toronto, June 30.—Most reverend Denis O'Connor, former archbishop of Toronto, died at five o'clock this morning.

The late Archbishop was greatly beloved and respected and his brethren of the Roman Catholic clergy of Peterborough all speak in the highest terms of his noble character, and high mental attainments. The deceased archbishop was born in Pickering, Ont., in 1841, just seventy years ago. He entered St. Michael's College, Toronto, at an early age where he received his education. After spending about two years in France he joined the Brazilian order of clergy and returned to Canada, where he was ordained in 1864. He spent some time as teacher in Simpson College at Sandwich, Ont., and was later appointed Archbishop of London, where he remained nine years, leaving there to accept the Archbishopric of Toronto, which position he ably filled until the time of his retirement, three years ago.

The news of his death was received by Bishop O'Connor at St. Peter's rectory by telephone about 6.30,

FAREWELL TO THE DEPARTING DUKE

Connaught the Guest of Honor at London Affair.

London, June 30.—The American ambassador and Mrs. Reid gave a dinner at Dorchester House last night, which was in the nature of a farewell to the Duke of Connaught, who is leaving, after the King's visit to Ireland, Scotland and Wales, for Canada to assume the Governor-Generalship.

The duke was accompanied by the duchess, Princess Patricia, and Prince Arthur of Connaught, and the party invited to meet them formed a most distinguished company of diplomats, statesmen, and persons socially prominent. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier, was among those present and many Americans and colonials came in to the dance which followed the dinner.

FOR 25 YEARS HE SUFFERED

Well Known Merchant Of Sarnia Cured by "Fruit-a-tives"

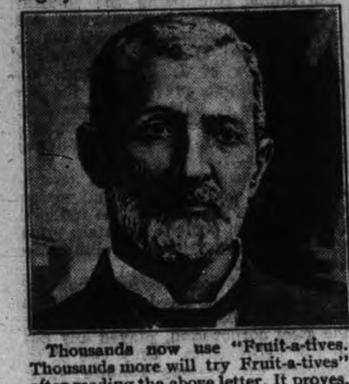
SARNIA, ONT., Feb. 5th, 1910.

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of The Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors but derived no benefit whatever.

Finally I read an advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives". I decided to give "Fruit-a-tives" a trial and found they did exactly what was claimed for them.

I have now taken "Fruit-a-tives" for some months and find that they are the only remedy that does me good.

I have recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to a great many of my friends and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly" PAUL J. JONES



Thousands now use "Fruit-a-tives. Thousands more will try Fruit-a-tives" after reading the above letter. It proves, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that at last there is a cure for Constipation and Stomach Troubles.

"Fruit-a-tives" is Nature's cure for these diseases, being made of fruit juices and valuable tonics

AFFECTING PROTESTANTS

In the Orange Sentinel this week there is a long letter from a Peterborough gentleman on the subject of the Ne Temere decree, in which he seeks to show that the decree applies to Protestants, in reply to a writer in the Montreal Witness who says that the decree is of concern to Roman Catholics only.

The argument put forth by the correspondent is interesting, and in one or two points convincing. The decree is of course addressed to Roman Catholics ,and those whom the Roman Catholic church claims as its own, whether those individuals reciprocate in the relationship or not. It affects Protestants, not through the civil aspect, but through its effect on the members or ex-members of the church with whom Protestants have relations. This is an unfortunate phase of the case that cannot be recognized by the law, but is the basis of much well founded ill-feeling. The relations of the home should not be disturbed or divisions between the husband and wife created by any religious body, and if religion were not deeper-seated than even love, it would not be so. It is true that a mixed marriage in Quebec is no marriage at all in the eyes of the Roman Catholic church. But, of course, it has not yet been held by the courts of Quebec that a mixed marriage is invalid, even though the Roman Catholic church says so. No such case has been tried, and there is no guiding decision thereon. Protestants who intermarry with Roman Catholics in any province but Quebec may feel assured of a legitimate marriage, which neither an ecclesiastical promulgation of the Roman Catholic church or any other church can affect. Protestants are indirectly concerned in Quebec, but the fact that the church of Rome declares this is valid or that is invalid is of no civil consequence to any but Roman Catholics.

The ordinances of the church will no doubt cause a great deal of trouble in the homes of which the foundation is a mixed marriage; and Protestants are affected in this way. But from a civil standpoint; from the viewpoint of whether a marriage is valid or invalid, as a result of the rulings of the prelates of Rome, it cannot be shown that the decree affects Protestants injuriously, for no case has arisen in the courts where the marriage of a Protestant and a Roman Catholic has been annulled through ecclesiastical rulings. Judicial men have said that in their opinion, they do not think the courts would declare as invalid a mixed marriage, though celebrated in direct contravention to the rules of either the Roman Catholic or of a Protestant church.

DOMINION DAY

To-morrow is Dominion Day, a day which Canadians should celebrate with all their heart. To-morrow Canada passes another milestone toward her destiny as a great nation and a power on earth. It is her forty-fourth birthday as a distinct British unit, and never in all of the brief history of this great and privileged people has there been so much cause for rejoicing and for satisfaction as there is to-day.

True, we have our problems; we have our national ills and troubles. But Canada to-day offers evidence that must thrill the pride of Canadian patriotism, of the wisdom and foresight of the fifteen statesmen who gathered in London, and whose efforts have been crowned with such consummate success.

Forty-four years ago Canada was a collection of undeveloped, scattered and antagonistic colonies of the crown. With the union of the principal provinces under one central government, and the addition and extension of the Dominion suzerainty, a nation sprang into being that is making and will still further make a mark on the page of the world's history. Dominion Day in 1911 will find Canada humming with industry, prosperous and on the whole happy. Bound together by the steel bands of loyalty to the national ideal, to the cause of empire, and with love toward the "tight little isle," that has wended its way so manfully through the years as an uplifter and elevator of mankind, the provinces of Canada should to-morrow remember with gratitude supreme those far-sighted statesmen who are commonly known as the fathers of confederation. Chief among these was Sir John Macdonald, that statesman whose memory is green in the hearts of a million Canadians. They did not know forty-four years ago what a country they were making. It was not given to most of them to realise what an important part Canada was to play in the counsels of empire. Beyond their wildest dreams, and even extravagant expectations, the Dominion has progressed and prospered, and the end is not yet.

In celebrating the national birthday to-morrow, let us render thanks to the brave spirits who plunged into the maelstrom of difficulty and doubt and opposition, and brought into being a nation. Let us render thanks to a kind Providence that the young nation has grown to lusty manhood, full of virility and strength, and eager to do and to dare, trusting in the guidance of wise counsel and sane thinking to lead us in the right.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One more day has passed without F. D. Kerr resigning the candidacy in East Peterborough. Mr. Kerr will not find the job of keeping the seat warm for the bosses' man a hard one in July and August.

The hearty welcome which Mr. Borden is receiving in the west must be rather annoying to the Grit newspapers who a few weeks ago were busy prophesying blue ruin for Mr. Borden in the prairie towns.

The west saw the sunny smile last year, but smiles soon fade. This year it is getting talk straight from the shoulder—what the Winnipeg Tribune calls almost brutal frankness. Which sort of hand-out does it prefer?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier says he will save Mrs. Neapolitano, the woman who killed her husband at the Soo, and who is under sentence of death. It is unthinkable that the government would permit the woman to be hanged under such circumstances, when many brutal murderers escape the gallows.

Has anyone noticed that flies do not seem to be as numerous or bothersome this year as in others? Can it be that the slogan "Swat the fly," has been carried out with telling effect, or is it that the board of health has arranged the garbage removal business so well that there is no place for the flies to breed in?

A Hull doctor named Ouimet, was arrested,charged with murder through having performed an alleged criminal operation on a woman. He was thrown into the dirty cells at Ottawa, herded among vagrants and the class of people a jail usually gathers, made to suffer from the vermin that seem to exist in every jail, refused bail; and when the case came up in police court, the charge utterly failed because the crown couldn't show that the doctor performed the operation. The crown authorities should be more careful in laying serious charges like this, if they can't make out a reasonably good case. It looks like spite work on the part of someone.

Getting Big Prices.

Chatham, June 30.—Horse buying was brisk on the local market yesterday. An eastern buyer named Smith was holding forth, paying all the way from $150 to $250 a head for horses.

Hogs are still commanding $6.75, hay brought $10 a ton and oats 38c and 40c. a bushel.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 29.—There was an explosive market to-day in corn. It looked as tho genuine crop damage had been taking place owing to hot winds thruout a wide sweep of Kansas and Nebraska. Predictions were current in consequence that if the harm should prove general corn would take fire in the pit. As a result the cereal led all others, and closed strong at a net gain of 5-8 to 3-4 to 1 1-8 to 1 1-4. Oats finished 1-4 up and wheat irregular 1-8 off to 1-4 advance. Latest figures for hog products varied from a shade decline to a rise of 10c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ⅛d higher to ⅛d lower than yesterday, on wheat, and ⅛d to ¼d lower on corn. At Berlin wheat closed ⅛c lower.

"Don't you suppose I know that?"

"I mean real china," she emphasized.

"All china and Chinamen look alike to me. Here's the paper, Joe. You'll find all about the Orinoco on the inside page."

He drew it from his pocket, and as he did so one of the cups balanced on the saucers slipped off and smashed to bits on the carpet.

"Now, Jimsy, you certainly are going to get it," commented Joe, rising and taking the paper extended to him.

Smith looked appealingly at his hostess.

"Jimsy," she chided, assuming an expression of mock gravity, "how could you—my very best Sunday go to meeting china! How could you!"

"Not how could I—how did I?" he corrected, stooping and picking up the pieces. "You know, Emma, I've had butter fingers ever since I was a little shaver, and I guess I always will have—in business and everything else."

"Why, how do you mean?"

"I've been clumsy all my life, that's all. Everything I've ever had in my hands that was worth much I've generally let slip and fall. Out in Colorado when I was a kid around Leadville they used to say that I sure would turn out to be a sawed off and hammered down, good for nothing man. So you see the way things have turned out. I've broken about even with that prophecy."

"How broken even?"

"Taking their side for the book, I win the first bet and lose the second. There ain't nothing sawed off and hammered down about me, is there?"

"I should say not," she said, with a merry laugh. "You've been pulled out like a piece of taffy."

"Then I win, but it was in doubt quite some time. Never really did start to grow until I was fifteen, and then I just eased out into my present altitude. But the second proposition—that good for nothing bet—I guess they win."

"Nonsense, Jimsy. How can you say such a thing? You're good for a whole lot."

"Emma," he declared solemnly, "there have been moments of financial stringency when that declaration seemed to be open to doubt."

"Jimsy, you're an idiot!" she laughed.

"Discovered!" he avowed, bowing ceremoniously.

Brooks, who had been reading the paper, threw it down angrily.

"D—n him!" he growled.

"Joe!" exclaimed his wife reproachfully.

"D—n who?" inquired Smith.

"Why, Williams," he replied.

"Lots have done that," said the superintendent. "But what's the matter now, Joe?"

"His luck," went on Brooks. "The Orinoco isn't scratched. If any one else owned a ship and she got into a muss like that the chances are a hundred to one that she'd have foundered—been a complete loss."

"That's right," assented Smith.

"But Williams—he don't lose her. He couldn't."

"I should think you'd be glad," remarked Emma. "She's a brand new ship, isn't she?"

"No, I'm not glad," he declared furiously, rising and walking about the room. "I'm tired of him, of his rotten old steamship line, of all of it—you hear? Of all of it."

"Joe, please!" she protested. "You know I"—

"I know you've slaved and bore with me long enough! Here I am—handling all the money of that line, ain't that so, Jimsy?"

"That's right," admitted the latter. "But what's the matter?"

"Matter? Isn't it matter enough that I should do all this for a mean, miserable living? I suffer and work, and work and suffer, for that nasty, niggardly salary and this beast, this wild animal of a Williams, keeps us all starving—yes, starving! Don't I deserve something a little better? Do you know what I could do? I could steal thousands, and no one would ever know it!"

"Joe!" she ejaculated, greatly shocked.

"Oh, I'm not going to do it; but, with all this responsibility, when I ask for money I don't get it—not a dollar. You do, Jimsy; you're single and you can quit. And then Williams—what does he do? Comes around here to my wife with my mother-in-law—d—n him—and rubs it in."

Emma looked at him pleadingly.

"Joe, you mustn't. Captain Williams means well, but"—

He turned upon her savagely.

"That's it—he means well. He meant well when he was a south Pacific trader. He meant well when he treated his crew like dogs. He meant well when he'd kill a sailor with as much thought as a spider kills a fly. He meant well when he cheated natives, murdered men, smuggled Chinamen into this country, sunk vessels for insurance. He meant well when he came east, bought the Latin-American company and put your father out of business, and now—now that he has his money, his millions maybe, he means well when he refuses to give his men a fair share of what they produce. Means well? Yes, he does—not!"

"Joe, are you crazy?" demanded his wife, alarmed and a little angry at his outburst.

"Well, there's a whole lot of truth in what Joe says," put in Smith conciliatingly. "You see, Williams did start out as a captain of a south Pacific trader, but, like most of them fellows, I guess he stole a good deal more than he traded. He had the reputation of being the strongest man on the coast or in the tropics—could break a man's arm with as much ease as you'd snap a straw. He's harsh, Williams is—harsh! When he came east he got control of the Latin-American. He loved money, and he got it—most any way he could. Yes, Joe ought to have more, that's sure. He ought to have more."

"You know I should," went on Brooks, somewhat mollified by his friend's acquiescence and support and drawing a bulky pocketbook from the inside pocket of his waistcoat. "I've got control of all the money of the company. That's my job. Why, here, this alone is the afternoon collections, too late to put in the safe, nearly $3,000, more than twice as much as I get in a year. I could take it all and then not be caught or at least not for months, but"—

"Why, Joe, I'm surprised!" his wife broke in.

"Of course Joe wouldn't take a cent that don't belong to him," said Smith. "I know that. Williams does too. So I guess he figures him safe and don't see the least bit of use in paying him more."

"But I won't stand it!" Brooks declared, waxing wroth again and flinging himself in his chair. "Why do you get raises, Jimsy? You've been advanced time and time again."

"Lord, I don't know," he replied. "I just tell the old fellow that I calculate I'm worth more money. 'Come across or we separate,' I say, and so far he's always come."

"I was so glad to hear of your last good luck," remarked Emma sincerely.

A look of regret came over Smith's face.

"I only wish Joe had got it instead of me," he said.

Brooks jumped to his feet.

"You don't need to wish that, Smith," he cried excitedly. "I'm no object of charity—no, I ain't. And you're like all the rest of the capitalistic crowd—grind, grind, grind. Well, look out, there's going to be a smashup—you understand? A smashup, and you all go—millionaires, toadies and—well, that's all I've got to say."

He snatched his hat from a hook in the hall and went out without another word, slamming the front door behind him so heavily that the glasses on the sideboard rattled.

Emma gazed at Smith in blank dismay.

"I can't understand Joe," she said, shaking her head in worry and perplexity. "He's growing so morose and discontented."

"It's funny, ain't it," observed Smith reflectively. "Joe's just rushed out, filled up to the throat with anarchy, socialism, smashups and all that stuff, almost ready to throw a bomb."

"Nonsense!"

"He is, yet if Williams had raised him today $10 a week he would have been a firm believer in capital and the way it works."

She sighed, took a seat opposite to him at the table and with great earnestness started in to question him.

"Jimsy," she began, "tell me honestly—why doesn't Joe get on?"

"I really don't know," he averred.

"I'm afraid you do," Emma insisted.

"Honest, I don't. I've been so busy getting along myself that I haven't paid much attention to any one else."

He paused and gazed up at the ceiling, engrossed in thought.

"You know, Emma," he went on suddenly, turning toward her, "this getting along business is a funny game. Such a lot depends on what a man means when he gets along. Some get along when they have got a lot of money, some when they have a wife and a home and a bunch of kids, some when they are able to pick pockets and fool the coppers. Getting along and why you do or why you don't depends a good deal on where you want to get."

"And you, Jimsy?" she questioned. "Have you been getting along?"

"Oh, yes, I guess so. I ain't got a whole lot to kick about; perhaps a little less, maybe a little more, than Joe. But the great idea is not to get sore. Joe's all right. Maybe he's just being prepared for a better living. When it comes he'll appreciate it more."

"Somehow I don't seem to understand him as I used to," she confessed. "There's been a change that worries me—that worries me greatly."

Three sharp rings of the bell put an end to further conversation, and she rose, disappointed, and pushed the button.

DR. CLIFFORD'S ADDRESS AT LAYING OF CORNER STONE

The Contribution of Baptist Church to Life of a Growing City

The occasion of the laying of the corner stone at the new Murray street Baptist church, which was celebrated yesterday afternoon, was one of mutual and widespread local interest, and the ceremony was most fittingly and enthusiastically observed.

Rev. Dr. John Clifford, M.A., BSc., LL.D., whose presence at the significant event was so greatly appreciated, was perhaps the central attraction. The brief outline of the ceremony as published in yesterday's issue was fully adhered to, and the address of welcome to the famous old land divine was most heartily applauded. The address was read by Dr. W. D. Scott. One of the most pleasing incidents connected with the laying of the corner stone was the chiming of the new bell at St. John's Anglican church, which added greatly to the interest of the occasion.

Mr. T. F Matthews then introduced Dr. Clifford in a neat and appropriate speech, calling on him for the address of the day, namely, "The Contribution of the Baptist Church to the Life of a Growing City."

Before proceeding with the subject Dr. Clifford expressed his pleasure at hearing the chimes sound forth, their first public act, as he termed it, since their dedication. He congratulated the citizens on having in their possession such a splendid set of chimes.

In commencing the reverend gentleman stated that he considered it one of the supremest joys of his life to be present on such an occasion, and with the purpose of tightening the bonds of union between this country and the mother country. He also expressed the warm pleasure experienced by him through the kindness and welcome extended by the chairman and his fellow-colleagues. The mental picture of the little girl, Bena Hardwicke, who presented him with the trowel, he stated, he would carry back with him to the old land.

OTHER CHURCHES CONTRIBUTE.

"In beginning my talk on "The Contribution of the Baptist Church to the Life of a Growing City,' said Dr. Clifford, "I am also talking of the contribution of other churches, more or less, to the life of a city. But the Baptists have something to give such as no other churches have.

"Locally you cannot do better than by placing your pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, at the head of your new church. The highest and most important thing in a minister's life is his ability to instruct the people of his parish how to live together in the bonds of unity and love.

"In my own partish people knew me as their friend, guiding the footsteps of their young men and ministering to them in times of need and sorrow."

A FRUITFUL PASTOR.

"The first contribution of a church, therefore, to the life of a growing city is in its having a pastor whose labors are fruitful and whose efforts constitute a source of great power for the betterments of mankind in that city."

LLOYD-GEORGE'S POWER.

"We Baptists have made Lloyd-George," said Dr. Clifford. "We have made the foremost statesman in the British empire to-day. Lloyd-George was brought up in a Baptist church and Sunday school and received his conceptions of right statesmanship from a Baptist atmosphere. The Baptist spirit has even penetrated and permeated his budgets, particularly in his budgets of 1909-11, which have only been proclaiming Baptist teachings and principles for which many men, years ago, were consigned to prison for professing. The Baptist church, therefore, makes leaders in public and civic life. Then another contribution in its reforming power. Emerson has said that the greatest enterprise upon earth is the building of a man, and that is what the Baptist church of to-day is performing. The processes by which this is being done is varied. Someone has said that the oldest men should be the most optimistic. The last individual to be "grouchy" should be the aged Christian. The adjective "grouchy" had been defined to the speaker as descriptive of an "unripe gooseberry." and was, he considered, particularly adaptable to the case of a pessimistic individual. "One of the effects of church worship is to make us optimistic about life.

"The Baptist churches and all other churches should make men of conviction, and do make men of conviction and of courage.

OLD LAND HEROES.

"We grow heroes in the old land," said Dr. Clifford, "and the majority of them are found in the rural districts. They lose their heroism in the cities, the atmosphere seems too much for their faith. The heroes are trained in the little Baptist conventicles throughout the land.

CONTRIBUTION OF FAITH.

The Christian churches also contribute faith to the life of a city. It is by faith that we live. The word panic is but another expression for "faith gone." The church that is contributing to the faith of a community is helping immensely in uplifting people."

Mr. J. R. Stratton was the next speaker. He expressed his pleasure at being present at such an auspicious event, and joined in congratulating the pastor and all present on having in the course of erection such a promising church. He was also pleased to note the beautiful and prominent site chosen for the location of the church, and was glad that the citizens of Peterborough and himself had had the pleasure and honor of listening to such a distinguished old land divine as Dr. Clifford.

Mr. T. F. Matthews then expressed his thanks to the Toronto party of seventeen gentlemen and three ladies, who had brought Dr. Clifford with them to Peterborough.

Short, suitable addresses, mainly congratulatory in nature, were delivered by the following gentlemen on the platform: Mr. S. J. Moore, Toronto; Mr. T. Sanderson, M.A., LL.D., of Toronto, and Rev. James Rollins, Rev. I. Couch and Rev. Canon Davidson.

The benediction was then pronounced by Rev. J R. Webb, and the affair concluded.

$6,000 SUBSCRIBED.

A splendid offering was received immediately at the conclusion of the addresses amounting in all to $6,000. Of this encouraging donation $5,000 was contributed by Mr. J. R. Stratton. The total cost of the church will, it is estimated, be $60,000.

YOUNG BUFFALO WILD WEST SHOW

Big Street Parade on the Morning of July 8

When the Young Buffalo Wild West Show appears in Peterborough, Saturday, July 8th, afternoon and night, there will be found in the canvas enclosed arena the greatest aggregation of wild west celebrities ever gathered together at one time. Col. Seaver has spared neither time nor money to make this show the greatest show on earth in reality, not fiction. At various times during the action of the show there will be found more noted people than the late P. T. Barnum ever hoped for in his palmiest days. For instance, when Col. Seaver signed Annie Oakley, Captain A. H. Bogardus, Curtis Liston and Stevens, he formed a combination that could not be beaten. Besides these, there will be Ambrose Means, the hero of the African jungles, and the first man to rope a lion, Fred Burns, the best informed man on lassoing in the world, better known as the "King of the Rope," Montana Jack, Prairie, Maud Allen, and many other notables. The horses with the show are the best money can buy, for Col. Seaver has not spared a single dollar to make his show greater than anything ever before attempted. The sleeping cars on the show train are of the Pullman type and are considered the finest ever sent out on a show train. The tents are new and of an improved style, while the lighting facilities are most modern kind. A big street parade will be given at 10 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition, at which time the 700 men and women, together with over 300 horses, bands of music, and the vast amount of show paraphernalia will be seen.

CIVIL ACTION TO RECOVER $24.10

Teamster Claims Balance on Contract for Stone

A civil action occupied the attention of Judge Huycke to-day, the plaintiff being Mr. William H. Meharry, a teamster, who brought action against Mr. Frederick, who had the contract of the stone work at the Canadian Chiele Company, to recover the sum of $24.10

It appears that Mr. Meharry made a bargain with Mr. Frederick to supply stone to the Chiele Company building and there was nothing said about the price he was to receive at the time.

He therefore supplied Mr. Frederick with 26 1-2 cords of stone, and received $120, but claims that there is yet due him $24.10, because of the fact that the defendant did not allow him the sum he should be paid the usual system of measurement adopted by contractors. From the evidence of one of the witnesses, Mr. J. W. Hartley, it seems that stone masons are usually allowed solid measurement in stonework, except when openings on walls, such as windows, are of considerable size. Quite a number of witnesses gave evidence.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for Mr. Meharry and Mr. J. H. Burnham for Mr. Frederick.

BRITAIN'S SOCIAL EVOLUTION

Large Audience Heard Rev. Dr. Clifford at the Opera House

Before a large and appreciative audience at the Grand Opera House last night, Rev. John Clifford, M.A., B.Sc., L.L.D., D.D., delivered a strong and stirring address on "Social Evolution in Britain."

Rev. Dr. Clifford is about 73 years of age but remarkably agile and thrifty in appearance. His voice has splendid oratorical abilities, and the message he so ably propounded won for him rounds of applause.

Besides Rev. Dr. Clifford, there were on the platform His Worship Mayor Morrow and Rev J. R. Webb.

MAYOR MORROW

Mayor W. Morrow, in introducing the speaker of the evening, said he was pleased to welcome a man to the city, who was doing so much for the educational and religious life of the Old Land. We, of one of the grandest spots in Canada, heard much about England and would take much pleasure in listening to Rev. Dr. Clifford's discourse on Britain.

REV. DR. CLIFFORD

Though discussing the social evolution of Britain and in a political sense, he wished, he said also to be remembered as minister of the Gospel.

"To-day we stand at the dawning of a brighter era and there are better prospects before us, than before any other country in the world," said Rev. Dr. Clifford.

He related some facts about the nineteenth century and declared that we could not realize the depth and intensity of wretchedness of the people from 1800 to 1830 without we read the history on the subject. The attitude of the people towards the government at that time was one of antagonism. In 1831-32, a reform came when the middle classes were allowed to dabble in the affairs of the country. A new conception of political life dawned as the song of the time would indicate, for instance, "the song of the shirt."

In 1870 the Government was beginning to control the actions of the people. That year an Act was passed making it compulsory for children to engage in educational studies until the age of thirteen years. Peace ship had been established and from then to the end of the century, the social conditions had continued to advance.

HOPES SHATTERED

In 1906 the country returned the Liberals and they expected to do a lot towards the social evolution but did not take into account the House of Lords. The Liberals had been up for election twice since then, and had been sustained each time, and the Veto Bill would have to pass in time. The speaker said he was glad to know that the churches were doing their part. He had a number of resolutions, some of which he read, from churches which had passed them in the hope of aiding in the social evolution.

Rev. Dr. Clifford paid great tribute to Hon. Lloyd George, who was also a friend of social evolution. He mentioned some of the clauses in the different budgets of Lloyd George, and the good points in them, such as the providing for the poor, insurance against invalidism, the bill concerning the problem of the unemployed and an equal and fair adjustment of taxes. These were but the beginning of better things.

UNIVERSAL PEACE

"Another thing we are working and toiling for," said Dr. Clifford is "Universal Peace." The great mass of the people had come to the conclusion that nothing was more disastrous than war. Nothing cheered him more than that the people, in New York and other big cities of the United States who are devoting themselves to trade, were the apostles of and arbitrators for Universal Peace. His mission to this country was partly as a delegate to discuss methods of arriving at a way of securing world-wide peace.

Rev. Dr. Clifford also referred to Gladstone, the greatest statesman the world ever had. The magnificent monument was not erected to him for his scholarship, but because of his goodness to the poor. Brotherly sympathy, large heartedness, fellowship with God and courage, made a man.

The speaker urged the young people to live nobly. He said, "Young people conquer where you are, in your home in your church or in your place of business."

In a few well-chosen sentences, Rev. Isaac Couch moved a vote of thanks to Rev. Dr. Clifford. Rev H. J. Keith in seconding the motion said he was lost in the personality and speech of the visitor. He would like to ask him the secret of his activity and longevity.

Dr. Clifford in his reply said his theory was "Activity is Longevity." A man is old when he cannot longer adapt himself to new circumstances.

At the conclusion of the speeches, Rev J. R. Webb said he wished to thank Hon J. R. Stratton for providing the Opera House for the meeting and for his munificence at the laying of the corner stone of the Murray St., Baptist church in the afternoon.

RECKLESS AUTOISTS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—The Toronto people are up in arms against motor recklessness. These insane reckless persons are to be found in Peterborough as well as elsewhere. They are a menace to the citizens as a whole, and those who visit the city. Let anyone dare run his horses along the streets at the same breakneck speed and he would be arrested at once. Then why permit the few who own motors to enjoy exceptional treatment, when life and limb are thereby placed in jeopardy? It is said, "give a beggar a horse and he will ride to the D——l." Some of these people have a little money — some very little—and many of them with nothing else but an insane desire to show off as they think, pull the throttle and "let her go Gallagher." With the apathy of our council and police in enforcing the health act where health and life are at stake what better can we expect from them when the same dangers beset us from the break-neck speed of an unrestrained motorist?

Yours, etc.,
SAFETY.

WHERE DID THE VOTES COME FROM

East Peterboro Convention and Pugsleyism at Home

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—The pot seems to be still boiling in East Peterborough and apparently a first class row of some dimensions is being projected by the result of the recent convention. There is no possible getting away from the fact that the result of ill-gotten gains soon brings retribution upon the shoulders of the wrong-doers.

Some of the best ammunition for the next campaign will be for Mr. Kerr's friends to explain where the seventeen votes came from, or in other words, how to extract two hundred and two votes from a ballot box containing only one hundred ad eighty-five, possible. It is said that one of the peculiar features of the case is, that a certain little band of Mr. Kerr's friends were in charge of the ballot box and acted as scrutineers. This may explain why it was necessary for the absent to vote with only one hundred and twenty delegates present.

In your editorial the other evening you suggested that Mr. Kerr was a young man and that his experience with politics was not very extensive. This may be true, and if he has not a wide experience, apparently some of his friends have, for the result of the convention was certainly the result of some master mind. Pugsleyism and all that it implies seem to be existing near home.

I feel that it is safe for me to prophesy that a house built upon the sands cannot stand, so we expect very likely that Mr. Sexsmith will have a speech in Parliament placed in the records of the American Congress again.

I would like to hear some of the views of the prominent Conservatives of East Peterborough, because if the campaign commences in September, it is well to keep in touch with local conditions and not forget our duties.

Mr. Kerr, I understand, intimated that he would stand and hold his nomination. If he does this, he is one of the best arguments we will ever have to use during the election, and although I am not superstitious, yet I believe that where a man receives a benefit to which he is not properly entitled, it generally comes back to him that he loses the whole advantage of it very shortly.

Yours truly,
VOTER.

Troops Lined the Route.

Madrid, June 30.—The Eucharistic Congress closed yesterday with a long and brilliant procession through the principal thoroughfares, which were lined with cordons of troops, because of rumors that there might be clashes between the paraders and the Republicans.

The procession marched from St. Jerome Church to the Royal Palace, where, in the presence of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, Cardinal Aguirre pronounced the benediction.

The organizers of the demonstration had requested those who took part to maintain absolute silence, so as not to afford opportunity for a hostile demonstration.

The Republican newspapers last evening call attention to the tolerance exhibited toward the Catholics, and demand that the same righs be granted them on the occasion of their open air assemblages.

For Consumptives.

Toronto, June 30.—The treasurer of the National Sanitarium Association has received a bequest of $100 from the estate of G. H. Griffin of Sarnia for the benefit of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Canada In Seventh Place.

London, June 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Canada won seventh place in the cadet teams' rifle competition at Bisley, scoring 27 against the Australian winners' 40.

Mann and Mackenzie Home-Bound.

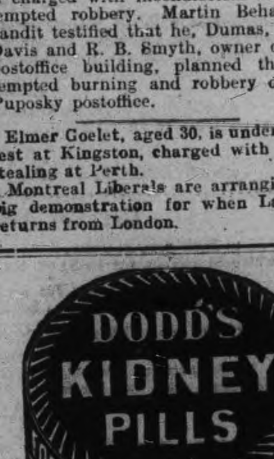
Montreal, June 30.—Sir Donald Mann, vice-president of the C.N.R., and Col. A. D. Davidson, land commissioner for the company, are due to arrive in New York on the Mauretania to-day. Sir William Mackenzie, president of the company, left England Wednesday on the Royal Edward, and is due at Montreal next Wednesday.

Mayor a Firebug?

Bemideji, Minn., June 30.—The trial of Dr. D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, opened here yesterday. Dumas is charged with incendiarism and attempted robbery. Martin Behan, a bandit testified that he, Dumas, Mike Davis and R. B. Smyth, owner of the postoffice building, planned the attempted burning and robbery of the Puposky postoffice.

Elmer Goelet, aged 30, is under arrest at Kingston, charged with horse stealing at Perth.

Montreal Liberals are arranging a big demonstration for when Laurier returns from London.



CANADIAN MINERALS

The Output in the Various Products Has Grown Rapidly

That the growth of the mineral industry of Canada has been rapid is shown by the statistics for the last two decades. The values of the output in 1890 was $16,763,358; ten years later, in 1900, it was nearly four times as great, amounting to $64,429,983. In 1910 the value exceeded $105,000,000. Last year's output represents a production per capita of about $14. [illegible] value of nearly $[illegible]. The following table, taken from a publication of the Dominion Department of Mines, gives the relative standing of the provinces as producers of minerals:

Province.	Value.	Per cent. of total
Nova Scotia	$14,054,534	13.38
New Brunswick	585,891	0.56
Quebec	8,193,273	7.80
Ontario	43,017,026	40.95
Manitoba	1,470,776	1.40
Saskatchewan	557,806	0.53
Alberta	7,876,458	7.50
British Columbia	24,547,817	23.37
Yukon	4,737,375	4.51
	$105,040,950	100.00

The iron and steel industry has shown a rapid growth. The value of the pig-iron production in Canada last year was over $11,000,000, showing an incrtase over 1909 of one and two-thirds million dollars.

A characteristic of our mineral industry is that of uniqueness in some of the products. Sudbury now produces 65 or 70 per cent. of the world's consumption of the metal nickel, and has only one competitor as a producer of this somewhat rare material.

Cobalt is a metal with properties much like those of nickel. Canada now absolutely controls the cobalt market. The Cobalt camp is not only the greatest producer of silver in the world, but it also leads in the production of cobalt and arsenic, and is the third largest producer of nickel, being surpassed only by Sudbury and the French colony of New Caledonia.

TRADE IN VEHICLES

Increase in Business in Automobiles, Wagons, Buggies and Carriages

It has been estimated that for the year 1911 Canadian workmen will build in the neighborhood of 100,000 vehicles for the Canadian market, and from 8,000 to 10,000 for export. The principal export trade is with South Africa, Argentine Republic, Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain and the United States. The following are the figures of the import and export trade during the past three years:

Imports	1908.	1909.	1910.
Automobiles	$990,343	$589,240	$1,816,164
Farm Wagons	229,589	162,930	268,740
Buggies and Carriages	126,461	82,652	84,930

Exports	1908.	1909.	1910.
Automobiles	$320,708	$450,127	$627,469
Farm Wagons	8,894	8,396	11,119
Buggies and Carriages	48,441	55,185	61,345

OUR FOREST AREAS

Amount of Saw Timber and Pulpwood Estimated at 1,100 Million Cords

The forest area of Canada has been so variously estimated by experts that the ordinary layman has difficulty in obtaining anything approaching accurate information. Bulletin No. 9 of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, published a few months ago, says: "The original timbered area, omitting semi-treeless lands, was approximately 1,900,000 square miles; 98,000 square miles have been cleared for settlement, and 100,000 square miles have been cut over by lumbermen, leaving a timbered area yet untouched of 1,702,000 square miles. Assuming the average of 3,000 feet per square acre, there should yet remain 3,270,000,000,000 feet of timber in Canada at a very conservative estimate. On the contrary, the highest estimate that has been made, that given by the Conservation Commission, places the amount of saw timber and pulpwood in Canada at 494,600 million feet, and 1,100 million cords respectively."

QUEEN MARY'S IDEAS ON DRESS

Helen Macdonald Writes of Her Majesty's Personal Tastes in the Matter of Costumes

It is just a little amusing, to those who happen to know the real facts of the case, to listen to the wiseacres who discuss her Majesty Queen Mary, and her influence on the world of [illegible], says [illegible] Chat. Their general opinion seems to be that though her well-known preference for materials of British manufacture will help our trade in tha direction, she is too fond of purely sensible dress of plain, tailor-made clothes, to become a great authority on what should be worn, or to influence to any great extent the cult of beautiful clothes.

Well, as Mr. Asquith would doubtless say were he asked, "Wait and see!"

A Queen is always—or should be—in matters of fashion a law to herself but neverthtless she has a duty to perform, a great dignity to maintain. No one knows this better than Queen Mary, who has travelled more widely and got into closer touch with her subjects all over the world than any sovereign who has yet been privileged to reign.

When her Majesty was Princess of Wales, she allowed herself in many ways to be completely eclipsed that the glory of the Queen might be greater; and now that she herself is Queen, the same exquisite sense of propriety which relegated her to the background in the old days will cause her to take her proper place in the world's social life.

Undoubtedly she likes magnificent materials, rich brocades and heavy satins—stuffs, in fact, befitting her royal rank; to these she allies the most beautiful laces her Empire can give her, and embroidery in wonderful coloring and bold design. Now that the period of mouring is over, it will be found that her Majesty understands well how to dress as befits the dignity of her great position.

The Queen's collection of furs is one of the most wonderful in the world. Queen Mary adores fur; in fact, there is a tale to the effect that once when King George was asked what he thought she would wear on a certain yachting trip, he replied, laughing: "Oh, I don't know at all, but I expect it will be something with fur on it!"

Jewels and Lace

Then her jewels. True, she is said not to be particularly fond of them, but those she wears are magnificent. Almost every evening she wears the splendid pearl necklace that was given her on her marriage by the ladies of England, or the diamond necklace that Queen Victoria clasped round her neck when she went to tell the Queen of her engagement to the Duke of York.

Her afternoon gowns, simple as they appear, are nearly always designed with the bodice adorned with old lace and delicate embroidery, the most beautiful of backgrounds for a few fine stones.

The Queen's Gloves

So we see that her Majesty chooses to wear fine furs, fine lace, fine jewels, and fine materials, as the Queen of such an Empire should wear; and one other pronounced taste of hers is her love of delicate colors. She chooses, when possible, the softest, palest blues and greens and greys, which set off to perfection her fair hair and English coloring.

When the Queen Goes Shopping

When the Queen is about to order a new gown, one of her ladies-in-waiting writes to the manager of the firm she means to visit, and he is, of course, expected to be ready to receive her at the time and day named. Needless to say, her Majesty is always received in a private room, and firms that are assured of her patronage also keep for her use a private entrance, although this is never insisted upon.

Living models wear the latest mode for the Queen's inspection, but she never orders an exact copy.

She is most determined as to what she wants, and when she has finally decided on a gown, her directions are taken down in shorthand and read over to her. One fitting has to do, her Majesty cannot spare the time for more, so naturally the greatest pains are taken to ensure that all measurements are correct. She is fitted wherever she may happen to be, usually at Marlborough House.

The Queen is much more economical than many of her Society subjects, who only wear a frock once or twice.

"Life" of a Gown

The royal gowns are worn about a dozen times before they are discarded, and then what happens to them depends on the style of gown; sometimes they are given to the wardrobe maids, sometimes they are sold and the proceeds given to charity. When frocks are sold that have been worn by royalty, the dress agent has to enter into an agreement not to sell them again to be worn in England.

Once Queen Alexandra, at a smart Society wedding, met one of her discarded gowns face to face, and she was so furious that the rule was made.

When her Majesty travels, her maids are given a list of the gowns required, and they are packed with all their accessories in long trunks, and the maid responsible for the packing has to sign the list, and then woe betide her if she has forgotten the gloves or fan for a particular gown that her Majesty may require.

Her Majesty would never countenance an extreme and ugly fashion, but the same solid good sense that will lead her to dress in accordance with her position will lead her to encourage others to dress as befits theirs. The woman who honestly follows her example will be as careful as she was not to encroach on another's province, and will make a study of the art of dressing, not only within one's means, but also according to one's circumstances.

The Cockshutt Plow Co., of Brantford will increase the plant and put on 200 more employees.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

CANADIAN ELEVATORS

Enormous Storage Capacity in the Various Parts of the Dominion

Western Canada has a total elevator capacity of 84,927,700 bushels. Ten years ago the Province of Manitoba had 427 of these houses and 69 flat warehouses located at 180 railway stations, and having a combined capacity of 12,255,000 bushels, while to-day that province has 707 elevators at 329 stations and with a capacity of 28,813,800 bushels. Again ten years ago the Northwest Territories had 111 elevators and 18 warehouses at 60 stations and with a capacity of 3,154,000 bushels, while Saskatchewan has 904 elevators at 374 stations, with a capacity of 26,465,000 bushels, and Alberta 249 elevators at 130 stations, with a capacity of 8,764,000 bushels. The flat warehouses have in the meantime almost disappeared. Besides this elevator accommodation in the Prairie Provinces, British Columbia has elevators with a capacity of 444,000 bushels, and good prospects of large terminals at Vancouver for the transshipment of grain to ocean-going vessels. Other western capacity includes the mill elevators between Winnipeg

OUR FLOUR MILLS

Canadian Plants Have a Daily Capacity of 100,000 Barrels

The flour milling industry of Canada is one of the oldest and most important in the country. In point of age it is probably the senior industry, the first mill of which there is any record having been established at Annapolis, Nova Scotia, in 1607. From this small beginning the trade has grown until it now represents an investment of nearly $35,000,000 and an annual turnover of $65,000,000 to $70,000,000 worth of flour and feed.

The following table, compiled by The Northwestern Miller of Minneapolis, shows the present total milling capacity daily of the Dominion by provinces:

THE ABATTOIR TRADE

Big Increase in the Investments in Slaughtering Plants

No accurate figures are available of the growth of the abattoir trade in Canada, but it is safe to say that in ten years at Toronto slaughtering has increased in cattle from about 30,000 to 100,000, and in sheep from about 25,000 to 120,000, while the investment in plants has grown from about $200,000 to considerably more than one million dollars. In Western Canada the cattle trade has developed entirely independently of the East. There the movement of cattle is in two directions—west to British Columbia, through Calgary and Edmonton, and east to Manitoba, Ontario, and Great Britain through Winnipeg. The former is, of course, an entirely local trade, but owing to the rapid development of British Columbia it has reached very important proportions. At Calgary and Edmonton are slaughtered probably 40,000 cattle per year.

Some History About Typewriters Modern and Ancient

CHAPTER FIVE

A Typewriter is not worth much without an efficient operator.

IT is a conservative estimate that 90% of typists in this country are trained on the Underwood.

AND the machine an operator learns is the machine she is going to use. The day is past when a typist can use several makes of typewriters equally well. Scientific operation made it impracticable.

IT is a matter of considerable difficulty to get a competent operator for any typewriter except an Underwood.

THROUGH our Employment Service we insure Underwood users against any difficulty of this kind.

LAKEVIEW NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Lake View, June 26.—There are a great many cattle pasturing on the public highway, and we would like to know if this could not be avoided as it is a great hindrance to the public driving along the road. If they are not looked after someone will have to make good for damages, because where night overtakes the cattle they lie right in the centre of the road, and it is a great inconvenience and danger to people driving.

Mr. Stanley Fry and Miss Viola Wood were the guests of Mr. Louis Fry over Sunday.

Miss Dot Whitfield, of Cavanville, was the guest of Miss Zuleum Perrin cornation day.

Mr. Reg Perrin and Mr. Ross Moncrief went to Keene last Saturday and brought home a sulkey plow. Mr. Perrins says it does not give satisfaction, so they have purchased a new one from Mr. Wm. Teft, general hardware dealer at Bailieboro.

Mr. John Duffie, who has been sick for a week, has recovered again.

Miss Jessie Lillico, of Toronto, is visiting friends around Lake View.

Mrs. Mordie Perrin, of Vancouver, and her daughter, Grace, are with us once again, and will be the guest of her father, Mr. Thomas Wood, for a couple of months.

We regret to know that our friend, Miss Mary Moncrief, is about to take a holiday, going to British Columbia for a year.

Mr. George Wood has been in Peterborough the past few days, the guest of his son, Dr H. A. Wood.

We are sorry to hear that Miss Annie Perrin has been very ill. We hope that her recovery will be made soon.

Mr. John Fletcher, was the guest of Captain Nurse, of Long Island, on Thursday of last week.

A number of our friends of Lake View took in the excursion to Healey Falls on the steamer Rainbow on Tuesday, the 20th, and they all came home well satisfied with the trip.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes, and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty; and the lashes are short and lifeless. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes, on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. For the Family

You work to provide for your wife and children. Your ambitions are for them. You intend to make up to your wife the self denials she has practised. You plan that the girls and the boys shall have their chance; you picture the future by your hope.

But have you had the forethought to realize that death does not halt for any man's hopes, or wait for any man's convenience? Have you made such provisions for the future that your family will receive an income adequate to their needs in case of your death?

By devoting a small part of your income to life insurance, your hopes will become realities to them.

A guaranteed income policy for $1,000 at age 35 costs less than 10c a day and will not lapse if you become unable to pay the premiums in consequence of total and permanent disability from accident or disease, and further if you wish it, the Company will begin immediately to pay the amount due under the policy, not necessarily waiting until it becomes a claim through death.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

WEAK STOMACHS MADE STRONG

Through Tonic Treatment With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

After all has been said about indigestion and stomach trouble, there is only one way to get a real cure. The stomach must be made strong enough to do its own work. Indigestion disappears when the stomach has been made strong enough to digest ordinary plain food. This strength can only be given the stomach through the tonic treatment supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, strengthens the nerves and thus enables the stomach to perform the duties which nature intended it should. In every neighborhood you can find people who have been cured of indigestion or other stomach troubles after a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this is the best proof that they are the one remedy to successfully do this. Mr B. D. McLean Sterling, N.S., says—"For a couple of years I suffered very much from indigestion with most of the accompanying painful symptoms. As a result I became very much run down, and as the medicines I tried did not give me any relief I grew melancholy and unhappy and felt as though my constitution was breaking down. Quite accidentally my attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them, and I am happy to say that they effected a complete cure, and made my stomach as strong as ever it had been. I am glad to say a few words in praise of the medicine that cured me, and I hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

Enrich the blood and you banish most of the every day ailments of humanity, and you can enrich it quickest and best by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TO CLEAN WALLPAPER

When the wallpaper becomes oiled looking, try cleaning it in the following way: Dip a clean duster in dry powdered borax, and rub it all over the soiled parts. This method is even more effective than bread.

Stains on Wallpaper

To take grease stains out of wallpaper, mix some pipeclay with water to the consistency of cream. Lay it on the grease or oil spot, and let it remain till the following day, when it can be easily removed with the back of a knife, or brushed with a soft brush.

Mildew

To remove mildew, mix soft soap with powdered starch, half as much salt, and juice of one lemon. Lay mixture on both sides of stain with a brush, and let it lay on grass for a night or two, when mildew will disappear.

CANADIAN ELEVATORS

Enormous Storage Capacity in the Various Parts of the Dominion

Western Canada has a total elevator capacity of 84,927,700 bushels. Ten years ago the Province of Manitoba had 427 of these houses and 69 flat warehouses located at 180 railway stations, and having a combined capacity of 12,255,000 bushels, while to-day that province has 707 elevators at 329 stations and with a capacity of 28,813,800 bushels. Again ten years ago the Northwest Territories had 111 elevators and 18 warehouses at 60 stations and with a capacity of 3,194,000 bushels, while Saskatchewan has 904 elevators at 374 stations, with a capacity of 26,465,000 bushels, and Alberta 249 elevators at 130 stations, with a capacity of 8,764,000 bushels. The flat warehouses have in the meantime almost disappeared. Besides this elevator accommodation in the Prairie Provinces, British Columbia has elevators with a capacity of 444,000 bushels, and good prospects of large terminals at Vancouver for the transshipment of grain to ocean-going vessels. Other western capacity includes the mill elevators between Winnipeg

OUR FLOUR MILLS

Canadian Plants Have a Daily Capacity of 100,000 Barrels

The flour milling industry of Canada is one of the oldest and most important in the country. In point of age it is probably the senior industry, the first mill of which there is any record having been established at Annapolis, Nova Scotia, in 1607. From this small beginning the trade has grown until it now represents an investment of nearly $35,000,000 and an annual turnover of $65,000,000 to $70,000,000 worth of flour and feed.

The following table, compiled by The Northwestern Miller of Minneapolis, shows the present total milling capacity daily of the Dominion by provinces:

	Barrels.
Maritime Provinces ...	3,000
Quebec ...	11,000
Ontario ...	56,000

THE ABATTOIR TRADE

Big Increase in the Investments in Slaughtering Plants

No accurate figures are available of the growth of the abattoir trade in Canada, but it is safe to say that in ten years at Toronto slaughtering has increased in cattle from about 30,000 to 100,000, and in sheep from about 25,000 to 120,000, while the investment in plants has grown from about $200,000 to considerably more than one million dollars. In Western Canada the cattle trade has developed entirely independently of the East. There the movement of cattle is in two directions—west to British Columbia, through Calgary and Edmonton, and east to Manitoba, Ontario, and Great Britain through Winnipeg. The former is, of course, an entirely local trade, but owing to the rapid development of British Columbia it has reached very important proportions. At Calgary and Edmonton are slaughtered probably 40,000 cattle per year.

ATHLETIC SUPPLIES

Large Number of Canadians Employed in Making Sporting Goods

The manufacture of athletic supplies occupies the attention of a large number of workmen in Canada. There is, for instance, the making of canoes, which has made Peterborough famous, with its three large factories, and there are other factories in Fredericton, Gravenhurst, Penetanguishene, Lakefield and Toronto. Snowshoes are made in Quebec alone, but six factories in various parts of that province are engaged in their manufacture; tennis racquets are made at Niagara Falls; the English game of cricket still has sufficient hold on the affections of Canadians to support a factory which makes cricket bats—as an adjunct to the manufacture of baseball bats. The industry of sporting goods manufactures has ramifications which connect it up with almost every other industry in the country.

THE PORCUPINE CAMP

An Area of 216 Square Miles Has Been Staked

During the past year the Porcupine mining camp has come into prominence. Practically six whole townships have been staked out and are held as claims. This is an area of 216 square miles. The townships staked out are: Tisdale, Mountjoy, Whitney, Ogden, Deloro and Shaw. Gold showings have been found in all these districts but none of them have attracted the attention or justified the excitement as much as the discoveries in the vicinity of the Dome, the vicinity of Hollinger, the Rea Mines property and the northeasterly portion of the same township—Tisdale.

Address and Umbrella From Staff and Students

Is Leaving Peterboro Business College for Toronto

Mr. J. A. McKone, of the Peterborough Business College, was to-day presented with a gold-headed umbrella and address from the students and teachers of the college. Mr. McKone is leaving for Toronto, where he will be identified with Mr. W. H. Shaw, of the Central College, and his successor here will be Mr. E. E. The presentation to Mr. McKone was made by Miss McMartin, while Mr. Douglas read the following address:

Dear Mr. McKone,—In the event of your much regretted departure from the Peterborough Business College, we, the teachers and students of the above mentioned college, desire to show in some little measure our deep appreciation of your zeal for the welfare of the college and your efforts on its behalf.

The success of the graduates of this college has in no small measure been due to the conscientious and painstaking way in which you have fulfilled your duties as principal.

We, the present students, desire to express our deep regret at your departure, and our belief that in your removal from the city, Peterborough will lose an energetic citizen, and the college an excellent principal. Also to wish you and yours every success in the city in which you will reside.

Accept, therefore, this umbrella as a slight token of our remembrance.

Signed on behalf of the students and teachers of the college.

PLEASANT TIME AT BRIDGENORTH

Presentation to Miss Carrie Crookshanks by League

Special Correspondence

Bridgenorth, June 27th.—A very pleasant evening was spent on Monday June 26. It was the regular Epworth League evening. Miss Martin, our esteemed teacher had the meeting in charge. It assumed a patriotic form. The room was beautifully decorated with flags and maple leaves. The junior league had the matter in charge, and gave some interesting historical date in reference to the Dominion. At the close, a beautiful ring set of pearls was given to Miss Carrie Crookshanks daughter of our retiring pastor, who gave a few parting counsels to the young. Mr. Grelend, our new pastor, was also present and spoke a few words. Mr. Crookshanks and family start immediately for their new home in Thomasbury, followed by good wishes of their many friends.

John Atkinson of Montreal lost his left leg under an engine at Brockville.

Kryptok lenses have distinctive advantages over all former near and far-sighted glasses, having no line or patch to suggest old sight or to confuse the eye. HOTTEST IN FIFTY YEARS

Yesterday Was a Sizzle That Wasn't Appreciated.

Nipissing Station Reported Heat of 109

Toronto, July 3.—Yesterday in Ontario was the hottest day on record. The Dominion meteorological records at Toronto go back to August 24, 1854, to find the next hottest day. The official reading of the thermometer then was 99.02 in the city. Yesterday about four o'clock a temperature of 101 in the shade was registered at the Meteorological Office on Bloor street.

The exceptional heat was general throughout Ontario, and in some parts of the eastern states. But in Quebec and the eastern provinces it was nothing out of the ordinary. Toronto's figure was passed by Stonecliff, a small station in the Nipissing district, which reported officially to the Meteorological Office, 109 degrees. At London 98 was registered, at Ottawa 92, at Montreal, Quebec and Halifax 88, whilst the hundred mark was reached at Canton, Ohio, and in the State of Missouri.

EARTH QUAKE AT FRISCO

Severest Since the Big One of 1906

San Francisco, July 3.—Two earthquake shocks, the heaviest since the big shake of 1906, and separated by only a few seconds, jarred the central portion of California and western Nevada on Saturday. The first sharp shock experienced at 2.01 o'clock, was followed in a few seconds by one of similar intensity, each lasting about five seconds. Only trivial damage has been reported from any section, but in San Francisco and other cities in the affected area, a panic seized upon crowds in stores and restaurants, and there was a pell-mell exodus from the large buildings.

One peculiar feature of the earthquake was that it did not appear to follow the old "fault" in the earth's crust, which has been the playground of trembles in the past, but extended from the seacoast eastward to the Sierras, including hitherto exempt mountain areas. It was felt to the northward of Sacramento in the Sacramento Valley, southward as far as Fresno, and to the east to Carson and Reno, Nev., the former place experiencing the heaviest shock in its history.

The mean time clock at the observatory of the University of California stopped for the first time since the great quake of five years ago.

The deep booming reverberation which usually marks disturbances of a widespread character, accompanied the first tremor. In San Francisco the groaning and cracking of the steel structures played a large part in frightening people.

Drowned While Boating.

Hamilton, July 3.—The national holiday here was marred by one sad fatality, when Mrs. Edward H. Shepherd, 95 Ontario avenue, was drowned at Burlington Beach at 4.20 Saturday afternoon. As the Turbinia steamed up to the canal from Toronto, the small boat in which Mrs. Shepherd and her son were sailing, just outside the piers, became unmanageable and drifted in front the steamer just as it was entering the canal. A collision between the two craft seemed in evitble and the unfortunate lady, doubtless thinking that an accident could not be averted, jumped from the boat and immediately sank beneath the waters of the lake. The helmsman of the Turbinia, however, reviewing the situation quickly, threw his wheel over and by a very narrow margin missed running down the small boat. Mr. Shepherd and the son were rescued from their still perilous position by a launch.

GERMANY WANTS SOME OF THE SPOILS OF WAR AT MOROCCO

Gunboat Hustles on the Job—Possible Partition of Morocco is Looked Forward To—Report of Landing at Morocco

Berlin, July 3.—Germany, in sending the gunboat Panther to Agadir and taking a claim in Southern Morocco in anticipation of the possible partition of the country, according to the general interpretation of the German press, will take its share in the Province of Sus with its rich copper and mineral deposits, its great agricultural possibilities and its equable climate, in which the whites can live and work, unless France and Spain withdraw from the present adventure and really respect the integrity of Morocco.

This is confirmed by the semi-official statement which appears in The Cologne Gazette, pointing out that France and Spain, under assurances of purely temporary and benevolent action, both landed troops and occupied territory in violation of the Algeciras Act. Germany, says the statement, is justified in taking steps to protect her interests. She has no intention of remaining permanently in Agadir, but will not leave that town before regular conditions are restored in Morocco.

This phrase evidently means until the retirement of the Franco-Spanish expeditions.

The Gazette further discusses the extent of German interests in the region and the prospects of the spread of disorders there on account of the attitude of the sultan and France toward the dismissed vizier, Sid Madani Glaui, whereby Germany subjects living in Morocco and others under the protection of Germany are endangered.

Special despatches from Tangier say that a German force has landed at Agadir. This is not confirmed, but it is stated here that it is likely that the phrase "for the present" in the official announcement of the despatch of the Panther implies that warships will be sent to Agadir later if such action is justified. The German Minister has informed the Moroccan Government that the Panther will remain as long as Germany considers it necessary.

FOREST FIRES WIPE OUT THE PLANTS AT PORCUPINE MINES

Forty Mile Wind sends Flame through Dome Extension Power Plant—A Thousand Men Fight the Rushing Flames.

Porcupine, Ont., July 3.—Forest fires driven by a forty-mile-an-hour wind have raged since yesterday morning, doing approximately one hundred thousand dollars' damage. The power plant and camps at Dome extension are destroyed, while fire now burns within one hundred rods of South Porcupine.

The Porcupine Centre townsite and Lakeview were swept over with the loss of several buildings, lumber for the railway station and a thousand cords of wood, flames also are sweeping through section of Whitney. Residents of Lakeview and Camp Six on the railway were rescued from the lake in boats.

It is by far the most disastrous forest fire in scope of the territory covered yet recorded in Porcupine and not until all the reports from outside districts are in will the full extent of the damage be known.

The flames started south of the West Dome, running across the body of the Dome property, threatening the new plant, as the fire brands fell like hail around the buildings. The wind changed slightly, driving the flames east to the Dome extension. One thousand men were out fighting back the flames, to no avail.

Losses are reported so far as follows: Dome Extension camps and power plant, transmission line, poles without the wire, Warner lighting, shot drill, T. & N.O. lumber for station at Lakeview, Joy sawmill plant, John Crawford dwellings and other buildings on Lakeview, Remsbottom and Edwards on Lakeview, dozen owners of small cabins.

The fire is still burning.

BORDEN NOW AT PRINCE ALBERT

Prince Albert, Sask., July 3.—Mr. R. L. Borden reached the most northerly point on his tour on Saturday night, at Prince Albert. This city gave him an enthusiastic reception. It has a Conservative representative in the Provincial Legislature, though represented at Ottawa by a Liberal, and the meeting was highly sympathetic in tone. It numbered about 800. A striking group of banners was displayed on the walls of the arena. One of these was in black, and read: "Reciprocity, Retrogression, Ruin"; another, in red, white and blue, declared "The West Appreciates Borden's Frankness."

No Ferry.

Kingston, July 3.—Wolfe Island is having trouble in regard to its ferry. Its own steamer is being enlarged and may not be ready for another month. The Island Council secured a gasoline yacht and scow and brought a crowd of islanders across the harbor to Kingston market. The customs officials heard about it and pounced upon the owner of the yacht and scow, threatening him with prosecution for carrying passenger without a license. Finally a river steamer which was in port was secured for the rest of the day.

Prostrated by Heat.

Toronto, July 3.—Shortly before 12 o'clock last night Della E. Hookway, aged 14, an employe of the T. Eaton Co., was brought into the General Hospital, from her rooming house at 40 Hamilton street, in the police ambulance prostrated from the heat. She had been in a weak condition all day, and was very low when taken to the hospital, but later rested comfortably.

DRUGGIST IS SHOT IN AUTO

Serious Affray at Bridge End Near Cornwall.

Reeve of Township Causes Excitement—Under Arrest.

Cornwall, July 3.—The little village of Bridge End, a short distance north of Lancaster, was greatly stirred about five o'clock on Satuday afternoon by a shooting affray in which W. Shaw, a druggist of Carp, was shot in the left lung by Farquhar McRae, an aged resident of the Township of Lancaster, who is reeve of that township and represents the township in the County Council.

Dr. McGee of Carp, accompanied by Wm. Shaw, his druggist, and a brother of Dr. McGee, went to Bridge End on Saturday afternoon to the residence of D. C. McRae, father-in-law of Dr. McGee, where Mrs. McGee and child were supposed to be staying. The doctor was informed that they were not there, and an altercation followed, in which guns and an axe were produced by the McRaes. The chauffeur, fearing trouble, pulled the auto up the road.

The auto party pulled away, and as they got off Farquahar McRae got down on his knee, took aim and fired, the ball going through the back of the seat and into the back of Shaw, entered he lung. Dr. McGee took Shaw to Cornwall on the night train, and he was taken to the General Hospital. The bullet has not yet been removed from the lung, and internal hemorrhage is feared.

A warrant was at once taken out, and Chief of Police Smith of Cornwall went down on the early train on Sunday and brought Farquhar McRae to the Cornwall jail, where he will be detained pending the result of Shaw's injuries.

Shaw made an ante mortem statement at the hospital, believing he was about to die, in which he identified Farquhar McRae as the man who fired the shot. The affair has caused a sensation, as the parties connected with the affair are all prominent and respectable people.

DEATH WAS VERY SUDDEN

S. J. Fox M.P.P. for West Victoria Passed Away

Special to the Review.

Lindsay, July 3.—S. J. Fox, M.P.P., for West Victoria, died here this morning quite suddenly. Mr. Fox was well-known and highly esteemed, and his death came as quite a shock to his friends.

Drowned While Bathing.

Toronto, July 3.—"There's the cemetery, boys, if any of us are drowned they won't have far to take us," shouted James Russell, as he and a band of picnickers from the Earlscourt Methodist Church entered Eldorado Park, Brampton, early on the afternoon of Dominion Day. Two hours later his body was dragged from the lake, after having been submerged for nearly half an hour.

Russell was a young man of twenty years, and lived with his widowed mother at 45 Goodwood avenue, Earlscourt. Immediately after a hearty picnickers' lunch had been eaten, he and several other of the young men of the party made for the lake.

Old-Time Celebration.

Hespeler, July 3.—An old Dominion Day celebration was held here yesterday. It was a big day of sports. The famous Preston Silver Band was in attendance. The morning sports consisted of calithumpian parade. Main street was crowded with people. After the parade, there were canoe races on the dam.

BIG JOCKEY CLUB STANDS AT HAMILTON GO UP IN SMOKE

Stands That Cost $125,000 is Burned—Imcendiarism is Suspected in this Case.

Hamilton, July 3.—The $125,000 grand stand of the Hamilton Jockey Club, along with the judge's stand and railway platform, was destroyed by fire early Saturday morning.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but incendiarism is suspected. P. Maloney, superintendent of the Jockey Club grounds, whose residence adjoins the grand-stand, retired at two o'clock Saturday morning and at that time there was no sign of fire. About half an hour later he was awakened by the barking of his dog and the crackling of flames. Rushing out of his house he behild the mid-section of the stand in flames. He immediately attempted to notify the fire department, but could get no response from the telephone operator for some time. As soon as telephone communication was established the Sandford avenue fire brigade responded to the alarm, and reached the scene in a few minutes. Secretary Louden was also notified and lost no time in getting out.

Although the firemen, Secretary Louden and Supt. Maloney all worked heroically to subdue the flames it was soon apparent that nothing could be done to save any part of the grand-stand and the attention of the fire-fighters was then concentrated on Supt. Maloney's residence and the betting ring, both of which buildings were seriously threatened. Heavy streams of water were turned on these structures and both escaped any serious damage, although the superintendent's house was severely scorched.

Brant County Farmer Dies.

Brantford, July 3.—After living all his life near a farm where he was born 75 years ago, Thomas Brooks, one of the best known farmers in Brant County, died at his home on Mount Pleasant road, near this city, Saturday after a short illness. A widow and four sons survive. He was prominent in politics, being a Liberal, a fine speaker and an advocate of tariff reduction.

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline Is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

NERVILINE FOR MAN OR BEAST

The Daily Review

MONDAY, JULY 3, 1911.

THE MERGER ERA

According to the report of a special government commissioner, the United States steel corporation has $62,000,000 of watered stock in its makeup. It is simply a holding company—that is, it holds the stock of its constituent companies—and the total capitalization, including bonds, is $1,400,000,000. It is found by the investigating bureau that in 1901 the property value of the corporation was about $700,000,000. The other $700,000,000 represents increased earning power due to elimination of competition, concentrated ownership of the basic natural resources of the steel trade, and in some degree, integration efficiency.

The history of the great corporation is on a parallel in many ways with the history of the Standard Oil Company, and with the great food combinations. The difficulty of reaching the men responsible for infraction of the law by these great corporations, in there be infraction, is manifest, and the hope of ever efficiently controlling them by legislation is rather dim.

Canada should take warning, as far as she is able, from the lesson the United States has too severely been taught. While yet there is time, the Canadian parliament should give heed to the era of merging and the combinistic tendency to which we are subject.

The welfare of the masses of the people is bound up in the question. Mr. Borden has a plank in his western platform that deals with this question. Mr Borden would have an independent non-partisan commission of able men to investigate and keep on investigating conditions of trade, sources of supply and demand, prices for similar products in other countries, and to generally tabulate information of real value on which an estimate may be based as to whether the great trade combinations are working injuriously to the country's best interests.

The appointing of the tariff commission does not mean that protection will be wiped out. It would be impossible to wipe out protection and preserve the financial integrity of the country. But much might be done in scaling and re-adjusting the tariff according to the peculiar conditions of each line of trade. It is commonly accepted now, as a fact, that the cement and harvesting implement manufacturers are getting protection that is much stiffer than is at all necessary. Let Canada take some warning from the history of the United States, and be wise in time.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There's no doubt about it. Rev. Dr. Clifford is a red hot Grit, one of the old style uns.

As was pointed out in the Review on Friday by a writer, to get 202 votes out of a possible 185, is going some. Mr. Kerr may not be so much of a novice at arranging voting as he seems.

Last year $10,000,000 worth of horses were brought into Western Canada from the United States. Under reciprocity—with the duty off—how much would the west import from across the border? Will R. H. Leary vote for a reciprocity candidate?

The parish priest of Rockland announced recently that the French-speaking Liberals of his parish would neither support Laurier or the candidate, Charles Murphy, in the election. This is rather serious! If the Rev. father says so, no one will dispute the fact that he can deliver the goods.

It is rumored that Sir William Mackenzie is securing control of the Ontario Power Company, the big American concern from which the Hydro-electric commission gets its power. With the source of production in the hands of the enemy, the commission would be in a nice situation, the company being a foreign corporation, and as such not under the jurisdiction of Ontario.

Mr. Kerr quoted poetry in his nomination address to the Liberal farmers at Norwood. That's the idea! Mr. Kerr should be in demand by the literary societies of the East Peterborough churches, by the Ladies' Aids, Christian Endeavors, Charmed Circles, etc., to give some of his "pomes." Might we offer a little suggestion for adaptation, by Mr. Kerr in one of these charming social events;

Mary had a little pact
'Twas wondrous to behold,
All she did was touch it,
It promptly turned to gold.

Train Kills Baby Girl.

Hamilton, July 3.—Sadie Faenberg, the two-year-old daughter of Jewish immigrants, was instantly killed at the Stuart street station of the G.T.R. here about nine o'clock Saturday morning.

The parents, with the little grl and another child, were on their way from Newark, N.J., to Winnipeg, where they were to make their future home. The family were changing cars, and while boarding the Toronto train, just as the engine was being connected, the child lost her footing and fell from the steps underneath the wheels, where she was ground to death before she could be rescued.

G.T.R. Constable Darroch, on hearing screams, ran to the scene of the accident and pulled the tot from under the train, but life was then extinct.

The body was taken to the city morgue, and an inquest was opened by Coroner Anderson at four o'clock in the afternoon and adjourned until next week.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucuous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood, and mucous surfaces of the system. THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—Wheat—Strength in America, together with small tenders on contract, caused a steady opening, with prices ¼d higher. There was some tendency to take profits. Later, however, shorts covered, and the decline was recovered on decrease in local stocks and less favorable reports from Russia. At the close the undertone was firm, ¼d higher than yesterday, with strength in coarse grain and less favorable reports from India regarding dryness.

Corn—After opening ¼d higher, further advanced ¼d to ½d, with the strength in July. Dryness in Russia has reduced offers there, and the continued strength in America has caused extreme nervousness among shorts.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Hot weather today raised the price of every staple on the exchange. The wheat market in particular was affected by apprehensions regarding what might happen to the growing spring crop in the northwest. In consequence closing figures were 1-8c to 1-4c to 5-8c higher than last night. Corn made a net gain of 1-8c to 7-8c to 1c; oats, 1-4c to 1-2c, and hog products 2 1-2c to 22 1-2c.

Drowned In Surf.

Old Orchard, Me., July 3.—W. G. Marshall, a merchant of Montreal, took his first ocean plunge in twenty years on Saturday, and it cost him his life. Another bather, N. Hillary, a Toronto banker, nearly lost his life in an attempt to rescue Marshall. Mr. Hillary was bathing with a score of others when he noticed a man, who later proved to be Marshall, floating some distance from shore. After watching him a moment, Hillary made up his mind that something was wrong, and swimming to the man's side found him unconscious. In trying to reach shore with his burden, Hillary became exhausted and but for prompt assistance from his companions, would have drowned. Marshall was dead when a boat reached the two. It is supposed that death was due to heart disease.

The dead man was about 50 years old, and was junior member of the firm of Wm. Marshall & Sons, wholesale dealers in hay and grain at Montreal. His wife and two children were stopping with him at an hotel here.

Mr. Hillary is assistant general manager of the Traders' Bank of Canada, at Toronto, and one of the most popular officers of the institution.

Laurier Sails for Home.

London, July 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Frederick Borden and Hon. L. P. Brodeur left Saturday for Canada, Lord Strathcona, representatives of the Colonial Office and a number of official and private friends saw the party off.

Liverpool, July 3.—The Empress of Britain, of the C.P.R., with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, and the Canadian coronation troops aboard, sailed from here during Saturday night. The report that the Cunarder Carmania sailed for the United States on Saturday proved to be incorrect. The Carmania was not able to get together a crew, but many succeeded in doing so last night. The American liner St. Louis, which sailed Saturday from here, will call at Queenstown to take the Carmania's mail.

Two incendiary fires were discovered yesterday in the staterooms of the steamship Canada of the British and North American Steam Navigation Co., which runs to Montreal. The flames were extinguished, however, without damage.

Old Man Charged With Murder.

Vancouver, B.C., July 3.—John G. Taylor, a resident of this city for the past eighteen years, and now in his 76th year, a veteran of the civil war, existing chiefly on his monthly pension, is in police custody, facing the charge of murder. The dead man is Eli McCutcheson, a logger thirty years of age, unmarried.

According to the police the tragedy followed a row in a shack in the east end of the city, in which Taylor lived alone. McCutcheon and several companions had visited the old man late in the afternoon. There was not, it is said, any drinking, but a dispute arose, ending in Taylor ordering all the men to leave. McCutcheon declined, and Taylor is said to have instantly seized an old rifle, the bullet entering McCutcheon's thigh. All vanished, leaving McCutcheon to bleed to death.

Make It Hot for Churchill.

Glasgow, July 3.—A great demonstration of seamen and dockers was held yesterday. The men marched through the streets with bands of music. J. Havelock Wilson, grand secretary of the Seamen's Union, who made a speech, said they proposed to make it hot for Home Secretary Churchill in the House of Commons, because a number of ships were allowed to sail without qualified crews, thus endangering the lives of the passengers.

He threatened that if the owners do not come to time, the strike will spread to every port in Europe.

"That's mother's ring," she said. "Please help me to bring some chairs from the parlor. We can't go there because everything's covered up and in disorder. They're papering the room. I shouldn't wonder if Captain Williams were with them. He takes mamma and Beth out in his new auto and has brought them around here quite frequently of late."

"Does he ever take you for a ride?"

"He asks me to go, but I won't."

"Why not?"

"That's just what I can't tell. There is something about the man that is repulsive—he looks at me so strangely. And then I know just how he has treated Joe, and"—

"And what?"

"I don't like him—that's all."

"That's enough, it seems to me. After all, I guess he figures all to the bad with women—decent women."

"Mamma and Beth like him."

"Well, your mother never did shine up to me more'n the law allowed, and as for Beth, she's a nice enough girl, but her education hurts her, I think."

"Hush! Here they are."

And the little woman hurried into the hall to open the door for them.

CHAPTER V.

WHEN broad minded Mrs. Brooks observed to her husband that she did not understand her mother any more than her mother understood her she had expressed exactly the mental relation in which they stood toward each other. Mrs. Harris was one of those women occasionally to be met with who continue to treat their grownup sons, and especially their grownup daughters, as children and feel it incumbent upon them—nay, consider it their bounden duty—to interfere with advice and comment in the natural progress of domestic sophistication of their young wedded offspring. Moreover, she was a woman wholly lacking in tact and depth of mind and possessed to an exaggerated degree that "quicksand of reason," vanity.

Mrs. Harris and Miss Beth Harris were out for a ride with Captain Williams, who accompanied them, and all were in automobile tenue. Her mother and sister greeted Emma effusively. Their escort extended his hand, but Mrs. Brooks was too much occupied for once in responding to her parent's embraces to notice it. He stalked in with rude familiarity without removing his automobile cap, upon which he had pushed up his goggles and found himself face to face with Smith.

"Hello! You here?" he said by way of greeting, greatly surprised to see his superintendent there on that above all nights.

"Ya-as," replied Jimsy. "I'm here again."

"Ought to take a berth here," grunted his employer, looking round for the most comfortable chair and installing himself in it. "You're always around."

"Much as possible," admitted Smith tranquilly, remaining standing. "How do you find your new car?"

"Good enough. Cost $5,000—ought to be good—ought to be."

Mrs. Harris and Beth bustled in, throwing open their automobile coats and disclosing very handsome gowns that contrasted strangely with Emma's poor little cotton frock.

"Why, good evening, Jimsy!" cried Mrs. Harris. "Where's Joe?"

"Gone out for a walk, I guess," he answered. "Howdy, Beth?"

"Very well, thank you, Mr. Smith," responded that young person somewhat frigidly.

"Mr. Smith?" he echoed, looking at her curiously.

The girl raised her eyebrows and affected surprise.

"Isn't that right?" she inquired.

"Yes—Smith is the name," he replied. "It ain't that I've forgot it—no—only to remind you that the first one—Jimsy—ain't been changed."

"No, dearie; Jimsy wouldn't know what it meant to be mistered," observed Mrs. Harris with an intonation of disdain.

"Me neither," put in Williams, "but a man's got to get used to it."

"Have you got used to it, captain?" asked Emma.

"Yes and no. I never had it given to me until I came east—always used to be Cap'n Bill or something on that order—but with eastern airs and a bit of prosperity your old ways have got to change."

Mrs. Harris had been gazing about her deprecatingly. She wanted to know why they should stay in the dining-room. Emma explained that they had succeeded in inducing the janitor to have the sitting-room papered and that it was all upset.

"This ain't bad," commented Captain Williams. "It's real cozy, and you can see a woman's had a hand in the arrangement."

"But it's a little bit of a stuffy four roomed flat," objected Beth, turning

"Hello! You here?"

up her pretty nose. "Really, I should die in one."

"Well, Beth," remarked Smith, with his quiet drawl, "you never can tell. Maybe you will."

Beth made a grimace.

"I would, if I had to do my own work, washing dishes—ugh!"

"I don't see how Emma stands it," declared Mrs. Harris. "It's just drudgery!"

"Well, mother, please remember it's Emma who does stand it, after all," retorted that little woman patiently, "so please, please, don't you mind."

"I think it's a great little nook, Mrs. Brooks," opined Williams.

"Thank you, captain," she said gratefully.

"And fixed up nice and comfortable. Can't say as anything looks cheap."

"Thank you again. Perhaps it isn't."

"You know, captain, you ain't the only one who's found out the secret of making a dollar produce 500 cents," said Smith, with his whimsical smile.

"Has he done that?" inquired Mrs. Harris, affecting surprise and admiration.

"Figuratively speaking, I presume?" chimed in Beth primly.

"I always thought 500 was figuratively speaking," said Smith.

Captain Williams had produced his pipe, filled it and lighted it without asking permission.

"Smith says I'm close. I'm not!" he declared. "To me business is business. If I've got money nobody gave it to me. I earned what I earned, and then I made that earn more."

"You sure ain't given it no vacations, captain," commented his superintendent dryly.

"And that's right," affirmed Mrs. Harris with some heat. "I believe in men getting money. Mr. Harris was one of those soft hearted men who never made the best of his opportunities—always trying to be fair and square with other men, and what thanks did he get?"

"Mother, please!" remonstrated Emma.

"It's true," went on her parent. "If he hadn't been that way, Emma, do you suppose you'd be here doing your own work?"

"Mother, I insist—you must not"—

"Mother is perfectly right," interrupted Beth. "Emma, you don't deserve this kind of a life."

"But have I complained?" demanded Mrs. Brooks desperately. "Why do you say such things?"

"Because I've got myself to think of," snapped her mother. "You're wasting yourself—tied up to the house all the time—and everybody—all my friends know just how you're fixed. You're never invited anywhere any more."

"Completely forgotten," said Beth.

Brooks, who had let himself in silently and unobserved, stood in the hall irresolutely, watching them and listening to the conversation.

"Please don't," entreated Emma, greatly distressed. "It's my affair, and; besides, before people"—

"You might say the captain's almost one of the family since your father died," put in her mother. "I knew you should never have married Joe—that he couldn't take care of you the way he ought."

"It's too late now," said Beth, shrugging her shoulders. "Captain, don't you think Emma should have more?"

"Well, Mrs. Brooks must know her own mind," he replied. "Your father when he worked for me always had a way of his own. But it does seem as if she should at least have a hired girl and more than four rooms to a flat, but"—

Brooks strode into the room, livid with passion, goaded to a white heat of fury, reckless of everything, murder in his heart, and, hurling his hat to the floor, faced the company.

"It does seem so, does it?" he fairly hissed, going over to his employer. "I'm glad you think so. And why hasn't she? Will you tell me that? Speak! Will you tell me that? I'll tell you why, you slave driver!"

Mrs. Harris and Beth sat speechless and pale, but Smith rose.

"Steady, Joe, boy!" he admonished.

Emma had hurried to her husband and grasped his arm.

"Oh, Joe, don't!" she implored. "You don't"—

He flung her roughly from him.

"Let me alone!" he shouted and turned to Williams again, quivering with rage. "Do you know why she hasn't?" he continued. "Well, I'll tell you all. It's because this man ain't on the square. He began by cheating and murdering niggers who worked for him aboard his rotten trading ships. Then, after he got through with the belaying pin, after he got his money, he picked up the salary list for a club, and he's murdered and wounded and maimed with that. You see my wife here? She's only one of hundreds, and she suffers. It is too bad she married me. It is too bad that she's got to do her own work. It is too bad that she's got to wash and scrub and sweat in the heat, but that man's to blame. If you gave me a fair share of what I produce, if you didn't grind down, oppress and pinch, she wouldn't have to. I've worked for you five years, hard, honest, and all the time you've been grinding me down, down, and thousands of others, thousands. You know, all of you know—my mother-in-law and smart sister-in-law know—you've piled up your money on the blood and sweat and misery of others. That's the kind of a man you are, and you might as well know it."

Captain Williams had listened to this denunciation at first in utter amazement. Then his shaggy eyebrows had knitted together, and his little eyes had narrowed to slits, while the blood had spread over his face in a deep glow through the veins that swelled out like cords on his neck and throat.

"There ain't no one ever said them things to me and got away with it," he thundered, clinching his fists and gathering all his tremendous strength as he rose to crush his accuser.

Mrs. Harris and Beth sprang up in great alarm, and at the captain's terrifying voice and his ferocious aspect Brooks shrank back. Smith stood impassive, but watching Williams, toward whom he had been edging.

Emma had stepped quickly between the captain and her husband.

Aldermen Sustained.

Montreal, June 29.—The case instituted by Henri Larin against the aldermanic members of the civic finance committee, who paid for Mayor Payette's trip to Paris in what was alleged to be an illegal manner, was decided yesterday by the judicial committee of the Privy Council, judgment being given in favor of the aldermen, with costs to the plaintiff.

Aldermen Lapointe, Lavalle and Robinson are the three in the council who had taken action against them. The case went through four Canadian courts, the Superior Court the Court of Appeal, the Court of Review, and finally the Supreme Court of Canada, where the aldermen were condemned. Now the Privy Council has reversed the decision of the highest Canadian tribunal.

Cocaine Merchant Fined.

Montreal, June 29.—A heavy sentence was yesterday passed upon Jos. Hudon by Recorder Weir. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $120 or six months on two charges of having and selling cocaine without a license.

Hudon was arrested Tuesday night by Constable Repper in a house on Charlotte Lane, where he sold some of the drug to one of the constables who was on watch for him. Constable Repper said that he was considered one of the worst traffickers in the drug that he had as yet captured.

As he had six packages of the stuff in his possession, which he tried to hide from the policeman, he was judged guilty, and sentenced under the new law, which provides a heavy fine for the offence.

Noran Gets Three Years.

Toronto, June 29.—James Noran, who came hither from Montreal and at once began a systematic cleaning of rooming-houses by a series of clever sneak thefts, was sent to the penitentiary for three years from the Police Court yesterday. He was a steward on an Atlantic liner and missed his boat. It was then that he came to Toronto and embarked upon a record run in crime.

Dress Hints.

Always shrink a new braid before sewing to skirt; otherwise the bottom of the skirt will become puckered the first time of wearing in a shower of rain.

Always begin at the shoulders in fitting a blouse. If the shoulders are fitted in the proper manner you need have no fear about the rest of the bodice.

To clean white plumes make a thin paste from gasoline and flour. Dip plumes and cover with paste. Lay aside to dry, then shake well, and plumes will come out clean and fluffy.

Train and Track.

The government of Jamaica now operates 184 miles of railway. Of these 120 miles were built by American syndicates.

More than one-third of a billion passengers carried in eighteen years and a half and not one killed as the result of a train accident is the claim made by the Long Island railroad.

LAID UP FIVE YEARS
Until Half a Bottle of Father Morrisey's Liniment Cured His Shoulder.
Mr. Jos. J. Roy, a prominent tinsmith of Bathurst, N.B., july 16, 1909:
"I cannot let this opportunity pass without letting you know what benefit I received from your Liniment. For five years I had a sore shoulder, which prevented me from working or from sleeping at night. I had tried everything possible and still could find no relief, until I was advised to try a bottle of your liniment, which I purchased without delay. I only used one half of the bottle when I was completely cured, and now I feel as if I never had a sore shoulder. I would advise anyone suffering from Rheumatic pains to give your liniment a trial, for I cannot praise it too highly."
A liniment that will do that is the liniment you want. It is equally good for sore throat or chest, backache, toothache, ear ache, sprains, sore muscles, cuts, bruises, burns, frost-bites, chapped hands or chilblains. Rub it in, and the pain comes out. 25c per bottle at your dealer's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co. Ltd., [illegible] 64

Chatham, June 29.—In reference to the proposed flour mill merger reported from Guelph, in which the Canada Flour Mills and the T. H. Taylor Mills of this city were mentioned N. H. Stevens, of the former company has issued the statement that while negotiations are under way to form the amalgamation, nothing definite has been decided as yet. It is expected that the deal will be finally put through in a week or ten days. W. H. Taylor, of the Taylor Flour Mills Co., states that his firm are in no way connected with the merger, and will continue on as an independent milling company.

Socialism a Heresy.

Chicago, June 29.—Socialism was condemned as a heresy and an evil, and all Catholics were warned against it by Archbishop G. Messmer of Milwaukee, who was one of the central figures in yesterday's proceedings of the Catholic Educational Congress in session here.

"Socialism is a heresy and an evil, the viciousness of which is apparent to every thinking man," said the archbishop. "The immorality which Socialism breeds and the dangers which it leads to can be averted only by the influence of religion and religious teaching."

LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average person who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the lenses themselves but much of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The LENSES are the important thing. You look through the LENSES from the time you start to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see.

TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years.

Shaped like the cornea of the eye, they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view without touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens.

We grind all our own TORIC lenses. They cost a little more than the ordinary flat lenses and are worth MUCH more.

SUNDAY TRAGEDY NEAR YOUNG'S POINT

George B. Nicholls Complained of being "All In" and Shot Himself

After complaining of being "all in" to his wife and child, George B. Nicholls, of the 11th line of Smith, about three and one half miles from Young's Point, shot himself through the left breast with a rifle yesterday evening and died almost instantly.

The late Mr. Nicholls, who leaves a wife and young daughter, besides a mother and brother, to mourn his loss, has been suffering from stomach trouble and was yesterday affected by the extreme heat. He has often complained of a temptation to shoot himself, but Mrs. Nicholls has tried to keep the firearms in hiding. Last Wednesday he asked to be taken to the asylum, but his friends did not believe he was seriously ill.

Bride and Groom From Land of the Kaiser Are Wedded Here.

A wedding, unique for Peterborough, was solemnized at the residence of the Rev. B. R. Trumpour, of All Saints', on Friday evening, June 30th. The contracting parties were Arthur Rudolphe Theodore Magnusson, and Gerda Levina Karlsson, both of Gottenburg, Sweden, both bridegroom and bride being but a few days in Peterborough, and, therefore, neither knowing a word of English, the service was performed by the aid of an interpreter, Mr. Edgar Worth, of the Bonner-Worth Co., in whose employ Mr Magnusson is engaged, having come from Sweden for that purpose.

FIRE DESTROYS FOUR PIECE PARLOR SUITE ON WAGON

Local Furniture Dealer was Delivering to Fraserville Customer.

Mr. Gerald McFadden had an uncomfortable experience this morning about five miles from the city while delivering a four piece parlor suite to a Fraserville customer. Matches in his coat pocket ignited and, unknown to him, started a blaze in the wagon. People who noticed the blaze called his attention to the trouble, but inability to secure water resulted in the furniture being destroyed. When about half a mile from the city limits one of the springs in the wagon broke, and it was the temporary repair that occupied the whole attention of the lone driver. His coat was badly burned, also one of his hands.

FIRE AT THE LUNDY BLOCK

Stock of Snowden and Murphy Damaged

Firemen Kept Fire Confined to Store

A serious conflagration was narrowly averted on the afternoon of Dominion Day about three o'clock, when fire broke out in the rear portion of Snowden and Murphy's store on George street, adjoining the offices of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. By careful work on the part of the firemen the blaze was kept from spreading and was confined mostly to the portion of the store where it originated. The damage is not yet known, but a considerable quantity of crockery, chinaware, and miscellan ous goods were destroyed.

The blaze commenced beside the office in the rear, right beside the safe, where two large cases of matches were piled, a circumstance which looks rather suspicious. The smoke issuing from the rear window into the yard behind the Lundy block, was first first noticed by the driver of Fanning's laundry express, who sent in the alarm from box 21. Two lines of hose were turned on, one from the front and one at the rear. The heat from the flames ignited the wood work and the ceiling, and also cracked a couple of large window panes. As little damage as possible was caused by water, the brigade exercising particular care in that respect.

When the chief arrived on the scene he found the rear door open. Some watches and other valuable articles were scattered around, but it is not known whether any were missing or not.

Mr. Murphy, one of the prorietors, was in Bellev.lle at the time of thefire.

A later estimate of the loss caused by the fire places the amount at $250 damage to the building and $1000 to the contents.

THIS GIFT HAS MANY DONORS

Notice Board at All Saints' Church Erected

A very handsome notice board has been placed outside All Saints' church, Rubidge street. It is unique in the number who have shared in its erection. The board was made by Mr. Frank Dawson, following the suggestion of the rector, was covered with galvanized iron by Mr. L. H. Dobbin, of Adamson & Dobbin painted by Mr. A. Kingdon, and erected into its place by Mr. James Runnet. All these did their work gratuitously. The lettering by Mr. Kingdon, who, by the way, is a member of St. Luke's, is very carefully and artistically done, being gold on background of black. The old proverb of "Too many cooks spoil the broth" did not hold good in this case, because the board—a shield in shape—is one of the very finest, and a credit to an already beautiful church. The reading is as follows:

MOTHER RETURNS TO HER FAMILY

Mrs. Londsberry is in Sound Mental Condition

Five days behind prison walls sufficed to satisfy Mrs. Londsberry that there were more desirable places to stay. She was allowed her freedom this morning, and having been given a ticket for Norwood, she shook the dust of Peterborough from her feet, emphatically remarking, as she left the jail, "I never want to be in there again."

Mrs. Londsberry, who was charged with neglecting her children, at her home near Norwood, was lodged in prison, it will be remembered, pending medical examination to prove her sanity. She was pronounced in sound mental condition by Dr. Greer.

ANNUAL PICNIC AT T.A.S. PARK ANOTHER BIG SUCCESS

A Flag-raising Ceremony—Baseball Game and Long List of Sports—The Prize Winners.

One of the most successful events of Dominion Day was the annual picnic of the St. Peter's T.A.S., held at their popular recreation grounds on the banks of the Otonabee. Favored by ideal weather conditions, the outing fully realized all expectations, and the picnic was probably the most largely patronized event of the day. It was estimated that over a thousand people were on the grounds at one time, and the immense crowd was constantly augmented by fresh boat loads arriving every half hour. Six steamers were chartered to give a prompt service every half hour to and from the park, and right up till the evening large numbers availed themselves of the trip.

The spacious grounds presented a typical scene of picnicking, while all afternoon and evening the river was dotted with pleasure craft and boats of all descriptions. Quite a flotilla of small boats were anchored along the shore, as many paddled down to the grounds from the city.

The extremely heavy demand for cooling refreshments kept the staff of capable waiters and waitresses working like Trojans, and the two booths realized handsomely. The dinner table was also largely patronized.

An interesting ceremony was held in the morning about 10.30 to celebrate the fact that the T.A.S. are now the sole owners of their splendid picnic ground. The ceremony was the raising of the Union Jack, on which was woven very neatly and conspicuously the letters, T.A.S. This is the first year the T.A.S. have owned the park. W. G. Howden, reeve of Otonabee, Mr. J. R. Stratton, Father McColl and others were present for the event, and as the flag floated out three hearty cheers were given by the crowds assembled round.

The flag raising was followed by a ball game between the Sacred Heart and East City teams of the Inter-Catholic league, and although the former club had the best of it from the opening innings, the struggle furnished some real good baseball. The southerners broke into the score column in the first chapter, grabbing no less than five runs, and took three more in the second.

It took the Ashburnham outfit several innings to get started, but when they did get hitting Rose, they piled up a nice score, coming in the seventh to within one run of the leaders. The latter came back strong in the two concluding sessions, driving seven men across the pan. For the winners Rose and Lefaive put up a nice battery game, while Guerin and Ahearne for the others did not get the support accorded the former battery.

The Sacred Heart team appeared on the field in their new white and blue uniforms, and they were much admired by the spectators. The suits and caps are white with blue trimmings and lettering. The teams lined up as follows:—

Sacred Heart T.A.S.		East City T.A.S.
	Catcher
Lafaive		Ahearne
	Pitcher.
Rose		Guerin
	1st base
Kennealley		Coughlin

Mulloy		Russell
	short-stop
Gorham		Coughlin
	left field
J. Neary		Heenan
	centre field.

A good bill of sports was run off during the afternoon, and as some of the best local athletes were on the grounds, the competition was keen. The following were the winners of the various events:

In the evening the dancing events were pulled off under the direction of floor manager Archie Moore, and a large number of slipper shaking exponents cut all the capers known to the terpsichorean art. The prize for the clog dance fell to Mr. A. Winn, while Mr. F. Connors brought home the jewellery given for the Irish jig. Mr. Ed. O'Brien, who takes the quoit pitching event every year, lived up to his reputation again on Saturday, although he was given a merry chase by Mr. A. Puffer, who took second place. Jimmy Grisdale's crew of hand-picked huskies on the St. Peter's T.A.S. tug-of-war team, pulled Mulloy, Deannard and Co., of the Sacred Heart parish, and won the blue ribbon event after a hard battle. The prize for the largest family on the grounds went to Mr. John Shevlin, who was accompanied on the outing by his wife and eight little Shevlins. Three other fond papas laid claim to second money, and a toss up was decided upon. The god of fortune turned loose a few rays on Lou LeBarr, who added one more scalp to his already well-filled girdle of trophies taken during the day by Lou and his fleet-footed family. A special 100 yards race between J. O'Brien and J. Lynch was won handily by the former.

The balance of the Ontario Bank Park Lot, on King Edward street, will be offered for sale by public auction on Saturday night, July 8th, at 6 p.m. sharp. Terms $10 down, balance $5 per month. Interest 5%. Sale on the ground. This chance will never come again. Lots will go for what they fetch. 5d1

CALGARY TO THE ROCKIES

Automobile Road that Will be as Good as the Best

An automobile road right from British Columbia across the Rocky Mountains to Calgary, which will be one of the finest in the world, and two new buffalo herds will be the feature of the Canadian Park at Banff. The new automobile route, part of which is being built by the Dominion and the remainder by the British Columbia governments, will be one of the very finest to be found anywhere. Up to now the government has not allowed autos in its Rocky Mountain Park, but is making a change in its regulations. A road is now opened from Calgary to Banff, and will be extended to Laggan, while the British Columbia Legislature will build its part to connect with it.

STIR IN SHIPPING

The Year 1910 Was a Record One in Canadian Marine Circles

The records of the Marine and Fisheries Department show that the year 1910 was a record one in Canadian shipping circles. The actual figures for the years between 1902 and 1910, both inclusive, including those vessels which came into the port from the lakes and other sources, as well as from the other side of the ocean, are as follows:

Year.	Number.	Tonnage.
1902	[illegible]	[illegible]
1903	802	1,890,904
1904	796	1,853,853
1905	833	1,935,867
1906	820	1,977,534
1907	749	1,932,236
1908	747	2,164,613
1909	948	2,190,756
1910	1075	2,562,[illegible]76

Out of the total of 948 for 1909, there were no fewer than 636 which had come from ports on the other side of the water, while in 1910, of the total number of craft of all kinds which entered the port, there were 719 actual sea-going vessels.

TEACHING AGRICULTURE

Professor McCready Will Direct the Work in Ontario

Professor McCready, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, has charge of the agricultural instruction in the high and continuation schools of Ontario. Under the industrial education act of last season, the local control of these classes is in the hands of an Advisory Agricultural Committee, composed of four members of the School Board and four other persons, who are actively engaged in [illegible] in the judgment of the board, competent to advise and give other assistance in the management. The teacher of agriculture is hereafter to conduct classes not only at the high school centre to which he has been appointed but at other centres selected by the Minister of Education. In addition to pupils who have passed the high school entrance examination, others who, in the judgment of the principal of the high or continuation school, and the teacher of agriculture, are competent for the work, may be admitted to the classes with the approval of the Advisory Committee. Pupils at a high or continuation school centre may take the classes either alone or in addition to one or more of the other school classes, and the minimum length of a school class in agriculture is to be four weeks. Shorter classes for farmers are provided under the authority of the Minister of Agriculture. Agricultural departments have established at the continuation schools at Carp and Markdale; the high schools at Markdale; the high schools at Dutton, Essex, Newmarket, Norwood, Orangeville, Petrolea, Port Hope, Simcoe, and Stirling; and the Collegiate Institutes at Collingwood, Galt, Lindsay, Morrisburg, Perth, Picton and Whitby.

FIGHTING DISEASE

Earl Grey Urges Medical Men to Work Along Preventive Lines

"Although in Canada we rejoice in peace which has lasted for 100 years," said Earl Grey, addressing the Canadian Medical Association, "yet the mortality in our big cities and from preventable diseases is equal to that of a bloody war. The economic loss suffered on this side of the Atlantic and on the other side from deaths and preventable disease amounts to figures perfectly appalling. It is the business of the medical profession to conquer disease. I understand disease is the result of violation of nature's laws. One friend of mine tells me that 73 per cent. is due to this fact, and that the other 27 per cent. is due to the sins of society. As a body of reformers it is the duty of medical men to ascertain the causes of disease and then apply the remedies."

In conclusion, he referred to the Cuban war having taught them how to abolish yellow fever and malaria, and had brought the tropical region within the reach of men from the temperate zone. They had reduced the mortality from diphtheria, which had had the effect of saving 100,000 lives a year, but they had still typhoid and tuberculosis to deal with, and when they had solved that problem probably the abolition of those diseases would follow. They looked to the medical men to teach politicians, town councillors and the average citizen what he ought to do to abolish all disease and the conditions in which civilized communities ought to live.

SEVEN FEET TALL

Mr. J. J. Laurence, of Guelph, is the Giant of Canada

Mr. J. J. Laurence, of Guelph, is the tallest man in Canada.

No, he is not a circus attraction, he works for a living. He is of English ibrth, and his brother is the renowned goal for Newcastle United, one of the greatest soccer teams in the world.

"How high are you really?" a man asked him.

"Seven feet up and two on the ground," was the reply. "I don't feel tall at all."

Mr. Laurence is the tallest member of the Canadian militia, the next highest being a mere six foot two.

HUDSON BAY NAVIGATION

Government Official Will Try to Locate a Suitable Harbor

S. C. Ells, of the Department of the Interior, is exploring in the Hudson Bay area. He has been instructed to examine the Moose River basin and the southern shore of James Bay, looking both to possibilities for navigation and resources of agriculture. All the chief rivers on the north side of the Height of Land empty into the Moose estuary, and the expedition will strive to ascertain the extent of the annual deposits of silt at this point, which are believed to leave a wilderness of shallows on the southern shore of the bay when the tide is out. If they can find a harbor where the water is deep enough for ships, and at the same accessible to the land for a railway, it will have considerable bearing on the negotiations to obtain a Hudson's Bay port for Ontario from Manitoba, as it may thus be rendered unnecessary to ask the other province to give up any of its territory.

NEW INDUSTRY AT GALT

A new industry is starting up in Galt in the works formerly occupied by the National Heating Co. Mr. E. Roelofson, formerly of the Parkin Elevator Co., Hespeler, is at the head of the new concern. The firm will manufacture passenger and freight elevators.

To Build in Brantford

The Buffalo Brake Beam Co. will erect a Canadian factory at Brantford, manufacturing brake beams for freight and passenger cars.

The Cockshutt Plow Co., of Brantford will increase the plant and put on 500 more employees.

"Marvelous Recovery"

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

No more convincing evidence was ever put on paper than the following letter from one of Montreal's well-known citizens, Mr. D. R. Larose, of 338 Joliette street.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. I recommend them to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. Larose, 338 Joliette st., Montreal, P.Q.

LOOK AFTER YOUR SILVER

The Housewife Must Sacrifice Time to Keep It In Condition

All household silver needs careful attention, and to keep it in good condition the housewife must sacrifice considerable of her time. The silver should be thoroughly cleaned at least once each week, and a list of all the pieces should be kept. After the thorough cleansing of all the pieces, they should be counted and checked off with the list.

For the grand cleaning, choose a clear, dry day. Provide yourself with a convenient table, covered with oilcloth or papers. Have whiting sifted three times in a dish, a small bottle of alcohol, one of ammonia, a soft brush, flannel rags, chamois skin, and plenty of tissue paper in which to wrap the silver that is seldom used.

For the most part a cloth dipped in alcohol and whiting will be all that is needed to clean; but if the articles are much stained, apply a paste of alcohol and whiting, allowing it to dry.

Silver in daily use should be washed as soon as possible after leaving the table, following immediately after the glasses in the process of dish-washing. After a preliminary rinsing to remove the loose food, lay aside any stained pieces for future care, and immerse the rest in a pan of clean, hot, soapy water.

Wash such pieces as need it with a soft cloth, and place them all in another pan of hot water, to which a tablespoonful of ammonia and a dash of soap have been added.

Wipe the pieces directly on taking from this water, without waiting for them to drain. Follow this with a rub with chamois skin or soft flannel.

Take the stained pieces next. Egg stains are removed with wet salt; others with whiting moistened with alcohol or ammonia. After all stains have been removed, wash and polish pieces as noted before. Soap should never be rubbed directly on silver, but a good suds should be made.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

The Views of a Number of Novelists on the Subject

In a little booklet just published, the views of a number of novelists and others are given on the question of women's suffrage. We quote a few of the opinions:—

Mr. Eden Philipotts.—Women's suffrage is happily a certainty at no very distant date.

Mr. Richard Whiteing.—I know of nothing valid against women's suffrage.

Mr. Israel Zangwill.—The most powerful argument for women's suffrage is that all the ablest women demand it, with the exception of those who selfishly feel that they already possess its equivalent.

Mr. Arnold Bennett.—The most powerful argument for women's suffrage is the fact that women want it. There is no reasonable prospect of obtaining women's suffrage in the present Imperial Parliament. Militant methods have succeeded so far.

Mr. W. T. Stead believes that women will get the vote in three years.

Mr. Belford Bax says the liability of women to hysteria is the most powerful argument against women's suffrage.—Horner's Weekly.

DON'T WORRY

The woman who worries herself over every little trifle should remember that constant fretting about things is the surest way of producing wrinkles, and making the skin wither. Try and cultivate a cheerful disposition, and determine to look on the best side of things, and make the most of life. Happiness is a great wrinkle-banisher, and even if everything is not just exactly as you would like it to be, the best thing to do is just to take it philosophically; behind even the blackest cloud there is a silver lining, if we only take the trouble to look for it.

ECONOMY IN GAS

Some Information that Will Stop All Waste

Much gas is unconsciously wested in many homes. There is the prevalent habit, almost too trifling to mention, of lighting the burner and filling the kettle afterwards, and also the continued boiling of water after it is already hot enough. There is also the mistaken method of leaving a flame high after the meat or vegetables have begun to boil. A correct theory is the use of a high flame until boiling point is reached, followed by just flame enough to keep the kettle or pots boiling. A great deal of waste heat goes on with the oven. Once heated, it will roast or bake sufficiently after some of the flames have been turned off. If our readers will study these small economies, they will find a great reduction in their gas-bill.

SIMPLE BUT ARTISTIC

The above sketch shows an attractive dress of cotton material with border arranged in tunic style. The border, which is in lovely colors in floral design, is outlined with narrow black velvet ribbon. The black velvet girdle is artistically arranged and forms an attractive contrast against the delicate tints of the border.

SLEEP AND FRESH AIR

Keep the Window Open, But Avoid the Draught

Many objections are raised against sleeping with bedroom windows open at night. The most common of these are made with reference to the night air, draughts, cold and dampness. It is a scientific truth that air is much purer at night than it is in the daytime, because at night it contains a smaller percentage of fire combustion than it does during the day. This, of course, is particularly the case in cities. Draughts can be avoided by the use of screens or by placing the bed so that the draught does not reach it. A person need not be cold with plenty of warm bed clothes. The moisture in the night air is of no great consequence when we consider that most of the moisture on the window pane of a living room is due to the exhalations of the lungs of those present in the room.

HANDSOME BLOUSE

A rich design in jewel and bead effect is shown in the sketch. It is quite new and is developed in crepe de chine and the lower part of the bodice and sleeves are incrusted with beads and braid. The neck is trimmed with narrow gold braid and crystal jewels.

THREE GENERATIONS

Over fifty years ago people began to find out the effectiveness of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills in correcting constipation and toning up the system.

Since then the popularity of this reliable old family medicine has grown steadily, and the increase in sales during the past year was the greatest in the whole half century.

As long as livers get sluggish, bowels constipated or kidneys inactive, just so long will

By toning up these organs so that they can do their work properly, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure, or prevent altogether, a large proportion of the common everyday ailments which keep so many people miserable.

PLENTY OF LAND

The Three Prairie Provinces Have Millions Upon Millions of Acres Unpurchased

Lately some of the English papers have reflected a nervous feeling that soon there may not be much good land left in Canada. Let not their hearts be troubled. Of good land there is plenty left. In the three prairie provinces the C.P.R. has still about eleven million acres to sell; land companies and private owners have perhaps fifty million acres to dispose of for money; and the Dominion Government have almost forty-two million acres to give away for free homesteads. There are vast spaces of tillable land in the Peace River and other unorganized districts of Canada. British Columbia alone has room for a white horde of the sons of mortal men, upon whom she has gifts to bestow more generous than the largesse of story-book fairy princes—every good thing coveted by the human heart, including a clement climate and a chance to "expand with the good times." The Fraser, the Nechaco, the Bulkley and the Skeena rivers drain a greater area of good agricultural land. A great deal of it is slightly timbered and easily cleared. Much of it is not timbered at all. Long summers and short winters make it ideal for ranching, dairying, stock-raising and mixed farming. There is very little snow and zero weather is unknown. In other parts of British Columbia there is much excellent land available for farming and fruit-growing. Mineral resources claim attention, too. The half has not yet been bragged about the mineral resources of British Columbia. Wonderful is the opulence of the fisheries, and the unmeasured timber lands. Here, under the temperate western sun and the newly-tinted stars, the settler can find all that mortal man could wish for.—British Columbia Magazine.

HOME HINTS

A Fine Cleanser for Varnished and Stained Woodwork

Rub a Mud-Stained Umbrella with a rag dipped in methylated spirits, and the stains will disappear.

Pieces of Well-dried yellow soap laid between the folds of woollen materials and furs will keep away moths.

Coarse Salt sprinkled occasionally on the floor before sweeping is said to be a good preventive of moths.

When Washing red bordered covers or quilts, dissolve a little borax in the water in order to preserve the color

Freshly-Cut Onion is useful for cleaning and brightening a gilt picture-frame. Clean with water afterwards.

Half a Lemon dipped in salt and rubbed on discolored ivory knife-handles will restore them to their original whiteness.

If New Tinware is rubbed over with fresh lard and thoroughly heated in the oven before it is used, it will never rust afterwards.

To Clean Bronze, brush out all dust, then rub well with a flannel slightly moistened with sweet oil. Use as little oil as possible, then polish well with a soft duster.

To Clean a Ceiling that is black, first wash it with cold water; then, when mixing the whitening, add two tablespoonfuls of dry soap, and you will have a nice clean white ceiling.

To Make Boots Last, wash them with a little soap on flannel before cleaning with any polish. By washing the boot before applying the polish, the leather is prevented from cracking.

To make Gilt Frames fresh and nice boil one pound of onions in water till the liquid is reduced from a quart to a pint, then mix one ounce of flower of sulphur with it. When cold apply with camel's-hair brush.

When a Pipe from a basin becomes clogged with soap, take a handful each of salt and soda and force down the pipe. Leave for an hour, then pour down a kettle of boiling water, afterwards flushing well with warm water.

If you want to Freshen stale bread, dip the loaf for a moment into milk or cold water, and then place it in a hot oven for a few minutes. This will make it quite fresh again, and it will be much more wholesome than new bread.

When only Half the contents of a tin can has been used, never leave the remainder in the can. Turn it out into a glass or earthen vessel. The action of the air and the acid on the tin produce a poisonous condition in canned foods.

A Capital Cleanser for varnished and stained woodwork is that of tea-water. This may be made by pouring boiling water on spent tea-leaves, straining the liquid afterwards through a cloth or muslin. The tea-water loosens the dirt quickly.

When Curtain Pins have been in use for some time they are apt to become rusty. To remedy this, let them stand for a few minutes in a cup of water, to which a little ammonia has been added. Then remove and well rub, and they will look like new again.

A Little Salt placed at the bottom of the oil reservoir of a lamp will cause it to burn with a brighter light. When short of oil fill up the reservoir with water till the oil is all at the top. It will burn till every drop of oil is used up. This is also a useful expedient in the case of short wicks.

PICTURESQUE SUMMER FROCK

This delightful summer frock is made from pineapple cloth in the new shade of Helen pink with black ring dots. The quaint and pretty short waisted bodice in bolero effect is edged with white lace frills matching those on sleeves. Pointed medallions in black and pink embroidery are effectively used to form the low cut neck and the girdle is black satin.

Inkstains on Linen

To remove ink-stains from linen.—If at hand, take a lemon, cut, and squeeze its juice at once upon the place stained; then rub with yellow soap, and rinse in cold water. The effect is almost magical, but the application should be instantaneous.

When Washing Oilcloth

Very little water should be used, as it is apt to soak through the cloth and rot it. Use a flannel well wrung out, and wipe the floor until it is as dry as you can get it.

Lamp Chimneys

After washing lamp chimneys, try polishing them with dry salt. This gives the glass a brilliant shine, and prevents it from cracking.

This furnace is built to keep gas, dust and smoke out of the house.

No matter how cosy your home, an odor of gas, however slight, is unpleasant and sometimes dangerous.

The health of your whole house demands a furnace that will give pure warm air without gas or dust.

Gas cannot escape from a "Hecla" Furnace. Every place where experience has shown that gas might otherwise find an opening has been made absolutely tight by our Patent Fused Joint.

The constant expansion and contraction of the steel and iron parts cannot break this joint.

THE FUSED JOINT

In the "Hecla" the steel sides of the radiator are fused by our patented process to the cast iron plates at the top and bottom. This process welds the steel and iron into one piece, making an inseparable joint—one that cannot spread with the heat, and one that has proven perfectly gas and dust proof, even after years of service.

"Hecla" Furnace

The "Hecla" has other safeguards against gas. The cast iron Combustion Chamber will not burn through and allow fumes from the fire to pass into the house.

The air jets in the door assure proper burning of any surplus gas.

The Automatic Gas Damper prevents danger from gas puffs.

There is a special dust flue to carry the ash dust up the chimney.

The "Hecla" Saves One Ton of Coal in Seven

How steel ribs added to the "Hecla" Fire Pot make this saving is told in our booklet "Comfort & Health."

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 4.—Deep mystery surrounds the disappearance of Frank Henderson, manager of the restaurant operated at the Grand Trunk station by the Canada News Co., who was last seen here several weeks ago. Nothing was said about the mysterious disappearance of Henderson when he first dropped out of sight, but some who have seen the body of the unidentified man now floating in the whirlpool, claim they believe it to be that of Henderson. The head and face of the floater in the pool are badly crushed in, but it cannot be determined whether this was done before the body entered the water or after entering the pool.

It is believed by some that Henderson met with foul play, and his body was thrown into the river. Others claim that the body is not that of Henderson, but that he is in Detroit on a visit. The body was still in the whirlpool at nightfall.

57th REGIMENT ROYALLY ENTERTAINED AT BROCKVILLE

Although Heat Was Excessive, Annual Outing Was Greatly Enjoyed.

That the annual outing of the 57th Regiment is a popular event was evidenced at Brockville yesterday and Saturday when that body was ably entertained by the 41st Brockville Rifles. There was something to do all the time. The Brockville men turned out in strength to meet the visitors and the program they offered left nothing lacking.

Col. W. S. Buell, Capt. C. D. Wilkinson, Adjt., Major J. Power, Capt. J. H. Edwards, Capt. H. W. Edwards, Capt. A. J. Husband, Capt. J. B. Brown, Capt. A. G. Bowie, Quartermaster, Capt R. A. Bowie, Medical Officer, Major Patterson, Paymaster, and Lieut. G. G. Curry, of the signallers; to the rank and file, did everything in their power to make the visitors enjoy themselves.

TACTICAL DRILL

thus winning the battle for the regiment.

PARADE TO CAMP.

Headed by the 41st regiment the the 57th marched to the Fulford athletic grounds where the advance party had already prepared the tents. The men stood the severe strain nobly, not one man dropping out.

TRIP ON ST. LAWRENCE.

The spacious steamer Riverside was at the disposal of the non-coms and men Saturday afternoon and with the 41st men many of the visitors took the trip to the Thousand Islands to Alexandra Bay and return. Everyone enjoyed the outing immensely and as several had never viewed any of the Thousand Islands before, this number on the program was well-chosen.

The officers of the Brockville Rifles also entertained the 57th regt. officers to a Thousand Island boating trip.

INFORMAL HOP.

After the officers' trip on the St. Lawrence river, an informal hop was given by the Brockville Rowing Club to the officers of both regiments. The evening was much enjoyed by those taking part.

SERGTS. BANQUET

The St. Lawrence was the scene of a very pleasant function Saturday night when the sergeants of the 41st regt. banqueted the non-coms. of the 57th. The event was one of the most successful in connection with the trip.

The executive committee composed of Sergt-Major A. N. Clarke, W.O., President, and Col-Sergt. A. Wooding, sec.-treas., with Col.-Sergt. R. A. Feader and Bugle Sergt. B. Serviss, of the mess committee, is deserving of praise for the success of the entertainment. After a substantial repast, a program was rendered by members of the 41st regt.

BAND CONCERTS.

The 57th regimental band gave a concert before Coourt House lawn on Saturday night and the citizens turned out en masse to hear it.

When the officers of the visiting regiment were entertaining the officers of the 41st regt. friends and citizens at the Fulford athletic grounds on Sunday afternoon, after 4 o'clock, the band gave a second concert.

CHURCH PARADE.

The 14st regt. joined the 57th in the church parade, which took place at 10.30 o'clock Sunday morning from the camp grounds to St. Peter's Anglican church, the former joining the line at their armouries.

Rev. Canon Davidson, chaplain of the 57th, preached a strong sermon to the men and was assisted by Rev. Mr. Bedford Jones, chaplain of the 41st, and rector of St. Peter's church.

INFORMAL LUNCHEON.

At one o'clock the officers of the 57th regt. were entertained at an informal luncheon given in the Brockville armouries by the officers of the 41st regt. The Brockville regimental band was present for the occasion.

At 5.30 o'clock the tents were "struck" and the baggage prepared for transport. At 11 o'clock the regt. left the camp grounds and marched down the main street thence to the C.P.R. station. When opposite the Strathcona house, the regiment was halted and Mayor Beal, of Brockville, addressed the officers and men for a few moments. He said, on behalf of the Brockville citizens, that had the visitors remained longer the hosts might have been able to entertain them better. The citizens of Brockhad enjoyed the visit from the Peterborough regt. and he hoped the visitors had enjoyed themselves.

ENTRAINED FOR HOME.

At 11.45 o'clock the 57th entrained for Peterborough and landed here about 6 o'clock this morning.

Major Clegg addressed the men at the armouries and thanked them for the splendid manner in which they had conducted themselves and hoped they had enjoyed the outing. He stated that there would not be any drill again until further orders.

UNKNOWN WAS STRUCK BY TRAIN

Special Train of Regiment Took Him to Smith Falls

The Ambulance Corps of the 57th Regiment had an experience on the trip Friday night such as they might meet in actual warfare.

At Sharbot Lake a young man was taken aboard who had been hit by a train. His skull was fractured and his legs and feet badly mutilated. Someone had picked him up alongside the track and the Brockville special was used as a means of reaching the hospital at Smith's Falls.

It was ascertained that the injured lad was the son of a farmer in the vicinity of Bathurst but as he was not able to talk when seen by the Review's representative, who took in the trip, his name could not be learned.

Twas 93 Above Yesterday — Thunder Storms on the Way

During the last few days we have had some extreme heat. On Saturday the thermometer rose to 91 degrees in the shade. High as this was, it was exceeded yesterday (Sunday) when 93 degrees was registered. No higher figure than this has been recorded since July 17th, 1901, when 94 was registered. The warmest day in this district that there is any record of was Aug. 6th, 1900, when the official registration was 97 degrees.—W. P.

It was 101 in Toronto yesterday. A Review reporter asked Mr. Peters at noon how the thermometer stood today and his reply was that "it must be higher, but I'm not going home to see." The probs to-day say thunderstorms to-night and cooler to-morrow.

Mr. W. Arthur Dawe, of the Home Bank of Canada staff, of Belle River, Ont., spent the holiday the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. C. Dawe, Gilmour street.

The Review is indebted to Mr. Peter Campbell, of the Bank of Toronto, who has been in England and on the continent for the last two months for copies of the London Graphic, profusely illustrated, with views of the coronation pageant. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were so fortunate as to secure seats in one of the immense stands erected at the magnificent new Queen Victoria memorial, and had a capital view of the progress and close of the procession. They were in the stand during both days of the proceedings.

FISHERMEN'S GOOD LUCK

In addition to bragging about the phenomenal hot spell of the last few days, we are pleased to chronicle the prowess of local fishermen. Those who have been affirming that the launches are scaring the fish away down the river may now revise their statements in view of recent catches.

Friday and Saturday were great days for the sports. Among the returns from those who were successful are Mr. W. Perks, who landed 8 bass, the weight of the lot being 16 pounds, grocers' (not fishermen's) weight. Observe the difference, which is creditable to the skilful Mr. Perks. These were caught below the Yankee Bonnet, and Mr. Perks lives somewhere about there.

Mr. E. Sanders caught two 'lunge near the upper bridge, both beauties, good work for the 1st of July.

Mr. Livingstone went out casually to try his luck, and was lucky, indeed, getting a ten pound 'lunge. Another artist succeeded very well, and displayed an 8 pound 'lunge and two good bass as the reward of his work on a very hot day.

Drowning at Brantford.

Brantford, July 3.—George Newman, 26 years old, was drowned in Mohawk Lake Saturday afternoon while canoeing with another young man. The canoe upset in twenty feet of water, and Newman went down, after grappling in vain for the canoe, while his companion swam ashore. The fire department life boat was called out, recovering the body in about thirty minutes. Life was then extinct. Newman, who worked at Verity Plow Works, left a young wife. No inquest will be held.

Kind to the Eyes

Kryptok lenses have distinctive advantages over all former near and far-sighted glasses, having no line or patch to suggest old sight or to confuse the eye. "They are truly delightful and I scarcely realize that I am wearing glasses, as my vision is perfect, both distant and reading," is the remark of one of the pleased patrons of the Optical Institute.

COUNTRY AND CITY SWELTER IN HEAT WAVE; RELIEF SLOW IN COMING

RECORDS GO TO THE BOW-WOWS IN THIS NEW TEMPER-TESTER

Factories Close in Toronto and Hamilton, and Business Suspends While the Ice-Cream Man Works—Thermometers Broken by Heat.

Toronto, July 4.—The record temperature of 101.1 degrees on Sunday received a knockout blow at 2.30 yesterday afternoon, when the mercury at the meteorological office registered 103.2 degrees in the shade. This is a new high-water mark for local temperatures and surpasses anything the observatory officials have either seen or read about in the history of Toronto.

From all over Ontario the official reports show that temperature records have all been broken everywhere. At London, Ont., the thermometer yesterday pointed at 102 degrees, while an immense area south and southwest of the great lakes showed a temperature of 100 degrees and over, at every place heard from. The most remarkable feature of the present heat wave is the enormous range of territory affected by it and the abnormal length of time the excessive heat is persisting.

Thousands of Torontonians again spent the greater part of the night out-of-doors. All along University avenue, whole families lay asleep on the grass, and round the City Hall terraces scores of people were stretched out trying to snatch a few hours sleep.

The streets through "the ward" were crowded with men, women and children, in "undress" uniform, sitting or lying anywhere, and everywhere. It was an out-of-door community, the houses being practically deserted.

A number of foundries closed down yesterday, as it was too hot to permit of employes working.

Two deaths occurred yesterday, more or less directly attributed to the excessive heat. Three are in hospital suffering from severe sunstroke, two cases being critical, while at both St. Michael's and Grace Hospitals several more or less serious prostrations were reported as having been brought in during the day.

Mrs. Charlotte Creswell, 30 St. Mary street, was found dead in her bed at her home by her daughter.

Mrs. J. Ward, 1,947 College street, was found dead in the bathroom there. Death is said to be due to heart failure induced by the oppressive heat.

Ten prostrations from the weather were recorded at the city hospitals.

Hamilton Factories Close.

Hamilton, July 4.—Not satisfied with his record-breaking stunt of running the temperature up to 102 in the shade here Sunday, Old Sol surpassed himself yesterday, and when he retired his day's work here he left a mark of 103 in the shade. And nobody doubts yesterday's record. The temperature was appreciably warmer than it was on Sunday, and everybody suffered from the heat. The police ambulance was called out yesterday afternoon by a man being overcome with the heat on King street, but before it arrived the man had been taken away in an automobile. Some of the factories closed down on account of the torrid weather and everyone busied himself with keeping as cool as possible.

Ninety-Three at Montreal Sounds Cool

Montreal, July 4.—The heat wave which has been passing over Ontario reached here yesterday undiminished and sent the mercury soaring away above the figures set up Sunday.

At 1.30 o'clock, the thermometer at the McGill Observatory, situated in a cool and shady nook on the mountain side, registered 93 degrees. In the sun over 100 degrees was common, while in the city proper, thermometers in the shade climbed close to the century mark. Several prostrations are reported.

At the Hotel Dieu, an unknown man lies in a critical condition as a result of the intense heat.

And They Call That Hot!

Kingston, June 4.—The highest temperature received officially in Kingston during the past two days was 82 degrees, according to Queen's observatory report.

One Death In Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 4.—As a result of the intense heat Matthew Mathon, hydrant inspector, died yesterday. A Dominion policeman found him lying unconscious on Lover's Walk below Parliament Hill.

Oppressive Weather In New York.

New York, July 4.—The siege of oppressive hot weather continues throughout New York State.

To the maximum of 94.5 degrees, which the heat wave officially reached here Sunday, 3 1-2 degrees were added by yesterday's maximum of 98, recorded at noon. To the list of ten lives which succumbed here in Sunday's torrid tide, as many more were added yesterday, while the list of prostrations officially reported ran upwards of a score. In Herald square the bulbs registered 105, while the glass on The World Building marked 110.

Up-state points reported similar woe. At the Cornell weather station in Ithaca, a temperature of 101 degrees, the highest since the station was established thirty years ago, was officially reported.

Broke the Record.

Newark, N.J., July 4.—Yesterday was four degrees hotter than any other recorded here since the weather bureau was established. The official thermometer stood at 103 at 3 p.m., while bulbs on the street registered 111 degrees. Eight deaths and scores of prostrations were reported last night.

Mills Shut Down.

Pittsburg, July 4—The thermometer was "going up" all day, starting at 4 a.m., when it was 73, and touching the high point of 97 at 3 p.m. Between 4 and 5 p.m. there was a slight recession, but at 5 p.m. the mercury touched 97 again.

Meantime, in the Government weather kiosh on the street the temperature hovered about 105. Many prostrations and deaths are reported, the list of drownings in particular being a very long one. Many of the mills are beginning to shut down because of the danger of the ironworkers collapsing in the unbearable heat.

The Heat at Cleveland.

Cleveland, July 4.—The heat record for the summer was broken here yesterday, when between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday the maximum weather bureau temperature of 104 was registered. At 2 p.m. the kiosk temperature was 102. A number of prostrations were reported.

Broke the Thermometer.

Troy, N.Y., July 4.—Yesterday was the hottest July 3 in the history of the city, the thermometer registering 103 degrees in the shade and in the sun the mercury ran as high as 120. Several thermometers exposed to the sun were broken, the mercury reaching the highest point marked on the dial and then bursting the tube. There were several prostrations.

NOT SO HOT IN TORONTO TO-DAY

Breeze in Evidence But Foundries Still Closed

Special To The Review.

Toronto, July 4.—The observatory thermometer registered 95 in the shade at twelve o'clock, noon, and the mercury was still climbing. A refreshing breeze tempers the heat somewhat, but the foundries still remain closed.

Twice "Broke" Pen.

Winnipeg, July 4.—Arthur Williams, a United States desperado, who escaped from Stoney Mountain penitentiary for the second time on Saturday, was captured after an exciting man-hunt. The officers say bars will not hold this man.

LADY CONSTANCE'S INTENDED WAS WAITING AT THE CHURCH

While She Went Off Shopping, Having Changed Her Mind—Society Was Astonished.

London, July 4.—Lady Constance Foljambe, a half-sister to the Earl of Liverpool, controller of the King's household, astonished society by failing to appear at a fashionable church in London yesterday afternoon at the time appointed for her marriage to Rev. A. W. K. Hawkins.

The edifice was filled with society people who waited an hour wondering what had occurred to delay the ceremony. When the bridegroom sent a messenger in great haste to the Earl of Liverpool's residence to enquire for her, the reply returned was that Lady Constance "went out shopping this morning, and has not yet returned home."

The Earl of Liverpool stated last evening that he had received from Lady Constance a message to the effect that she was quite safe and sound.

According to the message, Lady Constance, who left London on a train yesterday morning, had simply changed her mind and decided that she did not wish to be married.

No Fighting In Portugal.

Lisbon, July 4.—Official and complete denial of the rumor published abroad that fighting between Republicans and Monarchists had occurred at Oporto was made yesterday.

It was also denied that any revolutionary violence had taken place in Portugal.

Fooled With the Trigger.

Parkhill, July 4.—Ivan Jones, son of George Jones, of this town, when out in the woods shooting with a 32 self-cocking revolver on Saturday was fooling with the trigger and discharged the weapon, severing a small part of his right foot.

Collier Abandoned.

Halifax, N.S., July 4.—The steamer Ben Earn, the collier under charter by the Dominion Coal Co., has been abandoned to her fate on the Half Moon ledge. She was worth about $250,000.

Goes to New Brunswick.

Fredericton, N.B., July 4.—John A. Stiles, C.E., Toronto, has been appointed professor in the University of New Brunswick. Mr. Stiles is at present a demonstrator at Toronto University.

HUGH JOHN MACDONALD OF WINNIPEG, SON OF SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD

BRITAIN PASSING THE NAVAL PRIZE BILL, OR DECLARATION

Sir Edward Grey Says United States Opinion is Important, and Should be Considered—Republic Would be Useful.

London, July 4—The naval prize bill, which is tantamount to approval of the Declaration of London, the international agreement covering prizes in naval warfare, passed its second reading in the House of Commons yesterday. An amendment introduced by John G. Butcher, Unionist member for York, to defer consideration of the bill until reported on by a committee of experts, was defeated after a prolonged debate by a vote of 301 to 231. The bill passed without division.

The feature of the debate was Sir Edward Grey's speech in support of the bill, in which he referred to the attitude of the United States. He argued as that country holds the view "that under restricted conditions sinking would be allowed," it would be useless to attempt to bring in a law abolishing it. He contended that in case England was at war with a great continental power, the one great neutral power, whose interference would be useful was the United States, which was greatly interested in supplying food to this country and was possessed of a fleet of sufficient strength to make interference effective.

The United States, he insisted, would never have signed the Declaration of London, if they believed in time of war their commerce would be interfered with. "The United States," said Sir Edward, "have been no reluctant party to signing the Declaration of London, and the establishment of a prize court, and in their view acceptance of the Declaration of London is essential to the establishment of a successful prize court.

"The belief that the U. S. Government regards the policy of a prize court convention and the Declaration of London with indifference, is a very dangerous misapprehension, which it would remove if we were at war with a continental power. That continental power, knowing perfectly well the risk and desiring to avoid the danger of any friction with the U. S., the great maritime neutral power interested in our food supply, would in all likelihood prefer to accept the rules of the Declaration of London and be prepared to refer to arbitration any question which arises with regard to it."

SPANISH TROOPS ARE AGGRESSIVE

German Gunboat Sent the Moroccan Waters

Special To The Review.

Madrid, July 4—Spanish troops are reported to be occupying a more advanced position in the Riff territory in Morocco, evidently with aggressive intentions as a result of the despatch of a German gunboat to the Moroccan waters.

DRUGGIST SHAW WILL RECOVER

Charge of Murder Against Reeve to be Reduced

Cornwall, July 4.—R. A. Pringle, K.C., of the firm of Pringle & Smith, Cornwall, has been retained by the defence in the case of Farquhar McRae, accused of the shooting of William Shaw, the Carp druggist, at Bridgend on the afternoon of Dominion Day. McRae has been remanded until Friday morning for the preliminary hearing, and both the crown and defence refuse to divulge the line of action they are likely to take when the prisoner appears. Shaw's condition is reported by his physician as being fairly good, and it is confidently hoped that he will recover.

Brakeman Killed.

Trenton, July 4.—While the way freight train was shunting at Trenton station yesterday morning, one of the cars was derailed and badly smashed. The auxiliary train from Belleville was quickly on the scene and busy clearing the tracks. Daniel Loller, a brakeman of the auxiliary train, was sent back to signal No. 5, the passenger train from the east, and not returning after the tracks were cleared, some of the train crew went to look for him, and found his body badly mangled between the rails. He was a married man, and leaves a widow and one child.

City 'Phones For London.

London, July 4.—A municipal telephone system for London is being advocated by Water Commissioner Stevenson. Telephones at $7 a year, and paying a 30 per cent. dividend to the city on the outlay, is one result he claims.

By the use of the new "cross-over system," he would string the telephone wires on the city hydro-electric poles, and use the underground conduit down-town for the same purposes. The top floor of the new City Hall he suggests for the exchange.

Nearly $800,000.

Toronto, July 4.—Hon. A. J. Mathesons estimated income from succession duties will be very much exceeded this year. For the month of June the receipts were $82,313 against $57,875 for the same month of 1910. Up to the 30th of June last year the receipts aggregated $379,055 and for the first six months of this year the total amount received is $692,870. There is yet about $100,000 to come in from the McLean end of the late Senator Fulford's tstate. The estimate for the present year was $750,000.

No Chance For His Recovery.

Mitchell, July 4.—J. H. Waterhouse of the Mitchell Woollen Mill firm, was taken with hemorrhage of the brain on Saturday afternoon. He has been in convulsions since then, and there are no chances for his recovery.

MEANT FOR PRESIDENT?

Bullet Struck Woman Seated With Taft's Party

Special To The Review.

Indianapolis, July 4—While sitting in a reviewing stand occupied by President Taft's party this morning, Mrs. Harry Tutewiler was struck by a bullet, which though spent, inflicted a painful wound. The accident occurred only a few moments before the president's arrival.

MR. BORDEN GETS VERY HEARTY RECEPTION AT SASKATOON

Two Meetings Are Held In George McCraney's Riding In Saskatchewan, But, Although the Conservative Leader Gets Cheers For British Preference, Farmers Are Strong For Reciprocity.

Saskatoon, July 4.—The last week of the Opposition leader's campaign in the prairie provinces opened with a quiet meeting at Rosthern and an enthusiastic reception here last evening.

Mr. Borden was met at the station by several hundred people, and was then driven out to the fair grounds, where he was tendered a luncheon and addressed by the fair directors. Subsequently he met the grain growers and addressed a public meeting. Rosthern and Saskatoon are both in the constituency which is represented at Ottawa by George McCraney, Liberal. Rosthern especially is a strong Liberal town and the chairman of the meeting made no attempt to disguise that fact. "If there is a little band of Conservatives from the Atlantic to the Pacific," he said, "that needs encouragement, it is the band at Rosthern. We have been fighting an uphill game and we are still up against it. But I can say this to Mr. Borden, that I do not think there will ever be an acclamation from Rosthern. We will always put up a fight. As each victim puts up his deposit and generally fails to redeem it, all we do is to put a piece of beefsteak to our black eye and hunt for the next victim."

There were about 300 people at the meeting and, as usual, they gave Mr. Borden an excellent hearing.

There were no interruptions, but there was little cheering. There was, however, a ready response to any appeals to loyalty. They cheered Mr. Borden when he spoke of the value of the British markets. They cheered references to British preference. They cheered his emphasis on the need of administering the public funds so that the people should get a dollar's worth for every dollar spent. They cheered his platform on the Hudson Bay Railway, the grain elevators and the restoration to the provinces of their natural resources, but they did not cheer arguments against reciprocity and they did not cheer when he asserted his belief that the people would not ratify the reciprocity agreement.

Warned by Disaster.

Montreal, July 4.—Aroused into activity by the collapse of the King Edward Park wharf a week ago, the authorities are now taking great precautions to prevent any disaster through overcrowding among the pleasure-seekers who visit that amusement resort.

Under orders from the Department of Marine and Fisheries, inspectors have been placed on the wharves and at the gangways of the ferryboats, and these refuse to allow the officers of the ferries to carry at a trip any more passengers than they are registered to carry

In the past vessels had been carrying hundreds more passengers each trip than the figures in the records regarding their capacity indicated.

Both Parties Refuse.

Banff, Alta., July 4.—At a meeting of the conciliation board, held yesterday, both parties positively refused to accept the proposals of Chairman Gordon, made Saturday afternoon and made public yesterday morning. The operators submitted a brief written rejection of the proposals, stating that they contained terms and conditions to which they could not assent.

Mr. Stubbs, on behalf the miners, said they had no written statement to make, but were ready to state verbally that the mine workers could not consider the offer made in any way as a basis of agreement.

EIGHTY POUND STURGEON CAUGHT

Leaped Into Boat and Was Captured by Watchman

Special to the Review.

Montreal, July 4—An eighty pound sturgeon, and measuring four feet five inches in length, leaped into a boat lying in the harbor and was captured by the watchman on the Harbor Commissioner's launch.

Counterfeit U. S. $100 Note.

Washington, July 4.—A new counterfeit $100 gold certificate, so well made in many details, that the secret service regards it as highly dangerous, was found yesterday in a shipment of money from a National Bank in Louisville to its correspondent in New York. The new bill is a lithograph, and although it has many defects, is printed on the Government's paper, which the counterfeiter must have obtained by bleaching a genuine note.

Old-Time Clown Dead.

Winfield, Kas., July 4.—J. A. Alger, known better as "Tony Parker," reputed to be one of the oldest circus clowns in the United States, died at his home here yesterday, aged 87. He became a clown at the age of ten years and for fifty years pursued that calling without interruption. His home had been here since 1878.

No Fireworks In New York.

New York, July 4.—Determined to lead in the movement for a safe and sane celebration of the fourth, fire and police department heads declare that at least a record for safety and sanity will be established in this city to-day.

It is asserted that no fireworks or firecrackers have been on sale within the city for a month, and those who may have planned to outwit the authorities by buying a supply elsewhere will find that they have purchased in vain, for the police are insistent that public sport with gunpowder will be absolutely prohibited.

MAY BE TROUBLE ON THE TWELFTH

Hull Catholics Objecting to Orange Celebration

Ottawa, July 4.—Before the Hull City Council last night petitions asking that the Orange celebrations planned for July 12 be stopped, were presented. These were from the Cercle Reboul, Catholic Orders of Foresters, St. Joseph's Union, L'Alliance Nationale, Catholic Mutual Benefit Association and the Catholic School Commissioners. The mayor wrote Dr. Sproule, saying that trouble would likely arise, and the doctor denied the imputation, and said he had no power to direct the Orange lodges in their selection of a place to celebrate. He assured the mayor, if there was no interference, the Orangemen would cause no trouble. The council will meet to-night to consider if they shall refuse permission for the celebration.

Suing Municipalities.

Montreal, July 4.—Following the instructions of the Provincial Board of Health, Messrs. Geoffrion, Geoffrion & Cusson, have entered action against six municipalities which refused or neglected to carry out the instructions of the Board of Health regarding compulsory vaccination.

The municipalities being sued are: Maskinonge, St. Fidele, County of Charleboix, St. Charles Borromee, County of St. Joseph de Blanford, and St. Lazare, County of Vaudreuil.

Each municipality is being sued for $100, which is the amount of the fine for four days' delay in adopting measures for compulsory vaccination.

Silver Coin Famine.

Washington, July 4.—A famine of silver coins is threatened in the North Pacific States, and banks in Oregon, Washington and Montana are appealing to the Treasury Department to ship dimes, quarters and half dollars to relieve the situation. Congress has made no appropriation for transporting the coin, and Treasury officials say they cannot come to the relief unless Congress takes some action The Treasury formerly paid for such transportation, but saves about $300,000 a year by not doing it now.

Blind Pigs Raided.

Wingham, July 4.—On the night of June 17, Provincial Constable Phippen, and assistants, surprised the local option town of Teeswater by swooping down on a couple of the hotels where he supposed liquor was being sold. The Vendome Hotel, managed by Jacob Lambartus, and his son was searched, liquor being found by the barrel; also one blind pig, owned by David Kaplen, was raided and a quantity of whisky was found.

Hand Shattered by Dynamite.

Ottawa, July 4.—P. Dallaire was fishing by the dynamite method in Brewery Creek, Hull, yesterday afternoon, when a stick of explosive went off in his hand. The member was horribly shattered and had to be cut off in the Ottawa Hospital, to which he was brought.

New Argentine Consul.

Ottawa, July 4.—Charles A. Gatarce, the new Argentine consul at Ottawa, will arrive on the sixth or seventh of July, H. Mayer, the present consul, receiving word to that effect yesterday. Mr. Mayer will sail for England on the 12th to join his family.

DISAPPEARANCE IS A MYSTERY

Where Did Frank Henderson go to at the Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 4.—Deep mystery surrounds the disappearance of Frank Henderson, manager of the restaurant operated at the Grand Trunk station by the Canada News Co., who was last seen here several weeks ago. Nothing was said about the mysterious disappearance of Henderson when he first dropped out of sight, but some who have seen the body of the unidentified man now floating in the whirlpool, claim they believe it to be that of Henderson. The head and face of the floater in the pool are badly crushed in, but it cannot be determined whether this was done before the body entered the water or after entering the pool.

It is believed by some that Henderson met with foul play, and his body was thrown into the river. Others claim that the body is not that of Henderson, but that he is in Detroit on a visit. The body was still in the whirlpool at nightfall.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

Catarrhal Deafness

Successfully Treated By

Catarrhozone

Deafness is not so common as blindness, yet thousands are more o less afflicted by it, and their comfort seriously interfered with.

Catarrhal deafness manifests itself but slowly, yet it must be acknowledged that the great majority of those who become totally deaf might have averted this unfortunate condition if they had treated the catarrhal inflammation at its beginning.

The only remedy that can be safely employed for all forms of catarrhal deafness is Catarrhozone. You simply charge the air you breathe with this healing, soothing agent, and by forcing it gently through the ears destroy the germ life which keeps up the inflammation, and at the same time by the soothing, healing action it heals the inflamed surfaces of the middle ear.

CATARRHOZONE, to those who are just a little deaf, and are growing increasingly deaf, is an agent capable of affording the utmost satisfaction, and its use is attended without danger, and as the treatment can be carried on at home no person threatened with the affliction of deafness should postpone one moment in beginning its use.

From every part of the Dominion glowing accounts of the beneficial action it exerts upon catarrhal conditions of the middle ear have been sent in, and you will be resorting to the only method of cure, and the simplest method too, if you try Catarrhozone. Dealers everywhere sell it, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

THE DICKSON PROPOSITION

The power committee of the city council last night presented a report which may be of considerable importance to Peterborough in its efforts to secure a supply of power for municipal purposes.

The Dickson dam at Lakefield has not been considered among the eligibles because of its location, and the fact that the power committea thought other sites developing more power might be available. There is no doubt that the option which the civic power committee has obtained will hold good, and the citizens may cogitate on the question as a flat offer.

The city has taken steps toward having a report on the proposition made by a competent engineer, and when this is presented, it is quite with the bounds of possibilities that a by-law may be submitted to the people at the polls.

The option is good until September 1, and under certain conditions, will be extended to November 1. The development of the Dickson site involves the building of a generating station, a ten-mile transmission line, a sub-station and a complete transmission system in the city. The maximum development possible at present on the Dickson site would be 2700 h.p. The Dickson site is a lease and in paying $200,000 for this the city would be put to rather heavy expenditure to make it of some use. The Dickson lease is more advantageous than the Otonabee lease ,allowing the use of all surplus water. According to the analysis made by the hydro-electric engineers the Dickson site has at present a development capacity of 2,000 h.p., with a probable future capacity of 3,300 h.p.

While $200,000 seems a high price for a dam-site, when it necessitates building all the equipment for generating power to Peterborough, which would probably bring the total cost around $350,000 or more. It would be well to await the special report, with an estimate regarding the cost of construction, as only then can a concrete proposition for consideration be obtained.

CATCHING VOTES

Montreal La Presse says;—"Thanks to the attitude of the First Minister of Canada all the Imperialistic proposals have been abandoned and the autonomy of the colonies has been affirmed more explicitly than ever."

But it was the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, NOT the autonomy of Canada, that was in danger, and it is manifest that the interests of the Empire count for NOTHING with the Prime Minister in comparison with his political safety.

In London he has misrepresented Canada and the reproach can be removed only by his defeat and the installation of a Government of British Unionists at Ottawa.

To the offense of a preferential trade agreement with Washington has been added a betrayal of Canada at the seat and centre of Empire.—Toronto News.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The cellar isn't so much despised now after all.

Good afternoon, fair sir, how do your whiskers grow?

This is the Glorious Fourth, the day before a burned and bandaged fifth.

It will scarcely do to seek consolation from the fact that reciprocity got a frost.

The German gun-boat that steamed to take an active part in the partition of the Sultan's country was Morocco bound.

Isn't it odd that no matter how cold and unemotional a man may be, he always warms up under weather conditions like that of yesterday.

The Toronto Electric Light company's new rates are said to be within seven per cent of the city's hydro rates, making a reduction of close to 40 per cent. The people of Toronto won't kick at a few more reductions such as these.

Ald. Butler would make the city officials responsible for the loss occasioned by their bungle over some sewer work. This isn't a bad principle at times. City officials who know that if they bungle, they may have to make good the loss, will keep blunders in their work at quarantine distance.

An outsider in the running captured the East Peterborough nomination stakes, which leads us to wonder if an outsider could get the West Peterborough Liberal nomination, even if he did succeed in extracting 202 votes out of a possible 185. We must confess to being a little pessimistic.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucuous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood, and mucous surfaces of the system. PRESENTATION AT YOUNG'S POINT

Locket and Chain for Mrs. Ada M. Payne

On Thursday afternoon the closing exercises of the Young's Point Public school were held. After an hour's program of songs recitations and dialogues had been rendered in a creditable manner, a presentation was made to Miss Ada M. Payne, teacher of the junior department, by the pupils of the school. Miss Payne has held the position for a year, and the pupils under her charge have made rapid advancement and very general regret is expressed at her departure. The presentation was made by Lena Bullock and the address read by Hilda Wilson, as follows:—

Dear Miss Payne,—We are very sorry to learn that you are about to leave us. You have made many warm friends while you have been with us, by your kindness to us, both in our work and in our play.

We ask you to accept this locket and chain and while you look on it when you are in foreign lands, may it help to remind you of your friends in the Young's Point school.

Signed on behalf of the school.

OLIVE REED,
LENA BULLOCK,
HILDA WILSON.

Miss Payne, although taken completely by surprise, made a very feeling reply, in which she assured her pupils that she would take the deepest interest in their future welfare and would always look upon the year spent at Young's Point, as one of the happiest of her life.

The exercises were concluded by the singing of the national anthem.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, July 3.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was fairly good, and the prices bid for No. 1 northern were 4½d per quarter higher than on Friday, consequently some business was done for July-August shipment. The local trade in coarse grains was quiet, the demand being only for small lots to fill actual wants. A fair volume of business continues to be done in spring wheat flour for local consumption at steady prices. Demand for bran and shorts is good, and sales of latter were made for export account.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 41¼c to 41½c, car lots, ex-store; extra No. 1 feed, 40¾c to 41c. No. 3 C.W., 40¼c to 40½c; No. 2 local white, 39¾c to 40c; No. 3 local white, 39¼c to 39½c; No. 4 local white, 38¼c to 38½c.

Rolled oats—Per barrel, $4.55; bag of 90 lbs., $2.15.

Cheese—Westerns, 11¼c to 11⅜c; easterns, 10⅞c to 11c.

Butter—Choicest, 22c to 22½c; seconds, 18c to 19c.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply of milkers and springers sold at $50 to $66 each, and one of topper quality at $75.

Veal Calves.

The bulk of the veal calves sold from $4 to $7 per cwt., or an average of $6.75 per cwt., and in one or two instances $8 per cwt. was paid.

Sheep and Lambs.

Light ewes sold at $3.50 to $4.50 per cwt.; heavy ewes and rams, $3 to $3.50; spring lambs, $6.50 to $7.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Johnston of Gunn Co. reports selects fed and watered, at $7.05, and $6.75 f.o.b., cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 3.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 1 were 1920 cattle, 1350 sheep and lambs, 2070 hogs and 1225 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 900 cattle, 675 sheep and lambs, 1625 hogs and 800 calves.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for cattle, notwithstanding the fact that the supply was rather larger than a week ago, and the weather exceedingly hot, which tended to curtail the demand from local buyers to some extent; consequently trade was rather slow.

Cable advices from Liverpool were much stronger, and noted an advance in prices of 1c per pound over a week ago, on account of the small home supplies and the stoppage of Irish cattle coming forward thru the vessels being held up by the shipping strike, which, if it is continued very long, will no doubt tend to put prices still higher in the near future and increase the demand for cattle for export account here.

A few sales of extra choice steers were made here at 6¾c; choice at 6½c; good at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c, and common at 4½c to 4¾c per pound. There were a number of cows among the offerings, which sold at from 3¾c to 5½c per pound, as to quality, while bulls brought from 4½c to 5½c per pound.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for hogs, except that the feeling was more settled, and prices in consequence were more regular. The supply was ample to fill all requirements, and a fairly active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $7.50; mixed lots at $7 to $7.25; sows at $6 to $6.50, and stags at $4 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

A more active trade was done in sheep, lambs and calves on account of the increased offerings; but, as the demand was good, the tone of the market ruled steady and prices show no change. Sheep sold at 4c to 4½c per pound; spring lambs at $4.50 to $6 each, and calves at from $2 to $9 each, as to size and quality.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 3375; market active; 10c to 15c higher; prime steers, $6.50 to $6.70; butcher grades, $5.75 to $6.25; cows, $3.25 to $5.

Calves—Receipts, 1800; market active and steady; cull to choice, $5.25 to $8.50.

"Please—please, captain—for my sake," she pleaded.

"I don't care—let him come on," cried Brooks doggedly, but his voice faltering.

Williams gazed at the sweet, frail woman standing imploringly before him, and as he gazed his muscles gradually relaxed, the wrath faded from his eyes, and finally the corners of his mouth twitched in a faint smile.

"All right, Mrs. Brooks," he said gently. "I almost forgot where I was. I apologize."

Smith, his hands in his pockets, moved away across the room.

"Joe, you know it's your home—our home," expostulated his wife.

"I—I—forgot. Excuse me," he muttered sulkily, looking ashamed.

Smith spoke up, his winning smile lighting his face:

"You know, it's been an all fired hot day—just the kind of weather when about every mother's son is on edge. Now, Joe, he slipped a cog, and that sort of put the whole confounded machine out of gear, including the captain. But now, you see, it's just all forgotten."

"Possibly. As far as I'm concerned I must be going," declared Mrs. Harris coldly.

"Indeed, yes!" chirped Beth.

Brooks now, his rage having spent itself and his bravado fizzled out, was almost crying.

"I—I"— he began.

But the words choked in his throat, and, picking up his hat, he hastened out of the room and the flat.

"Will you please take us away, captain?" requested Mrs. Harris.

"Just a moment," he said. "Mrs. Brooks, I'm almighty sorry about what happened just now."

"I—I'd rather you wouldn't speak of it," she told him.

"Perhaps I have been a little hard," he said earnestly and apologetically. "I want you all to understand that

"Please—please, captain—for my sake," she pleaded.

I've lived a hard life with hard people. Since the day I shipped before the mast in a north Pacific sealer I learned what a cuff and a blow was; what rotten grub, the scurvy and all them things meant, and I knew that the only thing between them things and comfort, decency and the respect of folks was money. I started to get money, and maybe I have been a little hard—just a little hard."

"No one would call you easy, captain," agreed Smith.

"Anyway, Mrs. Brooks," continued Williams, "Joe keeps his job, and it ain't going to make a bit of difference between us."

"Not the least?" she asked, with wonder.

"Certainly not," said Mrs. Harris.

"Joe," declared Beth languidly, "was absurd. He quite bores me."

Smith smiled at her and injected a good deal of irony into his tone as he said:

"Yes, you looked as if something was wrong, Beth."

The captain approached Mrs. Brooks with an attempt at gallantry that was elephantine and grotesque and seized her hand, which she suffered to remain limply in his clasp.

"Well, Mrs. Brooks," he said, "if it's all squared you will come riding with us, won't you?"

"Not tonight. You will excuse me," she replied.

"Certainly," he assured her, warmly shaking her hand as though it were a pump handle. "Good night."

"Good night," she answered.

Then she advanced to receive the parting kisses of her mother and sister, which were a good deal less cordial than those with which they had greeted her on their arrival. Their osculatory reserves seemed to have been kept in cold storage during the interval.

The fact that in the engrossing ceremony of leave taking with Mrs. Brooks everybody forgot to be polite enough to say good night to Smith did not ruffle his equanimity in the least.

CHAPTER VI.

When the door had closed behind the visitors Mrs Brooks and Smith sat down and gazed at each other in silence for some minutes.

"Well?" exclaimed Emma, interrogatively, at last.

"Well," he replied, "between you and me, Joe came as near getting skinned alive as any one I ever saw."

"It was terrible!"

"It was terribly true. You saved him."

"I know."

"The captain must like you. I never did think he could like anybody."

"I hate him!" she declared, with a grimace of disgust. "Ugh, what a beast!"

Smith reflected.

"Maybe, and maybe not," he mused. "I can't just make him out."

At this juncture the front door opened and Brooks entered.

"I saw them drive off," he said, dropping into a chair. "I hope they will stay away in future. That mother and sister of yours make me tired! I can't stand for them, and, what's more, I won't! They'd drive a saint to drink, and I'm no saint and don't purpose to be, either."

His wife began to reproach him for his attack upon Captain Williams and for his general ill humor during the evening, but he cut her short sharply:

"We won't talk about that! Not a word, you understand? Not from you or any one else. That's final!"

"Very well; it's dropped," she said and, angry at last in turn, rose and went to her room.

Indifferently he watched her go, then turned to Smith.

"Got anything to smoke, Jimsy?" he demanded.

"No," he replied, fumbling in his pockets, "as usual, I'm just out, but I'll run around to the corner store and get some cigars."

Left alone, Brooks began to give way to the uneasiness and apprehension that had followed upon his scene with Captain Williams.

"I wonder if Williams will fire me," he muttered. "If he doesn't it's on account of Emma. He acted as if he'd go a long ways for Emma."

He was anxious to know what had happened after his brusque departure. He went into the bedroom and found his wife in tears.

"Don't cry, Emma," he said soothingly, going to her and taking her in his arms. "I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. I know I've got a fierce grouch on tonight, but I can't help it. So would you have one if you'd had to put up with what I have today."

Mrs. Brooks was one of those sweet natured women who could not sulk for more than five minutes if they tried. It needed but his caress and apparent contrition to dispel her resentment.

"You certainly have had cause to worry, dear," she assented.

"After what's happened tonight I'll have to hunt another job," he said. "But I don't care. I'm glad I told the beast what I thought of him. Some day somebody 'll tell him what they think of him and plug him, too, as sure as he's born."

"You'll not have to hunt for another job yet awhile," she told him. "The captain said he would overlook it and that it wouldn't make any difference."

Her husband looked at her in astonishment, half incredulous.

"He said that?"

"Yes, and I'm glad it's turned out as it has, for how we'd manage if you were out of work just now goodness knows. I don't!"

"Just how did he put it?"

"He said he was almighty sorry for what had occurred, that he knew he had been hard at times and that as far as your place and we were concerned there would be no change."

Brooks' relief showed in his face.

"Well, that knocks me," he commented. "Nobody else ever bucked up against him and got off scot free. I can't understand it. Did your mother put in a word for me?"

"No."

"Then it's you who must have a pull. He died right down when you spoke to him. I never would have believed such a thing. If you had been a man standing there in front of him he'd have smashed you. Darn it, I wonder who's ringing now? Can't be Jimsy; he hasn't had time to get to the street at the gait he goes."

He went to the head of the stairs and met a messenger boy who was bearing a letter and had received instructions to wait for an answer.

"Sure!" he exclaimed joyfully as he perused the missive. "Tickled to death! Go and get your things on, Emma. It's from Beatrice Langley and Willie Ferguson. Willie's giving a sort of theater party, and they want us to go with them. There's going to be a little supper afterward."

She shook her head.

"Tell them we can't go."

"Can't go! Why not?"

"I simply can't."

"I don't see why."

"Well, then, I won't; so there! You'd better make some excuse."

"Write it yourself, then," he said, irritated and deeply disappointed. "I'm not going to lie to them."

Without another word she fetched some writing material, indited the note and sent it off by the messenger.

"What's the matter? Are you sore over what happened tonight?" he demanded sulkily.

For the Family

You work to provide for your wife and children. Your ambitions are for them. You intend to make up to your wife the self denials that she has practised. You plan that the girls and the boys shall have their chance; you picture the future by your hope.

But have you had the forethought to realize that death does not halt for any man's hopes, or wait for any man's convenience? Have you made such provisions for the future that your family will receive an income adequate to their needs in case of your death?

By devoting a small part of your income to life insurance, your hopes will become realities to them.

A guaranteed income policy for $1,000 at age 35 costs less than 10c a day and will not lapse if you become unable to pay the premiums in consequence of total and permanent disability from accident or disease, and further if you wish it, the Company will begin immediately to pay the amount due under the policy, not necessarily waiting until it becomes a claim through death.

YOUTHS WARNED NOT TO REPEAT

Charged With Vagrancy They Get Some Good Advice

Two well-known local young men appeared in police court this morning after a week's remand, being charged with vagrancy. They were discharged with a warning from the magistrate as to what would happen them if they persisted in following an evil course. The two young fellows, according to the chief of police, have been lying out late at nights in outhouses. The chief, however, said that he preferred not to give any evidence against them, owing to the respectability of their parents.

"The best day's work you can do," the magistrate remarked, is to say 'I'm going to cut all this out.'"

CITY COUNCIL CONSIDERED POWER, MILK, FIRE AND PARK MATTERS AND ADJOURNED

Legislators Will Rest up for Two Months—Dickson Co. Want $200,000 for Power Property—Will Vote on By-laws on July 28th—Ald. Buller after the Milk By-law [illegible] council last night, when toward the close of the meeting it was moved that the by-law governing the fire station and passed at the previous meeting, be repealed.

Ald. Edgar had in mind the clause which compels the fire chief to report all intended engagements or dismissals to the fire, water and light committee before taking action.

The motion was defeated.

Ald. Morgan, as chairman of the committee, said that the chief was satisfied and that everything was all right.

Mayor Morrow and all the members of the council were present, and after the business of the evening had been concluded, council adjourned for two months.

MILK BY-LAW.

Ald. Buller gave notice that at the next meeting he would bring in a motion asking that the milk by-law be amended to allow of the clause calling for all milk to be delivered in bottles being withdrawn. Ald. Buller said that the price of milk was going to be raised to ten cents if the by-law was enforced.

POWER OPTION.

Ald. Bradburn read the report of the Power committee as follows:

To the council of the city of Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—Your Power committee beg leave to report and follows:

1. We have received from the Dickson company, of Peterborough, an option on their power property at Lakefield, at a purchase price of $200,000.00. The option is to remain open to acceptance until the first of September, 1911, but if the city proceeds before that date to ascertain the cost of development and transmission to Peterborough of electric power from the said water power and also before that date shall have passed a resolution in council to submit a by-law to the ratepayers to authorize the raising of the sum necessary to purchase and develop the water power and for generating and transmission of electric power from there to Peterborough, the option to remain open to the first of November, 1911. In the event of the acceptance of the offer, the purchase [illegible] is to be paid not later than the first day of November, 1912, and no interest shall be charged on the purchase money before the first day of January, 1912, neither from the period thereafter to the first of November, 1912, provided the company retains possession and receives rents and profits. Acting on the authority given by the council at its last meeting, your committee has taken steps towards securing the services of a competent engineer to make a full report on the property and its development and use.

2. We had a meeting with representatives of the Otonabee Power company in regard to their request respecting a lease from the government of dam No. 4 on the Trent canal, and are to meet them again.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. G. MORROW,
Chairman.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The report of the Finance committee recommended the granting of $400 to the West Peterborough Agricultural Society, and that a number of accounts be paid.—Carried.

MONEY FOR PARKS.

The recommendation of the Manufacturers' Committee that a by-law be prepared for submission to the electors asking for $24,000 to be expended on property for park purposes in the south, west and east parts of the city, was carried.

Ald. Metheral thought the amount somewhat large and asked if a smaller sum could not be put before the people through cheaper properties being selected. He also wanted to know just what properties the committee had in view.

Ald. Buller, as chairman, said that the committee had an option on the Chamberlain property on the Boundary road in the west end, extending from Sherbrooke street to King street. In the south, property at the King Edward school was available and in the east there were park sites at the corner of Hunter and Mark streets and at the river front, known as the old McAllister property. The option on this last property is for $8,750. The by-law will be submitted to the ratepayers on July 28th. A straight majority is needed to pass this measure.

VOTING JULY 28.

By-laws to fix the assessment of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company and B. F. Ackerman and Sons were passed. These will also be submitted on July 28th and will require a three-fifths majority of the total votes.

By-laws authorizing the grant of $400 to the West Peterborough Agricultural Society and one authorrizing the closing of that part of Water street north, required by the Auburn Power Company, in connection with their raceway, were passed.

UNIFORMS FOR FIREMEN.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee report, read by Ald. Morgan, contained a recommendation that Geo. Ball be given the contract for the firemen's uniforms at $345. His was the only tender. The report also recommended that the fire chief be given permission to attend the international convention of fire chiefs at Milwaukee, commencing September 19. The chairman of the committee or the mayor may also take in the trip. Expenses will be paid. The report was adopted.

The city trust commissioners will be notified that the plans and specifications for the improvements at the police station are satisfactory to the council.

The city solicitor was authorized to sign the agreement which gives the C.P.R. the right to lay a siding across Sherbrooke street at the east end. The company has already signed.

[illegible] CEDAR HEDGE.

Ald. Duncan reported that he had a tender for a cedar hedge along the south side of the Public Library for $38. His committee were authorized to take action.

REFUND ORDERED.

Ald. Metheral had a list of accounts paid by Mrs. Andrew Grant, of Bolivar street, which she incurred and paid on account of a faulty sewer. It was decided to refund Mrs. Grant $29.80.

Ald. Buller held that the city officials responsible for the work should have that amount deducted from their salary.

Ald. Duncan sparred with the Mayor as to who the officials were, but the names of the neglectful ones were not forthcoming. The mayor put Ald. Buller's motion before the council and it was lost.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

T. Kinnear wrote asking $25 as damages to his stock in his warehouse from a flood of water. He suggested that a drain be constructed on Dalhousie street. The matter was referred to the Legal Committee.

Mr. T. Q. Quartermain asked for two weeks' holidays and was granted them. The city clerk and Ald. Metheral were authorized to attend the meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association in Toronto in August.

CROPS OF CANADA

In Ten Years Grain Production Has Increased in Value 210 Per Cent.

The crops of Canada last year reached in value the sum of $532,992,100. Of this amount grain crops made up $330,492,400. These grain crops have shown an increase in value of 210 per cent. since 1900. Wheat, consisting of both spring and fall varieties, is cultivated from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans, the largest areas devoted to this class of crop being in the provinces of Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, and Alberta. Oats form one of the principal stock feeds, and along with corn and wheat is quite largely used in the cereal food industry. Barley is one of the grain crops that is rapidly coming to the front. Rye is one of the least important of the cereal grains and its production is chiefly confined to Ontario. Field pease is another of the crops which has helped to swell Ontario's large crop production, about ninety per cent. of this crop being raised in Ontario. The production of the buckwheat crop is greatest in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, very little being produced in the Western Provinces. Mixed grains for both grain and fodder production are grown extensively in Ontario and in some sections of both the eastern and western provinces. Flax is largely grown in the prairie provinces, and is used as a feed for stock and for the manufacture of linen. Southwestern Ontario is the section which produces most of the bean crop; the counties of Kent and Elgin supplying nearly one-half of all the beans grown in Canada.

OUR LIVE STOCK

Improvement in All Classes is Reflected in Statistics

The live stock of Canada is valued at $600,000,000. During the year 1910 there were imported into Canada 3,227 pure-bred horses. Of these, 1,985 were of the draft breeds, and 492 of the light legged sorts. Not only in this way is our horse stock rapidly improving, but it is increasing at a reasonably rapid rate, the gain, from 1907 to 1910 being nearly 30,000 head.

The increase in 1910 in the value of cattle was $27,000,000. The improvement is reflected in the increase of trade at Toronto and Montreal where the cattle marketed show a decided improvement in numbers, and a better finish. The increase of trade in cattle at Toronto alone in 1910 over 1909 amounted to 34,539 head.

The estimated increase in the value of sheep in Canada in 1910 over 1909 amounts to $84,000.

Statistics show that the swine population of Canada in 1910 was more than 600,000 short of 1907. It was also less than in 1909 by an estimated valuation of $7,844.

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA

The Grand Trunk Railway system announce that on Tuesdays, June 13th and 27th, July 11th and 25th, August 8th and 22nd, September 5th and 19th, 1911, Homeseekers' Excursions will be run from all stations in Ontario and Quebec to Western Canada, via Chicago, and Duluth or via Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis, at reduced round trip fares.

The well-known double track line of the Grand Trunk from the East to Chicago appeals to the traveller, and with the superior train service that is offered by this line, including the famous "International Limited" from Montreal daily at 9 a.m., and which is the finest and fastest train in Canada, many passengers will be attracted this way. The route via Chicago is a most interesting one, taking passengers through the principal cities and towns in Canada and in the States of Michigan and Indiana. In addition to this a choice of seven lines between Chicago and St Paul and Minneapolis is offered.

Owing to the great number of Canadians who reside in Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and other cities en route, there is no doubt that the Grand Trunk will find many patrons who will take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded them for a brief visit at the stations with their friends.

Canadian citizens are exempt from so-called Immigration examination, and there is no detention at any point.

Baggage is carried through the United States in bond without requiring any special attention on the part of the passenger. Inspection is not necessary at any of the points at the Border.

Another feature that will appeal to the home-seeker is the comfortable transfer at points like Chicago, St. Paul and Duluth into freshly ventilated clean cars, avoiding the necessity of travelling a long distance in the same car.

In addition to the above routes, the sale of tickets is also authorized via Sarnia, and the Northern Navigation Company's magnificent steamers across Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

For further particulars apply to any agent of the Grand Trunk Railway System, or write to Mr. J. Quinlan, District Passenger Agent, Bonaventure Station, Montreal, or Mr. A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto.

BROCKVILLE IMPRESSIONS

Of the Peterboro Rangers and the Band

The following are extracts from the Brockville Times of the 57th regiment on Dominion Day:—

A huge crowd surrounded Court House Square at 8 p.m. when the Rangers Band took their positions opposite the post office building for the advertised concert, which had been awaited with pleasurable anticipation on account of the reputation preceding the organization, ranked as one of the best concert bands in Canada. These expectations were more than realized, for the excellence of the music brought forth rounds of enthusiastic and well deserved applause. Under the guiding baton of Prof. Glidden, the instructor, a rare program of classical and light music was rendered, such as could not fail to appeal to even the most critical. Of the numbers played it would be hard to particularize as each one proved to be a gem.

Mr. W. H. McIlroy, the C. P. R. agent who accompanied the 57th to Brockville, was a popular visitor. He is a skilled musician and his singing and playing was much enjoyed by his Brockville frriends. The C.P.R. train service for the visitors was first-class.

The regiment reformed at 9.30 and immediately marched into Brockville via Perth and King streets, which were lined with people who gave the soldier boys an enthusiastic reception. Headed by the brass and bugle bands, the Rangers marched like clock work, the well proportioned companies keeping admirable time with the air of veterans.

REGRETTED DEATH AT LAKEFIFLD

Passing of J. A. Emmerson at Age of 29 Years

Special Correspondence.

Lakefield, July 3.—The death of a young man at the very zenith of his strength is always a cause of sorrow, and it is with feelings of genuine sorrow that we have to rercord the death of our late fellowtownsman, Mr. J. A. Emersen Moore at the early age of 29 years.

Five years ago he secured a half interest in the lumber and planing mill business with his father, Mr. F. J. Moore. Since that time he has entirely managed the business, and by his strict integrity and probity he readily secured the confidence and goodwill of all with whom he was brought in contact and had built up a profitable business.

He was of a retiring disposition and was ardently devoted to his family and to his business and was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church.

He had not been in good health for some time, but was attending to his work at the mill on Saturday, the 25th ult., as usual.

He had contracted scarlet fever and later pleurisy developed, which resulted in his death at one o'clock a.m. on Wednesday, the 28ult.

When told his end was near he calmly and deliberately gave directions regarding the settlement of his business and peacefully awaited his end with submissive, Christian fortitude.

He is survived by his wife and one child, who, together with his parents and brothers and sisters, have the profound sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

WILD BRONCHOS FEATURE OF WILD WEST SHOW

Thrills of The Thrilliest Kind Are Promised Spectators—Marvelous Feats of Horsemanship

Like every other frontier feature with the Young Buffalo Wild West Show, which will exhibit in Peterborough on Saturday, July 8th, the "bucking" bronchos are the "real thing" is testimony which if offered the emergency hospital mentioned with the big amusement enterprise.

There is not a day in the season but from one to half a dozen cowboys are temporary inmates as a result of their struggles with the equine desperadoes. Men of less rugged physique and trained endurance would never survive the fierce combats. The young Buffalo "buckers" are natural, irreclaimable fighters, and their savage and reckless efforts to throw their riders cannot be estimated. They may be temporarily conquered, after a prolonged and dangerous struggle, requiring extraordinary agility, skill and courage on the part of the riders, but with every effort to mount, comes a renewal of the contest between stubbornness and instinct on the one side, and brains and nerve on the other and in it the nobler animal does not always win the spurs.

In the performance of the "bucking" bronchos and their cowboy riders, it will be noticed that, among the quadrupedal concentrations of chain lightning, no two resort to the same tactics of defence. One will not permit himself to be saddled and mounted before letting out the pent-up deviltry with which his hide is stuffed. Another will quietly submit to being saddled, but that is the limit of his sufferance. To still another, the very sight of a saddle is a signal for war. This one will start humping up his back like a mad cat and landing stiffly on all fours with the force of a pile driver. That one will lie down and stubbornly refuse to budge. Still another will rear and fall backwards with such reckless fury as to nearly beat out his brains. A fourth will kick, strike or bite, or all this and more, too, with a viciousness rendering him more dangerous to a tyro than would be a hungry lion.

There are over 700 men and women with the Young Buffalo Wild West Show, prominent among them being Annie Oakley, the peerless wing and rifle shot of the world; Ambrose Means, the hero of the bloodless hunting trip to East Africa; Buffalo Vernon, the only man living who rode the famous outlaw horse, "Old Steamboat"; Fred Burns, the world's greatest fancy and trick lariat manipulator. A big street parade will be given Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, at which time an idea of the magnitude of this amusement institution may be formed.

COUNTY COUNCIL SESSION

County Council met on Tuesday, June 20, with Warden Cobin in the chair. A by-law authorizing the borrowing of $11,000 for county improvements was passed. The tender of Brent Noxon & Co., re debentures for $109.61 was accepted, and a number of communications referred to committees.

It was decided to procure stress sheets of Lakefield bridge, and foward them to the Dickson Bridge Co., with a view to determining as to the feasibility of putting on concrete floor, also the same with regard to the locks bridge.

At Wednesday's session, the council decided to cede all rights to the government to the Buckhorn bridge and approaches on condition that the government cancel the county's liability to the government of $3000 and keep the bridge open for traffic.

On Thursday the council went to Buckhorn bridge and it was formally transferred to the government. At an evening sesion on Friday, reports were read and adopted and on Saturday, the council carried a motion to give the East and West Peterboro Agricultural Societies an extra grant of $50, also a motion that $100 be paid to Havelock to be expended on roads and streets.

Moved by Mr. Darling, seconded by Mr. Graham, that the Warden and Treasurer, and the chairman of the Finance Committee be authorized to take all necessary steps to redeem and to retire and pay the debentures of the county falling due at the expiry of the present month, and for these purposes they are hereby authorized and empowered to sell, pledge, hypotheeate or otherwise assign or dispose of the debentures of the county, now held by this county in and for the purposes of their sinking fund, and that the Warden and Treasurer be authorized to issue, sign and execute all cheques, agreements, contracts or other documents necessary to give full effect to this resolution and to attach the seal of the county thereto.

The report of the chairman of the road and bridges committee, W. G. Howden, referred to visits to bridges and stated that the contract for the rebuilding of Spencer and Brown's Falls bridges for steel superstructure in each case with concrete floor, for the sum of $4210 had been awarded. The report also recommended that Wards bridge be assumed by the county. Brown's Falls bridge in Burleigh will be built 34 feet north of the old site. The abutments will be built by day labor by Geo. Baptie, Lakefield. A steel superstructure on concrete abutments with concrete floor, will be built at Spencer's bridge and on the old site.

Regarding the payment for the work of building Brown's bridge and diverting the approaches, it was decided.

That from the fact that Dr. Reaume the Minister of Public Works gave the deputation the assurance that he would recommend to his Government the paying over of half of the expenditure, that the Clerk write to the Department with a view to having a government engineer to the county and make an estimate of the cost so as to enable the minister of state to his government the amount that will be necessary.

The railing on Little Bob bridge will be extended some 225 feet to protect traffic.

FINANCE REPORT.

Regular report of the chairman of the Finance Committee.

June, 1911.

To the members of the standing committee on finance for the year 1911

Gentlemen—In presenting my report consisting principally of recommendations, that I submit to your considerations, I will be as brief as possible.

As set out in the address from the warden's chair, you will again permit me to refer to the increase of expenditure over which we have no control and the same being authorized by the legislature, will appeal to you as being just and consistent with the cost of living, traveling expenses etc.

In increasing the Juror's fees, the legislative members of our province deemed it advisable to increase other professional fees for the discharge of their duties, when called upon. No doubt the different amendments will be discussed during the session.

The Warden also referred to the deficit at the end of 1910, due to a multiplicity of cases requiring investigation and although the total amount levied for all purposes by the council in 1910 was $30,530.73, which fell short by $5,637.17, at the same time I trust that my recomending to you that you will sanction the levying of $32,889.58 thereby raising the sum of $2358.85 more than last year, after taking into estimated expenditure the sum of $5,637.17 before referred to being the amount in excess of levy last year, or in other words deficit Dec. 31, 1910.

The Board of Management of the House of Refuge through me respectfully submit for your approval an amount they deem necessary to carry on that institution this year, which will be seen further on.

The Provincial Government has notified the treasurer that the sum of $1158.00 will be forwarded to this county as a grant to be duplicated by the county and all rural sections levied for an equivalent.

The rates necessary if approved of by you are as follows —

General rate, 3 mills or in all	26891.58
House of Refuge 54-100 mills, or in all	4840.00
Schools rate 147-100 mills, or in all	1158.00

Debentures issued 1891 borrowing $20,000 spreading over a period of 20 years mature now and a sinking having provided partly in the ordinary way, and partly otherwise, requires your attention now, before the 30th of this month, and to order either the selling of sufficient of the debentures held by the county to meet the amount together with the provisions to 1911 inclusive, or hypothecate the same in lieu of an advance from the bank.

In submitting the above, I look forward to the same united effort as you have put forth in all the other departments in the interest of the county at large.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) F. MOHER
Chairman of Finance Comittee

Another interesting part of the program, was reports by the delegates, who had attended the Presbyterial of the W.F.M.S. of the Peterboro Presbytery at Cobourg.

Mrs. Shurter gave a general impression of the conference and Miss McFarlane spoke of the session held Tuesday morning and afternoon.

Mrs. Penrose's talk consisted of praise of the general hospitality of the ladies of Cobourg.

Mrs. (Rev.) H. J. Keith described the evening meeting, and spoke of the address of Mr. Ross, of Honan, China.

The efforts of Mrs. McKenzie, who has been acting president in the absence of Mrs. McPherson, were much appreciated by the society.

Kingston Held Holiday.

Kingston, July 4.—Monday was a holiday in Kingston, which preferred to keep that day in honor of Dominion Day. Horse races and a baseball match were held in the fair grounds by the United Roman Catholic societies. Although the mayor had proclaimed Monday as a holiday, the civic treasury department was unable to observe it, as the banks had their holiday on Saturday, and the Monday holiday was not legal.

Died In House of Industry.

Brockville, July 4.—James Winksworth, at one time an accountant in the Bank of England, died at the Athens house of industry, where he had been an inmate since the opening of the house. Previously the old man had taught school in various sections of Grenville County. Owing to advanced age and having no home or friends he entered the House of Refuge.

Side Swipe Killed Two.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 4.—Two persons were killed and seventeen others injured when a Penna Railway train from Broad Street Station for Atlantic City sideswiped the Atco local at Lucaston, 15 miles below Camden.

The accident was due to the mistake of the brakeman of the Atco train, who threw the cross-over switch instead of the siding switch.

The Warden also referred to the deficit at the end of 1910, due to a multiplicity of cases requiring investigation and although the total amount levied for all purposes by the council in 1910 was $30,550.73, which fell short by $5,637.17, at the same time I trust that my recomending to you that you will sanction the levying of $32,889.58 thereby raising the sum of $2358.85 more than last year, after taking into estimated expenditure the sum of $5,637.17 before referred to being the amount in excess of levy last year, or in other words deficit Dec. 31, 1910.

The Board of Management of the House of Refuge through me respectfully submit for your approval an amount they deem necessary to carry on that institution this year, which will be seen further on.

The Provincial Government has notified the treasurer that the sum of $1158.00 will be forwarded to this county as a grant to be duplicated by the county and all rural sections levied for an equivalent.

The rates necessary if approved of by you are as follows —

General rate, 3 mills or in all	26891.58
House of Refuge 54-100 mills, or in all	4840.00
Schools rate 147-100 mills, or in all	1158.00

Debentures issued 1891 borrowing $20,000 spreading over a period of 20 years mature now and a sinking having provided partly in the ordinary way, and partly otherwise, requires your attention now, before the 30th of this month, and to order either the selling of sufficient of the debentures held by the county to meet the amount together with the provisions to 1911 inclusive, or hypothecate the same in lieu of an advance from the bank.

In submitting the above, I look forward to the same united effort as you have put forth in all the other departments in the interest of the county at large.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) F. MOHER
Chairman of Finance Comittee

MRS. J. McPHERSON WAS REMEMBERED

Was Presented With Life Membership in W.F.M.S.

The special feature of the closing meeting of the Knox Church, W.F.M.S. was the presentation to the president, Mrs John McPherson, of a Life Membership in the W.F.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The presentation was made from the Knox Church Mission Band, and through the efforts in the Sunday school classes by Mrs. J. Keith and Miss Bernice Garside. Mrs. McPherson, who has lately returned from a trip to Vancouver B.C., entertained the ladies while at luncheon, with a vivid description of Chinatown, B.C.

Another interesting part of the program was reports by the delegates, who had attended the Presbyterial of the W.F.M.S. of the Peterboro Presbytery at Cobourg.

Mrs Shurter gave a general impression of the conference and Miss McFarlane spoke of the session held Tuesday morning and afternoon.

Mrs Penrose's talk consisted of praise of the general hospitality of the ladies of Cobourg.

Mrs. (Rev.) H. J. Keith described the evening meeting, and spoke of the address of Mr. Ross, of Honan, China.

The efforts of Mrs. McKenzie, who has been acting president in the absence of Mrs. McPherson, were much appreciated by the society.

CHAPTER SIX

YOU can get from us the stenographer you need.

WE maintain, at very considerable expense, the largest Employment Department in Canada.

LAST year at Toronto alone we received over 5,000 applications for stenographers. Applicants are tested and graded. We know their capabilities. We supply the most efficient worker for the salary the employer will pay.

THE service is absolutely free. It is an invaluable convenience to employers, and a boon to the hundreds of young people who obtain through it their means of livelihood.

AND it is merely one phase of Underwood Service.

Kingston Held Holiday.

Kingston, July 4.—Monday was a holiday in Kingston, which preferred to keep that day in honor of Dominion Day. Horse races and a baseball match were held in the fair grounds by the United Roman Catholic societies. Although the mayor had proclaimed Monday as a holiday, the civic treasury department was unable to observe it, as the banks had their holiday on Saturday, and the Monday holiday was not legal.

Died In House of Industry.

Brockville, July 4.—James Winksworth, at one time an accountant in the Bank of England, died at the Athens house of industry, where he had been an inmate since the opening of the house. Previously the old man had taught school in various sections of Grenville County. Owing to advanced age and having no home or friends he entered the House of Refuge.

Side Swipe Killed Two.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 4.—Two persons were killed and seventeen others injured when a Penna Railway train from Broad Street Station for Atlantic City sideswiped the Atco local at Lucaston, 15 miles below Camden.

The accident was due to the mistake of the brakeman of the Atco train, who threw the cross-over switch instead of the siding switch.

COLLEGIATE EXAMS.

The promotions are based not only on the results of the Christmas. Easter and June written examinations, but also on each pupil's class work, diligence, good conduct, and regular attendance.

Pupils promoted provisionally will be liable to a "recall" unless they show a marked improvement in the subject or subjects opposite their names.

Reports of their marks will be sent only to those who have failed.

Both the Normal Entrance and the Junior Matriculation courses will henceforth require four years. Only pupils who combine close application with more than average ability will be able to pass these examinations in three years.

The necessity for this change arises from the fact that the standard is being materially raised. For example, in 1910 a 40 per cent. aggregate was sufficient for the Junior Matriculation examination. This year it has been raised to 50 per cent. Next year a 60 per cent. aggregate will be necessary.

Owing to this change in organization, there will be only one examination form in the Middle School next year, and it will be known as Form IV.

PIONEER IN THE NEWSPAPER WORK

Former Peterborough Man Succeeding in the West

Mr. C. H. Sawle, who was city editor of the Daily Review, and who went out to Prince Rupert two years ago, and with his brother took hold of the "Optimist," and eventually sold out that property, writes to a friend here, and affords some news of the district in which he is now living:

"I had a wonderful trip a couple of weeks ago. We went down the coast several hundred miles, and then went inland up three of those many arms of the sea which characterize the Pacific coast. The scenery up there surpasses anything I have yet seen. There are several hot springs along the route, and we stopped at one and had a bath. We stripped off in the bush and got into the big tub. There was a fair breeze and the snow was only a short distance up the mountain, but we enjoyed the hot weather and felt like new men after we got dressed again. What is known as the Gardeners' canal is one of the world's greatest hunting grounds. We saw three flocks of wild goats and three bears. There is no land within miles of this inlet; the banks are solid rocks and go straight up from the water's edge. There is great timber up there and that is what we were after. We took a cargo of supplies up to the Indians and we gathered together 400,000 feet of the finest timber I ever saw. Some of the logs were as thick through as I am tall. We towed these down with us and sent the tug on up to the mills while we stopped at Rupert. We were out eight days and we enjoyed every minute of it.

The weather out here has been glorious, and naturally the contractors are making great progress with the street grading. A lot of the mountains we saw have been cut away and many valleys have been filled up. It is amusing to hear newcomers talk about the place. It also makes you mad. I saw Ald. Bradburn in Vancouver some weeks ago. I gave him a set of photographs of the town, so if you want to see what is going on ask to see these post cards.

I have just returned from a trip up the Skeena river. I went as far as Hazelton and was so impressed with the country that I bought out the Omineca Herald, of that town, and take possession on July 1st. Mrs. Sawle will go up with me and we will spend the winter up there. I expect [illegible] pretty lonely as there are mails only once a week, and then only what a dog team can carry. In the spring I will move the plant over to New Hazelton, across the Buckley river and on the G.T.P. That town will cause the next sensation in the real estate world. The plant is a splendid one and very much better than I expected to find up there. It is a great money maker, as it is in the heart of the land-staking district, and there should be five or six thousand dollars worth of these this year. George is opening up a job plant here and he will be started about the same time that I will take over the Herald, so you see we will both be working again after a long holiday. The trip up the river is a wonderful one, and when the road is completed it will be very popular with the tourists, as the tracks run right alongside the river. It is also a great country for agricultural and horticultural purposes."

ILLEGAL SHOOTING

Offenders Caught and their Outfits Confiscated

Fishery Inspector Kane, made another haul yesterday, when he caught several local young fellows, unlawfully shooting geese and partridge on the premises of J. Chambers, on the Otonabee River, just across from the T.A.S. Park. He confiscated the guns and boats belonging to the young fellows, and prosecution may follow.

HEAT IS SIZZLER

Relief Promised in a Few Hours With Thunderstorms.

Toronto, July 5.—The climax has been reached. That is the best piece of encouragement to be had out of the heat wave story yesterday. But that does not mean either that the mercury is down far enough or that it will go down appreciably for some days. The latest reports from the Meteorological Office indicate that the long-suffering people of this province must put up with close attentions from the sun until the end of the week.

The highest point registered by official thermometers in Toronto yesterday was 97, between noon and one o'clock.

London, Ont., was highest in Ontario with 101. Montreal showed 94, Quebec 88, and Ottawa 86.

The weather man is inclined to be pessimistic, and he will not commit himself to promise any material change for several days. The intelligence that the hot blast is passing over the border is some consolation, anyway for Canadians, along with the fact that the wind—or what was said to be the wind—shifted from southwest to east, bringing a promise of thunderstorms for to-day. These, however, may not reach Toronto until to-morrow. Storms were general in Quebec and the eastern provinces.

Two more deaths have occurred in Toronto from the heat and many prostrations.

Two Deaths In Hamilton.

Hamilton, July 5.—J. F. Hogan, 28 years old, the second victim of the present hot weather, died at the city hospital at 5.30 yesterday afternoon. He was overcome early yesterday afternoon at the C.P.R. construction camp west of the high level bridge, where he was employe as craneman on the steam shovel.

Napanee Woman Dead.

Kingston, July 5.—It was very warm yesterday, but it was not as bad as on Monday. At 8 a.m. the thermometer was 71 in the shade. It is claimed Kingston is the coolest place in the province during the summer. At 3 p.m. the highest point recorded was 82.6. At Napanee Mrs. John Williams dropped dead from the effects of the heat. It was one hundred degrees there Monday.

Heat Was Fatal.

Windsor, July 5.—Thomas Kenny, foreman for the S., W. & A. Street Railway, died early yesterday morning from a paralytic stroke brought on by heat. He worked as usual Monday, but became prostrated late on Monday night.

Premier Stolypin to Retire?

St. Petersburg, July 5.—Premier Stolypin, according to The Bourse Gazette, is ill, having become over-fatigued by state duties. Berlin doctors have advised the Prime Minister to take an extended and complete rest.

It is rumored that M. Stolypin will retire from office and, with his family, take the cure at Elsterbad, Germany.

Restored His Hearing.

Kingston, July 5.—As the result of being struck by a train, Louis Renaud of Alymer, Que., who was deaf for many years, has recovered his hearing. Renaud was walking along the Grand Trunk tracks near Bath, when he was hit by the train and thrown through a barbed wire fence. He had several ribs broken and also suffered a severe scalp wound but is doing nicely at the general hospital. His hearing is now good, and Renaud says that the bumps he got from the train were better than anything an ear specialist could do.

More and more acute is the interest shown among the technical men of the army and navy in the great problem of upwatering and raising the Maine, now being carried out in Havana arbor. The last reports showed that army engineers were examining the dam with anxious care. The fact that this critical examination might last for ten days or two weeks has taken attention omentarily from the sunken ship itself to the great cofferdam that envelops her.

FLAMES SPREAD IN FORESTS AROUND PORCUPINE CAMP

Miners on the Dome Extension Sat on Dynamite Boxes in Midst of Roaring Bush—Rain Promised.

North Bay, July 5.—Porcupine gold camp still lies hot and quaking with smoldering flames everywhere, only awaiting for another gale like Sunday to continue the work of destruction so well begun on that eventful day. Large columns of smoke can be seen coming down distant townships, indicating that the fire area is ever widening. News reached Porcupine yesterday morning that the fire had swept through Bristol Township, where some very rich finds have recently been made. A host of prospectors are in Bristol, and grave anxiety is felt for their safety. All day Monday and Tuesday weary and scorched prospectors have been straggling into northern settlements with sorry tales of camps which had to be abandoned to the hungry flames with all their equipment and supplies, while the occupants were forced to fly for safety, many having to take to the water for refuge from the intense heat and flying embers. Fortunately the north country is well supplied with lakes and rivers, which will prove the salvation of many prospectors.

Capt. Anchor of Dome Extension Mine was nearly blinded by smoke and cinders, and tells a graphic story of the fierce fight to save the plant and lives of employes. When it was seen that the fight was almost hopeless, Capt. Anchor told the men they could go or stay as suited them, but most of the employes stuck to him and fought stubbornly as long as a drop of water remained for the buckets.

At last, almost dead with exhaustion, suffocated with smoke and blistered with heat, the command was given for each man to take a pail of water and keep his clothing from taking fire. Only one building was left standing and that the powder house, and here Capt. Archer and his men made their last stand for shelter from the flying cinders and blistering heat, and, seated on boxes of dynamite and powder, with the door closed to keep out sparks from the blazing inferno outside, the men sat and rested amid the roar of flames and crashing of falling timber, as the monarch of the forest burned through and fell to the ground.

A twist of the wind took the flames in another direction and red death passed by.

REBATING AND COMMISSIONS THE EVILS OF BUSINESS TO-DAY

Wholesale Grocers Want Fixed Prices on Proprietary Articles—Houses Doing Business on Dishonorable Lines

Toronto, July 5.—"We strongly urge that there be a permanent commissioner appointed by the Government of the Dominion, and vested with authority to examine and approve, or disapprove, of such fixed prices as might be imposed on proprietary articles by the manufacturer, so that proper protection would be rendered all parties concerned — manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer.

"Notwithstanding a special act in the criminal code to prevent rebating by giving secret commissions, which was recently passed by the Dominion Government the practice still goes on and is the very worst form of commercial corruption in the commercial world to-day."

The foregoing statement was made by Hugh Blain at the opening meeting of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild convention at the King Edward Hotel yesterday. It was during the discussion which followed the address of President F. T. Smyle, in which the principle that it was a good thing for the trade and the general public to maintain a uniform standard of prices was strongly upheld. The meeting appeared to endorse the view that price-cutting and rebating were twin evils to be reprehended in no small measure.

In opening his address the president urged that a permanent secretary be appointed for the organization, so that the entire time of one man at least could be given over to the work of the guild. He showed how much progress was being made along every line of the guild's work, making such an appointment practically a necessity.

"We have called this Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild together to confer on trade matters and to transact business and create reforms," said Mr. Smyle, "and this not only for our personal advantage, but for the common good of the grocery trade of the country."

"With reference to houses which are still conducting their business along dishonorable lines — there are not many, but there are some well-known," he said. "It is to be hoped that this convention will formulate some plan before dispersing that will completely eliminate dishonorable methods from the wholesale grocery business, and I feel that we can do this if we keep together. The laws on the statute book protect us, and a plan will be submitted subject to that approbation of the trade which will put a stop to this rebating and to other dishonorable methods."

"We have frequent complaints from the retailer that some jobbers are trespassing on their rights, selling to consumers such as boarding houses, small restaurants, etc., and it is in the interests of legitimate trade, as on the other side we think it grossly unfair for the manufacturer to sell to the retailer. Let us consider this vital point—the retailer must be protected or the whole structure will be destroyed and we will drift into the troubles experienced in England and the United States of chain stores, buying exchanges, etc.

In the program of the convention, it is shown that out of 57 wholesale grocers in Ontario, 52 belong to the guild. The number of traveling salesmen is about 400, and the number of clerks, salesmen and warehousemen in the employ of the guild is 2,000.

MILLION DOLLAR GIFT TO McGILL

Sir William MacDonald Makes Another Donation

Montreal, July 5.—At a meeting of the governors of McGill University yesterday, it was announced that Sir William Macdonald had completed the purchase of the Molson and Law estates on the slope of the Mountain, adjoining Mount Royal Park, and that it was the intention of Sir William to present the property to McGill University to be used by it for extension purposes, the leading feature of which will be a new campus and residential buildings. The purchase price of the properties is given as over a million dollars. Including the cost of Macdonald College and its endowment, this brings the total of Sir William Macdonald's gifts to McGill to within a few thousand dollars of $10.000.000.

SCOUTS GO ON A LONG TRAMP

A Unique March by Cleveland Boys

Chatham, Ont., July 5.—Under the leadership of Scoutmasters W. L. Chandler, W. S. Crackle and Kist Senty, five boy scouts, representing Cleveland Y.M.C.A., passed through Chatham yesterday morning. The scouts left Cleveland Saturday, July 1. They were landed at Erie Beach, and from there traveled to The Eau Saturday night. They stopped at the Eau over Sunday, and marched on to Chatham yesterday morning. They left here for London, St. Thomas and Port Stanley, and from the latter place they will embark for their home city. The scouts travel ten or fifteen miles a day, doing all their marching in the morning. Last year, so Scoutmaster Chandler says, they marched to the Ohio River, covering 225 miles in two weeks. This year they will not travel so far on account of the intense heat.

Sweetheart as Child.

Toronto, July 5.—As the culmination of a childhood romance, Rechab Tandy, a well-known soloist, married Miss Annie Wiley of Kingston a few days ago. Mr. Tandy is well known in musical circles, and it will come as a surprise to many of his musical friends to hear of his second marriage. Mr. Tandy and his bride attended the same school near Kingston. Miss Wiley, who is 70 years of age, became heir to a fortune of about $60,000 a few months ago.

WESTERNERS WOULDN'T LISTEN TO THE LOCAL CANDIDATE

But Mr. Borden and Party Got a very Attentive Hearing at Melville.

Melville, Sask., July 5.—An unusual turn was given to the meeting at Melville yesterday afternoon. Mr. Borden was given an enthusiastic personal reception and his arguments were accorded attentive hearing. His policy of western issues elected frequent cheers, his utterances on reciprocity were heard in quietness, though they were not often applauded, but when a western Conservative Harvey Hearn of Wadena, Sask., and formerly of Nova Scotia, began to argue the same issues it speedily brought down a storm of interruptions, antagonistic and favorable, and the chairman was compelled to ask for order. The western people gave their visitors a polite and attentive hearing, but they felt Mr. Hearn, who is to be a Conservative candidate of Humboldt at the next election, was one of themselves, and they treated him accordingly.

Hand-Car Hit Him.

Chatham, July 5.—William Hosey, an employe of the M.C.R., fell off the hand-car Monday evening near Charing Cross. He fell diagonally across the rail in front of the car, which did not run over him, but bruised his side and left thigh, breaking the skin considerably. It was a very painful accident, the victim receiving the whole impact of the car, as well as the lacerations sustained. He was taken to his home in North Buxton.

Chicago, July 5.—As a result of the "Safe and Sane" Independence Day movement, the figures for yesterday show the smallest number of casualties ever recorded. All over the country only twenty-four persons were killed. Last fourth of July one hundred and thirty-one persons were killed and eight hundred and eighty-one were injured, while in 1903, four hundred and sixty-six met death.

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

UNION LABEL

DEATH TO INDUSTRIES

The Grain growers who put up the arguments in favor of reciprocity to Mr. Borden at Saskatoon are the most ferocious he has yet met on his western tour. One man made the announcement that the "manufacturers have got their hands bloody with the life gore of the farmers." This speaker also said that "Soon we will have not only reciprocity, but also a large reduction of the tariff on manufactured articles. This will have to come" and this; "There is no reason for the continuance of the tariff now."

The speakers, in presenting their memorials to Mr. Borden were specially emphatic this time in their antagonism to anything that savored of the manufacturing east. Free trade was their ideal, and they would kill protection and crush the life out of Canadian industries. These farmers are not like the farmers of the east—content to give and take with the workingmen and the business men of the country in the matter of prosperity. The grain growers—or that section of them which has been active in boosting for Laurier for years —would throw open Canada's door to the United States manufacturers, just as President Taft would like to have it, and make the Canadian west a backyard of Chicago.

This reciprocity fight is the old fight of 1891 over again. Sir John Macdonald opposed unrestricted reciprocity that time, with his famous declaration, "a British subject I was born; a British subject I will die," Edward Blake broke away from the Liberal party because he saw that unrestricted reciprocity would lead to Canada's industrial ruin. Now we have the Saskatoon grain growers demanding what is practically the same thing: reciprocity not only in natural products, but the abolition of the tariff wall that makes the Canadian industrial conditions so much better right now than the American market is.

It is obvious that Mr. Borden could return only one answer to such suicidal selfishness as this. It is safe to say that the majority of the western farmers do not take the extreme stand of desiring to bury the stiletto of free trade deep into the heart of Canadian industrialism. But the leaven is in the west and it is working. And it constitutes the Great Divide for Canadian political life.

These grain growers have expressed somewhat grudging approval of Mr. Borden's stand on what might be termed purely western questions; they could not do otherwise. Their evident unwillingness to give him the full credit in their memorials shows that those presenting and preparing the memorials are not actuated by merely a set of economic opinions, free from political bias; but that they are watching for every opportunity to score a point for the Laurier administration.

Easterners do not understand that the affairs of the grain growers associations are managed by about half a dozen men at central headquarters who attend to the constant campaigning in the Liberal interests. They do not realise that the ordinary western farmer expresses himself only through the ballot, leaving to these political agents the operation of the megaphone and the play to the gallery. The reception of Mr. Borden by the audiences in the west, the cheers that have greeted his straight anti-reciprocity talk is evidence that the PEOPLE—not the Grit free-traders— are thinking for themselves.

There is danger if the Grain-growers can carry the west with them in their wreck and ruin policy, and it may be that Mr. Borden's tour came just in time.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Have you been counted in the census or was the census man afraid to tackle you with his list of questions?

"What I have I'll hold" may be the motto of young Mr. Kerr, but the party bosses say that he's a wise man who knows when to duck.

Mr. Stratton tells in his speech of the government construction work he has secured in two years for this riding. Why should not he be able to induce the government to build here a home for penniless Farmers' Bank shareholders?

Now that Mr. Stratton has announced himself as plainly in favor of reciprocity, the Peterborough voters who favor a policy of Canadian goods for Canadian people, and no Canadian tariff made at Washington, will know just how to mark their ballots.

Laurier is on his way back to Canada. He returns triumphantly, having succeeded in blocking every effective measure proposed at the conference for closer imperial unity. "Let Laurier finish his work," and succeed in having Canada drop away from the empire, "as the ripe fruit falls from the parent tree," as Sir Wilfrid expresses it.

Miss Sheahan, of Toronto, who was hurt in a street car collision, got a verdict for $15,000 damages. She was a clever business woman, earning about $4,000 a year. She wasn't satisfied, and on a re-trial got $10,000. It is the old fable of the greedy boy and the filberts modernised.

Hartley Dewart, K.C., now the Liberal candidate in Centre York, said in February that the government had no mandate from the people to make a sweeping fiscal change, as reciprocity had not been before the people since 1896. But its a diamond tie pin to a hunk of coal that Hartley Dewart won't say now that the government didn't have a mandate for reciprocity.

It is important that the townships of West Peterborough should be well represented at the Conservative convention on the evening of July 18. The rural part of the riding is as important as the city part, and every township should have a full representation of delegates. The coming contest promises to be unusually hot and bitter, and it is important that the voice of all Conservatives of the riding should be heard in the selection of candidates.

To Clean Bronze.

Bronzes which have become dull and lusterless with age can be immensely improved by the simple means of washing them with a soapy sponge and then rinsing them in beer. Old directions say the rinsed bronzes should be placed close to the fire while still wet and allowed to dry of themselves. This is supposed to produce the dull leaden glaze which is characteristic of good bronze. The less soap used the better. To clean bronzes in the ordinary way with plenty of hot water and a strong lather will be apt to injure their appearance.

Street Car Strike In Mexico.

Mexico City, July 5.—Persons who reside in the outskirts of the city and the suburbs, if not fortunate enough to own an automobile or a carriage, came to business yesterday in improvised vehicles of every sort. Others walked. The street car strike, declared at noon on Monday, was on in full blast.

None of the 1,500 strikers reported for work. No effort was made to operate the street cars, though it was stated by the company officials that service might be resumed before night if they were convinced that they would be given adequate police protection. At the company's offices it was declared that enough men could be mustered.

"No, I'm not sore, Joe."

"Then why can't you go?"

"Because I can't. That's all!"

"I think you might. If you didn't want to go yourself you might have accepted for my sake. I never get any amusement, and you're always complaining."

"When do I complain, and of what?"

"It's the selfish way you act, I mean. for, once we get a chance to go and see a decent show and afterward have a supper party, you get sore. You simply don't want to go. You haven't any consideration for me."

Burning with indignation, she went up to him and forced him to look her in the face.

"You say I have no consideration for you!" she said. "You know as well as I do why I can't go. I haven't had a new dress in a year. My gloves are all worn out. I've skimped and struggled and economized until I can't do any more. I'd go to the theater if I could go alone or with you or with Jimsy and hide somewhere in the corner, but do you think I want to go to a party looking like a kitchen maid? My shoes are cracked. Everything is secondhand and old and ugly. And look at me! Do you know what's happened to me? I've grown common and coarse and cheap. Sometimes when I look at myself in the glass it seems as though I could see the dirt and the grease and the horrid nastiness of it all staring me right in the face. Why don't I go? I'm ashamed, that's all. And you make it harder. It has almost reached my limit of endurance."

She turned from him, tears of vexation and humiliation in her eyes.

As she did so Smith, the peacemaker, entered. He had arrived in time to hear the last part of the confession that had been forced from her by her husband's injustice and selfishness.

"Emma," he said soothingly, "there ain't no use in making Joe feel worse than he does. He works like the devil, but somehow Joe wasn't built exactly lucky. He is one of those fellows like I used to know in Colorado who spend all their lives looking for a gold mine and never quite find one. But Joe's all right, and just to make this eventful sort of evening end up nicely I'm going to hike to the best show in town, and you two are going to hit my trail while I dig up the necessary spondulics to defray any and all expense incurred, including a slight and select grub stake after the entertainment. Now, what do you think of that?"

Brooks, who had been listening to his wife and friend sullenly, was filled with a sudden resolve.

"No, you won't!" he said tempestuously. "I ain't going to be an object of charity. I'm as sick and tired of this whole business as she is. Emma, you put on the best dress you've got and fix yourelf up the best you can, and I'll take you to a show, and if Jimsy wants to come he can come as my guest. I'm still a man, and it's just as right I should take care of my wife and let her have a little fun as it is for the Astors and Vanderbilts and all of them to spend money on their families. I'm going to do it, and I don't care whether I can afford it or not. I can find a way all right. Hurry up, Emma!"

Mrs. Brooks would much rather have stayed at home. She was worn out with the constant quarreling and exciting happenings of the evening, but she did not want to be accused of contrariness. So she said:

"If you think we can really afford it I'd like to go. I haven't seen a show in nearly a year. Do you think I'd better go, Jimsy?"

"Why, surely, my girl," was Smith's reply. "There's no use of sticking around here all the time and getting into more rows. Go ahead!"

"Then I'll hurry and get ready," she said, hastening to her room.

Brooks had seated himself and was gazing before him with a determined expression, his hands clasped between his knees. Smith went to him and tendered a bill to him.

"Joe," he said kindly, "you'd better let me slip you the ten that will be necessary to pay for this business. You know Emma don't need to know, and you ain't got the coin to blow in."

"Yes, I have," he asserted, pushing the note from him, "and I'll pay for it myself."

"All right, Joe. But, take my tip, when you go into the borrowing business you'd better borrow from the fellow who knows he's giving it to you and ain't in a hurry to get it back."

"Look here, Jimsy!" exclaimed Brooks hotly, jumping up. "Don't you butt into my business. It's none of your affair! And, by the way, it might be just as well to remind you that Emma's my wife—my wife, you hear? She married me, no one else—just me—although I've been told she had other chances at the time."

Smith gazed at him without any trace of offense, but with a look of pain in his eyes.

"I'm sorry you said that, Joe," he answered in his slow, quiet voice. "Yes, I know Emma's your wife and that she chose you after I asked her to be mine! and it is just because I do know that that I don't want you to go wrong, and for just that same reason I want you to understand that if you ever get into a tight hole you can gamble on me for help, and I—I ain't always been a spendthrift. Good night!"

"I'm sorry you said that, Joe."

"You're not going, then?" inquired Brooks as his friend moved toward the hall, but there was nothing in the tone of the query designed to encourage the great hearted fellow to accompany them.

"No; you two had better go together," he replied as he passed out.

When he had gone Brooks drew quickly from the inside pocket of his waistcoat the pocketbook containing the collections in checks and bills that he had not had time to turn in to the company, extracted a bill of $10 and returned the wad to its hiding place.

Emma emerged from the bedroom with her hat and jacket on.

"Why, where's Jimsy?" she asked.

"He went home. He said he guessed he'd better not come, as he wanted to get up early, or something or other," lied Brooks.

"I wonder why he changed his mind so suddenly," she said.

It was 9 o'clock when they found themselves in the street, and Brooks decided on a vaudeville show as being the only possible place of entertainment they could go to at that hour. It had been so long since they had permitted themselves the extravagance of a night out that Mrs. Brooks enjoyed the change to the full. Watching the actors and laughing at their jokes and antics, she forgot for the time her worries, and the painful impression of the early evening was completely dispelled. As the performance progressed Brooks also underwent a change of mood, and by the time the curtain fell he had softened to something of his old self and was tender and attentive.

When they found themselves outside again she was for going straight home.

"No," he said gayly, squeezing her arm that she had passed under his and patting her hand affectionately; "we are out for a good time for once, and we're going to have it."

She demurred feebly, wanting to go, but feeling that scruple on the ground of expense which, from the necessity of exercising strict and unrelenting economy, entered into all her household expenditures, but he brushed aside her cautious calculations, and soon they were seated in a restaurant of quite imposing aspect, and he was ordering broiled lobsters and wine with the air of a man to whom money was no object. He was in rare high spirits and gallant with a tenderness he had not manifested toward her in many a moon. He chattered and chattered, and his animation communicated itself to her, so that her eyes sparkled, her pretty face was wreathed in happy smiles, and she returned his glances of love and admiration as in the happy days of their early married life, when they were all in all to each other and there was none so handsome and so noble minded as he in all the world.

CHAPTER VII.

SOMETHING untoward was happening or impending at the extensive piers and docks of the Latin-American Steamship company on South street, Manhattan. This had been evident from an early hour, for when as whistle sounding time approached the workmen trooped toward the docks and warehouses to begin their daily toil they found groups of policemen stationed about the approaches to the Latin-American line's property. On the faces of the men who entered its gates was an expression of expectancy and determination.

The earliest man to arrive saw the tall, gaunt form of Mr. Smith, the superintendent, standing at the door of the office building. He had been working hard while they slept, but there was no evidence of his all night labor upon his cheerful visage, nor was any sign of anxiety or of the knowledge that any unusual situation had arisen discernible in his phlegmatic demeanor. He appeared to be enjoying the morning air and his cigar without a care in the world. His presence there at that hour was the only indication that he expected trouble. He had not allowed one policeman to remain within the gates. Hardly a man passed in but saluted him verbally or with a touch of the hat, and not a salute was given without being acknowledged. To some he responded with a genial smile and a "Hello, Tom!" or "Howdy, Bill!"

When they had started their work, which was to be stopped completely at 10 o'clock, he vanished upstairs, nor was he seen again until the hands of the clock approached that hour and the strike leaders began to go among the restless men. Then he sauntered out, ordered work stopped, and, mounting a crate of merchandise, assembled the men about him.

Refused to Return Money.

St. Catharines, July 5.—Kirkar Vartaramm and Abel Kharjayann were arrested Monday night, charged with fraudulently omitting to pay certain money entrusted to them as officers of the Arreck Educational Society. The men, who were employed at the McKinnon Dash Works, had been president and secretary respectively of the society. Saturday, new officers were elected and the old ones refused to hand over the funds. The amount involved was between $1,600 and $1,700. Yesterday in the Police Court $1,525 was produced by the defeated officers. A member of the society was sent to recover the amount of the balance, and the case was remanded a week, Magistrate Campbell meanwhile keeping the money as a trustee.

A Border Outrage.

St. Catharines, July 5.—Miss A. D. Parry, one of the best-known residents of Dunnville, Haldimand County, was on her way to Buffalo to see her cousin, of whose serious and possibly fatal illness she had been apprised.

In spite of the fact that she had a return ticket, she was taken off the train at Black Rock, put through a severe cross-examination, and although vouched for by M. L. Parry, J. W. Gray, former G.T.R. agent here, and others, was sent back to this side.

The outrage is all the more surprising from the fact that Miss Parry is, and has been for twenty years or more, owner of property in Buffalo.

Crap Shooters Caught.

Chatham, July 5.—D. Johnston, Frank Hurst, Oliver Henson, Lewis Arnold, John Lewis, Harry Barnes, Jacob Harris and Daniel Harris, all colored, are scheduled to come up in the Police Court on Friday, charged with gambling with dice on Sunday morning. The young men were caught shooting crap in a discarded railway coach on the Pere Marquette siding in the east end by Officer Tom Groves.

Boy Dies of Lockjaw.

St. Catharines, July 5.—Aaron, the 13-year-old son of Mrs. Joseph Thomas of Centre street, passed away yesterday after two days' illness with tetanus. A week ago Sunday, the little fellow ran a sliver in his foot, but no trouble was experienced until Saturday, when the dread disease struck him. All the efforts of the doctor to save his life were in vain.

Spent Bullet Near Taft.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 5.—Before President Taft took his seat in the reviewing stand in front of the Soldiers' Monument here yesterday, what is believed by the police to be a spent bullet struck Mrs. Harry D. Tutewiler, who was sitting near the President's box. The bullet came from a 38-calibre revolver. Mrs. Tutewiler was not seriously injured.

Keywest Aground.

Kingston, July 5.—The steamer Keywest, coal laden, on headway to Montreal, ran aground above Cardinal, in the canal. The steamer Donnelly was summoned from Kingston.

Crops Good In Kent.

Chatham, Ont., July 5.—Many farmers throughout Kent are well on their way with wheat-cutting. Some beautiful crops of fall-wheat and promising fields of oats were noticed through Dover yesterday, though in some other parts of the country it is said that the crops are not faring so well. The intense heat of the past few days has ripened the wheat very rapidly.

Fell Through Barn Trap Door.

Chatham, July 5.—Robert Coltart, a farmer, residing in Harwich, up the creek, met with a serious accident Monday. He fell through the trap door in a barn, fracturing two ribs and dislocating his wrist. He was taken to the city, where he received surgical treatment. He is in a serious condition. He is a well-known man in this county.

To Represent Queen's.

Kingston, July 5.—Commissioners of the exhibition of 1851 science research scholarship, have written G. Y. Chown, registrar at Queen's, stating that W. A. Bell, B.Sc., of St. Thomas, has been appointed Queen's University representative for this scholarship next year.

PROBS. SAY ITS FINE AND WARM; TEMPERATURE OF 99 AT NOON

Thunderstorms Are Here and Next Few Hours May See Much Hoped for Change.

Heads up and at least keep on wearing a smile.

It was just one degree on the lower side of one hundred at noontoday, and that's going some. So was the mercury, and it would be safer than betting on a country fair horse race to place a wager that the chemical substance went past that mark, since the quick lunch counters and ice cream parlors were besieged and deserted again.

But while the warm, or rather hot wave is here, Old Sol may as well do his best and let us see what he's got.

The majority of people have by this time become accustomed to sleeping on back verandahs, hammocks, and dog or cat fights don't bother them any more.

People on the river last night report a strange sight. Of course this may be brought about by the heat, but their stories are to the effect that the moving object at a considerable height resembled a balloon. They are sure there was a moving light. Probably some of our cousins from the other side were celebrating on Canadian soil, and during the course of their program sent up a toy balloon.

But there was no mistake about the moon having put on something new. At a late hour a crossshaped reflection could be easily discerned.

All the factories in the city are running, also the employes—away. At the Lock Works the moulders are out, while at the Peter Hamilton Co. the men are at work. At the Canadian General Electric company the conditions became such that at three o'clock this afternoon the question of closing down was being taken up.

The probabilities give the cheerful information that it is fine and warm to-day. Thunder storms in many places are promised by tomorrow.

HEAT MODERATING IN BIG CITIES

Thermometer at 94 in Toronto—New York Death List

Special To The Review.

Toronto, July 5.—In this city's hottest place to-day the highest temperature registered was 94. Cooler weather is expected, following thunderstorms expected to-night and tomorrow. The number of deaths reported from New York from the heat is, so far, sixty-four. Cooler weather is prevailing to-day at New York.

Toronto, July 4.—The observatory thermometer registered 95 in the shade at twelve o'clock, noon, and the mercury was still climbing. A refreshing breeze tempers the heat somewhat, but the foundries still remain closed.

EAST CITY LADY HAD BAD NEWS

Her Brother Severely Injured in Runaway Accident

Mrs. Gamble, of Ross street, East City, received a telephone message from Campbellford at ten o'clock last night to the effect that her brother, Mr. Stillman, who is a farmer in the vicinity of Campbellford, was severely injured about six o'clock in a runaway accident.

Mrs. Gamble left on the midnight train for Campbellford, but she could not ascertain the extent of her brother's injuries before leaving.

LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average person who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the lenses themselves but much of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The LENSES are the important thing. You look through the LENSES from the time you start to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see.

TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years.

Shaped like the cornea of the eye, they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view without touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens.

We grind all our own TORIC lenses. They cost a little more than the ordinary flat lenses and are worth MUCH more.

SITE FOR NEW EAST WARD SCHOOL SELECTED; SOME RESIGNATIONS AND APPOINTMENTS

Committee Recommend Property on Armour Estate for School—Miss Helen Davies Resigns—Mr. J. H. Renwick and R. J. Devey Apply for Position of Musical Instructor—Successor to Mr. Srigley.

Chairman John Crane gave the Board of Education a scolding last night for not being more punctual in arriving at the meeting. The board usually has the business under way by 7.45, but last night it was 8.20, hence the lecture. Several of the members were not in attendance.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. E. C. Srigley wrote the board formally tendering his resignation as teacher of the Collegiate staff, and thanking the board for the many kindnesses shown him during his nine years' stay in Peterborough.—Received.

A letter was read from Miss E. E. Carey, resigning her position on the public school teaching staff.—Accepted.

Miss Helen Davies, musical directress of the public and Normal school, wrote the board announcing her resignation, to take place at the end of the current year.—Accepted.

In regard to the foregoing resignations, the secretary was asked to write, thanking the three teachers for their faithful services.

A letter was read from Miss Alberta Real, accepting posiotion on teaching staff of the public school.

Miss Helen Howson also wrote, accepting appointment on kindergarten teaching staff. Miss Ethel Richardson wrote accepting similar position.—Received.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTOR.

A letter of application from R. J. Devey was read asking for position of musical instructor at public and Normal schools.

J. H. Renwick also wrote, asking for the same office.

The following reports were read and adopted:

To the chairman and members of the Board of Education;

Gentlemen,—As authorized, your committee advertised for tenders for text book supplies and also for Collegiate Institute supplies for the ensuing year, and have awarded the contract to Mr. R. J Soden, his being the lowest tender.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

T. H. Adams read the report of the finance committee, which recommended the payment of a large number of accounts.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education;

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg to report and recommend as follows;

1. That Miss Helen Howson and Miss Ethel Richardson, both of Peterborough, be appointed on the kindergarten staff of the Public schools to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Miss Wilson and Miss Claire, salaries to be according to schedule, and duties to start 5th September.

2. That Miss Alberta Real, of Greenbank, be appointed on the Public school staff to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Carey, salary to be according to schedule and duties to start 5th September next.

3. That Mr. C. E. Jamieson, of the St. Catharines Collegiate Institute, be appointed on the Collegiate Institute staff, to succeed Mr. E. C. Srigley, who has resigned, salary to be according to schedule and duties to start 5th September next.

4. That Miss Marion R. Rannie be appointed musical instructor to succeed Miss Davies, who has resigned, salary to be according to schedule and duties to start 5th September next.

5. That the annual increase in the salaries in the specialist class of the Collegiate Institute be $75, instead of $50, as at present, thereby reaching the maximum in four years instead of six. This amendment does not apply to the junior department.

6. Your Committee recommend that in future the salaries of the teachers be paid on the 1st of each month, instead of the 15th, as heretofore.

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

BUILDING COMMITTEE.

To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education;

Gentlemen,—Your committee beg to report that the plans for a new school for the East and West Wards are nearing completion and will be submitted for the approval of the Board in a very short time.

Regarding sites, your committee selected a site in the East Ward on the north-east corner of Concession and Hunter streets, owned by the Armour Estate. We had the solicitor negotiate regarding the purchase of the same, but the trustees of the estate refused to set a price, so the committee made them an offer of $400 per acre, for 4 or 5 acres, which they declined to accept, as per the solicitor's letter appended hereto.

We would therefore recommend that the Board take some action regarding the expropriation of the property for school purposes.

Regarding a site for the West Ward, negotiations are still under way, and we hope to secure a site both centrally located and of sufficient area, within a very short time.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman.

In regard to the latter report, Dr. Morrison, the chairman of the building committee, stated that they thought the site selected in East City preferable to any others, as it was most centrally located. He thought that the school ought to have at least five acres of grounds. The school would be an eight room one, with provision made for increasing it to 12 rooms should that be found needful.

CHILDREN MAKE GIFTS TO TEACHERS

A pleasing event took place last Friday evening, 30th ult., at the home of Mr Josiah Blewett, when the children of the section presented their retiring teacher with a beautifully bound book of Tennyson's poems accompanied by the following address .

To Miss M. L. McConnell,

Dear Teacher—Having learned of your departure from among us, we take this opportunity of showing, in some small measure, our appreciation of your labour in our behalf, during the past two years, not only have you taken a deep interest in our educational advancement, but also in our physical and moral development. We now ask you to accept this book of poems as a toekn of our esteem for you, not for its value, but because it comes from warm and loving hearts. We hope when you turn its pages in future years, you will think kindly of the pupils of school section No. 9, Smith

We wish you every success in your future life, and although we are sorry you are leaving us, we hope that where ever your lot may be cast, you will find as many warm friends as you leave behind .

Signed on behalf of the school,
VERNA HARRIS,
REG. McCONKEY

Although taken by surprise, Miss McConnell made a suitalbe reply.

The address was read by Master Reg. McConkey made the presentation, after which lunch was served in the dining room. After some time was spent in pleasant play by the children on the lawn, which was beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns, while social intercourse was indulged in by their parents, the company dispersed after singing, "God be with you till we meet again."

MISS THROOP SURPRISED

Special Correspondence

Hiawatha, July 1—On the day of closing, June 29, the pupils of S.S. No. 11, Smith, (Zion school) presented their teacher, Miss Mina E. Throop, with an address and an ebony manicure set, ebony brush and comb. The presentation was made by Miss Ila heard, and the address read by Master Archie Rosborough.

Dear Miss Throop—It is now three and a half years since you came to our school and became our teacher. During that time we have tried your patience many times, some times by being so slow to comprehend the instruction you were trying to impart at other times by our thoughtlessness and neglect of studies. We did not mean to be disobedient, but you were always kind and forgiving.

We regret your departure from us very much. We have always taken you as our model, and have found you the same on every occasion.

In losing you, we lose one loved by all and a true friend.

We hope success will follow you wherever you go, and that you will often think of us, as we will of you.

As a toekn of our love and esteem for you, we ask you to accept this gift. It carries with it our love and best wishes.

Wishing you a very pleasant holiday we remain,

Your loving pupils,

Signed on behalf oft he school,
ALBERT BALL
LORNE NORTHEY
ROGER TRENNUM
REGINALD COCKBURN.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

SITE FOR NEW EAST WARD SCHOOL

Mr. W. H. Hill thought six acres was none too much. The majority of the schools in the city he thought had insufficient playing ground area. When the time comes that the East City school will be a 20 room school instead of an 8 or 12 room one, the grounds will be found to be insufficient. "What we build now will be for generations to come," remarked Mr. Hill. He was in favor of the site selected in East City.

The whole Board of Education will visit the site selected and then a special meeting will be called.
